BAPTIST OPEN FIRST SESSION

Philadelphia, June 14. — The Northern Baptist convention, the first of the three great organizations of the church to meet in this city in the next two weeks, opened its session in the Baptist Temple yesterday. This convention represents more than a million and a quarter communicants of that church in northern United States. Next week the general convention of the Baptists of North America, representing the Baptist of the entire United States and Canada, will meet here, followed by the Baptist Work Alliance. The latter organization will bring to this city Baptists from many foreign countries.

The convention which met yesterday is a delegate body and was organized to give expression to the opinions of its constituency upon moral, religious and denominational matters and to promote denominational unity and efficiency in efforts for the evangelization of the world. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Dr. Emory W. Hunt, president of Denison University, Granville, Ohio, who is also president of the convention. The president's address was the feature of the morning session. Various reports of committees were also read.

STATE SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS LAST MEETING

The last meeting of the State Board of Education before being legislated out of office by the passage of the act creating a commission last winter, which becomes effective July 1, took place yesterday at the State Schools, Trenton, when a number of routine matters were taken up, and State Superintendent Charles J. Baxter was upheld in four decisions regarding school matters.

Three of the matters involved the city of Hoboken, the Board of Education and the Common Council of the section. The Board of Education had asked for an appropriation of $60,000 for the purpose of purchasing a lot, and $150,000 additional for the erection of a building. Common Council refused the money. Another request was made for $40,000 for a high school, and this was refused, as was an appropriation for the Calumet Construction for $12,750 on School 9. The State superintendent decided that Common Council had no jurisdiction over the school monies other than to raise it by taxation or bonds, and based this on a Supreme Court decision on a Montclair case.

The board upheld the superintendent in all the opinions.

The board endorsed the action of the local boards in the adoption of manual training in schools.

THINKS RECIPROCITY WILL PASS SENATE.

Washington, June 14.—Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, after a conference with President Taft Monday expressed the opinion that reciprocity would pass the Senate. Senator Lodge is the second member of the Finance Committee to prophesy the passage of reciprocity by the Senate. A few days ago Senator Smoot, of Utah, made this assertion at the White House.

As to the Root amendment, Senator Lodge said that neither its adoption nor its defeat would greatly alter the effectiveness of the bill.

HEAR DR. WILSON ON COMMISSION RULE

Governor Wilson was the principal speaker in Trent Theatre, Trenton, last night, at a mass meeting in behalf of commission rule. He urged the men assembled to vote at next Tuesday's special election for this new form of government telling them that his years of study and his recent trip in the West had convinced him that there was no other way to obtain good government in municipalities. Socialists congregated at the entrance and passed out circulars opposing the scheme.

Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, was scheduled to speak, but he was unable to be present. The Mayor, however, was represented by Judge James Murphy, Jersey City's Corporation Counsel. In introducing Governor Wilson, Mr. Campbell said: "Governor Wilson deserves our thanks for the splendid advertisement he has given ous State in the West."

"I want no thanks," began the Governor, "for being here tonight. It is my business to be wherever my fllow citizens want to hear ne discuss political questions. And at any rate I imagine that I got more out of my Western trip than did any one else. I found the whole country politically wide awake and determined upon a resumption of rule by the people instead of rule by the bosses."

The Governor asked why is was that the opponents of commission rule were indulging in "gumshoe politics," as he designated the whisperings and insinuations that are heard from the opposition camp. He branded such tactics as cowardly, and said that cowardice was the lowest thing in human life. In conclusion he placed himself in favor of home rule for municipalities instead of rule from the State House. He said that last winter Jersey City had sought legislation to enable the repair of some streets, but he had refused to sign the bill, hoping that the people of the municipality might finally be brought to realize the hopelessness of conditions under the present form of government.

Some one in the audience yelled, "Hey, Governor, how about yer salary?"

"I did not get that," said the Governor, with a smile. Another of his auditors wanted to know how official news could be obtained under commission rule. The Governor told him to take an honest newspaper or attend the commission meetings, all of which would-be open to the public.

Suit Resumed.

The Potter Printing Press Company contract suit against the Newark Advertiser Publishing Company and the Newark Star, was resumed in the Union County Court this morning. It will probably require two days for completion.

BAYONNE REJECTED COMMISSION GOV'T

By a plurality of three votes Bayonne yesterday rejected the Walsh commission form of government law. The vote was: for, 2,234; against, 2,237. There were several rejected ballots. The vote cast was 4,571, within 66 per cent. of the total vote polled for the legislative candidates at the last general election.

As Bayonne was the first city in New Jersey to vote on the new form of government much interest was manifested in the election, not only in Hudson county, but in other sections of the State. The advocates of the Walsh law had been active ever since it was signed by Governor Wilson, just after the close of the legislative session, and they were confident that it would be accepted.

TROLLEY MEN PREPARING TO HOLD ANNIVERSARY.

In connection with various anniversaries being observed at the present time by local street railway employe, Motorman Robert Wallace and conductor Michael McCarthy, the popluar Fourth street running mates, are to hold one next month. On July 18, they will complete their twentieth year in the service and will mark the date in an appropriate manner. They will be assisted by all the "vets" of the old Plainfield Street Railway Company.

There are probably no two trolley men in the city better known than Messrs. Wallace and McCarthy. Mr. Wallace was in the employ of contractor Thomas Burke before taking to the road and McCarthy was in the machine shop at the Potter Press Works. The two have been working on the same run for many years.

WANTED HIS FACE ON SOME POSTCARD STAMPS.

Washington, June 14.—With a vaulting ambition by which he hoped to place himself at a single bound in a class with George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Franklin, William McKinley and other celebrities, a citizen of Memphis, Tenn., has written Postmaster-General Hitchcock with a lead pencil asking what the department would charge him to make some postcards and stamps with his own physiognomy engraved thereon. He wants to know what they would cost him a hundred and what they would be the smallest amount he could have "run off."

The Postmaster-General, in his most gracious manner, informed the Tennesseean what the "smallest amount" would be, although this reply was not made public.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Taylor and son, Ralph O. Taylor, of Fairview avenue, are registered at The Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dekin and children, of Clinton avenue, returned home Monday from Asbury Park, where they have been enjoying seashore life for the past week.

Miss Anna Wilcox, daughter of J. T. Wilcox, of this city, left today for a three months' stay at Los Angeles, California. Miss Wilcox will stop en route at New Orleans and Houston, Texas.

GOVERNOR WILSON SIGNS PRINCETON'S DIPLOMAS.

Governor Wilson spent a busy day at the State House, Trenton, yesterday before going to the Trent theatr, Trenton, to deliver an address on the commission form of government. The most of the Governor's time was taken up in signing diplomas for the 1911 class of graduates of Princeton University, which he did as the president of Princeton for the close of this year, there being no president selected yet, and Governor Wilson is the logical president to sign these diplomas as he was at the university as the president all during their course, with the exception of the past few months.

There were several members of the faculty at the capitol while the Governor was affixing his signature to the diplomas, and the private office of his excellency was strewn with the sheepskins most of the day.

To Quiz Governor Wilson.

What Governor Wilson is going to say to the lawyers of New Jersey and what some of the big men of the bar are likely to say to the Governor will be the principal feature of the annual session of the State Bar Association at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, Friday and Saturday. The Governor is to be the principal speaker at the dinner Friday night and in view of what the last Legislature did and what the Governor did to induce the Legislature to do it there is said to be a fine chance of some very interesting minutes.

Strawberry Festival.

The annual strawberry and ice cream festival of the Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will be held on Saturday afternoon and night, June 24. It will be held on the grounds surrounding the home of the pastor, Rev. Frederic L. Greene, 408 Lee place. As an added feature the Men's Club will provide a number of motor cars which may be hired out by the hour, the proceeds to be given to the society.

Claim Election Illegal.

Residents of the Greenbrook section of North Plainfield township, are taking steps to have the recent election of light commissioners set aside on the ground of its being illegal. It is claimed that J. C. Shotwell, one of elected commissioners, sat as an election officer, a proceeding contrary to law. The matter is to be brought to the attention of the proper authorities.

EMPLOPERS' RISK

per centum of wages received at the time of injury subject to a maximum compensation of ten dollars per week and a minimum of five dollars per week—under five dollars salary counts the same as a five-dollar wage—shall be paid during disability but not over 300 weeks.

For disability total in character and permanent in quality, fifty per centum of the wages received at the time of injury, subject to same as above only it can last for 400 weeks.

For disability partial in character but permanent in quality, the compensation shall be based upon the extent of such disability.

For the loss of a thumb, fifty per centum of daily wages during sixty weeks.

For the loss of a first finger, fifty per centum of daily wages during thirty-five weeks.

For the loss of a second finger, fifty per centum of daily wages during thirty weeks.

For the loss of a third finger, fifty per centum of daily wages during twenty weeks.

For the loss of a fourth finger, commonly called little finger, fifty per centum of daily wages during fifteen weeks.

The loss of the first phlange of the thumb, or of any finger, shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one-half of such thumb, or finger, and compensation shall be one-half the amounts above specified.

The loss of more than one phlange shall be considered as the loss of the entire finger or thumb; providing, however, that in no case shall the amount received for more than one finger exceed the amount provided in this schedule for the loss of a hand.

For the loss of a great toe, fifty per centum of daily wages during thirty weeks.

For the loss of one of the toes other than a great toe, fifty per centum of daily wages during ten weeks.

The loss of the first phlange of any toe shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one-half of such toe, and compensation shall be one-half of the amount above specified.

The loss of more than one phlange shall be considered as the loss of the entire toe.

For the loss of a hand, fifty per centum of daily wages during 150 weeks.

For the loss of an arm, fifty per centum of daily wages during 200 weeks.

For the loss of a foot, fifty per centum of daily wages during 125 weeks.

For the loss of a leg, fifty per centum of daily wages during 175 weeks.

For the loss of an eye, fifty per centum, of daily wages during one hundred weeks.

The loss of both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or of any two thereof, shall constitute total and permanent disability.

In all other cases in this class the compensation shall bear such relation to the amounts stated in the schedule as the disabilities bear to those produced by the injuries named in the schedule. Should the employer and employe be unable to agree upon the amount of compensation to be paid in cases not covered by the schedule, provision is made for a legal determination of the merits of the claim.

In case of death, compensation shall be computed on the basis of the following schedule, but shall be distributed according to the laws of the State of New Jersey providing for the distribution of the personal property of an interstate decedent, unless decedent has left a will:

Pension for Defendants.

(1) Actual dependents.

If orphan or orphans, a minimum of twenty-five per centum of wages of deceased, with ten per centum additional for each orphan in excess of two, with a maximum of sixty per centum.

If widow alone, twenty-five per centum of wages.

If widow and one child, forty per centum of wages.

If widow and two children, forty-five per centum of wages.

If widow and three children, fifty per centum of wages.

If widow and four children, fifty-five per centum of wages.

If widow and five children, sixty per centum of wages.

If widow and father or mother, fifty per centum of wages.

If grandparents, grandchildren or minor, or incapacitated brothers or sisters, twenty-five per centum of wages.

(2) No dependents.

Expenses of last sickness and burial not exceeding two hundred dollars.

In computing compensation to orphans or other children, only those under sixteen years of age shall be included, and only during the period in which they are under that age, at which time payment on account of such child shall cease.

The compensation in case of death shall be subject to a maximum compensation of ten dollars a week and a minimum of five dollars a week, but if at the time of injury the employe receives less than five dollars a week the compensation shall be the full amount of wages received. This compensation shall be paid during three hundred weeks. Aliens not residents of the United States are not included in the provision of this schedule.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Donald Saunders, who is employed as an apprentice boy at Scott's Press Works, had a narrow escape yesterday morning from serious injury. While working about a press, a piece of work Donald was handling slipped and in trying to recover it his hand was caught in the press and painfeully bruised and mangled. The injured hand was attended to at Muhlenberg Hospital, after which the boy was brought home.

No clue has as yet been obtained of the Italian who held up and beat Mrs. Hyland, on Mountain avenue, Saturday morning. The man had been seen hanging around the vicinity of Jerusalem road a week before the hold-up, but a thorough search has been made for the man by the police but no clues has been obtained.

The local ball team are practicing every night, when the weather permits and Manager Alberts expects to put one over on High Bridge Saturday afternoon. MacLaughlin will do the box work for the locals.

The weekly meetings and socials of the young people of the Baptist church, which have been held during the past winter and spring, have been discontinued until fall.

Frank Aberly, who has been spending several weeks with his aunt, Mrs. M. A. Corrona, of Stanbery avenue, has returned to his home in New York.

Miss Ruth Hatfield, who is a student at one of the Virginia private schools, is home for her summer vacation.

The Weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Albert Smith, of the borough, who is a motorman on the main line trolley, had a narrow escape from serious injury in the storm Saturday night. His car was speeding along near Cranford during the worst of the blow and a big tree was blown across the track directly in front of it. Mr. Smith applied his emergency brakes and stoppd the car just abreast of the obstruction.

Charles Tinsman received a sprained ankle yesterday, by falling from a cherry tree in the rear of the Garretson property on North avenue. He fell a considerable distance and luckily escaped more serious injury. He was taken to his home on New Market road in a carriage and will be confined there for at least several days.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will hold the annual strawberry festival next Monday night. The committee gives assurance that there will be plenty of the luscious fruit on hand for every one and also a large quantity of delicious ice cream.

William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., nominated officers at its meeting last night. The election will be held on June 27.

J. M. B. Pyatt, of New Market road, has been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, for treatment.

Assessor John H. L. Peters was a visitor in New York yesterday.

MOTHER DIES; WIRELESS SEEKS STOKES AT SEA.

Millville, June 14.—Mrs. E. H. Stokes, mother of former Governor Stokes, of New Jersey, died at her home here early yesterday. Last Thursday the former Governor and his father sailed from New York on the steamship Amerika for Europe, and for the past twenty-four hours efforts had been made to reach them by wireless.

Mrs. Stokes had been ill for many weeks, but showed such great improvement last week that Mr. Stokes and the former Governor decided not to postpone their trip.

DIPHTHERIA CLOSES A DUNELLEN SCHOOL

The Dunellen Board of Education yesterday ordered the permanent closing for the season of one of its schools because of a diphtheria epidemic which has existed for several weeks. Efforts to stamp out the disease have prived futile, as the raising of quarantine on one case meant the placing of it on two others. Most of the victims have been pupils in the Lincoln School, in which is located the primary grades, and it was this building that the board decided should suspend classes. It is believed that the discontinuance will materially check the diphtheretic spread.

The number of cases has been about twelve in all. The more recent ones have been Mrs. John P. Fenner, wife of one of Dunellen's leading merchants, who had a light attack; Edwin Ayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ayers, of Front street, and Mattie Humble, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Humble, of North avenue and Chestnut street. The last two were reported Monday and are now under treatment. Miss Ethel Rogers, a teacher in the Lincoln School, was numbered among the first victims and is now convalescent.

The local Board of Health has had considerable difficulty in enforcing the quarantine regulations with several families and on one or two occasions was compelled to resort to extreme measures to impress upon parents the necessity of keeping children indoors after the usual restrictions had been ordered.

RAISE FLAG TONIGHT ON AN HISTORIC SITE

The Washington Camp Ground Association of Bound Brook, will observe flag day in an elaborate manner this evening by conducting a flag raising at Middlebrook Heights, where the first official Old Glory was raised on June 14, 1777. The exercises will be very interesting and a general invitation is extended to the public to attend.

The flag will be raised at 6 o'clock and a salute of twenty-one guns will be fired as the Stars and Stripes are flung to the breeze. A detachment from the Wilson Military Academy will sound the flag bugle call in accompaniment. Frederic Curtis Brown, of Summit, a New York newspaperman, is to deliver a historic address during the ceremonies the members of the association will speak briefly.

Middlebrook Heights, where the flag is to be raised, is about a mile north of Bound Brook and on the property of the Washington Camp Ground Association. It was here that Washington's army was camped on June 14, 1777, when Congress adopted the Betsy Ross flag as a national emblem. It had previously been carried in the army but merely as a joint production of the ideas of Washington and Betsy Ross. News of the action of Congress was conveyed to the commander on June 15 and the flag then in camp was raised at Middlebrook Heights.

Stages will be waiting at the Bound Brook station at 5:30 this afternoon for the use of people who wish to attend the ceremonies.

John Phillips.

John Phillips, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips, of South Plainfield, died yesterday afternoon. The funeral was held this afternoon and burial was at Perth Amboy.

GREEKS WHO ARE GERMANS

Many of the Descendants of the Followers of King Otho I. Are Found in and Near Athens.

A visitor to Athens who goes to the neighboring village of Heraclea is surprised to see children with blue eyes and light hair playing in the streets; in fact they are little folk who resemble but remotely the descendants of Pericles.

These children on the Greek soil are descendants of the suite and followers of King Otho I. When the prince of Bavaria was called to the throne of Greece in 1832 he was accompanied by soldiers, officials, professional men, workmen and shopkeepers. In plain language a good part of the contingent was a motley crowd of adventurers.

Most of these remained behind after the fall of the dynasty, and occupying good positions today in Athens are the bearers of names unquestionably German, for instance Hoesslin, Rienck and Schaureth.

The Bavarian king and queen encouraged the settlement of their countrymen in Greece. Queen Amelia created a model farm in Pyros Amalias, but the land uncultivated has now returned to a state of nature. The king founded a village upon which he bestowed the ancient title of Heraclea, and in view of the brigandage he surrounded it with walls and gates. At the four corners he erected small forts. It had new town houses for 60 families specially reserved for Bavarian artisans, but only forty were ever occupied.

After the troubles of 1843 13 families quitted the township, and the German population has since then continued to decrease, but those who have remained do not seem to have contracted Greek marriages.—Munchner Nachrichten.

ADHESIVE PLASTER USEFUL

It Is Invaluable to Mend Rubber Goods, Cover Cuts and Bruises and for Other Purposes.

A spool of good adhesive plaster is worth its weight in gold in the home, both as a means of saving the housekeeper's time and as a general repairer. Secure the best grade of nonirritating adhesive used for surgical purposes. It is comparatively inexpensive and comes in different widths. Either warm it before applying or pass a warm iron over it after it is in place.

I have found it invaluable to mend rubber goods of all kinds, hot water bags, garden hose, mackintoshes, gloves, handbags, and to replace the worn heel linings of my shoes, thus saving both pain and hosiery. It furnishes an ever ready waterproof covering for cuts and bruises, and may be used to hold dressings in place. It is an ideal substance with which to mend corsets, repairing breaks or holding protruding steels back in place. It may also be used to stop cracks and to exclude light and air or to make fumigation more thorough. A tight bandage of it will mend a splintered handle or chair leg. Apply it to the under side of a rug that curls or is torn and see how nicely it remedies the trouble. It makes excellent labels for fruit or jelly, as the back may be lettered with ink and it is the finest thing imaginable with which to fasten a mail or express package—and this isn't a tithe of its uses, either.—Woman's Home Companion.

Dubious Work.

More than thirty years ago, when Colonel Frobel of Atlanta was called on to gage the water in a neighboring stream, he one day had an amusing encounter with an old farmer who came along on a wood cart, drawn by an ox.

When he reached the colonel, he stopped the cart, and inquired, peremptorily:

"What on 'arth are them men doin' thar?"

"They are trying to find out how many bucketfuls of water run down this creek in 24 hours," said the colonel.

"Mister, are that a true fact?" asked the farmer.

"Yes, that's just what it is," said the colonel.

"Well, mister," said the old man, in a tone of much disapproval and anxiety, "it mought be all right, but it do appear to me such doin's are onconstitootional." — Youth's Companion.

Rhodes' Art Fad.

Although Cecil Rhodes was a busy man he got time for a certain amount of reading. He made it a rule, although very fond of good pictures, never to buy any for fear of developing a craze for collecting works of art, for with all his wealth he felt that he could not afford to spend so much money on a fad. The only famous painting that he owned was one by Sir Joshua Reynolds, supposed to represent a young married woman, which hung in the dining-room over the fireplace. As a boy he had taken a great fancy to the picture, and when he grew up and became rich he bought it.

Tit for Tat.

"Dear Clara," wrote the young man; "pardon me, but I'm getting so forgetful. I proposed to you last night, but really forget whether you said yes or no."

"Dear Will," she replied by note; "so glad to hear from you. I know I said yes to some one last night, but I had forgotten just who it was."—Red Hen.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Plainfield People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often ewighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, or dropsy. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Plainfield.

Miss Lena Wahl, 335 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I can endorse Doan's Kidney Pills highly. They did me so much good when I was suffering from pains in my back caused by disordered kidneys that I think there is nothing like them. The promptness with which Doan's Kidney Pills disposed of my trouble was surprising and gratifying. They not only removed the pain and lameness but strengthened my kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Carpenter Telephones

"I'LL send a man right up to take the measurements. It will take a week or ten days to get the sash from the mill. I'll order them by telephone just as soon as I get the dimensions."

The carpenter frequently gets an order over the telephone—maybe it's for storm windows; the roof leaks, or other repairs are needed at the family residence.

It's the man with the telephone who gets the order.

CHRIST-LIKE COMMON SENSE

Mutual Service the Basis of Confidence and Means Justice, Peace, Plenty and Virtue.

Mutual service is the basis of mutual confidence. Mutual service means justice, peace, plenty, virtue. It means the beginning at least of that mutual love which is the crown and glory of the divine life of a perfect humanity. If we are committed to that we are on our way to the realization of the Christian ideal. If not, no belief will save us. We may fast and pray and humiliate ourselves before we can put the message of Jesus into such form as to reach the mind, the conscience, the heart, of this generation; we must get at the spirit in which he, being what he was, spoke and acted. If, by sympathy, we share the spirit that moved him we begin to know not what he said and did then so much as what we ought to say and do now and here. What he said about the rich and the poor, the scribes and the Pharisees, the Gentile publicans and Jewish sinners he might not say today if he were dealing with the problems of modern society. What he did at any moment depended upon the peculiar circumstances of the time and place. He might act differently now and here. If, however, we can discover the spirit in which he used the gifts of his nature and the power of God that was in him we may in the spirit know how we ought to apply ourselves to the needs of our time and what will help us in our work today. —Christian Register.

CORONATIONS OF OLD DAYS

Quaint Ceremonials That Formerly Were Observed at the Banquet in Westminster Hall.

Westminster hall saw some picturesque pageants at old-time coronations. Among these, according to a writer in the Queen, was a coronation banquet, at which were observed some quaint ceremonials. The first course was brought into the hall with much courtly splendor. At the crowning of Georve IV. Lord Anglessey, as lord high steward, rode in the center wearing his robes and coronet, and with a plume of white feathers on his horse's head. The duke of Wellington as lord high constable rode on his right on a white charger most richly caparisoned, and on the left rode Lord Howard of Effingham as deputy earl marshal of England.

These three, with many other attendants, escorted the gentlemen pensioners, who bore the hot dishes for the king's own eating. At this banquet cups of wine were offered by the lord mayor of London and by the mayor of Oxford; the lord of the manor of Lyston presented a plate of wafers, and another lord of a manor gave three cups of maple unto his sovereign. These cups of maple were presented and accepted by King Edward at his coronation in 1902. Westminster hall is no longer used on the occasion of this solemn service.

Ancient Discourse.

The vicar was a very old man. He had been in the parish forty-two years. During his last year the curate was practically in charge of the services, but now and then, when he was able, he occupied the pulpit. His eyesight was bad, and he was altogether unfit to compose fresh sermons, so had to fall back on old ones. One Sunday morning his hearers were alarmed with a discourse much as follows: "We are standing today," he said, "face to face with a great power in the east. We are on the verge of war. (Long pause.) We are—we are—er—we are on the brink of war with Russia. I—er—we, I mean—we will now proceed to consider the next point." In the vestry, after service, the curate asked him about the projected war, as he had seen nothing about it in the papers. "That sermon," he said, with a very far-off look in his eyes, and a slight suspicion of a smile—"that sermon I wrote forty years ago."

The Man in the Stocks.

Thomas Hardy lived to see many changes in his native Wessex. "I have seen with my own eyes things that many people believe to have been extinct for centuries. I have seen men in the stocks. I remember one perfectly when I was very young. I can see him now, sitting in the scorching sunshine with the flies crawling over him." Incidents like this were used in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" and "The Return of the Native." Max Gate, the house in which he lives, is built on what was formerly crown land belonging to the duchy of Cornwall. When Hardy's offer to purchase was received the late King Edward, then prince of Wales, remarked: "Let him have the land he wants; he has set his heart on it, and we must do all we can to make our authors contented."

The Main Requisite.

A pale, intellectural looking chap, wearing eyeglasses and unshorn hair, visited an athletic instructor not long ago and asked questions until the diplomatic athlete finally become weary. "If I take boxing and wrestling lessons from you, will it require any particular application?" he asked. "No," answered the instructor, "but a little arnica will come in handy."

This Commercial Age.

"Are you acquainted with him at all?"

"Only in a business way. I married his daughter."—Spokesman-Review.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "My Lady of the South" "When Wilderness Was King," Etc. Etc.

Illustrations By Dearborn Melvill.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

He had some friends without—not many, for he was but an occasional visitor at Carson—who would rally to Hick's assistance, but there would not be enough on the side of law and order to overcome the "Red Light" outfit, if once they scented blood. If he was to be saved from their clutches, he must save himself; if his innocence was ever established it would be by his own exertions—and he could accomplish this only out yonder, free under the arch of sky.

He lifted his head, every nerve tingling with desperate determination. The low growl of voices was audible through the partition, but there was no other sound. Carson City was still resting, and there would be no crowd nor excitement until much later. Not until nightfall would any attack be attempted; he had six or eight hours yet in which to perfect his plans. He ran his eyes about the room searching for some spot of weakness. It was dark back of the bench, and he turned in that direction. Leaning over, he looked down on the figure of a man curled up, sound asleep on the floor. The fellow's limbs twitched as if in a dream, otherwise he might have deemed him dead, as his face was buried in his arms. A moment Keith hesitated; then he reached down and shook the sleeper, until he aroused sufficiently to look up. It was the face of a coal-black negro. An instant the fellow stared at the man towering over him, his thick lips parted, his eyes full of sudden terror. Then he sat up, with hands held before him as though warding off a blow.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake," he managed to articulate finally, "am dis sho' yo', Massa Jack?"

Keith, to whom all colored people were much alike, laughed at the expression on the negro's face.

"I reckon yer guessed the name, all right, boy. Were you the cook of the Diamond L?"

"No, sah, I nebber cooked no di'onds. I'se ol' Neb, sah."

"What?"

"Yes, sah, I'se de boy dat libbed wid ol' Missus Caton durin' de wah. I ain't seen yo', Massa Jack, sence de day we buried yo' daddy, ol' Massa Keith. But I knowed yo' de berry minute I woke up. Sho' yo' 'members Neb, sah?"

It came to Keith now in sudden rush of memory—the drizzling rain in the little cemetery, the few neighbors standing about, a narrow fringe of slaves back of them, the lowering of the coffin, and the hollow sound of earth falling on the box; and Neb, his Aunt Caton's house servant, a black imp of good humor, who begged so hard to be taken back with him to the war. Why, the boy had held his stirrup the next morning when he rode away. The sudden rush of recollection seemed to bridge the years, and that black face became familiar, a memory of home.

"Of course, I remember, Neb," he exclaimed, eagerly, "but that's all years ago and I never expected to see you again. What brought you West and got you into this hole?"

The negro hitched up onto the bench, the whites of his eyes conspicuous as he stared uneasily about—he had a short, squatty figure, with excessively broad shoulders, and a face of intense good humor.

"I reck'n dat am consider'ble ob a story, Massa Jack, de circumlocution ob which would take a heap ob time tellin'," he began soberly. "But it happened 'bout dis way. When de Yankees come smoopin' long de East Sho'—I reck'n maybe it des a yeah after dat time when we done buried de ol' Co'nel—dey burned Missus Caton's house clah to de groun'; de ol' Missus was in Richmond den, an' de few niggers left jest natchally took to de woods. I went into Richmond huntin' de ol' Missus, but, Lawd, Massa Jack, I nebber foun' nuthin' ob her in dat crowd. Den an' officer man done got me an' put me diggin' in de trenches. Ef dat's what wah am, I sho' don' want no mo' wah. Den after dat I jest natchally drifted. I reckon I libbed 'bout eberywhar yo' ebber heard ob, fo' dar want no use ob me goin' back to de East Sho'. Somebody said dat de West am de right place fo' a nigger, an' so I done headed west."

He dropped his face in his black hands, and was silent for some minutes, but Keith said nothing, and finally the thick voice continued:

"I tell you', Massa Jack, it was mighty lonely fo' Neb dem days. I didn't know whar any ob yo' all was, an' it wan't no fun fo' dis nigger bein' free dat away. I got out ter Independence, Missouri, an' was roustaboutin' on de ribber, when a coupie ob men come along what wanted a cook to trabbel wid 'em. I took de job, an' dat's what fetched me here ter Carson City."

"But what caused your arrest?"

"A conjunction ob circumstances, Massa Jack; yes, sah, a conjunction ob circumstances. I got playin' pokah ober in dat 'Red Light,' an' I was doin' fine. I reckon I'd cleaned up mo'n a hundred dollars when I got sleepy, an' started fo' camp. I'd most got dar, w'en a bunch ob low white trash jumped me. It made me mad, it did fo' a fact, an' I reckon I carved some ob 'em up befo' I got away. Ennyhow, de marshal come down, took me out ob de tent, an' fetched me here, an' I ben here ebber sence. I wan't goin' ter let no low down white trash git all dat money."

"What became of the men you were working for?"

"I reckon dey went on, sah. Dey had 'portent business, an' wouldn't likely wait 'round here jest ter help a nigger. Ain't ennybody ben here ter see me, nohow, an' I 'specta I'se eradicated from dey mem'ry—I 'spects I is."

CHAPTER V.

The One Way.

Keith said nothing for some moments, staring up at the light stealing in through the window grating, his mind once again active. The eyes of the black man had the patient look of a dog as they watched; evidently he had cast aside all responsibility, now that this other had come. Finally Keith spoke slowly:

"We are in much the same position, Neb, and the fate of one is liable to be the fate of both. This is my story"—and briefly as possible, he ran over the circumstances which had brought him there, putting the situation clear enough for the negro's understanding, without wasting any time upon detail. Neb followed his recital with bulging eyes, and an occasional exclamation. At the end he burst forth:

"Yo' say dar was two ob dem white men murdered—one an ol' man wid a gray beard, an' de odder 'bout thirty? Am dat it, Massa Jack, an' dey had fo' span ob mules, an' a runnin' hoss?"

"Yes."

"An' how far out was it?"

"About sixty miles."

"Oh, de good Lawd!" and the negro threw up his hands dramatically. "Dat sutt'nly am my outfit! Dat am Massa Waite an' John Sibley."

"You mean the same men with whom you came here from Independence?"

Neb nodded, overcome by the discovery.

"But what caused them to run such a risk?" Keith insisted. "Didn't they know the Indians were on the war path?"

"Sho'; I heard 'em talkin' 'bout dat, but Massa Waite was jest boun' foh to git movin'. He didn't 'pear to be 'fraid ob no Injuns; reck'ned dey'd nebber stop him, dat he knowed ebbery chief on de plains. I reck'n dat he did, too."

"But what was he so anxious to get away for?"

"I dunno, Massa, I done heerd 'em talk some 'bout dey plans, an' 'bout some gal dey wanted ter fin', but I didn't git no right sease to it. De Gin'ral, he was a might still man."

"The General? Whom do you mean? Not Waite?"

"John Sibley done called him dat."

Then Keith remembered—just a dim, misty thread at first, changing slowly into a clear recollection. He was riding with despatches from Longstreet to Stonewall Jackson, and had been shot through the side. The first of Jackson's troops he reached was a brigade of North Carolinians, commanded by General Waite—General Willis Waite. He had fallen from his horse at the outposts, was brought helpless to the General's tent, and another sent on with the papers. And Mrs. Waite had dressed and bandaged his wound. That was where he had seen that woman's face before, with its haunting familiarity. He drew the locket from beneath his shirt, and gazed at the countenance revealed, with new intelligence. There could be no doubt—it was the face of her who had cared for him so tenderly in that tent at Manassas before the fever came and he had lost consciousness. And that, then, was Willis Waite lying in that shallow grave near the Cimmaron Crossing, and for whose death he had been arrested. 'Twas a strange world, and a small one. What a miserable ending to a life like his—a division commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, a Lieutenant-Governor of his state. What strange combination of circumstances could ever have brought such a man to this place, and sent him forth across those Indian-scouted plains? Surely nothing ordinary. And why should those border desperadoes have followed, through sixty miles of desolation, to strike him down? It was not robbery, at least in the ordinary sense. What then? And how was "Black Bart" involved? Why should he be sufficiently interested to swear out a warrant, and then assist in his arrest? There must be something to all this not apparent upon the surface—some object, some purpose shrouded in mystery. No mere quarrel, no ordinary feud, no accident of meeting, no theory of commonplace robbery, would account for the deed, or for the desperate efforts now being made to conceal it.

Some way, these questions, thus surging upon him, became a call to live, to fight, to unravel their mystery. The memory of that sweet-faced woman who had bent above him when the fever began its mastery, appealed to him now with the opportunity of service. He might be able to clear this, bring to her the truth, save her from despair, and hand over to justice the murderers of her husband. It was up to him alone to accomplish this—no one else knew what he knew, suspected what he suspected. And there was but one way—through escape. To remain there in weak surrender to fate could have but one ending, and that swift and sudden. He had no doubt as to "Black Bart's" purpose, or of his ability to use the "Red Light" outfit as desired. The whole plan was clearly evident, and there would be no delay in execution—all they were waiting for was night, and a lax guard. He glanced about at the walls of the room, his eyes grown hard, his teeth clenched.

"Neb," he said shortly, "I guess that was your outfit all right, but they were not killed by Indians. They were run down by a gang from this town—the same fellows who have put you and me in here. I don't know what they were after—that's to be found out later,—but the fight you put up at the camp spoiled their game for once, and led to your arrest. They failed to get what was wanted in Carson, and so they trailed the party to the Cimmaron Crossing. Then I got on their track, and fearing the result, they've landed me also. Now they'll get rid of us both as best they can. These fellows won't want any trial—that would be liable to give the whole trick away—but they have got to put us where we won't talk. There is an easy way to do this, and that is by a lynching bee. Do you get my drift, Neb?"

The whites of the negro's eyes were very much in evidence, his hands gripping at the bench on which he sat.

"Fo' de Lawd, yes, Massa Jack, I sho' does. I corroborates de whole thing."

"Then you are willing to take a chance with me?"

"Willin'! Why, Massa Jack, I'se overjoyed; I ain't gwine leave yer no mo'. I'se sho' gwine ter be yo' nigger. What yo' gwine ter do?"

Keith ran his eyes over the walls, carefully noting every peculiarity.

"We'll remain here quietly just as long as it is daylight, Neb," he replied finally, "but we'll try every board and every log to discover some way out. Just the moment it grows dark enough to slip away without being seen we've got to hit the prairie. Once south of the Arkansas we're safe, but not until then. Have you made any effort to get out?"

The negro came over to him, and bent down.

"I was layin' on a board what I'd worked loose at one end," he whispered hoarsely, "back ob de bench, but I couldn't jerk it out wid'out something ter pry it up wid."

"Where is it?"

It was a heavy twelve-inch plank, part of the flooring, and the second from the side-wall. Keith managed to get a grip next to the black fingers, and the two pressed it up far enough for the white man to run one arm through the opening up to his shoulder and grope about below.

"There's a two-foot space there," he reported, as they let the board settle silently down into position. "The back part of this building must be set up on piles. I reckon we could pry that plank up with the bench, Neb, but it's liable to make considerable racket. Let's hunt about first for some other weak spot."

They crept across the floor, testing each separate board, but without discovering a place where they could exert a leverage. The thick planks were tightly spiked down. Nor did the walls offer any better encouragement. Keith lifted himself to the grated window, getting a glimpse of the world without, but finding the iron immovable, the screws solidly imbedded in the outside wood. He dropped to the floor, feeling baffled and discouraged.

"It will have to be the plank back of the bench, Neb," he announced briefly, wiping the perspiration from his face. "Get down there, and work it as loose as you can without making any noise, while I keep my ear to the door and listen for any interruption."

They took turns at this labor, discovering a loose nail which gave an opening purchase at the crack, thus enabling the insert'on of a small wooden block, and insuring space for a good finger grip when the right time came. A sleepy Mexican brought in their dinner, and set it down on the bench without a word, but on his return with supper, the marshal accompanied him, and remained while they ate, talking to Keith, and staring about the room. Fortunately, the single window was to the west, the last rays of the sun struck the opposite wall, leaving the space behind the bench in deep shadow. Whatever might be the plans of "Black Bart" and his cronies, Keith was soon convinced they were unknown to Hicks, who had evidently been deceived into thinking that this last arrest had created no excitement.

"That's why we picked yer up so early," he explained, genially. "Bart said if we got to yer afore the boys woke up they'd never hear nuthin' 'bout it, an' so thar wouldn't be no row. He didn't even think thar'd be enny need o' keepin' a special guard ter-night, but I reckon I won't take no such chance as that, an' I'll have couple o' deputies prowlin' 'round fer luck. When Carson does wake up, she's hell."

J. R. MOTT RECEIVES LL.D. FROM PRINCETON

Among those honored with degrees at Princeton University, yesterday, was John R. Mott, who is well-known in this city. He was one of two to receive the degree of LL.D., and is also said to be the youngest man to be so honored at the university. Mr. Mott is associate general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and leader of the World's Christian Student Federation. Dean West, who presented the degree to Mr. Mott, said:

"Honored by academic and religious bodies for his services in planning and extending the active Christian work of university students, devisor of national and international agenciec for this work, a new Crusader bent upon the Christian conquest of the world." Mr. Mott was one of them and George Lockhart Rives, formerly Assistant Secretary of State of the United States, the other.

Dr. Mott has just returned from a tour to the universities of Eastern Europe, where he organized student Y. M. C. A. bodies. He visited King George while away and ventured to say that this world-wide movement for Christianizing students is the most important and far-reaching of all movements for the betterment of mankind, to which King George assented, adding that it is uniting the hearts of the leading men of the world.

HANDIBOOK ISSUED ON BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

"Boy Scouts of America," a handbook for boys, compiled by an editorial board of which William D. Murray, of this city, is the chairman, has just come from the press of Doubleday, Page & Co., of New York, and in view of the recent visit of Ernest Thompson Seton to this city, this week, is of especial interest to those who are engaged in work for boys. This movement is now world-wide. President William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt are honorary president and vice-president of the organization, while Colin H. Livingstone, of Washington, is the active president. Men of equal prominence comprise the other officers and executive board.

Ernest Thompson Seton, who is the chief scout, has a message in the book to the boys, and then follows interesting data on the movement, giving every possible information as to the organization, its purpose, etc., under various headings. It also describes first aid and life saving, tells all about animals, flowers, athletic standards, the requirements for membership, and in general is a most valuable book in promoting the interest of the organization which is attracting such widespread interest. The book can be secured at a nominal price.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. MARY E. GAVIN.

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Gavin, wife of Edward P. Gavin, of Columbia avenue, was held at the late home this morning at 8:30 and at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and a great many beautiful floral tributes.

Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, officiated and there was a solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the soul. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, and the pall-bearers were Andrw E. Kenney, David T. Kenney, Joseph A. Blatz, Richard A. Boyce, Thomas Meaney and Richard H. McCullough.

McINERNEY, JR., CRACK SHOT OF 4TH INFANTRY

Frank McInerney, Jr., of the 4th United States Infantry, who has been visiting his parents here during the past month, has returned to his post at Fort Logan H. Roots, Ark. In the rifle test held a short time ago McInerney was the only private of his regiment, 4th Infantry, to qualify. McInerney, Jr., received a medal as "expert rifleman." The honor of winning carried also a thirty days' furlough and gave him a chance to shoot in the rifle meet to be held at SanAntonio in July.

J. J. Hogan, engineer of No. 10 Engine Company, Newark, called on Chief T. O. Doane, of the local fire department, today.

MIX UP.

That dignified undignified dignified of yesterday was a conglomeration. The printer can not read my teligable wroting. I think it will be like my grammatical grammar. It will be world famous soon. The cause of grammar is that my grandfather had an idea that when he saved the price of a hired man and let my father do the work, he was giving father a grand opportunity. And father was like a great many of you people, he would rather stick to an old time idea than anything else. A great many of you are sticking to old time ideas, (or old houses) because you have had no one to teach you that your ground would sell these times as quick and for more money without your old ideas, than with them. Just size up the present day situation for yourself. Don't you see the people going like the——in a new auto every year because they don't like last year's idea. Why do you think they will land permanently in an old idea? I should say nothing, for it is none of my affairs, for I charge $15 to list them, and I am not bothered much with them. When I am, I tell them so. But passing on. I am to be

STRAIGHTBACK.

I do not believe in straightback advertising for I know of no one who wants a straightback on a hot day. My object in writing the above is to tell you that I will be ready to offer $80,000 of good First Mortgage Bonds on the City Market to be erected in your city soon. The building will cost between $50,000 and $60,000. You know the land value. There will be no water for any one or for sale. Write me and I will cheerfully give you full particulars. BID PASTOR ADIEU

MANY PAID HIM TRIBUTES

Gifts for Minister and His Wife—Addresses and Messages—Local Clergy Eulogize Retiring Pastor—Hundreds Attend.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John A. Chambliss received the congratulations of four hundred of the members of the First Baptist church at a reception given in their honor at the church last night. The affair was a most unique one since its celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the pastor's ministry as well as his golden wedding.

On behalf of the church, Alexander Gilbert presented the pastor and his wife with a check for five hundred dollars as a golden-wedding gift. Mr. Gilbert expressed for the church the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Chambliss were held and the tender affection which everyone had for them. Dr. Chambliss, in accepting the gift, said that he could only tell once more the love, which his wife and he bore toward the congregation, and say "thank you" from the very bottom of his heart.

The ladies' home and foreign missionary societies presented Mrs. Chambliss with a handsome diamond and pearl crescent pin as a farewell remembrence, the presentation being made by Mrs. Robert Lowry, one of the vice-presidents of the society. A. W. Chambliss, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chambliss, and former Mayor of Chattanooga, Tenn., accepted the gift for his mother in a most eloquent manner.

Rev. Dr. Travis Thames, of Elizabeth, on behalf of the Young Ladies' Missionary society, presented Mrs. Chambliss with another farewell gift, a fitted travelling bag. The Junior Band, of which the pastor's wife has been an active leader, added its farewell and gave Mrs. Chambliss a box of handkerchiefs.

The reception was held in the Sunday-school room of the church. Oak and maple boughs together with white daisies added to a sylvan aspect to the scene. The prevailing color scheme in the decorations was green and white, while the primary room was tastefully changed into a red and white cozy corner. Wadley contributed the decorations. Lemonade was poured during the evening by Mrs. Arthur Harris, Mrs. Morris Zook and Miss May Shreve. After the speeches had been made, the affair was in charge of the reception committee and ice cream and cake were served.

Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss were not only to be congratulated by those of their own congregation but by representatives from various ministerial organizations with which Dr. Chambliss has been connected. Before the speech making was begun, prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. Then Oliver B. Leonard introduced Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, former pastor of the Central Baptist church of Elizabeth.

Dr. Tomlinson, who has been a life long acquaintance of Dr. Chambliss, told of the work, which the retiring pastor had carried on during his fifty years of service, and that only a living epitaph was an appropriate reward for such labor. He said that the ministry today as well as the world requires the worker and Dr. Chambliss had fulfilled that requirement for fifty years, and above all had performd the real duty of a man—that is to help men. In closing he expressed the wish that Dr. Chambliss might have many days to come and the last might be his best day.

The ministers of the Manhattan district were represented by Rev. Dr. Addison Moore. He said that fifty years of service was "not so bad" and that Dr Chambliss would be remembered and loved to the end. A resolution of love and appreciation adopted by the New York Ministers' Association, last Monday, was one of a number received.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, extended the congratulations of the Plainfield Ministers' Association. He emphasized three things, peculiar to Dr. Chambliss' pastorate; the remarkable and highly developed culture of his training in oratory and the classics; the tenderness of his character, and his wonderful affability.

Professor A. T. Davis, of the Newark Academy, who was a member of Dr. Chambliss' church in East Orange, told of the affection which was held for the retiring pastor by every member of the East Orange church. O. B. Leonard concluded the speeches by reading the minutes of the Baptist church of Sumter, South Carolina, for the year 1861, when Dr. Chambliss was ordained into the

EDWARD C. MONTROSS MARRIES MISS DUGGAN.

Miss Katherine Josephine Duggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Duggan, of East Third street, and Edward Cortlandt Montross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Montross, of Watchung avenue, were married at 8 o'clock last night by Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, at his home on East Ninth street. Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, of this city, accompanied the couple as witnesses.

Mr. Montross is employed in the city as a plumber, and his wife has been a resident of Plainfield for sometime. The couple will reside on Belvidere avenue after a wedding trip.

Held Strawberry Festival.

The Philathea Bible class of the Temple Baptist church, of which U. B. Crane is the teacher, held a successful strawberry and ice cream festival at the church, last night. It was originally planned to hold the affair at the home of W. C. LaRue, on East Second street, but weather conditions brought about a change. The affair was well attended and liberal patronage was accorded.

Names Plainfield Girl.

Suit for desertion and non-support has been brought by Mrs. Leon Ely, of Cranbury, against her husband. A Plainfield girl, whose name has not yet been made public, figures in the case.

GAME TOMORROW

'Sky Pilots' and 'Amputators' Ready For Real Baseball on Crescent Oval.

FOR BENEFIT OF THE HOSPITAL.

Captains Hedges and Maguire Announce Their Lineups—There is Going to Be Lots of Fun on the Diamond.

"I'm going to appear in the dandlest togs, and I'm going to stand right there in the most graceful pose you ever saw and I'm going to 'swat' that ball right over right garden—wherever that is—and I'm going to swing around the plates like Howard Colby's aeroplane and I'm going to slide all the way to the home plate and I'm going to make a bow that I have been practicing all week." This is Dr. "Ben" Hedges' comment when asked what he is going to do at the great game between the ministers and doctors on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Muhlenberg hospital surgical pavilion.

When told what Captain Hedges had said, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church New York, who lives at Watchung, muttered "I've been up against press agents all my life. When I used to pitch the gospel truths over the pate of John D., at Cleveland,—'them was the happy days'—believe me I was going some and if Captain Ben can get on to my curves tomorrow his eye will be better than my arm."

"Now, boys, you can call those sky pilots by their first names tomorrow but when it comes to us amputators you must be respectful and you will find us lined up something like this: behind the bat, Dr. Peter B. Cregar; on the mound, Dr. W. H. Anthony; on first bag, yours truly; on second bag, Dr. Peter J. Zeglo; at short, Dr. T. H. Longbothum; in right garden, Dr. Charles B. Lufborrow; in left garden, my big brother; in centre, Dr. J. H. Carmon. My subs will be Drs. A. I. Pittis and N. W. Currie." This from "Doctor Ben."

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, captain of the ministers nine, says that only the umpire will be allowed to call him "Gabe." Here's his lineup: catcher, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey; pitchers, Revs. E. C. Conover, George H. Gardner, C. A. Eaton and G. R. Maguire; first, Rev. R. A. Stout; short, Revs. E. C. Bowers and John Allen; third, Rev. C. H. Mallory; left, Revs. C. H. Goodrich and Franklin K. Mathiews; centre, Rev. Dr. Anderson and Herbert E. Parker; right, Rev. F. L. Greene and Samuel Hewitt, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring and Revs. Fitch, Broek and Pierce substitutes.

Dr. T. S. Davis will have charge of the souvenir programs and Dr. W. H. Murray the soft drinks and peanuts.

WARREN CHAPEL SOCIETY HAS DELIGHTFUL OUTING.

The Missionary and Aid Society, of Warren chapel, held its annual picnic at the home of Mrs. A. B. Summers on the Stelton road, south of New Market yesterday. Twenty-five members enjoyed the outing and voted it a 'red letter" day in the history of the organization. It was one of the most successful affairs of the kind yet held in this vicinity.

The party left Warren chapel by stage at 9:30 yesterday morning. On arriving at the Summer's farm, the guests were surprised to find the natural beauty of the residence grounds enhanced by decorations of flags, bunting and Japanese lanterns. Various kinds of games were played until 12:30 when a box luncheon was served. Games and general good time were had during the afternoon and at 4 o'clock Mrs. Summers treated her guests to refreshments of delicious strawberries, grown on the farm, home made cake and fruit punch. They came as a surprise and were thoroughly appreciated. The return home was made at 5:30, everyone regretting the day had been so short.

Mrs. Summers, who is a member of the society, was assisted in entertaining by her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. B. Summers.

WEBSTER WILL DISPUTE IS HEARD IN CHANCERY

Former Judge W. R. Coddington, representing the legatees under the will of Catherine Webster's father, appeared before Vice-Chancellor Walker at Trenton, yesterday, to make argument on the correct construction of the testament. Miss Webster bequeathed definite property during her life time under the will of a relative, with certain provisos and the question arises as to her right to bequeath it as she did. John H. Van Winkle is an executor of the estate.

After argument was heard yesterday Vice-Chancellor Walker announced that he would soon leave for Europe and that he would not consider the matter and would not render a decision until he returns in September.

HIRSH BOY DENIES SECOND BAG THEFT

Gustav Hirsh, the Watchung boy, who admitted stealing Mrs. George Hauser's hand bag, filled with valuables, was taken to the Somerset County jail by Special Officer Canning, this morning. He will be sentenced by Judge Case next Friday afternoon.

Hirsh was put through a third degree gruelling by Chief Weiss, yesterday, with an idea of determining if he knew anything about the disappearance of a satchel belonging to Mrs. Wormser, of South Sterling, which was lost under exactly the same circumstances as the Hauser article. It contained money and jewelry worth $3,000 and either fell or was taken from the rear of a buggy as Mrs. Wormser was driving to town. The arrest of Hirsh let to the belief that he might have been implicated in the disappearance. The boy vigorously denied knowing anything about the Wormser satchel and continued rapid-fire questions failed to shake his story. The flippancy that characterized his first encounter with the police was continued throughout and he goes on record as the toughest proposition the borough has had in a long time.

FLIPPANT YOUNGSTER IN BOROUGH'S COURT

Walter Thomas, a boy living on upper Duer street, was arraigned in the borough court this morning charged with riding his wheel on the sidewalk. The complaining officer, Marshal Herrman, declared the boy had been decidedly flippant when he was notified to appear and his conduct at the hearing verified this statement. He contradicted the officer repeatedly and added that he had no authority to arrest him, as no badge was displayed. Herrman replied that he was an officer, whereat the boy said:

"You had nothing to prove it. You looked like an Italian laborer to me."

Recorder Dolliver gave Thomas to understand that his freshness wasn't appreciated and told him he was to keep off the sidewalk, cop or no cop. Sentence was suspended.

Thomas' father applied to Justice Snape last night for a warrant against Marshal Herrman, asserting that the officer had handled the boy roughly at the time of the arrest. His request was refused as the circumstances in the case were altogether contrary to such an action.

Spurgeon Coming.

Tomorrow afternoon the celebrated Dr. William Spurgeon, of London, England, will arrive in this city. He will lecture the same evening in the Park Avenue Baptist church, on "Advice to Married People and those contemplating Marriage." The clergyman will preach Sunday morning, afternoon and evening, and will lecture again on Monday night, on "An Englishman's Impressions." This is a rare opportunity to hear a well known English minister. Admission to all services is free. He leaves on Tuesday morning with Rev. and Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire to attend the World's Baptist Congress in Phidadelphia.

A Pastor's Vacation.

The Park Avenue Baptist church has given their pastor, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, two months' vacation. He will spend July and August in California and Oregon and he is booked to lecture on the Pacific slope at the Chautauquas.

Todd, president of the Board of Education; song, "America;" benediction, Rev. W. A. Knox.

The class motto is "By Constancy and Virtue," and the class colors, red and white. The ushers were Albert Ritterbusch, Russell Runyon, Benjamin Dodwell, Edgar Starker, Harry Giddes, Elston Lowrie, George Martin and Lloyd Smith.

Will Hold a Camp Fire.

The member of the Men's Conference Bible class of the First Baptist church, of which H. W. Herrman is the teacher, will enjoy its annual outing and camp fire on the Watchung mounts tonight, if the weather permits. The men will gather on the mountains about 5 o'clock for dinner and an informal program has been prepared for this evening, including music. The party will return home late this evening.

Kindergarten Pupils Picnic.

The children of the kindergarten departments of both the Somerset and Watchung schools are enjoying a picnic on Johnston's drive today. They were taken to the mountain tip in automobiles and after playing games had lunch beneath the trees. They will return late in the afternoon. The children are in charge of Miss Edna French and Miss Edith Randolph, of the teaching corps.

Victim's Name Was Carter.

Ralph Carter, aged 15 years, colored, whose residence is in Newark, was the lad who lost his arm in an accident at South Plainfield, yesterday, when he attempted to steal a ride on a coal train bound for Newark. At Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken yesterday, it was reported today that his general condition is good and that he will recover.

Groszman School Closing.

The closing exercises of the Groszmann school at Watchung Crest will be held in the school auditorium tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. While they will be of an informal character all persons interested are invited to attend. The program will comprise addresses, recitations and songs.

T. S. Armstrong President.

Thomas S. Armstrong, the local druggist, as president, is presiding at the sessions of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association which is now in session at the Hotel Brunswick, Asbury Park. The convention closes today. There has been a large attendance of druggists.

BENNETT BRITTEN IS NINETY-EIGHT TODAY

Bennett Britten, of West Front street, who is known as Plainfield's "old-young man," is celebrating his ninety-eighth birthday at his home. The age so seldom attained by people in these days of hustle and bustle sits lightly upon the nonagenarian's shoulders and he is receiving the congratulations of friends as he busies himself with the duties of his pool parlor and store at the Clinton avenue corner. From present appearances he will enjoy "many happy returns of the day."

Mr. Britten is having no formal celebration of the natal event but promises all callers that he will have a regular party on June 16, 1913. He will then be 100 years old and he declared it an anniversary worth paying attention to. Those who know him assert it is not at all improbable that he will go way beyond the century mark.

Mr. Britten was born in New York city of Dutch parents, but has lived in this vicinity for over fifty years. He conducted a hotel at Scotch Plains, now owned by William Lee, for several decades and has resided in Plainfield since retiring from the business. He is possessed of all his faculties, has a wonderful memory and thinks nothing of walking five miles or more without resting.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN, AGED 50 YRS., DEAD

William C. Chamberlin, aged fifty years, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlin, of Somerville, and one of the best known residents of this city, died at 10:55 o'clock last night at his home on East Third street, from pulmonary trouble. He had been confined to his home since December last. Before coming to Plainfield, twenty-one years ago, Mr. Chamberlin resided at Somerville.

Mr. Chamberlin was a member of the local fire department for twenty years, first as a volunteer and later as a call-man. Three years ago last May, when Mayor Charles J. Fisk inspected the fire and police departments at his home, Mr. Chamberlin received a medal for his long and faithful services in the fire department.

Mr. Chamberlin was a contract painter here for many years. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., and Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., and he was active in each one He was also a member and regular attendant of Trinity Reformed church.

Surviving is a wife by a second marriage, a daughter, Mrs. Maurice Anson, of this city, by a first marriage; also two brothers, E. W. and H. P. Chamberlin, of Westfield, and a sister, Mrs. I. C. Miller, of this city. The funeral will be held at the late residence, Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, and Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate. The burial will be in the new cemetery at Somerville.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at the prayer-meeting this evening will give reports of the Eastern Association recently held at Berlin, N. Y. and will be assisted by Rev. T. L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder; Arthur J. Spicer, who is treasurer of the association; Miss Mildred Green, who was the recording secretary of the session and Mrs. George E. Davis, of this city.

At the morning service tomorrow, Mr. Shaw will preach a sermon appropriate to "Old Folks' Day." An effort will be made to have as many of the elderly people as possible attend the service. Mrs. Jane R. Dunham, of West Fifth street, has been a member of the church sixty-eight years.

Miss Nettie G. Stillman will lead the C. E. Society meeting at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the topic being "Grace for Common Duties." The Junior Society will hold its last meeting for the season tomorrow. Robert Spicer being the leader.

Funeral of Mrs. Voorhees.

The funeral services of Mrs. Carrie Voorhees was held at the late home on Somerset place at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Voorhees was a member for many years. The burial was in Bound Brook, the former place of residence of Mrs. Voorhees and the bearers were George A. Chapman, George H. Batchelor, Frank W. Jones and John Brokaw.

BORO COUPLE WED

Miss Maude Emmons the Bride of A. C. Van Arsdale at Home Ceremony.

JOHN P. EMMONS' DAUGHTER.

Groom a Son of Morris C. VanArsdale—Rev. C. L. Goodrich Officiates—Bride's Twin-Sister Maid of Honor.

Miss Maude Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Emmons, of Prospect place and Washington avenue, and Aruthr C. VanArsdale, son of Borough Councilman and Mrs. Morris C. VanArsdale, of Grove street, were married at 7:30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. C. L. Groodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in ivory crepe de chene over white messaline and she carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley. She was attended by May Berkhan and Miss Gertrude Berkhan, of New York, who were gowned in yellow bordered marquisette. They carried daisies tied with yellow tulle. Miss Myra Emmons, a twin-sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and her gown was of crepe de chene, draped with voile. Her bouquet was of daisies. The best man was Malcolm VanArsdale. Alma Hutchinson, of Trenton and Marjorie Phillips, of this city, were ribbon-bearers, and Royle T. Phillips and Frank Emmons, brother of the bride, the ushers.

The decorations at the home were unusually attractive, daisies and yellow wisteria being used effectively throughout the parlor, hall and dining-room. The bridal party entered the parlor while the wedding march was being played by Mrs. Ferdinand M. Ward on the piano. The reception followed, during which supper was served and congratulations were offered to the bride and groom. After a trip the couple will reside in the borough.

The bride and groom are both graduates of the North Plainfield High School and are popular with a large number of friends. They are also active in the work at the Congregational church. Mrs. VanArsdale is an accomplished musician. Mr. Vanarsdale is engeged in the shoe business with his father on East Front street. The bride received a large collection of gifts.

R. E. DAVIS MARRIES MRS SARAH SHATTLE.

Richard E. Davis, of this city, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and Mrs. Sarah I. Shattle, also of this city, were married Wednesday evening by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, at his home on Central avenue. The couple was unaccompanied but members of the family of the officiating clergyman acted as witnesses.

The bride was a widow, and the groom was a widower. Both have resided here for many years. Mr. Davis served in the Spanish-American War in Co. C, 3d Regiment, N. J. Vols., being in the service throughout the hostilities. He is now employed at the Rushmore Dynamo Works. The couple is living at 309 West Second street for the present.

Her Parents Dead.

Mrs. J. H. McVey, of North avenue, returned last night from Red Bank, where she attended the funeral of her father, J. C. Soffel, aged ninety-two years, one of the pioneer residents of that place. Three weeks ago Mrs. McVey's mother died at Red Bank at a ripe old age. Mr. Soffel passed away on Monday. Both he and his wife were highly esteemed by the residents of Red Bank, where they had lived for so many years. They leave large property interests. Since returning home Mrs. McVey has been detained to her room by illness.

West Ends Big Festival.

The summer festival to be held by the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow afternoon and night, promises to be the season's event in the West End. There will be a baseball game in the afternoon between the married and single men of the club and a "department" store will be a feature of the bazaar held on the lawn. In the evening, progressive euchre, dancing and refreshments will occupy the attention of the visitors.

Holy Cross Services.

Rev. Royal A. Miller, of New York, will officiate at the 11 o'clock service at Holy Cross church on Sunday morning. The other services will be omitted.

Heating Problems Solved

Sectional view of BOYNTON FURNACE, showing Patented, square fire pot and large ash pit.

HERE is the furnace that heats the house from first floor to the attic—makes no dust—little ash, and less bother. A BOYNTON "square pot" furnace will give summer temperature in zero weather, on a surprisingly small amount of coal. It's the square fire pot that does it. The

NOT A RETIRING PEOPLE

Chinese Eat, Wash, Sleep and Are Shaved in Public—Story Tellers Are Popular.

The Chinese cannot be called a retiring people. As they eat, wash and sleep in public, so in Canton you will see the barber shaving his customers in the streets, the dentist (wearing a necklace of fangs) extracting a painful tooth in the presence of an admiring crowd. Here, as in all large Chinese cities, wherever there is a favorable spot, story-tellers may be found amusing the people by way of making a living. At the close of a recital the large and attentive audience are invited to throw down their "cash" at the feet of the story-teller, in appreciation of the entertainment to which they have listened. The appeal is seldom made in vain. The strange conglomeration of ideas that finds a home in the brain of the average Chinese, and the medley of beings that people his unseen world make it peculiarly easy for the story-teller to win the credulity of his audiences. And as ninety Celestials out of every hundred are even yet in complete ignorance of the laws that govern the world in which they live, there is no difficulty in inducing the masses to give credence to any story, however grotesque. The faith of the people in the transmigration of souls lends itself to all kinds of metempsychosis. Foxes of vindictive intention are made to appear as sirens in order to work evil on objects of their hatred. Princes seeks the elixir of immortality under the most thrilling circumstances. Just as they are about at last to lay their hands on the long-sought and much-coveted treasure, it, of course, eludes their grasp.

PARADISE FOR THE CURLER

Scotchmen Flock to Van Cortlandt Park, New York, Where They Have Exclusive Clubhouse.

Scotchmen who still keep alive in this vicinity the ancient sport of curling have finally received recognition from the park officials and have had a clubhouse built for their exclusive use at Van Courtlandt Park. The Scots were happy enough when a lake was made on which they might curl without the interference of skaters, who cut up the ice so that the "stanes" would not run true, but now that they have a little house where there are lockers in which to keep brooms and other appurtenances of the sport there have been some lively days.

The curlers come to Van Cortlandt from all over Greater New York, Yonkers and several towns in New Jersey, and rich and poor alike indulge in the Scotch national game. Practically every "stane" in use at Van Cortlandt was quarried at the historic island of Ailsa Craig in Scotland. The Scots feel that there are some canny qualities in this granite that makes it far superior to anything of a domestic nature. They weigh from thirty-eight to forty-two pounds, and it takes a lot of skill to slide them properly.—New York Herald.

When the English Laugh.

A correspondent recalls a pointed but discourteous and yet not wholly undeserved interjection made at a local political meeting.

A woman, whose husband had temporarily lost his voice, loyally appeared to make a speech on his behalf. She said a good deal at the outset about the state of his larynx, and then plunged into politics. Having exhausted that theme, she returned to her husband's health, and described, not only his disappointment at being unable to address them, but her own efforts to patch him up for the fray. She had tried hot fomentations, she had tried poultices, she had made him gargle his throat, she had steamed his throat for him, she had sprayed his throat and made him try every kind of lozenge. Was there anything else she could do for his throat? And a voice said: "Aye, mem, cut it."

On Staying at Home.

It is for want of self-culture that the superstition of traveling, whose idols are Italy, England, Egypt, retains its fascination for all educated Americans. They who made Italy, England, or Greece venerable in the imagination did so by sticking fast where they were, like an axis of the earth. In manly hours, we feel that duty is our place. The soul is no traveler; the wise man stays at home, and when his necessities, his duties, on any occasion call him from his house, or into foreign lands, he is at home still, and shall make men sensible by the expression of his countenance, that he goes the missionary of wisdom and virtue, and visits cities and men like a sovereign, and not like an interloper or a valet.—Emerson.

Alas, Alack!

"My wife is always borrowing trouble."

"What kind of trouble is she borrowing now?"

"She's afraid whiskers will be in style when our little boy grows up, so that he will not have a chance to show the cunning dimple in his chin."

Discretion.

"He's awfully touchy, isn't he?"

"I should say he was. A man who had a grudge against him defied him to come out and fight, and he got so mad at the fellow that he locked himself in his office and stayed there two days."

All fans who are interested in the game should be out to encourage Manager Alberts' veterans to put one over on High Bridge. The team will lineup—Flannery, cf; Baldwin, lf; Mullin, ss; H. Alberts, c; Gray, 3b; Frentz, 1b; J. Alberts, rf; Hall, 2b; MacLaughlin, p.

The pupils of the public school are in the midst of the annual county examinations, for promotion. School closes Thursday, the 22nd, commencement exercises being held the same evening in the Baptist church.

Those who were wanting rain two weeks ago, have all they want for the present; the cisterns and wells are full and the farmers claim that if it continues it will hurt the hay and other crops.

The street committee of Fanwood borough, have put a covering of slag on the sidewalk on Martine avenue, which would be improved if it was mixed with something and well rolled.

The Coronation

SPECIAL EXHIBITION ON OUR FIFTH FLOOR.

We have secured, at great expense, two exquisitely sculptured and remarkably lifelike figures of the King and Queen of England in full Coronation regalia. No pains have been spared to secure exact likenesses of their Majesties, while the robes, crowns and accouterments, as well as the dais upon which the figures stand, are historically correct. These figures are now on free exhibition on our fifth floor, and we extend a cordial invitation to every one to come and see them. They constitute a remarkable display.

The famous "Merkle incident" which cost the New York Club the pennant in 1908, is to be used as a precedent by the Pittsburg Club in the appeal from the decision of President Lynch, who threw out the morning game won by Pittsburg from Chicago on Decoration Day. Merkle failed to touch second and the National League directors took away New York's victory and declared the game a tie. The ruling it is said, was founded on the contention that Merkle should have known better. In that present case, Archer, of the Chicago team, it will be claimed, should have known better than to leave first base, when Umpire Doyle's decision was clearly wrong.

After purchasing transportation and making arrangements to leave for his home in Kansas City, John G. Kling, former catcher for the Chicago National League Club, who was traded to the Boston club of the National League last week, suddenly changed his mind. After a conference with President Russell, of the Boston club, Kling started for Pittsburg with the Boston team. Kling said he would receive a large bonus from Boston for playing.

A quiet wave claim had been circulated around the two big league circuits on Lefty Russell by the Athletics and every one of the fourteen clubs, with the exception of one, passed the $12,000 Beauty up as not being worth the $1,500 waiver price. One club said to be the Chicago Cubs are willing to try out the former Baltimore phenom, but when Mack found this out he decided to hold on to Russell and give the young southpaw another chance to show what he possesses. Russell certainly has not been a glittering success since becoming a Mackman. Russell went to Philadelphia petted and plugged as one of the greatest twirlers of modern times. The $12,000 said to have been paid to Baltimore for his release was a red flaming head liner and perhaps it was this notoriety which killed off his usefulness.

GERMANY NOT AIDING CASTRO

Berlin, June 16.—The German Government disclaims all responsibility for the steamer Consul Grostuck, which is reported as flying the German flag, and announces that the blame for any complications that may result from the landing of Cipriano Castro, the exiled President of Venezuela, will rest upon the Haitian Government.

Is was stated emphatically that the steamer has no right to display the German colors. It was formerly the Italian cruiser Umbria and was purchased from Italy by Haiti, which latter country is the one now properly concerned with the movement of the vessel.

American Ambassador Hill called at the Foreign Office yesterday, presumably to discuss the situation brought about by the reported presence of Castro on the Consul Grostuck. Denial has been made that Castro is aboard the steamer.

The Grostuck recently arrived at Port de Paix, Haiti, and, according to advices received at Washington from John B. Terres, the American Consul at Port au Prince, has on board the exiled Castro, who is supposed to be attempting a return to Venezuela in the hope of being able to rally his erstwhile followers and so regain the Presidency, from which he was deposed after he had left the country for a visit to Europe in the fall of 1908.

BIG PASTOR ADIEU

Mr. Leonard also read the following telegram sent by the Citadel Square church, of Charleston, S. C., of which Dr. Chambliss was once the honored pastor: "The Citadel Square church, of this city, sends greeting to the First Baptist church, Plainfield, N. J., and its honored pastor upon the occasion which recognizes the fiftieth anniversary of a ministry so brilliant and beneficient as to make peculiarly appropriate this golden setting. His service to us is recorded in the integrity of many still with us; in the calm confidence with which others faced death; in the present prosperity of our church and in every prospect of its future usefulnesss. He so wrought here that his ministry is more than a mortal memory, it is immortal life. By order of the church, Howard Lee Jones, pastor; T. B. Anderson, clerk.

Among those present at the reception were four of Dr. Chambliss' children from the South, a delegation from the East Orange Baptist church, and several of the local pastors.

The affair was in charge of the women of the church, Mrs. George H. Robins being chairman of the executive committee. The other committees were as follows:

Reception—Mrs. J. L. Manning, chairman, and the trustees and deacons and their wives; refreshments—Mrs. Harold Serrell, chairman; Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. S. W. Dunning, Mrs. Lewis Matlack, Mrs. F. T. Ostrom and Mrs. E. J. VanName; decorating—Mrs. Charles Conners, chairman; Mrs. E. T. CHIEF DOANE INSPECTS HOSPITAL ALARM SYSTEM.

Chief T. O. Doane made an inspection of the new fire alarm system at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, and found it satisfactory in every way. He believed it to be one of the most complete he har ver seen and one that will add greatly to the safeguard against fire. Alarm boxes and fire fighting apparteus are located in every department of the institution and a call from any box summons immediate help.

Chief Doane also gave complete instructions to Manager Harrison and the employes relative to fire drills and outlined a general plan for the volunteer service. The chief will visit the institution at regular intervals to oversee drills.

SUCCEEDS FATHER ON LOCAL SCHOOL BOARD.

Through his secretary, Wilson J. Vance, Mayor Haussling, of Newark, who is away from the city, announced yesterday the appointment of Ambrose Tompkins, as member of the Board of Education, to succeed his father, the late George W. Tomkins. The new appointeee will serve out the unexpired term, which runs until December 31, 1912.

Mr. Tomkins is a member of the firm of which his father was the head. He is vice-president of Tomkins Brothers, dealers in coal and masons' materials, at 78 Passaic street. He resides at 69 Mt. Pleasant avenue, having made his home with his father. He is married.

Mr. Tomkins has not been conspicuous in public affairs in the past. He has never held public office, but has always maintained a keen interest in the affairs of the city, and especially of its educational system.

TOO SMALL TO HOLD JOB, YOUTH KILLS HIMSELF.

Atlantic City, June 16.—Discharged from his job as chair-pusher because he was "too small" and refused another job Wednesday, for the same reason, Oscar Altschuler, eighteen years old, while in his room at 2222 Atlantic avenue Wednesday, swallowed three ounces of carbonic acid, and, running downstairs, fell dying at the feet of his girl cousin.

In terror the girl fled, but Oscar Levin, also a cousin, summoned the hospital ambulance. It did no good, for the boy died ten minutes later.

In Altschuler's room the following note written in pencil, was found:

"Dear Cousin—I was too small and so did not find life interesting enough. I am about to kill myself, and will do it if no one disturbs me. but no one cares enough to interfere. Good-bye,

"OSCAR."

THE WEATHER.

Unsettled, showers late tonight or on Saturday.

Boy Slayer Acquitted.

Isadore Friedman was acquitted last night of the death of his father, Hyman Friedman, a wealthy junk dealer at Paterson. There was an affecting scene in the Passaic city court house when the mother, who had stood by the son all during the ordeal of the trial, clasped her boy to her bosom and mumbled a prayer of thankfulness that he had been restored to her. That the verdict was a popular one was attested by the great ovation young Friedman received by the big crowd that had hurried to the county building when it heard the news.

Prof. G. W. Knox, of Union Theological Seminary, will occupy the pulpit at the Crescent Avenue church Sunday morning and evening.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The local fans will get another treat tomorrow afternoon when the home team plays Cranford at Dunellen. Three Saturdays ago Cranford played a 5 to 3 game against Somerville, the team which most people seem to think has the best chances of winning the pennant in the new league.

The graduates of the Whittier school will be given a reception by the Board of Education in the school hall tonight. It will be attended by the other pupils and friends. Dancing will be a feature of the affair and refreshments will be served.

Miss Fanny Smith who has been ill for a long time, following an operation, is now able to be about the house, but it will be some time yet before she is entirely well.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will hold the annual strawberry festival tonight. A general invitation is extended to all.

John Dempsey, of New Brunswick, is visiting friends in the borough.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Graduating exercises were held at the New Market public school last night, there being a large attendance of the parents and friends of the pupils. Among those graduated from the Grammar grade were the following: The Misses Lillie Hogan, Ruth Nevins, Lizzie Geary, John Ball, Frank Phillips, John Miller, Joseph Horn, all of South Plainfield.

Mrs. L. D. Randolph and children are visiting Mrs. Randolph's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bunting, of New Market.

Louis Sidler has taken a position with a local mason and will learn the trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton are entertaining friends from out of town.

RAND-McNALLY GUIDE FOR JERSEY IS READY.

Thirty-five years ago Rand-McNally & Company, first began publishing its pocket and vest pocket maps and their popularity can be judged by the fact that it has been continued ever since. Every year the material has been brought up to date and some detail of the plan brought up to a higher state of perfection. The maps are authoritative.

In the New Jersey edition, all steam railroads, including all new lines built during the previous year, are shown as are all proposed extensions are indicated, all stations and junctions are clearly marked, all electric roads, including all new lines built during the year, all postoffices and express offices and population statistics, all of which is of benefit to the business man, student and tourist. This publication is now out for this year and is on sale.

Plan Organ Recital.

Arthur L. Titsworth, organist of Trinity Reformed church, has arranged for an organ recital to be given at the church on Thursday evening, June 29, when William E. Ashmall, the celebrated concert organist and composer of Newark, will render a fine program of music on the new instrument assisted by the church quartet.

BOY SAVES BROTHER BUT LOSES OWN LIFE.

Jersey City, June 16.—Pushing the unconscious body of his six-year old brother Lewis out of the water with his last remaining strength, Frank La Ford, leven years old, early Wednesday evening collapsed after the effort and, falling back into Krom Kill Creek, a branch of the Hackensack River, near North Bergen, was drowned. Up to midnight a score of policemen and others, dragging the creek with grappling irons, had not recovered the body.

Both boys lived at 823 Van Wagner place, North Bergen. They left their homes late in the afternoon, and for two hours had been playing near the edge of the creek. Suddenly the younger boy, running along the bank, lost his balance and fell into the water.

As the tide carried the little fellow's body out to the centre of the stream, his cries attracted his brother's attention. Without hesitation the larger boy pulled off his coat and plunged into the water.

The struggle to save his brother was an exhausting one, for the tide contested every inch of his progress, and the exertion of lifting Lewis to the bank was the last straw.

It was only a few minutes before the younger boy recovered consciousness and regained his feet. He saw that the tide, against which his brother was still struggling vainly, was carrying the larger boy out into the centre of the stream. Running as fast as he could, he went to summon help. Three men he found a short distance away reached the shore just in time to see the older boy's head disappear beneath the surface. They put out in a small boat and dived several times in their efforts to find the drowned boy's body, but without success.

MODERN JIM BLUDSOE SAVES 65 PASSENGERS.

Paducah, Ky., June 16.—Quick work on the part of Captain John L. Lowry, of the river steamer John L. Lowry, saved the lives of sixty-five persons early yesterday, when the boat burned, opposite Smithland, Ky., in the Ohio River. Crowded with fifty excursionists and the crew of fifteen, the craft was slowly making its way up the river in midstream when fire broke out near the engine.

Roused from their sleep the passengers crowded on to the decks in a near-panic and only the coolness of the boat's crew averted a heavy loss of life. Several barrels of oil exploded, but no one was hurt.

Seeing the fire about to consume the craft, Captain Lowry made for the Illinois side with all speed. By the time the nose of the steamer touched the shore the fire had gained great headway, but the passengers got off without injury. A roll call of passengers showed every one present and none injured. It had not been determined this morning whether any of the negro deckhands had been burned, but it is believed they, too, escaped.

The John L. Lowry is in the regular trade between this city and Evansville. At this season excursion rates are put on for the round trip, hence the large number of persons aboard. The boat, owned by John L. Lowry, is a total loss.

First reports reaching here were that many persons had been drowned and relief boats were sent out.

ROBBERS MAKE DARING NEW YORK HOTEL RAID.

New York, June 16.—Eight men strolled into the lobby of the Hotel Roy, on Thirty-fifth street, just west of Broadway, early yesterday, as Night Clerk Charles Simmons was making up his accounts. Producing revolvers they compelled Simmons to give up the money and then drove him any Day Clerk Albert H. Wagner behind a partition and ran. Simmons grabbed a revolver from the drawer and ran after them, firing five shots at the men, who separated as they reached the street. Policemen attracted by the shooting caught two men who were later identified by Simmons as his assailants. They said they were Joe Ross and Louis Baumann. The police say they recovered $113.

Of the six that escaped one at least is believed to have been wounded, as the police followed a trial of blood to Broadway.

Hermann Keller, of Somerset place, is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Keller and daughter, Miss Dorothy Keller, and Mrs. Keller's mother, Mrs. Caspar, of Harrison avenue, have returned home after a two months' trip to Germany. Most of the time was spent with relatives at Frankfort-on-Main.

TALE OF TWO POOR NEPHEWS

Each Tried to Please the Rich Old Uncle, Who Then Made a New Will.

There once was a rich old uncle who had two poor nephews.

And when Christmas came the two poor nephews were anxious to show the rich old uncle how much they thought of him.

Now the first poor nephew reasoned that he should impress his rich old uncle with the great affection he bore him by some tangible means. So he drew out his savings and purchased for his rich old uncle a magnificent gold watch, and had it neatly engraved. To it he attached a gorgeous chain, put the whole affair in a hotsishly decorated box and sent it to his rich old uncle with his best wishes.

The second poor nephew figured that any extreme financial outlay would convince his rich old uncle that he was trying to jolly him a bit too much, so he invested a nickel in a neat but tasty Christmas card, which he mailed to the rich old uncle.

So the rich old uncle received the two remembrances and said of the first nephew:

"Humph! A man who will spend all he has for a gold watch to give to a man who already has all the watches he ever will need hasn't got enough judgment to be trusted with money. I will leave him my blessing and a few words of good advice."

When he looked at the card he nodded his head approvingly and said:

"There's a man after my own heart. He knew I would not care for an expensive gift and he knew that I would value his good wishes, so he very wisely sent them to me in this inexpensive manner. He shows a marked economical trait and I am sure he will get along in the world without any aid from me."

So he made a new will and left all his money to found an institution for the study of prehistoric manifestations of microbic diseases in fossilized animalculae.

SURPRISE DINNER IN PARIS

How Friends of Author and His Wife Carried Out Familiar Scheme With Additions.

Parisian society has tired of the jigsaw puzzle and adopted the surprise dinner as a relaxation. Of course the surprise dinner is not exactly new, but in the French capital some amusing additions to the original idea have been evolved. Thus, quite recently, a well-known author and his wife celebrated their wedding day. They had been out for a drive to the Bois de Boulogne and had strolled down the pathway where they became engaged. They had ordered dinner for two at home, and when they returned for the meal were a bit surprised to hear much laughter and talking coming from the interior of their flat. On entering they did not recognize the rooms in which they had lived for the last ten years. A crowd of their friends had invaded the apartments and transformed the chief room into a replica of the country registrar's office in which they had been married. The guests were trinked out like villagers, and the garde champetre or local policeman was master of the ceremonies. Madame was laid hold of and carried off, and, despite her laughing protests, was arrayed in her wedding dress. Before sitting down to table a repetition of the marriage ceremony was hilariously gone through and a bunch of ripe oranges utilized as a substitute for the wreath of orange blossoms.

Had His Last "Lead."

A story is told by a member of congress whenever his brother is present. That brother, now a prosperous merchant, was incontinently discharged from a position as bookkeeper in a wholesale grocery store in St. Louis. A curt note dismissing him, containing no reason for the discharge, was all that he received. Determined to have an explanation, he went to the private office of the merchant and asked:

"Why did you fire me?"

"Because you were dangerous," said the merchant quietly. "You were loaded all the time."

That cured the young man completely. He hasn't been "loaded" since that day.—The Sunday Magazine.

Central African Tree.

A remarkable tree has been discovered about the region of Lake Chad, Africa. Its power of increase in every way is remarkable. In a few months an extensive tract of land, we read, became an impenetrable forest. In one season it is said to grow to the height of from four to five meters; in other words, from 13 to over 16 feet.

Its foliage is said to resemble the mimosa and its branches are thorny. The wood can be cut into planks, and the natives work it up into canoes. The Tilho mission has utilized the wood for making tables and doors.

A Long-Winded Speaker.

During the delivery of one of those tedious speeches that are so often inflicted upon the house of representatives, a member who had occupied the floor for many hours was called to order on the ground that his remarks were not pertinent to the question before the house. "I know it," said he, "I am not speaking for the benefit of the house, but for posterity." "Speak a little longer," said John Randolph, in an undertone, "and you will have your audience before you."—From Arvine's Cyclopedia of Anecdotes.

"REGULARS" HITS BERGEN COUNTY MACHINE MEN.

Rutherford, June 15.—The Bergen County Republican committee held a meeting for the first time outside of Hackensack in Ruckstuhl's Hall here Wednesday night. Only about half of the members responded to the roll call.

After a short business session that included the resignation of John Glason, postmaster of Harrington Park, President Randolph Perkins opened a discussion that continued for two hours. He congratulated the Rutherford Republican Club for its activities.

"This new departure of holding our meetings in different parts of the county," said he, "is for the purpose of the members' constituencies to get acquainted with their county representatives and keep the people in the party in touch with the committee's work inasmuch as the members are now elected at the primaries under the law. We are glad to come to Rutherford and to learn what the county committee should do." He called for suggestions from all present.

President W. F. Dixon, of the Republican Club, extended greetings to the committee on behalf of that organization. Brief addresses were made by Charles Burrows, Joseph C. Shenck, Guy L. Fake, John E. Tyler, Ray W. Tyler, all of Rutherford; Peter A. Kuhn, of Union Township; Mayor George A. Duncan, of East Rutherford; John Heck, of Westwood, and others.

B. P. Codington, of Rutherford, created a stir by his reference to the uselessness of the so-called Rpublican machine that had dominated the county for so many years. He did not consider the committee a part of that branch of the party.

"There has been a hue and cry," said he, "to the effect that some of the obnoxious legislation that was passed at the last session were Democratic measures. That is not true. They were as much Republican as Democratic and it's up to the next Legislature, which I am sure will be Republican, to straighten ont and strengthen the work already done. I am free to say that the liabilities act is unconstitutional and it was not a Democratic measure, for it took a Republican Senate to place it upon the statute books."

A vote of thanks was extended the Republican Club for its hospitality. Refreshments followed the meeting.

EXPLAINS BUILDING'S FALL.

New Brunswick, June 16.—The trial of Walter H. VanSickle, a local contractor on trial here for manslaughter, the charge growing out of the collapse of the Robert Turton house in George street, where two men were killed, was continued yesterday.

Testifying in his own behalf, Van Sickle declared the catastrophe was due to a collapse of something in the centre of the building and not to the caving in of the foundation wall. This break, he contends, caused a jar which was followed by the collapse. He had been a builder for thirty years and this was his first accident. He knew of the stratum of sand and had built houses therein He testified that Arthur Turton and Robert Turton, brothers, had an agreement as to the shoring of the building by which Robert, the owner was to notify Arthur, the carpenter, when is was needed. Van Sickle had let his men go to work under the building under this arrangement.

Van Sickle was acquitted by the jury yesterday afternoon.

ENTERTAINS SUFFRAGETTES.

Jersey City, June 16.—Avowed believers in woman's rights were entertained by Miss Beatrice Koonz, at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Kroonz, in Gifford avenue, Wednesday night. Speeches were made by Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. William V. Toffey, second; also Mrs. G. R. Beach, Mrs. Thomas Haight, Mrs. Henry Gardner, Jr., of Chicago; Mrs. Robert Turner, of St. Louis; Miss Williams, Miss Perry, Mrs. Douglas Schenck, Miss Sherwood and Misses Titlow and Armstrong, of New York. Mrs. George T. Vickers, president of the New Jersey Franchise Society, presided.

Answered by the Last Boy.

The inspector was examining Standard 1, and all the class had been specially told beforehand by teir master;

"Don't answer unless you are almost certain your answer is correct."

History was the subject.

"Now tell me," said the inspector, "who was the mother of our great Scottish hero, Robert Bruce?"

He pointed to the top boy, then round the class. There was no answer; the children's faces appeared blank. Then at last the heart of the teacher of that class leaped with joy. The boy who was standing at the very foot had held up his hand.

"Well, my boy," said the inspector, encouragingly, "who was she?"

"Please, sir, Mrs. Bruce."—Dundee Advertiser.

It Had Lost Its Spring.

"Had a puncture, my friend?" asked the passer, with an air of interest. The chauffeur looked up, swallowed his feeling with a huge gulp.

"No, sir," he replied. "I'm just changing the air in the tires. The other lot's worn out, you know!"—Youth's Companion.

Reached Their Limit.

"Mrs. Perry had a horrid time with the custom house officers on her return from London."

"In what way?"

"They wanted to make her pay duty on the thirty-nine articles in her new English prayer-book."—Harper's Bazar.

FOUR MEN INJURED IN POWDER MILL BLOW-UP.

Dover, June 15.—Through an explosion of smokeless powder in the pressing house at the government powder depot, near Piccatinny, Wednesday, four men were seriously burned and the building was wrecked. The injured men are John L. Sullivan, foreman, of Dover; Otto Gross, of Ledgewood; John Pawell and Thomas Cassion, of Wharton.

What caused the explosion is not known. The pressing house is regarded as a branch plant where such accidents are a rarity. No similar accident has occurred there since the present methods of powder-making were adopted.

The men were at work when there came a flash. They were hurled through the open door for a distance of fifty to 100 feet, while the machinery started through the roof.

Workmen from other buildings rushed to the rescue. The victims' clothing caught fire. The men were taken to a nearby pond where the flames were extinguished.

Sullivan, seriously burned about the face, arms and shoulders, and Pawell, were rushed to All Souls' Hospital, at Morristown, in an automobile. Cassion and Gross were taken to their homes.

OWL HUNT IN ROSELLE PARK.

Roselle Park, June 16.—When a family of screech owls selected the northern section of this borough as the scene of its nightly activities' old Dr. Morpheus packed up his slumber potions and went right away from there. Complaints ad libitum followed his departure and finally they became so vehement it was decided by the police that drastic measures would have to be adopted.

The owls were doomed to die, and, for a reason not explained, the police engaged a local sportsman to go a-hunting in the borough. He went and was successful, having killed the two old boys and captured the young ones. John Clarkson and Oscar T. Peck are particularly grateful.

COMPLAINT AGAINST PARTY HOST DISMISSED

Following a hearing in the borough court this morning the disorderly charge against Robert Pruden, of Manning avenue, was dismissed by Recorder Dolliver. The matter was gone into thoroughly on both sides and a large number of witnesses were on hand. Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, by whom Pruden is employed, was an interested attendant and spoke in behalf of the defendant as to his exemplary character and quiet disposition.

The case resulted from a party which Pruden gave at his home in honor of a friend Tuesday night. Neighbors complained that the merry-makers were too noisy and Marshal Keller so informed the host. There was no abatement, according to the officer and Pruden was notified after midnight to appear in court.

The defendant was represented by S. S. Swackhamer and several neighbors were called to say they had not been annoyed by the party and Pruden himself said he was unaware anyone had objected to it. There was nothing unsual about the gathering, he said, the only noise was the clapping of hands in games or sounds of laughter. All his witnesses made mention of the fact that Mr. Pruden enjoyed an excellent reputation in the community.

In dismissing the case Recorder Dolliver remarked that no case of disorder had been proven against the defendant and he saw no other disposition to make of the matter.

Potter Co. Suit Still On.

Contrary to expectation the case of the Potter Printing Press Company against the Newark Daily Advertiser Company, publisher of the Newark Star, was not concluded in the county court, last night. It was resumed this morning, when several witnesses were examined. It is believed that the case will go to the jury about 3 o'clock this afternoon. David E. Titsworth, William R. Mosher and Arthur Case were some of the witnesses examined yesterday for the plaintiff.

GAVE FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS ANNA WILLIS.

Miss Anna Willis, of Jackson avenue, was given a surrpise party by fifty friends at her home Wednesday night, as a farewell previous to her departure for Europe in a few days. Guests were present from New York, Westfield, Dunellen and Bound Brook as well as this and borough.

During the evening solos were contributed by Miss Willis, Miss Irene Smith, Elmer D. Cutting, Clarence Brokaw and Richard O'Neil. Dancing was a feature and games and refreshments were enjoyed. Miss Willis sails for Europe next week and will be abroad two weeks.

Where is the Switchman?

Many inquiries have been received concerning the whereabouts of the man who is supposed to be on duty at Front and Somerset streets, attending the trolley switch at this point. Last Saturday Chief Kiely gave the P. S. C. a certain time to place a man there and keep him on duty. It is said that ten minutes after the man went on duty, he disappeared and has not been seen since.

JERSEY LEAGUE'S GAMES TOMORROW

The games scheduled for tomorrow in the Central New Jersey Baseball League are Plainfield at Bound Brook, Westfield at Somerville and High Bridge at Scotch Plains, and the results will be awaited with considerable interest by the fans. At present Westfield leads the league with two victories and no defeats, while Plainfield has one game, the only one played, to its credit, defeating Somerville last week. There is every indication that the league race will be an exciting one and already the fans are warming up in support of their teams.

Manager Dorflinger will present a strong lineup in the game against Bound Brook, tomorrow. Cosgrove will be back in right field and Dalton at third, otherwise the same players who represented the club last week will be out, with "Red" Waller on the firing line. He is pitching great ball at present and can be expected to hold Bound Brook. Ortleib will pitch for Bound Brook, while "Lew" Wiltse, formerly of this city, will cove first base. The teams will lineup as follows:

Plainfield—Nelson, c; Waller, p; Driscoll, -b; Martin, 2b; Dalton, 3b; Flynn, ss; Harter, lf; Mallen, cf; Cosgrove, rf.

Bound Brook—Bruggy, c; Ortleib, p; Wiltse, 1b; Meehan, 2b; Washburn, 3b; Powers, ss; Roberson, lf; Nolan, cf; Bolinger, rf.

OFFER REWARD FOR SIX MORRIS CO. MURDERERS.

Morristown, June 16.—Without a clue to six murders in the county, Prosecutor Rathbun Wednesday sent a letter to the Board of Freeholders, asking that a reward of $500 be offered in each case for the arrest of the assailants. The board authorized the rewards.

Four of the murders were committed since January. The men were Italians, and their assassinators of the same nationality. The need of an Italian detective connected with the prosecutor's office was mentioned by freeholders.

Charles Bontempo was shot down in his home May 20 and his alleged assailant, Michael Cincacio, escaped. March 29, Michael Guerrieis was stabbed to death and Peter Grimandi is sought by the authorities. February 2, Loretto DeDito was found murdered and Rocco Calcagni is accused of the crime. January 2, Gusseppi Maggeo was found murdered in Madison. The authorities have never been able to learn who committed the crime. Such is the case of Gusseppi Salvatore, who was murdered in his home in Medham, October 8, 1910. Two years ago David Telsair was stabbed to death in Montville and a man known as Reggio is accused, but the police were never able to locate him.

The ordinance of believers' baptism will be administered in the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday evening.

SUNDAY BASEBALL QUESTION DECISION

The question of Sunday baseball at Scotch Plains which was discussed at a meeting of the Fanwood Township committee last week will again be taken up at a special meeting of the committee tomorrow night, when it is expected that the agitation will be settled as the committee has had a week to consider the matter.

There is no question as to the interpretation of the law, and the committee can only do one thing if it wants to abide by its provisions. It is said that the baseball club will apply for a license and will also petition for the privilege of playing Sunday games. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews will also present a petition asking that the law be upheld. It is understood that the prosecutor of Union county stands ready to enforce the law upon the request of the local authorities.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVILL.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

About them night finally closed in, black and starless, yet fortunately with a gradual dying away of the storm. For an hour past they had been struggling on, doubting their direction, wondering dully if they were not lost and merely drifting about in a circle. They had debated this fiercely once, the ponies standing dejectedly, tails to the storm, Neb arguing that the wind still blew from the south, and Keith contending it had shifted into the westward. The white man won his way, and they staggered on uncertain, the negro grasping the first pony's tail to keep from being separated from his companion. Some instinct of the plains must have guided them, for at last they dragged themselves out from the desert, the crunching sand under foot changing into rock, and then to short brittle grass, at which the ponies nibbled eagerly. The slope led gradually downward, the animals scenting water, and struggling to break away. Swaying in their saddles, the riders let them go, and they never stopped until belly deep in the stream, their noses buried. The men shivered in their saddles, until, at last satisfied, the ponies consented to be forced back up the bank, where they nibbled at the short tufts of herbage, but in a manner expressive of weariness. Keith flung himself on the ground, every muscle of his body aching, his exposed flesh still smarting from the hail of sand through which they had passed.

He had not the slightest conception as to where they were, except he knew this must be the Salt Fork. Utterly confused by the maze of shifting dunes, through whose intricacies they had somehow found passage, the blackness of the night yielded no clue as to their point of emergence. The volume of water in the stream alone suggested that in their wanderings they must have drifted to the eastward, and come out much lower down than had been originally intended. If so, then they might be almost directly south of Carson City, and in a section with which he was totally unacquainted. One thing was, however, certain—they would be compelled to wait for daylight to ascertain the truth, and decide upon their future movements. There was another barren, sandy stretch of desolation lying between this isolated valley and that of the Canadian, and their horses would never stand to be pushed forward without both rest and food. As to themselves—they had eaten their last crumb long since, but this was not the first time both had known starvation.

Keith arose reluctantly, and removed the saddles from the animals, hobbling them so they could graze at will. Neb was propped up beneath an out-cropping of the bank, which partly protected him from the wind, a mere hulk of a shadow. Keith could not tell whether he slept or not, but made no effort to disturb him. A moment he stared vacantly about into the black silence, and then lay down, pillowing his head upon a saddle. He found it impossible to sleep, the chill of the wind causing him to turn and twist, in vain search after comfort, while unappeased hunger gnawed incessantly. His eyes ranged about over the dull gloom of the skies until they fell again to the earth level, and then he suddenly sat up, half believing himself in a dream—down the stream, how far away he could not judge, there gleamed a steady, yellowish light. It was no flicker of a camp fire, yet remained stationary. Surely no star could be so low and large; nor did he recall any with that peculiarity of color. If such a miracle was possible in the heart of that sandy desert he would have sworn it was a lamp shining through a window. But he had never heard of any settler on the Salt Fork, and almost laughed at the thought, believing for the instant his brain played him some elfish trick. Yet that light was no illusion; he rubbed his eyes, only to see it more clearly, convinced now of its reality. He strode hastily across, and shook Neb into semi-consciousness, dragging him bodily up the bank and pointing down the stream.

"Do you see that?" he inquired anxiously. "There, straight ahead of you!"

The negro stared, shaking with cold, and scarcely able to stand alone.

"Maybe it am de moon, Massa Jack," he muttered, thickly, "or a goblin's lantern. Lawd, I don't jest like de looks ob dat ting."

"Well, I do," and Keith laughed uneasily at the negro's fears. "All I wanted to know was if you saw what I saw. That's a lamp shining through a window, Neb. What in heaven's name it can be doing here I am unable to guess, but I'm going to find out. It means shelter and food, boy, even if we have to fight for it. Come on, the horses are safe, and we'll discover what is behind that light yonder."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Wilderness Cabin.

The light was considerably farther away than they had at first supposed, and as they advanced steadily toward it, the nature of the ground rapidly changed, becoming irregular, and littered with low growing shrubs. In the darkness they stumbled over outcroppings of rock, and after a fall or two, were compelled to move forward with extreme caution. But the mysterious yellow glow continually beckoned, and with new hope animating the hearts of both men, they staggered on, nerving themselves to the effort, and following closely along the bank of the stream.

At last they arrived where they could perceive dimly something of the nature of this unexpected desert oasis.

The light shone forth, piercing the night, through the uncurtained window of a log cabin, which would otherwise have been completely concealed from view by a group of low growing cottonwoods. This was all the black, enshrouding night revealed, and even this was merely made apparent by the yellow illumination of the window. The cabin stood upon an island, a strip of sand, partially covered by water, separating it from the north shore on which they stood. There was no sign of life about the hut, other than the burning lamp, but that alone was sufficient evidence of occupancy. In spite of hunger, and urgent need, Keith hesitated, uncertain as to what they might be called upon to face. Who could be living in this out-of-the-way spot, in the heart of this inhospitable desert? It would be no cattle outpost surely, for there was no surrounding grazing land, while surely no professional hunter would choose such a barren spot for headquarters. Either a hermit, anxious to escape all intercourse with humanity, or some outlaw hiding from arrest, would be likely to select so isolated a place in which to live. To them it would be ideal. Away from all trails, where not even widely roving cattlemen would penetrate, in midst of a desert avoided by Indians because of lack of game—a man might hide here year after year without danger of discovery. Yet such a one would not be likely to welcome their coming, and they were without arms. But Keith was not a man to hesitate long because of possible danger, and he stepped down into the shallow water.

"Come on, Neb," he commanded, "and we'll find out who lives here."

The window faced the west, and he came up the low bank to where the door fronted the north in intense darkness. Under the shadow of the cottonwoods he could see nothing, groping his way, with hands extended. His foot struck a flat stone, and he plunged forward, striking the unlatched door so heavily as to swing it open, and fell partially forward into the room. As he struggled to his knees, Neb's black face peering past him into the lighted interior, he seemed to perceive in one swift, comprehensive glance, every revealed detail. A lamp burned on a rudely constructed set of drawers near the window, and a wood fire blazed redly in a stone fireplace opposite, the yellow and red lights blending in a peculiar glow of color. Under this radiance were revealed the rough log walls plastered with yellow clay, and hung about with the skins of wild animals, a roughly made table, bare except for a book lying upon it, and a few ordinary appearing boxes, evidently utilized as seats, together with a barrel cut so as to make a comfortable chair. In the back wall was a door, partially open, apparently leading into a second room. That was all, except the woman.

Keith must have perceived all these in that first hurried glance, for they were ever after closely associated together in his mind, yet at the moment he possessed no clear thought of anything except her. She stood directly behind the table, where she must have sprung hastily at the first sound of their approach, clutching at the rude mantel above the fireplace, and staring toward him, her face white, her breath coming in sobs. At first he thought the vision a dream, a delirium born from his long struggle; he could not conceive the possibility of such a presence in this lonely place, and staggering to his feet, gazed wildly, dumbly at the slender, gray clad figure, the almost girlish face under the shadowing dark hair, expecting the marvellous vision to vanish. Surely this could not be real! A woman, and such a woman as this here, and alone, of all places! He staggered from weakness, almost terror, and grasped the table to hold himself erect. The rising wind came swirling in through the open door, causing the fire to send forth spirals of smoke, and he turned, dragging the dazed negro within, and snapping the latch behind him. When he glanced around again he fully believed the vision confronting him would have vanished. But no! there she yet remained, those wide-open, frightened brown eyes, with long lashes half hiding their depths, looking directly into his own; only now she had slightly changed her posture, leaning toward him across the table. Like a flash he comprehended that this was reality—flesh and blood—and, with the swift instinct of a gentleman, his numbed, nerveless fingers jerked off his hat, and he bowed bareheaded before her.

"Pardon me," he said, finding his voice with difficulty. "I fell over the step, but—but I didn't expect to find a woman here."

He heard her quick breathing, marked a slight change in the expression of the dark eyes, and caught the glitter of the firelight on a revolver in her lowered hand.

"What did you expect to find?"

"I hardly knew," he explained lamely; "we stumbled on this hut by accident. I didn't know there was a cabin in all this valley."

As Receiver or Assignee

the Trust Company has developed a high degree of efficiency.

The number of Court appointments of Trust Companies as receivers for insolvent commercial and industrial concerns is constantly increasing.

The facilities, powers and experience of the Trust Company enables it to provide a management for such concerns, which frequently results in placing the business on its feet again, while in any event its service is apt to be rendered more economically than any individual's could be.

MIX UP.

That dignified undignified dignified of yesterday was a conglomeration. The printer can not read my teligable wroting. I think it will be like my grammatical grammar. It will be world famous soon. The cause of grammar is that my grandfather had an idea that when he saved the price of a hired man and let my father do the work, he was giving father a grand opportunity. And father was like a great many of you people, he would rather stick to an old time idea than anything else. A great many of you are sticking to old time ideas, (or old houses) because you have had no one to teach you that your ground would sell these times as quick and for more money without your old ideas, than with them. Just size up the present day situation for yourself. Don't you see the people going like the——in a new auto every year because they don't like last year's idea. Why do you think they will land permanently in an old idea? I should say nothing, for it is none of my affairs, for I charge $15 to list them, and I am not bothered much with them. When I am, I tell them so. But passing on. I am to be

I do not believe in straightback advertising for I know of no one who wants a straightback on a hot day. My object in writing the above is to tell you that I will be ready to offer $80,000 of good First Mortgage Bonds on the City Market to be erected in your city soon. The building will cost between $50,000 and $60,000. You know the land value. There will be no water for any one or for sale. Write me and I will cheerfully give you full particulars. STRANGER CASHED THE BET

Gerald Egan, Society Athlete of Washington, Agreed That Discretion Was Better Part of Valor.

This is the story of the one time that Gerald Egan of Washington, society man and all-round athlete, refused to fight.

It happened in the lobby of a small hotel in a West Virginia town in the dead of night. Egan was talking to the hotel clerk when a stranger, six feet tall and built on the lines of Samson, lounged in and carefully looked him over. Egan paid no attention to him.

After a few minutes the stranger walked to the main door, sprang up and caught hold of the door and drew himself up three times, each time making his chin go up to the level of the beam. It was the athletic stunt known among boys as "chinning the pole."

Having completed his exercise, the West Virginia giant walked up to Egan and said:

"Pay me."

"Pay you for what?" asked Egan.

"Why," said the stranger in great indignation, "didn't you just bet me $5 that I couldn't chin myself?"

"I never said a word to you in my life," contradicted Egan.

The stranger, now thoroughly incensed, turned to the hotel clerk.

"Jack," he demanded, "didn't this guy just bet me five that I couldn't chin myself three times?"

"I don't remember what was said," was the diplomatic clerk's contribution to the argument.

Egan started out of the hotel, but the big man sprang in front of him and closed the door.

"No, you don't!" he snarled viciously. "You pay me or you don't get out of here."

"But I never bet you anything," protested Egan.

"Don't crawl!" warned the stranger. "Pay up. I'm going to cash this bet or bust. I ain't going to be an easy mark all my life."

Egan paid.—The Popular Magazine.

BEARD'S ORIGINAL FUNCTION

Hirsute Adornment of Man Was Intended to Shield the Face, Throat and Chest.

Why has nature provided man with a beard, and why has woman not been blessed—or bothered—with the same facial adornment. Dr. James J. Walsh a well known writer and lecturer on medical subjects, declares there is no doubt that the beard was originally a provision of nature for the protection of the face of man, an out-door creature, against the elements. It was a shield for the face, the throat and the chest. Man in earlier days wore very little in the way of clothes. The upper part of his body, the shoulders, chest and neck, were entirely bare, as far as we know, and in need of some kind of protection. So nature gave him a thick beard. Another theory is that propounded by Doctor Hunt of Boston, who in the course of a paper on the subject recently observed: "Woman finds a natural protection for her throat and chest in the fine layers of fat that lie just under the skin covering her neck, shoulders and chest. Consequently she needs no mat of hair to shield her chin and throat. The larynx and trachea are removed further from the surface of the skin in a woman than in a man. Hence nature has provided a beard for a man for the purpose of protecting him, just as the layers of fat protect a woman. You rarely find a very heavy growth of beard on a fat man.

Literal Explanation.

Sturdy young Archibald, perplexed by the behavior of a visiting East Indian lecturer, inquired the reason of the man's peculiar method of salutation—fingertips touching on breast, the body bent in a deep bow. Archie's mother explained that the movement meant: "I bow to the spiritual within you!" adding, sotto voce, to her amused husband: "And it's just as well he doesn't care for 'personal contact' with Americans, for I for one, really wouldn't care to shake hands with him."

A few days later the East Indian suavely inquired of the boy, bowing, monkey-like, before him, if he knew what the gesture of greeting was intended to say.

"Oh, yes," grinned the lad, gayly. "It means, 'I bow to the spiritual within you,' but I wouldn't be found dead touching your hand!"

Sawdust Contaminates a Stream.

Sawdust contaminates water, according to the decision of a Virginia court in the case brought by residents along the banks of a stream to prevent the owners of a sawmill from dumping the dust from their mill into the water.

The farmers testified that the sawdust gave the water such a color and offensive odor that the cattle would not drink it. On the strength of this testimony and other facts brought out the court ordered the sawmill people to make other disposition of their refuse.—Popular Mechanics.

A Day's Work.

"I call it a good day's work that I did today," a friend said to me the other day, and, of course, I asked him what it was.

"Well," he replied, "I put down a linoleum, laid a hardwood floor, put down two carpets, papered four rooms and set up a stove."

"I looked at him incredulously, when he hastened to add: "In a doll's house."

AN ORDINANCE

Fixing the Boundaries of Election Districts.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the First Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the First Ward.

Sec. 2. The first election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and running thence in a northeasterly direction along the center line of said right of way to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a northwesterly direction to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Elm Place; thence along the center line of Elm Place in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Somerset Street; thence along the center line of Somerset Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Park Avenue; thence along the center line of Park Avenue in a southeasterly direction to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 3. That the second election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Elm Place and the City Line in Green Brook and thence running in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Elm Place to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of East Third Street; thence along the center line of East Third Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Richmond Street; thence along the center line of Richmond Street and Norwood Avenue in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Elm Place, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 4. That the third election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Norwood Avenue and the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the center line of Norwood Avenue and Richmond Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of East Third Street; thence along the center line of East Third Street in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Washington Street; thence along the center line of Washington Street in a southeasterly direction to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Berckman Street, thence along the center line of Berckman Street in a northwesterly direction to the center line of East Front Street; thence along the center line of East Front Street in a northeasterly direction to the center line of Farragut Road; thence along the center line of Farragut Road in a northwesterly direction to the City Line in Green Brook; thence along the City Line in Green Brook in a southwesterly direction to the center line of Norwood Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 5. That the fourth election district of the First Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the First Ward lying northeast of the center line of Farragut Road and the center line of Berckman Street, and southeast of the center line of East Front Street between Farragut Road and Berckman Street, being all that portion of the First Ward not included in the First, Second and Third Districts thereof.

Sec. 6. That the Second Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the Second Ward.

Sec. 7. That the first election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and running thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Park Avenue to the center line of Cedar Brook; thence in a northerly direction along the center line of Cedar Brook to the center line of Watchung Avenue; thence in a westerly direction along the center line of Watchung Avenue to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a northerly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of East Seventh Street; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of East Seventh Street to the center line of Washington Street; thence in a northwesterly direction along the center line of Washington Street to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of said right of way to the center line of Park Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 8. That the second election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Park Avenue and the center line of Cedar Brook and running thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Park Avenue to the City Line; thence in an easterly, northerly and northeasterly direction along the City Line to a point where the same would be intersected by the center line of Putnam Avenue if extended; thence in a westerly direction along the center line of Putnam Avenue as thus extended and as opened to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a southerly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of Watchung Avenue; thence in an easterly direction along the center line of Watchung Avenue to the center line of Cedar Brook; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of Cedar Brook to the center line of Park Avenue, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 9. That the third election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Washington Street and the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Washington Street to the center line of East Seventh Street; thence in a northeasterly direction along the center line of East Seventh Street to the center line of Franklin Place; thence in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Franklin Place to the center line of Putnam Avenue; thence along the center line of Putnam Avenue in an easterly direction to the center line of Berckman Street as projected; thence in a northwesterly direction along the center line of Berckman Street as projected and as opened to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the center line of Washington Street, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 10. That the fourth election district of the Second Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Second Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the center line of Berckman Street where the same intersects the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence running in a southeasterly direction along the center line of Berckman Street as opened and as projected to the center line of Putnam Avenue; thence in an easterly direction along the center line of Putnam Avenue as the same would run if extended in its present course to the City Line; thence in a northeasterly and northwesterly direction along the City Line to the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; thence in a southwesterly direction along the center line of the right of way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the center line of Berckman Street, the point or place of beginning.

Sec. 11. That the Third Ward of the City of Plainfield is hereby divided into four election districts with boundaries as hereinafter specified to be known respectively as the first, second, third and fourth election districts of the Third Ward.

Sec. 12. That the first election district of the Third Ward shall include all the territory and the inhabitants thereof contained in that portion of the Third Ward which is bounded and described as follows:

JUST THE HAMMOCK For Romping Children

MEXICAN GRASS HAMMOCKS

Let the children romp and play all they want to in a Mexican Grass Hammock. They are made for just that kind of hard service.

One of our customers saw these hammocks Saturday and he said, "Hello! That is just the hammock I want. Why do you know, we had one of those hammocks when I was a boy and if that didn't see some of the hardest use you ever heard of, then I never saw a hammock."

These Mexican Grass Hammocks are noted almost everywhere for their great strength and durability.

BETTER BUY ONE TODAY.

We have spreaders for them if you already have one, and the spreaders are gone.

PALMER AND ECLAT WOVEN HAMMOCKS

We have sold a great number of these Palmer and Eclat woven yarn hammocks. They are simply handsome where you want a fine hammock for extra comfort; and their pleasing colors and designs are sure to please you.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 5, 1911.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Eestablish a Building Code," Approved May 10, 1911.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 17 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Establish a Building Code," approved May 10, 1911, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as folows:

SECTION 17.

Cement or Concrete Hollow Building Blocks.

(1) Moulded or cast hollow building blocks, of concrete, cement, or other hard incombustible material may be used for walls of any building not more than thirty-six feet in height, provided the materials are not stressed beyond the safe limits fixed by this section; provided that the use of terra cotta blocks for walls of any building shall be governed by the provisions of section 17½ of this ordinance.

(2) No such blocks shall be used until complete and satisfactory tests have been made by the manufacturer under the direction of the Inspector of Buildings, in accordance with the requirements of Sections 25 of this Code and until an approval for the use of such blocks has been obtained.

(3) No blocks shall be approved that do not at the age of twenty-eight days or less develop a compressive strength of at least one thousand five hundred pounds per square inch of net section.

(4) In no cases shall the hollow spaces of a block exceed thirty-three and one-third per centum of the cross section of the block.

(5) The thickness of the walls or webs of such blocks shall be not less than one-fourth of the heighth of the blocks, but in no case less than one inch thick.

(6) All such walls shall be laid in Portland cement mortar.

(7) Buildings of hollow cement or concrete blocks laid in cement mortar, shall be classed as non-fireproof construction when floors and roofs are of wood. The blocks shall not be less than six inches thick for a one story building; eight inches for the first story and six inches for the second story in a two story building; eight inches for the first and second stories and six inches for the third story in a three story building.

(8) Whenever girders or joists rest upon walls so that there is a concentrated load of over two tons, the blocks supporting the girders or joists shall be made solid by filling at least two contiguous blocks with cement concrete, mixed in proportion of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts broken stone or gravel. Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

(9) No cement or concrete blocks shall be loaded in excess of three hundred pounds per square inch of net and section in compression or one hundred pounds per square inch if laid on the side. All piers and buttresses that support loads in excess of five tons shall be filled solid with cement concrete. Lintels spanning over four feet six inches in the clear shall rest on blocks filled solid with concrete, or an equivalent in iron support.

(10) When used for curtain walls between supporting piers not over twenty feet apart, on centers not more than twelve feet in height between girders, cement or concrete blocks not less than eight inches in thickness, set in cement may be used, reinforcing by concrete filling to the extent necessary and directed by the Inspector.

(11) For foundations not over ten feet in height of frame buildings and of buildings as per clause seven of this section, cement or concrete blocks set and if necessary, reinforced as above, not less than twelve inches thick may be used.

Section 2. That a new section be added to said ordinance to be numbered 17½ and to read as follows:

SECTION 17½.

Hollow Terra Cotta Blocks.

(1) Hard Burnt Terra Cotta Blocks may be used for walls of any building not more than forty feet in height, provided the materials are not stressed beyond the safe limits fixed in this section.

(2) No such blocks shall be used until complete and satisfactory tests have been made by the manufacturer under the directions of the Inspector of Buildings in accordance with the requirements of Section 25 of this Code, and until the approval for the use of such blocks has been obtained.

(3) No blocks shall be approved that do not develop a compressive strength of at least three thousand five hundred pounds per square inch of net section.

(4) In no cases shall the hollow spaces of a block exceed sixty per centum of the cross section of the block.

(5) The thickness of the shell shall be 15-16 of an inch and the webs ⅞ of an inch.

(6) All mortar used for laying up the Terra Cotta Blocks shall consist of a standard Portland cement and clean sharp sand, in the proportion of one part cement to three parts sand, well mixed to a smooth moderately stiff mortar. Lime, well slacked and not to exceed 10 per cent of the cement, by volume, will be allowed in the mortar.

(7) Buildings of Hollow Terra Cotta Blocks laid in cement mortar shall be classed as non-fireproof construction, when the floors and roof are of wood.

Thickness of walls shall be not less than is required by law for brick walls, except where Hollow Tile Blocks are used as a substitute for wood construction, the exterior walls shall be not less than the following thicknesses:

(a) For a one story building, 6 inches;
(b) For a two story building, first story 8 inches; second story 8 inches;
(c) For a three story building, first story 10 inches; second story 8 inches; third story eight inches;
(d) For a four story building, first story, 12 inches; second story 10 inches; third story eight inches; fourth story 8 inches;
(e) The foundation walls shall be not less than 4 inches thicker than the first story walls, provided that no foundation wall shall be less than 12 inches thick.

Except for foundations not over 7 feet 6 inches in height of small frame houses of light construction, blocks 8 inches thick may be used in lengths not exceeding twenty linear feet between masonry cross walls or buttress piers of dimensions approved by the Inspector.

If the walls are exposed to the weather the blocks shall be of dense material, vitirified in burning, or they may be of dense material hard burned but not vitrified, covered on the exposed side with at least one inch of cement plaster. All blocks shall be dovetail scored to retain this coating.

(8) Whenever girders or joists rest upon walls so that there is a concentrated load of over ten tons, the blocks supporting the girders or joists shall be made solid by filling at least two contiguous blocks with cement mixed in proportion of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts broken stone or gravel Wherever walls are decreased in thickness, the top course of the thicker wall shall be made solid in the same manner.

(9) No hollow blocks shall be loaded in excess of one hundred pounds per square inch of net section in compression, if laid on the side, or in excess of three hundred pounds per square inch if set on end. All piers and buttresses that support loads in excess of five tons shall be filled solid with cement concrete. Lintels spaning over four feet six inches in the clear, shall rest on blocks filled solid with concrete, or an equivalent in iron support.

(10) When used for curtain walls between supporting piers not over twenty feet apart on centers, not more than twelve feet in height between girders, hard burnt clay standard blocks not less than 8 inches in thickness, set in cement, may be used, reinforcing by concrete filling to the extent necessary and directed by the Inspector.

DID HE EMBEZZLE?

Ralph Matthews Denies Charge Preferred by Frank Peppi.

A LENGTHY HEARING TODAY.

City Judge DeMeza Reserves Decision After Lawyers Had Argued Points in the Case.

The case of Ralph D. Matthews, charged by Frank Peppi with the embezzlement of $33, was heard by Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. The State's case was presented by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., while J. Henry Crane represented the defendant. Nearly two hours were required to take testimony and in conclusion decision was reserved until next Tuesday morning. Another embezzlement charge preferred by Nichols Importico against Matthews will be heard Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Bail in each instance was fixed at $100 and it was furnished by the counsel.

Peppi's claim was to the effect that he had given Matthews $33 interest money on the mortgage covering his home to be forwarded F. J. Grace, a New York lawyer. This was done on May 6 and on June 3 Matthews received word that the interest was over due. When Matthews was asked about it, he claimed to have mailed a check. He added he would send a duplicate, but several days later another notice came from Grace inquiring about the interest. No satisfactory explanation was given by Matthews and the complaint was made. After a warrant had been issued, Grace wrote that he was in receipt of a certified check.

The defence was that the check had been mailed but as it was not received, Matthews was afraid to forward another until the first had been located. He believed that both might be cashed and the loss would fall upon him. Several discrepancies in check and stub evidence inquired into by Mr. Hetfield were declared by Mr. Crane to betray ignorance of banking customs on the part of the defendant.

Matthews is an Italian and deals in real estate, principally among his countrymen. He acted as agent for Peppi when the latter purchased his home and took care of the interest on a friendship basis.

BIRTHDAY PARTY HELD BY CONGREGATIONLISTS

Under the auspices of the Woman's Society of the Congregational church, a successful birthday party was held at the church, yesterday afternoon and evening. The afternoon program was for the children, there being a large number present to enjoy kindergarten games under the leadership of Mrs. Lawrence Whitall and Miss Whitall. Ice cream, cake and strawberries were served.

It was originally planned to have bowling on the green, fortune telling and other out-of-door amusements, but owing to the weather they had to be given up and the affair was held in the church.

In the evening the adults gathered and there was a fine musical program on a phonograph operated by William Glover. There was also a birthday cake and during the evening refreshments were served.

A feature was the reception of the birthday bags, and in this way about $90 was realized for the church building fund. This amount will doubtless be increased considerable as many bags did not come in last night. Mrs. Thomas Hylan was chairman of the general committee and Miss Lulu Fuller had charge of the birthday cards and bags.

Court Warns Hackman.

Joseph Parsons, a hackman, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Freight Agent Koehler, of the Central, with a violation of the hack ordinance and disorderly conduct. After a lengthy hearing in which the defendant was represented by Lawyer Robert Newton Crane, Judge DeMeza declared Parsons guilty and placed a suspended sentence of $10 or twenty days over his head. He also announced that if Parsons again appeared in court, the mayor would be asked to revoke his license.

—It will pay housekeepers to visit Neuman Bros. today and make a selection from the finest nearby strawberries, cherries, delicious muskmelons, and Georgia peaches. Prices reasonable.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL AT GRACE M.E. CHURCH

The strawberry and ice cream festival conducted by Grace M. E. church, Epworth League, last night, proved to be a complete success despite the threatening weather. Seventy-five dollars was cleared, this being appropriated for the payment of the church water tax. On account of the rain the affair was held in the church building.

A feature of the festival was the locust grove in charge of Miss Mary Hoagland. Each one of the two hundred and fifty people present chose a number and were then designated as certain locusts.

The various tables were in charge of the following people: Strawberry short cake—Miss Jennie Nelson; candy—Mrs. Charles Maltby; lemonade—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hardin; cake—Mrs. Darby; ice cream—Ray Miller; "hot-dogs"—Harry Schuck; aprons—Miss Netty Bauersach and Miss Mary Steiner; grocery—Miss Mabel Stevens. During the evening music was furnished by an orchestra of three pieces in charge of E. D. Young.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT MONROE AVE. CHURCH

Children's Day exercises will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The church has been appropriately decorated for the occasion by John McCormick, assisted by John Goodman. A feature of the decorations will be "The Gateway of Life," standing ajar in a floral clock.

The service by the school is entitled "Floral Praise." Besides the selections in which the whole school take part, there will be special numbers by members of the kindergarten, the primary and intermediate departments. The following will take part:

MISS VAN DENBURGH NOW MRS. CALDWELL

Miss Helen Mae VanDenburgh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. VanDenburgh, of 68 Franklin avenue, and Francis S. Caldwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Caldwell, of McKinley place, were married at the home of the bride's parents this afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey officiated. The ceremony was a quiet one, being attended only by the relatives of the couple. The home was tastefully decorated in green and white.

After the ceremony the couple left in an automobile for Asbury Park, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon returning to this city they will take up their residence at 29 Craig place. Mr. Caldwell is foreman of the testing department of the Garwood Electric Company.

THREEARE GRADUATED AT MT. BETHEL SCHOOL

Three pupils were graduated from the Mt. Bethel grammar school at its annual commencement exercises last night, in the Mt. Bethel Baptist church. Grover Kipsey, the new township school supervisor, was in charge and he introduced the speakers, Assemblyman La Monte and B. J. Phelps, principal of the North Plainfield High School.

Mr. La Monte spoke on "Education In the State." Professor Phelps told of the high standing which the graduates of the Mt. Bethel school had attained in the North Plainfield High School and of the work which the new comers would be expected to do. All three graduates will enter the borough high school in the fall.

JAPANESE EMIGRATING TO THE PHILIPPINES.

Washington, June 17.—As a result of unofficial information reaching Washington from Tokio in the last few days, the serious attention of the State Department has been turned upon the activities of Japan in carrying out what seems to be a definite policy of expansion in the Philippines, and South America. It is learned from Tokio that the Japanese Government which directs all emigration movements, has decided to pour her citizens in upon the Philippines. One hundred and fifty will be sent by each steamer to Manila, according to the present plan. In the past, they have received a chilly reception and especially from the native Filipinos who dislike them intensely.

The word has gone forth in Tokio that passports will be freely issued to subjects of the Mikado desiring to try their fortune in the South American countries.

City Court Cases.

In the city court this morning Harry Taub, of West Third street, was fined $3 for riding a wheel on the sidewalk. M. J. DR. MORGAN SPEAKER AT BUSINESS COLLEGE

From the large number of requests already received for seats for the commencement exercises of the Plainfield Business College and School of English, which will be held at the Plainfield theatre Friday night June 30, it is evident that a capacity audience will be present on that occasion. The address of the evening will be made by Rev. William H. Morgan, of Newark. He has chosen for his subject, "The Forces That Make for Human Character." The graduating class this year outnumbers any of previous years, and while a portion of the theatre has been reserved for the students and their friends there will be ample room for the public. Those desiring seats should apply early to Prof. A. S. Herr, at the college.

MISS EDNA M. LEAR TO WED W.H.KEMERY

Miss Edna M. Lear, daughter of Mr. and rsM. William Lear, and Watson H. Kemery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Kemery, of Phillipsburg, will be married at 7 o'clock this evening by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in his apartments in The Bristol on West Front street. The couple will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. G. Harry Allen, of the borough, for whom they were bridemaid and best man when they were married at Phillipsburg on February 5 last.

Miss Lear is an active and prominent worker in St. John's Lutheran church at Phillipsburg. Mr. Kemery is well-known as an athlete, being the star pitcher for the Standard Silk Company baseball team at Phillipsburg, by which concern he is employed in an official capacity.

The bride will wear a traveling gown with hat to match, and Mrs. Allen's gown will be of white serge, trimmed with lace. Following the ceremony the bridal party will have a wedding supper at the Queen City Hotel. The couple will spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Allen and tomorrow evening will leave here for a trip. Upon their return they will reside at Phillipsburg.

Mrs. Allen before her marriage lived at Phillipsburg and she and Miss Lear were close friends. Following the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Allen, they promised to attend Miss Lear and Mr. Kemery when they were married. Recently it was decided that the ceremony should be performed here on June 17.

Dr. Spurgeon to Lecture.

Rev. Dr. William Spurgeon, of London, Eng., will lecture at the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening on "Advice to Married People and People About to Marry." SOMERSET COUNCIL TWENTY YEARS OLD

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., observed its twentieth anniversary last night, entertaining State Councilor William LaRue, of Bound Brook, as well as representatives from Franklin, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., this city. The program was of an informal character, including an address by Mr. LaRue, and brief talks by other visiting members as well as officers of Somerset Council. Edward Hughes, councilor of Somerset Council had charge of the program.

During the short business session officers were placed in nomination for the coming six months. The election will be held on June 30. During a social hour refreshments were served and a smoker enjoyed.

Somerset Council is one of the strongest of the order in the city, its present membership being about four hundred and is constantly increasing. The entertainment of the evening was provided by the good and welfare committee of which Guy Thomas is the chairman.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS HAVE INDOOR PICNIC

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church held an indoor picnic in Vincent chapel, last night, the program being one of unusual enjoyment. According to instructions everyone brought his or her lunch, and lemonade was furnished by the league. The chapel and basement of the church was elaborately decorated for the picnic with flowers, branches of trees, while hammocks and cozy corners added to the comfort and pleasure of the young people.

During the early part of the evening the young people presented a dialogue entitled "A Case of Obstinancy," in which the following took part: Miss Gertrude Prior, Miss Hazel Moore, Miss Mabelle Koch, and Burnett Doane, Harry Littell and Wendell Glover.

The other part of the program was very amusing, being a burlesque athletic meet held in the basement of the church. Among the events were the shot put, putting a shot in a bottle, 100 inch dash, the standing broad grin, vocal high jump, discus throw, bean-bag game, long word race and football game. After the entertainment, refreshments were served. Miss Ethel Prior was chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by other members of the league.

POTTER FIRM WINS

Gets Verdict For Full Amount Against Newark Publishing Company.

BROUGHT SUIT ON CONTRACT.

Jury Awards Plaintiffs $15,000 and Interest for Payment of Press —Defense May Appeal.

Following a two-days' session in the Union County Court, the Potter Printing Press Company, of this city, won its suit on contract against the Newark Advertiser Publishing Company, publishers of the Newark Star. The jury deliberated for two hours after the summing up and returned with a verdict for $17,010 and costs. The amount sued for was $15,000, and the remainder is accrued interest for two years.

The case has attracted widespread interest throughout the entire State and has been closely followed by manufacturing men. The Potter people sold a high-class web press to the Advertiser company, fixing a stated amount in cash and taking an old machine in part payment. The press was installed in the Star office and was first used in June, 1909. The Potter men remained the usual time and everything was declared to be all right when they left. Afterward complaints came in about the machine but investigations always showed it was no fault of the press. The publishing company refused payment, alleging the contract had not been fulfilled. Suit was brought to recover the amount due.

The case was originally set for a month ago but after being called was discontinued for the time being because of a technical irregularity in pleadings filed by the defense. This was remedied and the matter was resumed Wednesday morning before Judge Vail. The defense reiterated its claim that the press was unsatisfactory while the plaintiffs showed that it met every requirement called for in the specifications.

The greater part of yesterday's proceedings was taken up with the examination of Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place, erector for the Potter Company, who had charge of putting the machine in the Star press room. He made an excellent witness and gave testimony that had much to do with the verdict rendered. It was rumored today that the defense contemplates an appeal.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

The Men's conference Bible class of the First Baptist church, of which H. W. Herrman is the teacher, held its second annual outing and camp fire on the mountains last night, and forty-five men comprised the party. The objective point was a delightful spot near the home of Mayor Newton B. Smalley. The men reached the mountains about 5 o'clock and at 7 o'clock a fine supper was enjoyed about a large camp fire, after which the company joined in singing popular songs and telling stories.

While all regretted the absence of Mr. Herrman, who is in Baltimore, the men were glad to listen to Geo. H. Batchelor and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who gave excellent talks. The sociability of all was a marked feature and helped to make the outing a great success. Much praise was accorded the committee, Robert W. Barnes, Frank Bach and William Gerhold, for the complete arrangements.

This class is growing rapidly, starting with a membership of five three years ago, today there are 120 men enrolled, representing every nationality and all trades. Commencing tomorrow the class will meet at 9:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the church, and all men not connected with other churches or Sunday schools are invited to attend.

Phillipsburg, June 17.—The parade committees promise something extraordinary during the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the charter of the town and Old Home Week, which will occur July 2 to 8.

It has been decided to celebrate Friday as "educational day," and the parade on that date will be headed by the entire High School and faculty and the class of 1911 in graduation caps and gowns.

The pupils of all the schools will be uniformed in different colors. The following order has been decided upon for the parades: Monday, automobile parade; Tuesday, civic parade; Wednesday, baby parade; Thursday, firemen's parade; Friday, educational parade, and Saturday, industrial parade.

Miss Helen Carson, of East Second street, left this morning for Michigan, where she will spend two months visiting delatives.

BOARD'S FAIR WATER RULING

Trenton, June 17.—Without prejudice the right to renew the complaint, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has dismissed the petition by which Effie M. Bulmer sought to compel the Wildwood Water Works Company to extend its mains in order to furnish her with water. This is one of the first applications of its kind that the board has considered under the present law, and its judgment was based upon what the members believed to be the equitable solution of the controversy.

The facts disclosed that the petitioner could secure temporary connections with the water mains at a cost of about $25, while the water company, unless it should deviate from its regular plan, would have to lay 1,175 feet of mains at an approximate cost of $1,050. The contract with the borough requires the water company to extend its mains only where there are at least three consumers for each five hundred feet of extension asked for. In dismissing the complaint the board laid down the following general rules:

"The board is not prepared to concede that compliance, on the part of a public utility, with the terms of a contract existing between said utility and a municipality, ousts the board of its right under the law to order safe, adequate and proper service or to order any reasonable extension of existing facilities.

"Nor is this board ready to concede as universally valid the refusal on the part of public utilities to make extensions because such extensions would not, from the beginning, afford a profitable return provided, always, that the extension is a good business proposition, carrying fair prospects of a profitable return in the not distant future.

"If such prospective profitable return is likely, the public utility, both on the ground of its own interest in the development of the locality, as well as on the ground of its duty to serve the inhabitants of the vicinity in which franchise is exercised, may fairly be presumed to owe the place a reasonable extension of facilities.

"In the present case we do not feel that undue or extensive hardship is imposed upon the petitioner to make, for the present, private connections with the mains rather than to require the much greater outlay, which in this case would be imposed upon the respondent."

William Douglas, of West Eighth street, has returned home after completing his course in the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, Col.

Among the Yale students who are home for the summer are: L. Arthur Bingaman, of East Ninth street, Guion H. Fountain, of West Seventh street, and Horace B. Earle, of Watchung avenue.

William V. Rafferty, who has completed his second year at the Georgetown University Law School, is spending a few days in this city, before taking up any extensive law work for the summer.

KALISCH IS SWORN IN BY THE CHIEF JUSTICE.

Samuel Kalisch was sworn in as associate justice of the Supreme Court at his home, 988 Broad street, Newark, by Chief Justice Gummere yesterday. Mr. Kalisch succeeds Justice Reed.

Those who were present at the ceremony were Mrs. Samuel Kalisch, Leonard and Abner Kalisch, brothers of the new judge, and Mrs. Hannah Wiener.

Supreme Court Justice Alfred Reed retired from the bench yesterday. The retirement of Justice Reed from the bench marks the closing of thirty-six years of continuous service as a Supreme Court justice or vice-chancellor, and his record is one to be envied.

Justice Reed retired on a pension of $3,000 per year, the pension being provided for at the last session of the Legislature. He was admitted to the bar in 1864, although he had been a member of the New York bar for two years previous. He opend an office in Trenton after his admission to the New Jersey bar, and immediately started to take an active interest in the political life of the city. In 1865 he was elected to Common Council, of which body he was president, and in 1867 he was chosen Mayor.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the All Souls' church, leaves Monday for his summer vacation at Randolph, New Hampshire.

DISAGREE OVER CHANGING BILL

Asbury Park, June 17.—After the draft of a legislative bill had been considerably altered, the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association yesterday in annual session adopted the measure. A motion prevailed that the special committee be instructed to confer with counsel and have the measure put in shape for introduction in the next Legislature.

There was a dividend sentiment as to the feasibility of changing certain sections of the original draft. The hardest fight was that it was not necessary for those taking the examination before the State Board of Pharmacy to be graduates of any college of pharmacy.

E. A. Sayre, of Newark, one of the special committee which drafted the bill, said that it ought to make no difference whether or not a candidate for a diploma in pharmacy was a graduate of a pharmacy college; that six years' practical experience in a drug sore was equal to four years spent in a college of pharmacy.

The opposition was led by William O. Kuebler, of Newark, president of the New Jersey College of Pharmacy. He said a college education was an essential requisite for a registered pharmacist in this age. The vote was 44 to 26.

The question arose yesterday as to whether the special committee, now that its proposed bill has been altered and amended, would urge its passage before the Legislature. Mr. Sayre said emphatically that he would not help the bill along; that its provisions as amended were contrary to his judgment. He added, however, that he would not do anything to defeat the measure.

Other members of the special committee are Charles Holhauzer, of Newark, and George Beringer, of Camden. They are of the same mind as Mr. Sayre, although they did not so publicly express themselves.

SALESMAN IS MISSING.

Mt. Holly, June 17.—Alarm is felt over the disappearance of Frank L. Sherman, who has a wife and three children living in this city. As a traveling salesman for the Illingworth Steel Company of Frankford Station, Pa., the young man was to have returned a week ago. He was last heard from June 3, when at the Lafayette Hotel, Buffalo, he wrote a letter to his wife, giving his next address as "Hotel Reddington, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.," but which place he never reached. He is a member of the Travelers' Protection Society of Philadelphia and wore button No. 96457.

The steel company states that Sherman's accounts are all right, and they have sent to Buffalo in an effort to locate him. In writing from Buffalo Sherman said he was feeling better, after an illness. A report that he had committed suicide could not be verified. The matter has been placed in the hands of Ellis H. Parker, county detective.

Miss Florence Dickerson, of East Second street, has returned from a month's trip through Illinois and Iowa and is now spending a few days in Wilkes Barre, Pa.

COMPROMISE IN OCEAN STRIKE

London, June 17.—So far as Great Britain is concerned the strike of the seamen will end in a compromise within the next few hours, according to present indications.

The acceptance by the men of the offers of the White Star, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the Lamport and Holt lines of ten shillings monthly wage increase, is expected to be followed by other companies, and their employes. This will end the strike here. The offer of increased wages is fifty per cent. of the amount asked for in the original demands.

The Elder Dempster and the Royal Mail are conferring with their men and hope to reach an agreement on a similar basis.

Reports from the Continent show that the strike there is a fizzle. The men have generally refused to quit work, having discovered that all of the companies had large numbers of Chinamen under guard waiting to substitute them for white men if the latter quit work.

London, June 17.—The shipping strike has developed largely into a squabble over wages, and outside of a few mail steamers the shipowners generally are not suffering appreciable inconvenience. The number of strikers is limited strictly to deckhands.

Despite the concession of $2.50 a month in wages made by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company yesterday, when the time came for the signing of a crew for the Empress of Ireland yesterday the company was forced to concede an additional $1.25. The original demand of the men was for an advance of $5 a month.

Amsterdam, Holland, June 17.—The striking seamen at this port total only 300. However, the tank steamer Rotterdam, belonging to the American Petroleum Company and due to sail yesterday morning, was unable to obtain a crew.

BOY STRANGELY SHOT.

Trenton, June 17.—Malcolm Thoburn, three years old, of 400 Logan avenue, narrowly escaped being killed when he was mysteriously shot in the head while playing on a field. The bullet evidently came from the rifle of a gunner, as numerous young men were seen with weapons before the mishap occurred.

Young Thoburn was playing tag on a large field, directly opposite his home, with many other lads. Upon reaching the centre of the field, the child fell to the ground and screamed. His companions thought he was joking, but when they discovered blood flowing from his head they called for help.

CROSSING WAR BEFORE BOARD

The difference between the city of Elizabeth and the Central Railroad of New Jersey over the subject of grade crossings reached a head yesterday at a hearing before the Board of Public Utility Commissioners in Elizabeth. Both sides were prepared with many witnesses to make a strenuous fight.

The railroad was represented by Jackson E. Reynolds, general counsel and George Holmes and William A. Barkalow. Elizabeth was represented by City Attorney James C. Connolly. Mayor Alfred A. Stein occupied a seat by Mr. Connolly's side and took an active interest in the proceedings.

The question before the board was of a double-barreled character. The city asked for relief from the grade crossing evil on the Perth Amboy division of the road, with a particular request that the grade crossings be protected at all hours of the day and night.

There was a further allegation in the city's petition that the Cenrtal Depot at Elizabeth avenue and the junction of the Elizabethport and Perth Amboy branch with the main line is so constructed that passengers are compelled to cross tracks in alighting.

The company also had a kick in the form of an appeal from the ordinance passed by the City Council requiring that trains shall not proceed at a greater speed than six miles an hour over grade crossings. The company's contention was that it would disrupt its traffic to be forced to comply with such an ordinance.

For the company's statement of its case there was an offer to submit the whole question of the elimination of the grade crossings to the board, acting as a board of arbitration, the plan of adjustment to be that provided in the proposed Ackerman bill of 1910.

President Williams asked City Attorney Connolly what the city would do with the company's offer. Mr. Connolly replied that the offer had not been made to the city and that he was not empowered to do anything about the matter. He asked that the hearing proceed under the petition.

COLORED BAPTISTS MEET.

Providence, R. I., June 17.—New Jersey colored women figure prominently in the proceedings of the women's auxiliary to the New England (colored) Baptist convention, which opened its session here Thursday.

They also played a conspicuous part in the work of the New England (colored) Baptist Sunday-school Association, which preceded. A number of persons from New Jersey and New York were in attendance, and activities in those fields were described as encouraging.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, of Montclair, N. J., installed the newly elected officers. Mrs. P. H. Brown, of Plainfield, N. J., was made honorary president, and Miss Hester B. Holt, of Elizabeth, N. J., recording secretary.

The convention was held in the Congdon Street Baptist church. Mayor Henry Fletcher gave an address of welcome to the city.

DIAZ IN SPAIN, HAD BAD TRIP

Vigo, Spain, June 17.—General Porfirio Diaz, former President of Mexico, arrived in the harbor yesterday on the steamer Ypiranga, on which he sailed from Vera Cruz, Mexico, on May 31.

The steamer anchored in the bay at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and after a stop of two hours proceeded to Corunna. General Diaz did not land and during the stay of the vessel in the harbor no unpleasant incident occurred.

It was reported that members of the Progressive party and workingmen had arranged to express their unfavorable opinion toward the former president in the event that he came ashore. As a precautionary measure the maritime authorities placed a naval guard around the Ypiranga as soon as she arrived. This guard included two launches filled with marines and the gunboat Hernan Cortes. Only passengers and others duly authorized were permitted to board the steamer. Balbino Davallos, the Mexican Charge d'Affairs at Lisbon, and Senor Dauden, Mexican Consul here, went out to the vessel and greeted the general. Diaz told them that his health was not satisfactory and that he had suffered greatly during the voyage from an abscess on the jawbone, which had become troublesome before his departure from Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harris and family, of Central avenue, left yesterday for their home at Schoon Lake, N. Y., where they will remain for the entire summer.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Pruden's Idea.

June 16, 1911.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

Will you kindly allow me space in your paper for the following proposition. If a police officer can disturb an orderly and respectable party by ordering the host to appear before a magistrate on the charge of being too noisy, actuated largely by unworthy motives, because his first unreasonable request was not complied with, and can go unreprimanded when the charge is proven to be unwarrented, then I would suggest that in order to protect our constitutional rights to the pursuit of happiness, it may be necessary to organize a Bureau for the Regulation of Parties in the Borough of North Plainfield. The license fees could be graded, $1 would entitle the guests to 40 laughs—30 of them large ones to be used before 11 o'clock and ten of them little easy ones to be used not later than 12 o'clock. Ten dollars would permit the singing of five popluar songs, not too loudly, and dancing would only be permitted with felt vocered slippers. Of course, these fees would cut into the amount allotted for refreshments, but think of the feeling of security from police invasion or autocratic action that such a license would procure,

Yours truly,
ROBERT PRUDEN.

NEWARKERS HONORED BY ROCHESTER ELKS.

Rochester, N. Y., June 17.—A delegation of prominent Newark, N. J., officials were guests here Thursday night of Rochester Lodge No. 24, B. P. O. E. The list included Mayor Jacob Haussling, Police Commissioners Philip Scanlan, William Bonnet, John Baader and Lyman E. Kane and Police Chief Michael Corbitt and Joseph Cox, secretary of the Police Board. They came here to attend the convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs. An entertainment for the delegates and their friends was gotten up by the Elks and the Newarkers were among the guests.

As Mayor Haussling and Commissioners Bonnet and Baader are Elks, they received special attention at the hands of their Rochester brothers.

The Newarkers participated in the presentation of a gold watch, chain and diamond-studded charm to Police Chief Joseph M. Quigley, of Rochester, who has had charge of the entertainment of the visiting chiefs and other officials during their stay in the convention city. The presentation was made at a supper following the Elks' entertainment.

The Newarkers saw the ball game here Thursday between Rochester and Toronto.

LAUGH.

Laugh and the world laughs with you; SNORE and you SNORE alone. I am so happy that I cannot keep from laughing. What is the matter with some of you sour faced deacons anyhow?

LADIES.

Thank you, for the privilege you have given me to change my mind. When I started in business six weeks ago, with a cash capital of deceitfulness and four dollars, I had no time to list properties. It was up to me to sell some, so I put out my signal or $15. And to be frank with you I did not suppose I would get so busy. But positively I was compelled to have three stenographers. Venture to say that I have in one month listed more property than any two agents here will in one year, but I did not get $15 per for it is property sent me by outside people through the mail, and have sold and exchanged some.

KNOCKING.

Have been in Plainfield about nine years. Have you ever heard me knock at your door for business? No; nor you never will. But am now prepared to have you come and see me if you care too, and no CHARGE for listing; have four

SPECIALTIES

One man to take charge of Rent and Insurance and now, of course, he has time to take charge of your house anyway you wish him too. And my signals have made enough comment to let you know I am in business. So no more. Ordered 2,000 regulars today. Another man to take charge of lots, one to take charge of farms. And I have an offer ready (in exchange) and sometimes cash for property I don't care where. And I have any amount of MONEY to loan and searches are $25 each by a company backed by one half million dollars. The law will not allow me to offer my bonds as yet, nor lots aat Uptodate. BUILDER ACQUITTED OF MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

New Brunswick, June 17.—After an hour's deliberation the jury in the case of William H. VanSickle, the local contractor, indicted for manslaughter in connection with the loss of two lives through the collapse of the Robert Turton building in George street last November, returned a verdict of not guilty Thursday.

Judge Peter F. Daly, in his charge to the jury, said that the case was an unusual one and he wanted the jury to decide it on their own idea of the facts. The law in criminal actions of this sort was much narrower than in civil actions, the court explained, for a man might be liable for damages in a civil suit and innocent of criminal liability. Gross negligence was the failure to do what a reasonably prudent man should have done, Judge Daly added:

"Somebody, in my mind, is responsible for the deaths of two persons by gross neglect," continued the court. "While that appears to me, you are the sole judges as to the fact and must determine that point for yourselves, and if you do reach such a conclusion, then you must determine who is responsible."

PERSONAL.

F. C. Langhorne and family, of Truell Court, sailed for Europe today to be gone six weeks.

Mrs. A. L. Kendricks, of East Sixth street, is able to be about again after a severe attack of appendicitis.

Mrs. Margaret Webley, of Plainfield avenue, left this city Thursday for Chicago to visit friends. She will be away four months.

Charles E. Prior, Jr., of Hillside avenue, has returned after a year's stay in Golden, Col., where he is a student in the Colorado School of Mines.

Allan Fits-Randolph, of Madison avenue, has returned from Princeton University and has taken a position with the City National Bank for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harman and the Misses Harman, of West Eighth street, leave today on the Lapland, intending to spend the summer in England and Switzerland.

George H. Leighs, of West Fourth street, sailed for Europe this morning on the St. Louis, of the American Line. He will remain on the other side for three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Anderson and their daughter, Dorris, of East Second street, have been spending two weeks at the Felmly Farm in Lebanon and will return home tomorrow.

Miss I. S. Arnold and Miss Florella Clark, of The Seminary, leave today on the Arabic, of the White Star Line, for a two months' trip through Great Britain and Ireland. The tickets were secured through the agency of Mulford Estil, of Park avenue.

OCEAN GROVE CAMP MEETING'S PROGRAM

Aaron E. Ballard, president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, has made public the program of religious and musical attractions for the summer season, which will begin on Sunday and continue daily until late in September.

The opening sermon in the Ocean Grove Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of nearly ten thousand, will be preached Sunday morning by the Rev. Dr. Ralph Urmy, of Morristown, a member of the Camp Meeting Association. The summer Bible class, said to be the largest in the world, will organize on Sunday afternoon, and will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Thomas O'Hanlon, for years president of Pennington Seminary.

The first Young People's Meeting is scheduled for Tuesday morning, June 20, at 9 o'clock. It will again be in charge of the Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, Newark, who will be followed as leader on August 1 by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Mead, of Hoboken. These ministers will also conduct the Sunday afternoon service in the new North End Pavilion, on the boardwalk.

The several departments of the summer Sunday-school will be organized on Sunday, June 25. Joseph A. Hudson, of Philadelphia, will lead the intermediate department. The usual Sunday evening surf meeting on the beach will be in charge of President Ballard, and Miss Helen Gertrude Rumsey, the evangelist, will conduct the daily twilight service. The daily Holiness Meeting will be held at 9 a. m., in the Tabernacle, in charge of the Rev. Dr. John H. Alday, of Ocean Grove.

On Friday evening, August 25, the regular camp meeting will begin and continue daily for ten days. The last religious service for the summer is scheduled for Sunday, September 24.

Tali Esen Morgan has been re-engaged as musical director. His program has not been completed, but among the entertainments arranged for are the United States Marine Band, Florence Austin, violinist; the Cambrian Concert Company, the Weber Male Quartet, the Kahn Trio, Mae Connor, child harpist; Kathryn Platt Gunn, violinist, and the Aida Trumpee Quartet. The Children's Fairyland Festival, an annual event, will be held on the evening of August 22. Clarence Reynolds, of New York City, will return as organist in the Auditorium. At 4:30 p. m. every Sunday there will be a service of gospel song in the Auditorium, led by Director Morgan, who will give the story of at least one popular hymn every Sunday.

Among the distinguished men engaged for lectures and addresses are William Jennings Bryan, Governor Woodrow Wilson and the Rev. Dr. Henry N. Condon, chaplain of the House of Representatives. The Independence Day oration will be delivered at 10 a. m. by Governor Wilson.

Distinguished ministers who will preach and lecture during the season include Dr. Frank Wilson, Dr. Fairbanks B. Stockdale, Dr. William R. Wedderspoon, Bishop John W. Hamilton, Dr. Robert F. Y. Pierce, Bishop Samuel P. Spreng, Dr. Frank McDaniel, Dr. Cortland Myers, Dr. E. A. Robinson, Dr. David H. Schock, Dr. John Handley, Dr. Willis P. Odell and Dr. J. G. Wilson. The Rev. Dr. Goodell will preach the first Sunday morning of the camp-meeting.

PROFESSION LOWERED WILSON TELLS LAWYERS

Cheers greeted Judge Howard Carrow's introduction of Governor Woodrow Wilson at the annual banquet of the New Jersey State Bar Association last night at Atlantic City. The lawyers rose to their feet and joined in the Princeton yell as Governor Wilson got to his feet.

The most striking excerpts from his address were: "It is true that the legal profession as a profession does not enjoy the confidence of the people. I am surprised and I must say disappointed that the legal profession of this country has not undergone the same change and liberalizing that has characterized its progress in other countries. You are too technical. You are specialists along narrow lines. You are business men on strictly legal lines. The community no longer regards you as legal guides.

"You have withdrawn from statesmanship and lowered the profession to a society business basis. The ambush of technicalities you have drawn around the corporations makes it necessary to incept drastic legislation to tear away the shell and get at the heart. The profession in the foreign countries has advanced ahead of you because they have simplified, torn away, the covering of technicalities.

"If you want to restore your profession to the confidence of the people, you can do it in a single year by following the method of simplicity. The change can be wrought without pour support and assistance but it will be wrought to your discredit. The United States is in a very critical mood in regard to its courts.

"You must regard the Constitution on the same level as statutes, because you can't read anything into the Constitution that was not meant to be read there. The Constitution of the United States is a vehicle of life, not a skeleton of fear, and some small men have crawled into our courts. They become small when they become stereotyped into their work. There is an enormous work of construction statesmanship to be accomplished by our and succeeding generations."

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Bayer and I desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our friends for their sympathy and kindness in our hour of bereavement. The presence of so many persons at the funeral services of our son, the floral tributes and the words of consolation did much to lift the burden from our hearts. We especially appreciate the affection and esteem which was shown to our beloved son by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, No. 372. Their presence, their kindness will ever be most gratiously remembered.

GEORGE J. BAYER.

FORTY YEARS in BASEBALL

A History of the Great National Game

By CAPT. A. C. ANSON

Former Manager of the Chicago National League Team

I thought of that old gentleman out in Marshalltown who was waiting for me to figure out that interest, and the longing to give him a surprise was so strong that I yielded.

"My name is Adrian C. Anson," I said, "and I guess you may count me in."

My brother-in-law was so amused at the prospect of having me for a schoolmate that he nearly threw a fit. Just the same, on the following Monday evening we started off to school together, and I soon convinced him that there was going to be mighty little nonsense about it.

All that winter I studied faithfully. I don't mind telling you that I found it considerably harder work than playing ball, but I had made up my mind to accomplish a certain thing, and I did it. By spring I had mastered the rudiments of a business education, and when we returned to Chicago I was mighty proud of the fact that I was capable of attending to my own affairs from that time on. The next time I went to Marshalltown I nearly paralyzed the old gentleman with my facility as a computer of interest.

"I see that baseball hasn't knocked all the sense out of your head," he said, when he had recovered a little from his astonishment.

Now that I am on the subject, I may as well tell you something about the way I put in some of my other winters. The ball-playing business was good for only about seven months in the year, but I was not satisfied to be idle the remaining five, and I embarked in various ventures, some of them profitable and some quite otherwise. One winter I ran a handball court, which was too far away from the business center to be popular. One winter the lessees converted the ball grounds into a skating rink and toboggan slide, and I was given the management of the place. It was a howling success, socially and financially. The toboggan craze was at its height just then and the fashionable set took it up and filled the rink every afternoon and evening.

Ever hear of my experience as a bottler of ginger beer? Well, it brought me publicity at the time, but it was of the kind that I did not crave. I had a friend up in Canada who had shown me and my family a good deal of attention during my hunting trips to the north, and one fine day he turned up in Chicago with a little hard cash and a formula for making the best ginger beer ever brewed by the hand of man—so he put it. He proposed that I should go in with him to manufacture it and put it on the market, and he was such a nice fellow that I didn't see my way clear to refuse. Besides, it looked good to me, and I was not at all averse to adding a little something to my income. He mentioned $500 as my share of the capital, but it expanded into $1,500 before the scheme got in working order.

If there was ever a moment when the beer itself was not in working order, I never discovered it. That was why it proved such a grand fizzle. There must have been a flaw in the recipe somewhere, for no matter how securely we corked it, that beer wouldn't stay corked. It had flavor, it had about everything necessary to success; its only fault was its inability to stay where it was put. Complaints came in from every quarter—all to be effect that it was good beer, but better dynamite.

The end came quickly. I sent a case of our industrious beverage to a friend who kept a famous cafe on South Clark street, Chicago, and asked him to give it a fair trial. He promised to do so and I have never had any reason to believe he didn't. The beer was very young when I sent it, and it had not developed its full capacity for attracting attention. My friend put it in a corner of his cellar and forgot all about it.

But not for long. One evening when all was quiet, and the proprietor was congratulating himself on the classy place he was running, something like the muffled report of a dynamite cartridge butted in to interrupt his meditations. A second report followed immediately and before my friend got half way down the cellar stairs on a tour of investigation, a third and louder explosion brought him back with a face that showed both alarm and amazement.

"John," he called to one of the colored porters, "run down and see what's got loose!"

John was a brave man in some respects, but when it came to investigating things that had "got loose" he couldn't be depended upon. He shook his head and made for the street, followed by all the other men in the place except the proprietor. By that time the fusillade was fast and furious. My friend clapped his hands over his ears and prepared for the worst, which seemed to be close at hand.

All at once there was a perfect silence. His courage returning, my friend lighted a candle and crept cautiously down the cellar stairs. A few minutes later when he made his reappearance on the main floor apparently unharmed several heads were thrust in at the front door and a voice called out anxiously:

"What in ——'s the matter down there, Louis?"

"It's that d—d beer of Anson's," he replied with a disgusted look.

CHAPTER XVI.

I Sell the Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty.

I suppose that if I should neglect to say something about the two series of games, one in 1885 and the other in 1886, that we played with the St. Louis Browns some fellow from way back would rise up to remark that I have a mighty poor memory when it comes to disagreeable things. Well, maybe I have, but I'm going to say a little something about those games all the same. To start with, I want to observe that the St. Louis team was a strong organization and could have held its own against any other team in the league. In the first series we broke even, each winning three games, the odd one being a tie. Next year we were beaten, fairly beaten, but I must say that in my opinion there was a very good reason for our defeat. The games were played both seasons after the Chicago players had passed out of my control and the relaxation in the regular discipline made the boys careless. If they had taken as good care of themselves just before playing these games as they were obliged to when the regular season was on there would have been a different story to tell.

The big baseball sensation of 1887 was the sale by the Chicago management of Mike Kelly to the Boston club. The sum of 10,000 noble plunks went into the Chicago club's treasury as the result of this transaction, the largest amount that had ever been paid for a ball player. If you think that Mike didn't have a better opinion of himself when he heard of his market price than he'd ever had before—that's because you didn't know Mike. It didn't take long for the title of "Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty" to attach itself to his rather plain-looking phiz, but it made a great hit with the fans. Besides, the glory it gave him, the sale was of considerable practical benefit to Kelly, who received a salary nearly double that which he got when he wore a Chicago uniform.

The Boston folks were tickled to death to get Mike even at the price. They were so hungry for the championship that they were willing to go down into their pockets to almost any depth, and they thought, now that Mike was their very own, that they had only to reach out their hands and the emblem was theirs. They found out to their cost that it needed more than one "Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty" to do the trick. The very best the beaneaters could do was to finish in fifth place.

The Chicago team for that season of 1887 was made up of Mark Baldwin, Clarkson and Van Haltren, pitchers; Anson, Pfeffer, Burns and Tebeau, basemen; Sullivan, Ryan, Pettit, Van Haltren and Darling, fielders. It was a mighty hefty bunch, even if it was minus Mike Kelly. That season, too, was the most successful in the history of the league up to that time, financially and from the viewpoint of good ball playing. I am compelled to admit that, even if we didn't carry off the pennant.

The campaign opened the last of April and at the end of the first month Detroit was in the lead, with Boston a good second. My team didn't get beyond fifth place until June. At the close of that month we had stepped up one place, Detroit, Boston and New York still in advance. Our boys were playing a mighty good game at that time and our chances for the championship were not so very slim. During all the month of July we climbed steadily up the ladder, and September 1 found us in second place, within striking distance of Detroit. By the last week of August Chicago and Detroit were tied in the matter of games won. At that time it was anybody's race as far as the two leaders were concerned.

The middle of September told a different tale. Detroit secured a winning lead and after that all the interest centered in the scramble for second place, between Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. By the end of that month New York was out of the fight and we were left to wrestle with the Quaker City team. When it came to a fall the latter was on top.

Then the victorious Detroits sailed in and didn what we failed to accomplish the previous season—they beat the St. Louis Browns by one game in the series for the world's championship that was played after the close of the regular league season. Maybe you think that was an easy pill for us to swallow!

The attendance everywhere that season was enormous, the capacity of the biggest grounds all over the country being taxed to the utmost. All the clubs made money, even those that didn't make much of a show. All the clubs woke up to the fact that baseball had become one of the important industries of the country, and from that time to this day the business features of the game have played a major role.

Early in the spring of 1888 the managers of the Chicago club made another big sale and pocketed a check for $10,000 for the release of John Clarkson, a man who had more than once pitched the White Stockings to victory. Personally, it was like pulling teeth to see John go, for we had come to look on him as a necessity almost, and it seemed as if a hole had been made in the organization that would be mighty difficult to fill. But the Boston folks were determined to get that pennant if they had to spend all their earnings in the business. They realized that Mike Kelly alone couldn't do the trick, and they were willing to help him out.

Of course, this sale had the effect of knocking the bottom out of our reputation as topnotchers. Those who had been our antagonists in so many hard fights began the season with the notion that we would be dead easy now that two of our bright and shining lights were no longer with us, and there was more or less rejoicing throughout the league. It didn't take very long for us to demonstrate the fact that the spark of life was still flickering in our midst. We were in it, very much in it, from start to finish, and at the close of the season we had soared to second place, New York being at the top. Again Boston had failed to make good in spite of her big plunge for the championship. The best Mike and John could do for their new bosses was to put the club in fourth place.

For the first time in several years I led the league in the matter of batting averages, with .343 to my credit, a single point more than Beckley of Pittsburg. The preceding season I had stood second on the list with a percentage of .421.

Some time before this season was over I had become interested financially and otherwise in a scheme to take the Chicago team and another picked nine from among the best league players on an exhibition tour to Australia and New Zealand. A. G. Spalding was first to suggest the matter to me, and from the start it appealed strongly to my love of adventure. Mr. Spalding looked into the plan very critically from a business point of view, and the more he studied it the better it seemed to him. Finally we agreed to go into it, and after the matter was decided I could hardly wait for the time to come. The management of the trip and all the details fell to Mr. Spalding and Leigh S. Lynch, who had been in Australia in connection with the theatrical business and had a wide acquaintance in the antipodes. In February Mr. Lynch went to Australia to make the necessary arrangements for our appearance in that country.

CHAPTER XVII.

I Am Introduced to President Cleveland.

Long before the season of 1888 came to a close the fact that we were going abroad became known to every baseball fan in the country and made us the most talked-about team in the business. Posters of the attractive sort were struck off by the wagon load and the newspapers were full of it. Talk about publicity—the public eye certainly was chock full of us that summer.

When the subject was first discussed no one connected with the enterprise ever dreamed that it would expand into a tour around the world, but such it proved to be. We met with so much encouragement on every side, and Mr. Lynch came back from his advance trip to Australia with such glowing accounts of his success in interesting the folks over there in the project that the entire globe was wild to see us, and we made up our minds to give it a chance.

Now wouldn't you have thought that with such an opportunity to see something of the world every ball player in the country would have been mighty keen to get a place on that picked team, which it had been decided to call the All-Americans? Greatly to my astonishment, as well as that of Mr. Spalding and all the others connected with the scheme, there was no special rush to get into the game. Ten players of the Chicago club signed to go with much fuss, but the making up of the All-american team was quite another matter. Some of the players who had seemed eager to go backed out at almost the last moment, among them Mike Kelly of the Bostons and Mike Tiernan of the New Yorks. Some cheerful idiot told the latter that the New Zealand cannibals ate only one kind of meat, and that did the business for Mike.

After a lot of worry and trouble Mr. Spalding finally succeeded in getting together a very good team. John M. Ward, then at his best, was captain and shortstop, and the other men had all made good in the league. All in all, it was a mighty effective selection, as we had occasion to discover more than once during our games on the tour. George Wright was engaged to accompany us as coach in several prospective cricket matches to be played in the countries in which that game is the leading outdoor pastime.

The ten players of the Chicagos who signed to go on the tour were Ned Williamson, Tom Burns, Tom Daly, Mark Baldwin, Jimmy Ryan, Fred Pfeffer, John Tener, Mark Sullivan, Bob Pettit and myself, and I never heard a regret from one of them that he had gone into the venture. Most of them have been mentioned so frequently by me that they are already familiar to you, but of two of the more recent additions to the club I shall say considerable hereafter. These were Mark Baldwin and John Tener, both hailing from Pittsburg, the latter recently elected governor of Pennsylvania.

As a start-off, a good friend of mine and of the game, genial Congressman Frank Lawler of Chicago, provided a very enjoyable treat. This was no less than an audience with President Grover Cleveland, who sent us word that he hoped we would visit him at the White House before setting off on our long tour. Some way or other, I don't exactly know how, I had got it into my head that the president was a tough proposition to get enthusiastic over, but I never was more mistaken in my life. In all my career as a ball player, I have never met any one easier to talk to or more agreeable in his manner. When I was introduced to him as the captain and manager of the Chicago club he shook hands with me in the most cordial way.

BENJAMIN WAS CIVIL.

"I've been hearing so much of you for the past few years," he said, "that I've had a great curiosity to meet the man who has done such great work in the athletic field."

"But you mustn't forget, Mr. President," I said as modestly as I knew how, "that I couldn't do much without the support of the other boys. Besides, the press has been pretty good to me. Sometimes when I read the papers I am astonished to find out what a big fellow I am."

"Well," he laughed, "so long as the balance is in your favor you can't find any fault with the newspapers. I'm sure I never do."

Then I introduced the other boys, and for each of them the president had a hearty handshake and a pleasant word. I never saw anybody better equipped with the exact thing to say and such a telling way of saying it. He certainly made a big hit with the Chicago club, and when we left the White House he wished us a jolly trip and a successful one, and there wasn't a man of us that didn't take away with him the most agreeable impression of Grover Cleveland.

When we returned to America after our world-girdling tour, Benjamin Harrison had moved into the White House. Some one suggested that it would be the proper caper to pay him a visit, and after a good many hums and haws it was arranged that we should give the president a call. If we had expected a repetition of the hospitality that President Cleveland had shown us—we didn't get it. Benjamin was civil—barely so—but you have it straight from me that the atmosphere at that reception would have made an icicle long for an overcoat. We were all mighty uncomfortable over the president's failure to appreciate the honor we were doing him, and the All-Americans were so upset over it that we wiped the ground with them that afternoon, the score standing 13 to 6.

Mrs. J. F. Grandin and daughter, Miss Sarah Todd, of Handen, Hunterdon county, returned home today after visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue. The trip home will be made by automobile, the party stopping at Princeton to take dinner with Miss Jean Vankirk. Mr. and Mrs. Cutter will return to this city on Monday.

ELECTRIC DRIVE SAVES THIS FIRM THIRTY PER CENT. IN POWER COSTS

This is a story of what Central Station Power actually does, as told by the user.

Jacob Ringger & Co. is a well known firm engaged in the manufacture of Doors, Sash, Blinds and Mouldings, in West Hoboken.

The firm formerly used steam to operate its plant.

Three years ago Central Station Electric Power was substituted for the steam. The installation consisted of 28 motors, ranging from one to fifteen horse power each, and Public Service supplied the current.

Recently Public Service asked the firm for a candid opinion of Electric Power as compared with steam drive, based on the firm's own experience. Here is the firm's answer. We give it in full:

"Gentlemen:—We wish to state that since changing from our own steam plant to electricity, we have been pleased with the result; we are satisfied with our charges and the service; we have not lost a half-day in three years through lack of power. From our records we are convinced that we are saving at least 30 per cent. over the cost in our old system, and have a more flexible plant, due to the absence of shafting, belts, etc. Over time work does not annoy us, for we have the power constantly on hand and ready at a moment's notice. We find that it pays us better to sell the shavings than to burn them.

"To sum up would state that under our conditions we believe electricity to be the ideal power.

"Yours very truly,
"Jacob Ringger & Co.,
"By Jacob Ringger."

Jacob Ringger & Co.'s is not an exceptional case. We have numerous other patrons who have found Central Station Electric Power equally economical and equally satisfactory.

Does a saving of 30 per cent. in power appeal to you? We believe we can effect a saving for you, if not 30 per cent., then some other substantial sum.

Let our power engineers show you what can be done in your case. A card or 'phone message will bring them.

"Then you are not here for any purpose? to meet with any one?"

"No; we were lost, and had gone into camp up above, when we discovered your light."

"Where do you come from?"

Keith hesitated just an instant, yet falsehood was never easy for him, and he saw no occasion for any deceit now.

"Carson City."

"What brought you here?"

"We started for the 'Bar X' ranch down below, on the Canadian; got caught in a sand-storm, and then just drifted. I do not know within twenty miles of where we are."

She drew a deep breath of unconcealed relief.

"Are you alone?"

"The negro and I—yes; and you haven't the slightest reason to be afraid of us—we're square."

She looked at him searchingly, and something in Keith's clean-cut face seemed to bring reassurance, confidence in the man.

"I am not afraid," she answered, coming toward him around the short table. "Only it is so lonely here, and you startled me, bursting in without warning. But you look all right, and I am going to believe your story. What is your name?"

"Keith—Jack Keith."

"A cowman?"

"A little of everything, I reckon," a touch of returning bitterness in the tone. "A plainsman, who has punched cattle, but my last job was government scout."

"You look as though you might be more than that," she said slowly.

The man flushed, his lips pressing tightly together.

"Well, I—I may have been," he confessed unwillingly. "I started out all right, but somehow I reckon I just went adrift. It's a habit in this country."

Apparently those first words of comment had left her lips unthinkingly, for she made no attempt to reply; merely stood there directly facing him, her clear eyes gazing frankly into his own. He seemed to actually see her now for the first time, fairly—a supple, slender figure, simply dressed, with wonderfully expressive brown eyes, a perfect wealth of dark hair, a clear complexion with slight olive tinge to it, a strong, intelligent face, not strictly beautiful, yet strangely attractive, the forehead low and broad, the nose straight, the lips full and inclined to smile. Suddenly a vague remembrance brought recognition.

"Why, I know you now."

"Indeed!" the single word a note of undisguised surprise.

"Yes; I thought you looked oddly familiar all the time, but couldn't for the life of me connect up. You're Christie Maclaire."

"Am I?" her eyes filled with curiosity.

"Of course you are. You needn't be afraid of me if you want it kept secret, but I know you just the same. Saw you at the 'Gaiety' in Independence, maybe two months ago. I went three times, mostly on your account. You've got a great act, and you can sing too."

She stood in silence, still looking steadily at him, her bosom rising and falling, her lips parted as if to speak. Apparently she did not know what to do, how to act, and was thinking swiftly.

"Mr. Keith," she said, at last in decision, "I am going to ask you to blot that all out—to forget that you even suspect me of being Christie Maclaire, of the Gaiety."

"Why, certainly; but would you explain?"

"There is little enough to explain. It is sufficient that I am here alone with you. Whether I wish to or not, I am compelled to trust myself to your protection. You may call me Christie Maclaire, or anything else you please; you may even think me unworthy respect, but you possess the face of a gentleman, and as such I am going to trust you—I must trust you. Will you accept my confidence on these terms?"

Keith did not smile, nor move. Weak from hunger and fatigue, he leaned wearily against the wall. Nevertheless that simple, womanly appeal awoke all that was strong and sacrificing within him, although her words were so unexpected that, for the moment he failed to realize their full purport. Finally he straightened up.

"I—I accept any terms you desire," he gasped weakly, "if—if you will only give me a return."

"One return?—what?"

"Food; we have eaten nothing for thirty hours."

Her face, which had been so white, flushed to the hair, her dark eyes softening.

"Why, of course; sit down. I ought to have known from your face. There is plenty here—such as it is—only you must wait a moment."

The Girl of the Cabin.

room a trifle, and slip silently out of sight. He remembered staring vaguely about the little room, still illumined by the flames, only half comprehending, and then the reaction from his desperate struggle with the elements overcame all resolution, and he dropped his head forward on the table, and lost consciousness. Her hand upon his shoulder aroused him, startled into wakefulness, yet he scarcely realized the situation.

"I have placed food for the negro beside him," she said quietly, and for the first time Keith detected the soft blur in her speech.

"You are from the South!" he exclaimed, as though it was a discovery.

"Yes—and you?"

"My boyhood began in Virginia—the negro was an old-time slave in our family."

She glanced across at the black, now sitting up and eating voraciously.

"I thought he had once been a slave; one can easily tell that. I did not ask him to sit here because, if you do not object, we will eat here together. I have also been almost as long without food. It was so lonely here, and—and I hardly understood my situation—and I simply could not force myself to eat."

He distinguished her words clearly enough, although she spoke low, as if she preferred what was said between them should not reach the ears of the negro, yet somehow, for the moment, they made no adequate impression on him. Like a famished wolf he began on the coarse fare, and for ten minutes hardly lifted his head. Then his eyes chanced to meet hers across the narrow table, and instantly the gentleman reawoke to life.

"I have been a perfect brute," he acknowledge frankly, "with no thought except for myself. Hunger was my master, and I ask your forgiveness, Miss Maclaire."

Her eyes smiled.

"I am so very glad to have any one here—any one—in whom I feel even a little confidence—that nothing else greatly matters. Can you both eat, and listen?"

Keith nodded, his eyes full of interest, searching her face.

"Whoever I may be, Mr. Keith, and really that seems only of small importance, I came to Fort Larned seeking some trace of my only brother, whom we last heard from there, where he had fallen into evil companionship. On the stage trip I was fortunate enough to form an acquaintance with a man who told me he knew where I could meet Fred, but that the boy was hiding because of some trouble he had lately gotten into, and that I should have to proceed very carefully so as not to lead the officers to discover his whereabouts. This gentleman was engaged in some business at Carson City, but he employed a man to bring me to this place, and promised to get Fred, and meet me here the following day. There must have been some failure in the plans, for I have been here entirely alone now for three days. It has been very lonesome, and—and I've been a little frightened. Perhaps I ought not to have come, and I am not certain what kind of a place this is. I was so afraid when you came, but I am not afraid now."

"You have no need to be," he said soberly, impressed by the innocent candor of the girl, and feeling thankful that he was present to aid her. "I could not wrong one of the South."

"My father always told me I could trust a Southern gentleman under any circumstances. Mr. Hawley was from my own State, and knew many of our old friends. That was why I felt such unusual confidence in him, although he was but a traveling acquaintance."

"Mr. Hawley?"

"The gentleman whom I met on the stage."

"Oh, yes; you said he was in business in Carson City, but I don't seem to remember any one of that name."

"He was not there permanently; only to complete some business deal."

"And your brother? I may possibly have known him."

She hesitated an instant, her eyes dropping, until completely shaded by the long lashes.

"He—he was rather a wild boy, and ran away from home to enlist in the army. But he got into a bad set, and—and deserted. That was part of the trouble which caused him to hide. He enlisted under the name of Fred Willoughby. Mr. Hawley told me this much, but I am afraid he did not tell me all."

"And he said you would meet him here?"

Keith gazed about the bare surroundings wonderingly. What was this place, hidden away in the midst of the desert, isolated in a spot where not even Indians roamed. Could it be a secret rendezvous of crime, the headquarters of desperadoes, of cattle rustlers, of the highwaymen of the Sante Fe Trail—a point to which they could ride when hard pressed, certain of hiding here in safety? He began to suspect this, but, if so, who then was this Hawley, and with what object had he sent this girl here? Every way he turned was to confront mystery, to face a new puzzle. Whatever she might be—even the music hall singer he believed—she had been inveigled here innocently enough. Even now she possessed only the most vague suspicion that she had been deceived. The center of the whole plot, if there was a plot, must be Hawley.

"Yes," she replied, "he said that this was one of the stations of a big ranch on which Fred was employed, and that he would certainly be here within a day or two."

"You met Hawley on the stage coach? How did you become acquainted?"

"We were alone for nearly fifty miles," her voice faltering slightly, "and—and he called me what you did."

"Christie Maclaire?"

"Yes; he—he seemed to think he knew me, and I needed help so much that I let him believe so. I thought it could do no harm, and then, when I found he actually knew Fred, I didn't think of anything else, only how fortunate I was to thus meet him. Surely something serious must have happened, or he would have been here before this. Do you—do you suppose there is anything wrong?"

Keith did not smile nor change posture. The more he delved into the matter, the more serious he felt the situation to be. He knew all those ranches lying south on the Canadian, and was aware that this was no outstation. No cattle ever came across that sandy desert unless driven by rustlers, and no honest purpose could account for this isolated hut. There had been frequent robberies along the trail, and he had overheard tales of mysterious disappearances in both Larned and Carson City. Could it be that he had now, accidentally, stumbled upon the rendezvous of the gang? He was not a man easily startled, but this thought sent his heart beating. He knew enough to realize what such a gang would naturally consist of—deserters, outlaws, rustlers; both Indians and whites, no doubt, combined under some desperate leadership. Gazing into the girl's questioning eyes he could scarcely refrain from blurting out all he suspected. Yet why should he? What good could it do? He could not hope to bear her south to the "Bar X" Ranch, for the ponies were already too thoroughly exhausted for such a journey; he dared not turn north with her, for that would mean his own arrest, leaving her in worse condition than ever. If he only knew who this man Hawley was, his purpose, and plans! Yet what protection could he and Neb prove, alone here, and without arms? All this flashed through his mind in an instant, leaving him confused and uncertain.

"I hope not," he managed to say in answer to her query. "But it is rather a strange mix-up all around, and I confess I fail to comprehend its full meaning. It is hardly likely your friends will show up to-night, and by morning perhaps we can decide what is best to do. Let me look around outside a moment."

Her eyes followed him as he stepped through the door into the darkness; then her head dropped into the support of her hands. There was silence except for the crackling of the fire, until Neb moved uneasily. At the sound the girl looked up, seeing clearly the good-natured face of the negro.

"Yo' don't nebber need cry, Missus," he said soberly, "so long as Massa Jack done 'greed to look after yo'."

"Have—have you known him long?"

"Has I knowed him long, honey? Ebber sence befo' de war. Why I done knowed Massa Jack when he wan't more'n dat high. Lawd, he sho' was a lively youngster, but mighty good hearted to us niggers."

She hesitated to question a servant, and yet felt she must uncover the truth.

"Who is he? Is he all he claims to be—a Virginia gentleman?"

All the loyalty and pride of slavery days was in Neb.

"He sho' am, Missus; dar ain't nuthin' higher in ol' Virginia dan de Keiths. Dey ain't got much money sence the Yankees come down dar, but dey's quality folks jest de same. I was done born on de ol' Co'nel's plantation, and I reck'n dar wan't no finer man ebber libed. He was done killed in de wah. An' Massa Jack he was a captain; he rode on hossback, an' Lawdy, but he did look scrumptuous when he first got his uniform. He done fought all through de wah, an' dey say Ginral Lee done shook hands wid him, an' said how proud he was ter know him. You kin sutt'nly tie to Massa Jack, Missus."

The negro's voice had scarcely ceased when Keith came in again, closing the door securely behind him.

"All quiet outside," he announced, speaking with new confidence. "I wanted to get an understanding of the surroundings in case of emergency," he explained, as if in answer to the questioning of the brown eyes gravely uplifted to his face. "I see there is quite a corral at the lower end of this island, safely hidden behind the fringe of cottonwoods. And a log stable back of the house. Is the creek fordable both ways?"

"I think so; the man who brought me here rode away south."

"And are you going to trust yourself to my care?"

She came around the table with hands extended. He took them into his grasp, looking down into her eyes.

"Yes," she said softly, "I am going to trust you, Captain Keith."

He laughed.

"Captain, hey? You must have been talking with that black rascal there."

The swift color flooded her face, but her hands remained imprisoned.

"I just done tol' her who de Keiths was down in ol' Virginia, sah," burst in Neb indignantly. "I sho' don't want nobody to think I go trapsin' 'round wid any low white trash."

The gray eyes and the brown, gazing into one another, smiled with understanding.

"Oh, well," Keith acknowledged, genially, "I cannot say I am sorry you know something of my past glories; if one can't have a future, it is some source of pride to have a past to remember. But now about the present. We're not much protection to any one, the way we're fixed, as we are unarmed."

"There is a big revolver hanging in a holster in the other room," she answered, "and a short, sawed-off gun of some kind, but I don't know about ammunition."

"May we investigate?"

"Most certainly," and she threw open the intervening door. As the two stepped into the other apartment she held the lamp in aid of their search. "There is the revolver on the wall, and the gun is in the opposite corner. Isn't it strange you should be out in this country without arms?"

Keith glanced up, the revolver in his hands. The radiance of the light was full upon her face, revealing the clearness of her skin, the dark shadows of her lashes. There was the faintest tinge of suspicion to the question, but he answered easily.

"We left Carson in something of a hurry. I'll tell you the story to-morrow."

CHAPTER X.

Mr. Hawley Reveals Himself.

A fragment of candle, stuck tightly into the neck of an empty bottle, appeared on a low shelf, and Keith lighted it, the girl returning the lamp to its former position on the front room table. Investigation revealed a dozen cartridges fitting the revolver, but no ammunition was discovered adapted to the sawed-off gun, which Neb had already appropriated, and was dragging about with him, peering into each black corner in anxious search. The two were still busily employed at this, when to their ears, through the stillness of the night, there came the unexpected noise of splashing in the water without, and then the sound of a horse stumbling as he struck the bank. Quick as a flash Keith closed the intervening door, extinguished the dim flame of the candle, and grasping the startled negro's arm, hushed him into silence.

Crouching close behind the door, through a crack of which the light streamed, yielding slight view of the interior, the plainsman anxiously awaited developments. These arrivals must certainly be some of those connected with the house; there could be little doubt as to that. Nevertheless, they might prove the posse following them, who had chanced to stumble accidentally on their retreat. In either case they could merely wait, and learn. Some one swore without, and was sharply rebuked by another voice, which added an order gruffly. Then the outer latch clicked, and a single man stepped within, immediately closing the door. Keith could not see the girl through the small aperture, but he heard her quick exclamation, startled, yet full of relief.

"Oh, is it you? I am so glad!"

The man laughed lightly.

"It is nice to be welcomed, although, perhaps, after your time of loneliness any arrival would prove a relief. Did you think I was never coming, Christie?"

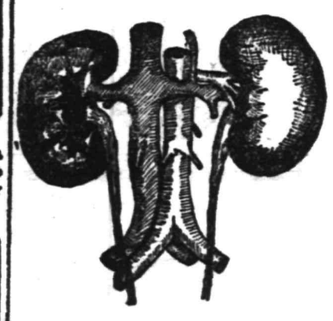
$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Kidneys.

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.



Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of the urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

COMPETING FOR GULF TRAFFIC

Chicago, June 17.—The New York Central lines have entered into a traffic agreement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad which practically gives the former a lake-to-the-gulf line, according to announcement here.

The story goes that with the announcement Thursday night by officials of the Chicago, Indiana and Southern Railroad that on July 1 that road would run its first train from Chicago into Evansville, Ind., the first step of what may prove to be a great railroad was taken. With the bringing to a sucessful consummation the plans of the former owner and builder of the road, John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker, now in the Federal Prison at Leavenworth, Kan., the hands of two of the great railroad powers, the Vanderbilts and the Harriman interests, were shown already engaged in a struggle to get control of the gulf traffic which will result from the opening of the Panama Canal. For with the opening of the old Walsh railroad to the Ohio River by the Vanderbilt interests, which control it through their New York Central lines, a traffic agreement has been entered into with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad which practically gives the New York Central lines a Chicago-to-the- gulf line and which brings the first actual competition the Harriman great lakes-to-the-gulf lines, the Illinois Central, has ever experienced.

JULY FOURTH IN PERTH AMBOY.

Perth Amboy, June 17.—Perth Amboy's "safe and sane" Fourth of July committee Thursday night approved expenditures amounting to more than $2,000. There will be a parade, with the Drumgoole mission band of 100 boys leading the musicians, and there will be speechmaking and, at night, fireworks. The entire fire department will be in the parade and it is expected that not less than 3,000 school children will take part. The children will be fed by the committee. There will be a special parade for automobiles, with prizes for the most attractively decorated cars.

Mayor Albert Ballschweiler has the assistance of 300 citizens on the committee of which he is chairman. The fireworks will be in charge of Charles Crowell, of Asbury Park, whose father, Joseph L. Crowell, was the Civil War Mayor of Perth Amboy.

TWENTY-EIGHT BOYS TO ENJOY CAMP LIFE

Eighteen different colleges will be represented among the leaders of the Jersey boys' camp was the statement made at the anual dinner tendered to Charles T. Kilborne, the chairman of the State Executive Committee of the Yonug Men's Christian Association to the men who will be the leaders this summer. Emphasis has always been placed upon strong leadership and this year nearly fifty men will assist Charles R. Scott, the camp director. Among this number will be four school principles, five teachers, four ministers, three lawyers, ten business men, eleven secretaries and physical directors and the balance, students in colleges.

The dinner was presided over by Mr. Kilborne and after a bountiful repast a conference was held for the consideration of the plans for the summer.

Charles A. Coburn, the State secretary, opened the meeting with prayer, after which Raymond P. White, of Ridgewood, spoke of the years he has attended the camp and of the influence it has had upon his life. William B. Feakins, of the Civic Forum Lecture Bureau, followed by relating his impression as a visitor last summer when he visited his two boys. He was so well pleased that this year he will spend two weeks with his boys and serve as leader.

Joseph N. Brown, of Paterson, and C. William Bingaman, of Plainfield, then told of the helpfulness to the Young Men's Christian Association in their respective cities. How through the conferences with their local delegations the work of the following fall and winter is outlined and the committeemen instructed in their work.

Frank O. Van Ness, of Poughkeepsie, sent a letter telling how the camp helped him as a secretary when he was located in New Jersey. F. W. Lanstroth, of Rahway, spoke as a member of the State committee and referred to the great responsibility of leadership.

Frank F. Gray, of Montclair, followed with the educational program for the season, telling of the nature study talks, instruction in rustic manual training, cooking, knot tying, first aid, lifesaving and photography.

The next speaker was Rev. Chas. O. Wright, of Ridgewood, who outlined the course in Bible study on "With the Great Guide on the Long Trail," and encouraged the spirit of co-operation.

Mr. Scott, the camp director, was the last speaker and referred to the increasing interest in the camp on the part of the boys and the large enrollment. There are 125 booked for each of the first three sections and there are only a few vacancies in the fourth section. The camp management are grateful for the fine type of men who have accepted the responsibility of leadership and the prospects for a profitable season are bright.

Those present from Plainfield were C. W. Bingaman, Alvah Conant, Arthur Ferris and Erwin Leland. Twenty-eight boys will go from Plainfield. About half will be there for two weeks and the other half for four weeks.

SCOTCH PLAINS' NINE OBTAINS ITS LICENSE

The Scotch Plains Baseball Club was granted a license by the Fanwood Township Committee, at its meeting, last night, to play baseball in the township for the balance of the season. The club paid $5.50 for the license and the question was settled without any argument either for or against the game. The committee in granting the license, was advised by counsel that it was within its rights in allowing Sunday baseball, unless the neighbors protest. In that case it would be up to the committee to stop such nuisance.

After the license was granted, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, who had complained about Sunday baseball, stated that he wanted to be clearly understood. He said that when he learned of the ordinance in question he called the attention of the committee to it and the infraction of the law. He and several others had requested that a special meeting of the committee be called to decide the question. The meeting was held, he had made his objections and had nothing more to say, however, he had been informed that the license would not be granted allowing Sunday baseball.

Mr. Meyer in answer said that while he did not favor Sunday baseball, he did not propose to stand on the question of holding up a request to play a game which was being played in every hamlet and city in the country on Sunday. For this reason he favored granting the license, but if the Sunday ball became objectionable he would vote to deny the privilege.

The Sunday-school will meet at Groce M. E. church tomorrow morning at 9:45, and the preaching service will be held at 10:30, Epworth League at 7 o'clock and preaching at 7:45 by Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent. Herbert Steiner will render a bass solo.

BANKING CONVENIENCE 4% PROFIT

One of the strongest arguments in favor of keeping one's bank account in Plainfield, whether it be a checking account or a savings account, is convenience. Especially is this true of the savings account; for who has not wearily waited his turn on a New York Savings Bank line in July or January, when he wished to deposit or withdraw money? Better bring in your passbook to us and allow us to attend to the transfer of your account without expense and without the loss of interest and at the same time relieve your est of a possible inheritance tax.

OFF TO CONVENTION, CHIEF IN CONTEMPT

Justice Robert Carey at the Courthouse, at Jersey City, yesterday adjudged Chief of Police John Yore, of Bayonne, in contempt of court for attending the police chiefs' convention in Rochester, N. Y. yesterday, instead ow obeying a summons to appear as the chief witness in the trial of George Van Winkle, charged with the murder of James Freer, in Bayonne, on March 12, 1910.

Chief Yore had taken the dying statement of Freer, who, it is alleged, was blackjacked by Van Winkle, a detective in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Bernard Smith,another Central Railroad detective, confessed to having caused the death of Freer by shooting him, but he was tried and acquitted.

Justice Carey scored Chief Yore for absenting himself from the Van Winkle trial and put the case over until next Wednesday. He then ordered Assistant Prosecutor McCarthy to institute contempt proceedings against the Bayonne chief of police. Van Winkle is out in $10,000 bail.

Saturday's Results.

Plainfield had things all their own way at Bound Brook Saturday afternoon and as a result Doerflinger's aggregation of ball tossers won two straight victories and took the lead in the Central League. After the Plainfield boys had finished pounding Ortlieb's curves all over the lot and the last Bound Brook batter had vainly bit the dust before the prowess of the famous "Red" Waller, the scoreboard indicated an 8-2 victory.

The local boys played with a snap, which would have well characterized a league team in mid-season trim. They did not have to do much fly chasing for the sandy haired twirler had the Bound Brookers at his mercy and except for a little balloon work in the first inning, he never gave them so much as a "look-in." "Red" was quite the whole show for besides his speedy work on the slab, he brought the crowd to its feet by slamming out a three bagger in the fourth with two men on the sacks.

Bound Brook scored the first in the opening round and everything looked nice and easy for Bound Brook money. With one down, Flynn fumbled Bollinger's easy grounder and the latter went to third on Roberson's single to right. Then Nolan came up and sent the leathered sphere into the same place for a clean drive, thus bringing Bollinger across the pan. After this Waller settled down and the best that Bound Brook could get until the sixth was a long list of strike-outs. In the sixth, Roberson doubled to left and once again Nolan stepped to the plate. This time he followed suit with a clean two bagger which gave Bound Brook another tally.

Plainfield started things moving in the third inning, which Nelson opened with a safe swat. "Red" Waller drew a pass but was put out on second when Cosgrove hit to short. Flynn walked and Driscoll came across with the necessary wallop in the shape of a single to left field, scoring Nelson and Cosgrove. Flynn was caught at the plate.

In the next round Mallon and Nelson got on the bags on fielder's choices and came rollicking home when Waller drove out his three sacker toward the Raritan river. Four more runs were added in the fifth by some hard batting. Driscoll went to first by "the easiest way." Harter, the next man up, picked out one of Ortlieb's best and sent it into the left field hennery for a trip around the circuit. Martin singled and Mallon singled but the best that Bertwhistle could do was to send a screamer into the hands of the ever ready Roberson. Nelson contributed a hit, however, and thus prevented Martin and Mallon from being left on base.

Perhaps the feature of the game was the umpire's eye-sight. During the first four innings he had poor control for Ortlieb and after a severe lecture from the "Four hundred pound blow" Bruggy, he became near sighted when Plainfield men stole bases.

Driscoll made the noisy rooters burst their throats in the first inning when he robbed Wiltse of a clean single by executing a running long dive and nabbing the hot liner, which was on its way past first. In the seventh Cosgrove came in for his share of the shouting when he mitted Powers hard drive just when it was within a foot of the ground.

The way it happened.

OLD EMPLOYE DIES

Jeremiah F. Garretson Veteran Baggagemaster Has Passed Away.

Jeremiah F. Garretson, for over forty years an employe of the Jersey Centy years an employe of the Jersey Central at the North Avenue Station, died Saturday afternoon at his home on West Fourth street. The end was somewhat unexpected. He had been ailing more or less for the past six months and while he had several severe spells he quickly rallied. He was compelled to take to his bed last Thursday and sank rapidly. It was realized Saturday that the attack was fatal and the end came at 4:30. Acute kidney trouble is ascribed as the cause of death.

Mr. Garretson was born near Finderne in 1846, only recently passing his sixty-fifth birthday. When only a young man he entered the service of the Jersey Central, then in its infancy, and held several different positions. In 1871 he was assigned to the Plainfield station as baggagemaster and remained in this capacity until May 1 of the present year, when the company recognized his long and faithful service by retiring him on a pension. The action was prompted by the condition of his health.

Through his long stay at the North avenue station and more later on the eastbound side, Mr. Garretson became known to almost every resident of the city and borough. His courteous and obliging manner endeared him to the commuters and made friends with all the patrons of the road. His retirement was keenly regretted and at the same time a matter of congratulation from those who had seen "Jerry" grow old in the service.

Mr. Garretson never took any part in civic affairs or affiliated with any organizations beyond the Veteran Employes' Association of the Jersey Central. He was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church. Surviving him beside his wife, are three daughters and one son. They are Mrs. H. E. Gayle, of the borough; Mrs. George Macintyre, of West Front street; Mrs. A. C. Giddes, of Dunellen, and Elmer Garretson, of Allentown, Pa. There are also five grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at his late residence in the Lincoln apartments on West Fourth street, tomorrow afternoon and will be private. Burial will be at Somerville.

Robert Scott and family, of West Fourth street, spent the week end at Bound Brook.

AID A MISSIONARY

Trinity Quickly Responds to Dr. Bennett's Appeal For Dr. Harrison.

Dr. Arthur K. Bennett, a medical missionary stationed at Busrah, Arabia, at the morning service in Trinity Reformed church yesterday, told of the work which is being carreid on among the natives by Dr. Paul Wilberforce Harrison, who was sent out into that land of Mohamedism by Trinity church. He also spoke of the religious and social conditions as they exist in that "secret" country.

After Dr. Bennett had finished his interesting discourse, Rev. Mr. Broek made a statement regarding Dr. Harrison's financial needs, particularly to obtain a medical certificate to practice in the Turkish empire, and an offering was taken, one hundred and fifty-five dollars being raised. This money will be used to defray the expenses of Dr. Harrison's trip to Constantinople, where he is obliged to go in order to obtain a license to practice medicine among the Turks. The journey from Busrah, Arabia to Constantinople, will take a month's hard travelling to cover 4,000 miles, many miles being on water, the journey costing $300. One hundred dollars of this amount was subscribed by the nurses ot the Massachusetts General Hospital, where the doctor took a special course in medicine and where he was greatly admired and loved by all who knew him. Dr. Bennett expects to raise the remaining $50 from friends of Dr. Harrison, in Baltimore.

In the course of his remarks, Dr. Bennett said in part:

"Arabia has always been a land of mystery, secluded from the world and even at the present time 700,000 square miles of the interior of this country remain undiscovered, the sacred cities, of course, being closed to all Christians. But few countries have played such an important part in history as has this land of the Arabs and her merchants are perhaps among the most industrious in the world for they were the first ones to ever push their way into Africa and the far east. A great future lies before these quaint people.

"For six years I worked in Arabia and experienced two difficulties; learning the Arabic language and passing an examination in French at Constantinople. After this the work was comparatively easy for by healing the body, one finds the way to the soul. In Busrah, where I have been stationed the sick Arabs come in from all over the surrounding coun-

K. OF P. MEMORIAL

Local Knights Hold Annual Service in Trinity Reformed Church.

Delegations from Perseverance lodge, No. 74, and Unity lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, attended divine service in Trinity Reformed church last night, in accordance with their annual custom of honoring the memory of departed brothers. Seats in the forward part of the auditorium for the Knights, who marched in sixty strong, headed by a detail from Crescent company No. 13, Uniformed Rank. The congregation and friends made up the remainder of a large gathering. American flags and the Pythian colors were draped about the pulpit and the forward part of the church.

The opening exercises were in charge of Rev. John Y. Broek and comprised Scripture readings and the singing of hymns, among them the K. of P. ode. Mr. Broek also led in prayer and delivered an address of welcome to the lodgemen. In the course of his remarks he placed emphasis on the fact that the nineteenth century idea of individuality or "every man for himelf," had faded away in the years that have gone, and fraternity is the keynote of the day. Men have come to the realization that the injunction "do unto others as you would be done by" applies to all and organizations such as the Knights of Pythias seek to instil th Knights of Pythias seek to instill hearts of those who swear allegiance to its mandates.

The memorial address, the principal one of the evening, was delivered by Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich. It was a scholarly oration, appreciated as fully by those not connected with the order as well as the men who acquired its secrets. It was prefaced by a history of Pythianism from the time of its inception in 1864 up to the present day. Relative to this, Mr. Ulrich said there are over 8,000 subordinate lodges with a membership of over half a million, 15,000 being in this State alone. He outlined the cardinal principles of the order, friendship, charity and benevolence, every knight seeking to uphold them. The world is made better and brighter for such affiliations, the speaker continued, and associations are formed that are not parted in death. As a thought to be left with his hearers, Mr. Ulrich said in conclusion:

"Brethren and Christian friends, our meeting here tonight shall have been in vain unless we profit by the thoughts of those who have gone. Death is not fatalistic, the grave is not the goal. A few feet of soil does not prescribe the souls' limitations. It means simply this: 'I know that my redeemer liveth.'"

The regular church choir assisted in the congregation singing and as an offertory Miss S. Etta Raybert gave a soprano solo, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep." Former City Judge William N. Runyon sang bass in the choir in place of F. S. Cutter. The former is a past chancellor of Perseverance lodge.

Perseverance lodge lost three members by death during the past year, Charles M. Ulrich, Charles Westphal and Frank Shattle.

MR. HOOLEY BUYS GREATEST MALLWYD SETTER

After a trip of 3,500 miles, there arrived at A. G. Hooley's Meadowview Kennel yesterday a dog considered the best specimen of Mallwyd setter that ever lived. This canine is no less a celebrity than Mallwyd Invader, whose name in England was Champion Mallwyd Diamond. According to that great breeder of English setterdom, Tom Stedman of Wales, he is the best setter of either sex he has ever bred in his world renown kennels, which for years past have sent America her best show setters.

Champion Mallwyd Diamond came to America with the formidable list of triumphs at England's biggest shows. A strapping big setter without a bit of lumber or the slightest suggestion of coarseness about him. He possesses wonderful sound bone of a very superior quality, and there is no heaviness in his magnificient head. His muzzle of beautiful proportions will illustrate new possibilities to many of our eastern breeders.

Mallwyd Invader is by Champion Mallwyd Sailor, his dam being the great producing bitch Einion Lucy. His greatest conquest in the British Isles were: Winner, first prize, at Manchester; Special, first prize, at Llanidlees; Three first prizes at Birmingham; Two special prizes championship at Birmingham; Two first prizes at Crystal Palace; Championship, five Guinea cup at Crystal Palace; First prize at Birmingham; special prize at Birmingham; Two first prizes at Darlington; Special prize at Darlington; Championship at Darlington; Three first prizes at Agricultural Hall, London; Two special prizes at Agricultural Hal,, London; Championship at Agricultural Hall, London; Championship at Crufts, 1909.

Mallwyd Invader was a member of both winning brace and the winning team at the Crystal Palace show and also at Manchester. His American debut was made shortly after his trip of nearly 8,000 miles to San Francisco, in 1909, and he easily won his championship on the Pacific Coast. He is a brother to Mallwyd Ned, the English setter imported by Andrew Albright that received so much newspaper noteriety previous to the New York show, where he was defeated by Mr. Hooley's home bred dogs. Mallwyd Invader travelled from California in charge of the Wells, Fargo messengers and was received here in perfect condition and could have appeared in any show the next day. He is a thoroughly broken field dog and is active and quick in his movements as any fieldman could desire in a dog of his size.

FITZSIMMONS FIGURES IN AUTO SMASH-UP

Robert Fitzsimmons, of Dunellen, the former champion pugilist, was injured in an automobile accident near Batavia, N. Y., yesterday afternoon. He was severely bruised and cut, and will be unable to leave Batavia for a day or two.

Fitzsimmons and his wife and William Lafontaine, a chauffeur, were en route from Cleveland to New York. His automobile is a 90 horse power machine, rebuilt from one formerly used by Barney Oldfield as a racing car.

Four miles west of Batavia while running at high speed Fitzsimmon's chauffeur tried to pass an automobile going in the opposite direction. The machine swung too far to the side of the road, the wheels on the right hand side going into the ditch, causing the big machine to overturn.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons and the chauffeur were thrown clear of the machine, but Fitzsimmons was pinned under the rear seat. He was released by the chauffeur and Edward Englehart, whose car he had tried to pass. Fitzsimmons was placed in Mr. Englehart's car and brought to Batavia, where he was attended by Dr. A. F. Miller.

PERRITTI WANTED TO BE SURE ABOUT PAY

An Italian assault case occupied the greater part of this morning's city court session and because of the poor English of most of the participants, Dominick Perretti, the official interpreter, was kept busy. He was called to swear Tony Perritti, a witness, and repeated the oath after Judge DeMeza. When the interpreter had concluded, Tony Perretti poured out a flood of Italian that sounded like his life's history.

"Hold on," called out the court, 'it doesn't take all that to say, 'I do,' or 'yes,' does it?"

"No," answered the interpreter, "he wants to know who's going to pay for his half day's work he lost at Rushmore's to come down here."

It took the court offices ten seconds to hustle Perretti into the witness chair and give him instructions to figure it out himself on a Sunday or holiday.

The case concerned a charge made by Lingi Piccielli that Pasquall Ungara had attempted to strike him with a hatchet. It developed that the trouble began with the wives of the two parties and the whole thing was "a tempest in a teapot." The complaint against Ungara was dismissed and Piccielli was advised to move to another neighborhood. Francis J. Blatz represented Piccielli and former City Judge William N. Runyon defended Ungara.

FOUND STEALING WOOD ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

Four Italians were arraigned before Justice Snape, in the borough court yesterday morning on the charge of stealing wood at Mt. St. Mary College, and were held in $200 bail each to await the action of the Somerset county grand jury. They were Tony Izzo, Mike Vandulo, Dominic Vandulo and Mike Ganut, all of whom live on East Fourth street, this city. Izzo was able to furnish bail last night and the Vandulo brothers were released on bail this morning.

Ganut, who is still in durance vile, is employed in Ernest Hand's brick yard. He went to his employer's stable yesterday morning at 2 o'clock and hitched a team of horses to a large brick wagon. Driving up to the college compus, he was met by his three countrymen. They loaded the wagon with wood and were about to drive away when discovered by the night watchman. The borough police were notified by telephone and Marshal Keller and Herrmann were sent to the scene of trouble. When the policemen arrived, the Italians were unloading the wood.

Capt. Jack Lyon to Speak.

Captain Jack Lyon, one of the first commissioned Salvation Army officers in the United States, will conduct the service at the local corps tomorrow evening. The captain is a type of the early Salvation Army officer and has been through all the struggles and persecutions of the organization in the days when it was misunderstood. All who attend are requested to bring a pound of provisions for a very needy family in great distress. There are seven children in the family under the working age.

SKY-PILOTS WALLOPED THE AMPUTATORS; ECCLESIASTICAL TWIRLING DID THE TRICK

Plainfield's "sky-pilots" walloped Plainfield's "amputators" on Crescent oval Saturday afternoon and incidently a crowd of 3,000 fans(?) in turn cheered and laughed until their throats and sides ached. The net results were a score of 17 to 8, thanks be unto Dominie Conover, and a fund which will reach mighty close to $750. The "dough" will go to Muhlenberg Hospital for the purchase of surgical instruments.

Rev. Mr. Conover's work on the mound for the clergy was the whole show, but there were lots of sideshows, which attracted and detracted the attention of the "fans," many of whom would not know a baseball game from a cricket match. This man of the cloth, Conover, just "toyed" with the "pill chasers'" batters. He struck out twelve men and allowed but six hits. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, who used to play ball on the Saskatchewan college nine, was behind the bat, but those Saskatchewan days were too far back and "Evarts C." had to go a bit easy Had it been "them happy days" for Warren's guide, the doctors would have been eating goose-eggs. Mr. Conover also got credit for a three-bagger, a two bagger and two singles —that's going some as a batting record for a dominie who hadn't been on the diamond for twelve years. His backstop, who was a good one at that, deserved the calcium as a stick artist, too.

Rev. J. J. Allen, whose home address is South Plainfield, wherever that is, was a cracker-jack at short, while Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery took an afternoon off from his Heavenly Rest and was "some goods" at third. Mr. Allen made a home run in the sixth and again in the eighth, out of habit of driving things home. "Jahn" Yonkers Broek "muffed" a fly once during his fielding spasm and it made him so all firin' mad that he made two hits.

"Dr. Ben" Hedges had no time to tell any stories but he got the applause all the same for his work at first bag. Isn't he a dear! The dope distributors had another good man in Dr. G. T. Longbothum, who was some onions as a short stop. Ditto for Dr. Peter B. Cregar, who caught. Dr. Bill Anthony's twists for the medicine men. Anthony was touched for nineteen hits, but it's not so that it was the first time he's ever been "touched." Rev. C. S. Kemble, who has got the trick of taking everything that comes his way for the church, gathered in the sphere when it was shot to second just like an old-timer. And there were others "too numerous to mention."

The teams came on the field led by a "farmers" band and after Mayor Ah Moy had tossed the first ball, "Bill" Runyon officiated as umpire. He held down that job until "mobbed, bound and kidnapped" when Harry Blimm, decked out as a negro minstrel, took his place. Runyon "escaped" and "shot" Blimm, who was carted off on a stretcher by the nurses and doctors and next appeared all bound up in bandages and walking on cruetches. Blimm and his partner, John Cose, also dressed as a minstrel, with Eddie Bennett as a "cop" and Corey Adams and Pete Phillips as "Mutt and Jeff" kept the crowd laughing by their antics all through the game.

Nurses, physicians and clergymen disposed of souvenir programs, soft drinks, cigars and peanuts, while a diminuative colored kid, "Snowball" passed through the crowd and by standing on his head earned over $50 for the cause.

Here are "excerpts" from the souvenir program, for which "Bill" Runyon is responsible as author and "Uncle Dave" Carney as printer:

ORDERS FLAGMAN ON GROUND.

Trenton, June 19.—In response to an application of the township of North Bergen, Hudson county, for the better protection of Paterson avenue, where is crosses at a grade the tracks of the Susquehanna and Northern railroads, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has ordered that a flagman be maintained at the crossing during the entire day and night. At present the crossing is left unprotected from 1 a. m. to 7 p. m.

At the hearing it was suggested that gates be installed at the crossing, but in view of the conditions existing the board did not regard this as desirable. The distance between the inside tracks of the two railroads is forty-two feet. A flaghouse is located in this space, thus affording the flagman a good view in all directions.

On account of the distance between the tracks the board concluded that if gates were installed it would be necessary to operate them from a tower, which would take the flagman off the crossing. The board was of the opinion that the flagman on the ground is better able to control travel and afford better protection to pedestrians and vehicles than if he were located in the tower above the tracks.

ALLOWS GAS MERGER.

Trenton, June 19.—The Board of Public Utility Commissioners has approved a proposed issue of $63,000 of five per cent. mortgage bonds and $9,200 of capital stock by the New Jersey Gas Company for the purpose of purchasing the stock and bonds of the Swedesboro Gas Company.

The New Jersey Company asked for the approval of a $76,000 bond issue, but the board decided, after investigation, that only $63,000 could be issued in compliance with the law.

The board has also approved an issue of $33,800 of bonds and $5,000 of capital stock by the same company for the purpose of connecting the central plant at Glassboro with the Swedesboro plant. The original application was for a bond issue of $34,000.

Creating an Impression.

"And your husband gave $50,000 for that old book?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Cumrox.

"To show how much you care for literature, I suppose?"

"No;" to show how little we care for $50,000."—Washington Star.

White Waists at Half

Newest Models Come from New York's Best Maker

White Lingerie Waists, White Batiste Waists, White Allover Embroidery Waists, White Marquisette Waists, White Voile Waists.

This is one of the most favorable purchases of waists we have ever made, and if you knew the reputation of the manufacturers and we were privileged to name them, you would understand that every waist in this collection is high grade and worthy the attention of the best dressed of women.

These are not odd lots nor samples, nor hurriedly made, nor skimpy waists, but fine, fresh stocks, such as any maker would be proud to produce, and such as any high grade store will be proud to pass on to its patrons.

These waists are made of excellent materials.

The laces and embroideries employed in the making are of the finest hand loom and hand made imported embroideries. French, German and Valenciennes and other laces of the finest weaves, including some real hand made. The body materials include the sheerest lawns, batistes, imported marquisettes and linens. Some have charming yokes, others with front of allover embroideries. There are high and low necks, short, three-quarter and long sleeves.

Some of these waists are high-class novelties; others are strictly tailored with plaited frills—but why try to describe the very many styles this great lot brings us?

Come and see them for yourself and be delighted.

The sizes included are 34 to 44.

The regular valuations here quoted are what the waists would ordinarily sell for in first-class stores. We are going to price them at just about half their worth, and thus you will get in this sale

GAS RANGE SAVES TIME AND WORK

When you have a gas range you light a match and turn a valve and your fire is ready to do your cooking.

This saves time.

With a gas range there is no kindling to split, no coal to carry, no ashes to clear away and no dusting to do afterward.

This saves work.

Combine these two economies with the fact that the cost of gas is less than coal, and all the arguments favor the gas range.

Ranges can be bought on monthly payments.

SPECIAL EXHIBITION
ON OUR FIFTH FLOOR

We have secured, at great expense, two exquisitely sculptured and remarkably lifelike figures of the King and Queen of England in full Coronation regalia. No pains have been spared to secure exact likenesses of their Majesties, while the robes, crowns and accouterments, as well as the dais upon which the figures stand, are historically correct. These figures are now on free exhibition on our fifth floor, and we extend a cordial invitation to every one to come and see them. They constitute a remarkable display.

AS TO "PUBLIC PLACES" IN DRINKING CUP ACT.

Trenton, June 19.—After consultation with the attorney-general, the State Board of Health has decided the mooted question as to what constitutes a "public place" within the meaning of the act prohibiting the use of common drinking cups in such places. Under the ruling of the State board the law is applicable to any place maintained at public expense or to which an admission fee is charged.

The State Board of Education has already decided that the law is applicable to public schools, and these would come within the definition of the health board. Public parks, public buildings, theatres, public dance halls and all places where admission is charged are of course comprehended in the definition, but a place of amusement which may be sustained by individuals or a corporation to which admission is free is not.

If strictly construed, therefore, the proposed enforcement of the act may lead to many anomalous situations. For example a pleasure resort run by a railroad or trolley company would not come under the act, if admission were free, while a municipal or county park, no less publicly frequented, would.

The definition also seems to exempt from the operation of the act railroad stations, although there is a difference of opinion as to whether it would be applicable to railroad trains. The State board will prepare a circular of instructions, covering these and other disputed questions.

LONDON PREACHER AT LOCAL CHURCH

Rev. Dr. William Spurgeon, of London, Eng., a cousin to Rev. Dr. Charles Spurgeon, has been spending a few days in the city with Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, and in addition to giving two lectures he occupied the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday morning and evening, each time speaking to large congregations.

"Advise to Married People and Those About to Marry," was the subject of an interesting lecture given on Saturday evening. The minister preceded his talk with a few humorous remarks in which he said that woman was made out of man and she had been after him ever since.

Yesterday morning Dr. Spurgeon preached on "The Greatest Attractive Force in the World," and yesterday afternoon he gave his well-known Chautauqua lecture on "The Welsh Revival," which he recently gave before an audience of five thousand people in the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia. Last evening he preached on the subject, "Does Religion Pay?" Tonight Dr. Spurgeon will lecture on "An Englishmen's Impressions of Uncle Sam and his Great Country." At the close of last night's service Mr. Maguire administered the ordinance of believer's baptism to four persons.

COUNTY SANITORIUM PLANS FOR INSPECTION

Complete plans for the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, of Union county, which has been established on the mountains near Scotch Plains, are at the Queen City Hotel, for inspection and the committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, having the matter in charge earnestly hope that everyone in Plainfield who is interested will look them over and become thoroughly conversant with them. At present they are unofficial, but the committee hope that they will be approved at a meeting of the freeholders on Thursday.

The plans must then be approved by the State Board of Health. According to the original proposition the total expense would have aggregated about $100,000 but now that is is proposed to make the buildings one story, it is believed that the expense can be reduced to between $50,000 and $75,000. J. Hervey Doane is chairman of the committee and the other members from the board are Henry Krausse, J. Logan Fay, Adolph Gruener and S. P. T. Wilbur.

JAY, ROSS AND FULLER MEET SUDDEN DEATH

Bound for the Meadow Brook polo field to see the game between the Magpies and Wanderers, Wilfred Jay, editor of Bit and Spur, and Charles J. Ross, a professional photographer, were struck by a train at the Westbury crossing of the Long Island Railroad, and instantly killed on Saturday. They were in an automobile at the time, and the engineer says that he did not see the party until too late to prevent the fatality.

Both Mr. Jay and Mr. Ross were well-known here, where they attended the horse show and steeplechase meets. Mr. Jay was in Plainfield at the horse show the first week in June, where he greeted his old friends. He is survived by a wife, who also has friends here.

Leonce Fuller, the well-known gentleman jockey, who has appeared at the steeplechase meets of the Watchung Hunt Club here, died yesterday in the Massachussets General Hopital as the result of injuries he received from a fall during a gentlemen's jockey race on Saturday at Brookline. Mr. Fuller never regained consciousness after horse and rider plunged over the Liverpool jump. He was a former assistant corporation counsel of New York county.

1ST BAPTISTS EDIFIED BY MUSICAL SERVICE

The chorus choir of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Howard Case, organist, presented a pleasing special program of music at the evening service, yesterday, assisted by Udo Gossweiler, 'cellist. In addition to the several anthems, there were edifying solo parts by Miss Ruth Harris, soprano; Miss Elizabeth Ingram, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor.

A feature of the program was the rendition of Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer," for soprano solo and chorus. Miss Harris sang this number perfectly and the chorus accompaniment added to its effectiveness. The solo numbers by Miss Ingram, William Holmes and Mr. Smith were pleasing, while the chorus work was up to the usual high standard. Much praise is due both Mr .Case and Mr. Gossweiler for their part in the service. The latter accompanied in the various selections.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gullberg, of South avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor F. Gullberg, to Herman P. Klinsman, of the borough. The date for the wedding has not yet been announced.

PUNCH OUT-DISTANCED BY GOOD RIDDANCE

Three trotting races and one running race made up an attractive card for the matinee race meeting of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Association at the driving park, Saturday afternoon. The races were enjoyed by a large crowd of people who were especially interested in the running race, three-quarters of mile, between J. J. O'Donohue's "Good Riddance," and Rufus C. Finch's "Punch." The former horse won in 1:20, "Punch" ran a fine race.

The other races were trotting or pace, and were all very close. In the first race, 2:16 class, J. M. Hardy's "Strongheart," covered the mile in 2:15¼, which is fast time for that track. W. S. Rule's "Greenmore" took the second race, 2:20 in straight heats, while J. S. Booream's "Dan H.," took the third race, 2:35 class. The summary of the three races follow:

Class A—2:16—Pace.

Strongheart, J. M. Hardy,	1	1
Review Bells, Lester Harris,	2	2
Aaron B., A. C. Blair,	4	3
Powder Boy, William Gross,	3	4

Time—2:15¼, 2:17¼.

Class B—2:20—Trot or Pace.

Greenmore, W. S. Rule,	1	1
Lady Bonanza, T. Brantingham,	2	3
Ben Webster, Frank Ayers,	3	2
Helen Nelson, Wm. Hutchings,	4	4

Time—2:23¼, 2:22¾.

Class C—2:35—Trot or Pace.

Dan H., J. S. Booream,	3	1	1
Midnight Herr, A. S. Case,	1	2	2
Geo. Lake, J. TenEyck,	4	3	dr.
Victor Hugo, H. Brantigan,	2	4	dr.

Time—2:36½, 2:30, 2:36½.

Invited to Civic Celebration.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy has reecived an invitation from Mayor J. A. Dennis, of Westfield, and chairman of the hospitality committee, to attend the civic celebration to be held at Westfield, July 1-5. The invitation is intended to include not only Mayor Moy, but also the municipal officials, chief and assistants of the police and fire departments. The hospitality committee will entertain the honored visitors by auto trips and luncheon at the new fire house.

Fire in Borough.

An empty barn at Stone and DuPont streets belonging to Charles Wyckoff was destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. A house, owned by Harrison Coddington, adjoining the barn caught fire, but was saved. The roof and side of the house were badly scorched. The cause of the blaze is unknown. The damage to the barn is placed at $250 and that to the house will amount to $200.

Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons and granddaughter, Janet Findley, of Jersey City, spent Sunday with relatives in this city.

BAYONNE VOTE RECOUNT OPEN

Jersey City, June 19.—With Justice Swayze present the recount of votes cast in the special election to determine whether Bayonne should adopt the commission form of government, by the County Board of Elections, was started Saturday morning. With the count completed in the first, second and third districts of the First Ward, a gain to the commission plan of three votes.

It was found that two battots cast for the commission plan did not have the signature of the county clerk on the reverse side. They were referred to the court.

In the First district four votes were rejected by the Bayonne City Election Board and in the recount two more were rejected. The Second district recount shows 122 votes for and 167 against, with the two referred ballots. The original tally was 121 for and 168 against and three rejected ballots.

The Third district shows 67 for and 156 against. Three votes were rejected by the board and two by the court. The original vote was 67 for and 161 against.

BETHEL CHAPEL HOLDS CHILDREN'S EXERCISES.

Bethel chapel celebrated Children's Day yesterday afternoon with an excellent program. Interesting addresses were made by Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel; G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of Hope chapel Sunday-school and William D. Murray, of the primary department of Crescent Avenue church.

Recitations were given by the following children: Arvella Shipley, Grace Anderson, Frank Gillette, Bessie Melchor, William Brown, Clifford Daniel, Lillian Somerset, Edwin James, Lorena Shipley and Mary Shutts. The music comprised singing by the primary department and by the whole school; also a soprano solo, effectively sung by Miss Lillian Vernon Watt, of the Crescent Avenue church choir. Charles L. Gulick, organist of the church, accompanied Miss Watt, while Miss Edith Leonard was the accompanist for the school. The service was in charge of Alfred W. Duxbury, superintendent of the chapel. Owing to illness in his family, Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of the chapel, could not be pesent.

Five Italians in Drunken Brawl.

Five Italians were arrested last night at Smalley's stone crusher on Somerset street, by Marshals Weiss and Keller, for being drunk and disorderly, a free-for-all fight having taken place. One of the Italians was hit in the side by a stone and badly cut. The men were taken to the borough jail but were released to appear for a hearing before Recorder Dolliver tonight.

try and I have performed as many as eight chloroform operations in a day.

"Dr. Harrison is now at Poit, which has been closed for many centuries and which was recently opened through the efforts of the medical missionaries. He is doing a great work there but is handicapped by not having a license to practice. Nevertheless he is utilizing his time in learning the Arabic language, in which he is one of the brightest students among the missionaries. The entering of Poit is a long step toward the opening of the interior sacred cities and the field for Dr. Harrison is now ripening for a large harvest."

Former Pastor Goes to Troy.

Rev. John Duerschner, former pastor of St. Peter's church, spent part of last week here with his family. He left Saturday for Troy, N. Y. Rev. Mr. Isler, of Richmond Hill, S. I., preached at the local church yesterday. Next Sunday, Mr. Duerschner will be in his former pulpit, conducting holy communion, and will preach his farewell sermon later, the date for which will be announced.

D. Foster Updike's Amusements!

LAUGH.

Laugh and the world laughs with you; SNORE and you SNORE alone. I am so happy that I cannot keep from laughing. What is the matter with some of you sour faced deacons anyhow?

LADIES.

Thank you, for the privilege you have given me to change my mind. When I started in business six weeks ago, with a cash capital of deceitfulness and four dollars, I had no time to list properties. It was up to me to sell some, so I put out my signal or $15. And to be frank with you I did not suppose I would get so busy. But positively I was compelled to have three stenographers. Venture to say that I have in one month listed more property than any two agents here will in one year, but I did not get $15 per for it is property sent me by outside people through the mail, and have sold and exchanged some.

KNOCKING.

Have been in Plainfield about nine years. Have you ever heard me knock at your door for business? No; nor you never will. But am now prepared to have you come and see me if you care too, and no CHARGE for listing; have four

SPECIALTIES

One man to take charge of Rent and Insurance and now, of course, he has time to take charge of your house anyway you wish him too. And my signals have made enough comment to let you know I am in business. So no more. Ordered 2,000 regulars today. Another man to take charge of lots, one to take charge of farms. And I have an offer ready (in exchange) and sometimes cash for property I don't care where. And I have any amount of MONEY to loan and searches are $25 each by a company backed by one half million dollars. The law will not allow me to offer my bonds as yet, nor lots at Uptodate. But scratch your head for a few days.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The reception given by the Board of Education, Friday night, for the Whittier School graduates and the alumni, proved such an enjoyable affair that numerous requests have been made to repeat it. The board members are inclined to grant the request and a date will be decided upon in a few days.

The repair committee of the local school board has decided upon extensive repairs to both the Whittier and Lincoln buildings during the summer vacation. The heating plants, particularly, are to be overhauled and municipal water, with patent drinking fountains are to be installed.

The wedding of Miss Mabel I. Hand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, of Orange, and Abner S. Coriell, of the borough, will take place at the home of the bride's parents, next Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin P. Curl, of Front street, entertained a party of friends at dinner last night. They were from Plainfield and Elizabeth.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. William Farrel, of Metuchen, has returned home after a pleasant visit with her mother, Mrs. Mary McDonough, of Lehigh avenue.

Mrs. William Newell, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Duffey.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chester, of Newark, has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton.

Mrs. Walton Smith and daughter, are visiting Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Pace, of Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hansen, of Storage road, have returned from a visit with friends in Perth Amboy.

John McDonough has returned to New York, after a pleasant visit with his mother, Mrs. James Gallager.

John Ball is the proud owner of a new bicycle, a graduation gift from his parents.

Miss Elma Randolph, of Front street, is visiting friends in Somerville.

Miss Nellie McDonough, of Front street, is visiting her cousin in New York.

P. H. S. CLASS DAY TOMORROW.

Seniors Plan Elaborate Exercises for Pleasure.

The Plainfield High School seniors are planning elaborate class day exercises for tomorrow night in the school auditorium. The program includes several songs by the class, statistics of the members and class will and prophecy. After the exercises there will be dancing until 12 o'clock.

The committee in charge consists of Wilbur Tovell, Ruth Wean, Louise Bird, Benjamin Harris, Helen Pierce, Alfred Clarke, Charles Schuck, Herman Shrager, Nathan Wilson and Sidney Karr.

Loses Valuable Dog.

The valuable trained dog with Edward's European Country Circus, billed to appear at Proctor's theatre, today, was taken suddenly sick last night and died at Dr. Carpenter's stables on East Second street, at midnight. The dog which performed marvelous tricks was valued at $1,400.

Stole Carpenters Tools.

Thieves broke into a carpenters' shed at Hillcrest avenue and George street Saturday night and stole a large quantity of tools belonging to Contractor William Brokaw and the employes, George Ammon and Lewis Bush. The police were notified but so far have gained no clue..

Special W. C. T. U. Service.

The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps attended the gospel temperance service at the W. C. T. U., yesterday afternoon. Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, made the address and there was special music.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS RALLY AT MT. HOREB

The Epworth League Societies of the Plainfield district held a rally at the Mt. Horab church Saturday afternoon and evening. Ae feature of the affair was an athletic meet in the afternoon between the young men of the various societies, Mt. Horeb winning with 10 points while Monroe Avenue society of this city, took second place with 9 points.

In the evening a vesper service was held at 7 o'clock and a preaching service at 8. Mr. Atkins, an officer of the district, addressed the 161 delegates after which ice cream and strawberries were served by the Mt. Horeb societies. Delegates were present from the Monroe Avenue, Grace and First Methodist churches, of this city.

HOP LEE'S LAUNDRY ENTERED BY BURGLARS.

A laundry at 327 Liberty street, near the corner of Fourth, conducted by Hop Lee, a chinaman, was visited by burglars some time early yesterday morning. They got away with $60 in cash and a nickle watch which had been left in a tin box on a table. Entrance to the place was made through a window conveniently left open.

Hop Lee made the discovery of his loss at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and started on a run for police headquarters, yelling like a madman a large part of the way. Detective Sergeant Flynn made an investigation but on account of the place being a laundry, the intruder made a "clean getaway."

"Mellican man find money," said Hop Lee to the officer, "he no need tickee for washee. All same do heap much for nothing."

The promise of such-a reward was appreciated by detective Flynn and the celestial believes it will help restore his property.

MRS. DELIA ARMSTRONG, AGED 72 YEARS, DEAD.

Mrs. Delia Armstrong, aged 72 years, widow of Robert Armstrong, died at her home on East Fourth street, Saturday night following a long illness with creeping paralysis. She had been a resident of this city, thirty-eight years. Mr. Armstrong died two years ago. Mrs. Armstrong was a member of Grace church. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. George Townley, with whom she lived..

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the late home, and Rev. C. H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will officiate, in the absence of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson.

P. O. Bill in Committee.

The bill introduced in the United States Senate on June 12, by Senator Frank O. Briggs, increasing the cost of erecting a postoffice in this city, is still before the committee on public buildings and grounds, after being read twice in the Senate. The bill provides "that the limit of cost heretofore fixed for the erection and completion of a postoffice in this city, be and is hereby increased from $100,000 to $150,000, said increase ot be employed in the enlargement and betterment of the building."

Mrs. June Bilby Resigns.

Mrs. June Bilby, soprano soloist at the First M. E. church, has tendered her resignation to take effect next Sunday. She will return to her home at St. Louis, where she will take a position in a church. Mrs. Bilby will be succeeded by Miss Margaret Harrison, a pupil of Dr. Carl Dufft, and who has been singing at the Old South Presbyterian church, New York city. During her short stay here, Mrs. Bilby has won many friends by her excellent work.

Entertained Senior Class.

Twenty of the members of the senior class of the city High School were the guests of their classmate, Luther Banks, at his home in Mt. Pleasant, Sautrday evening. The trip to Mt. Pleasant was made in a straw load and the evening was spent in dancing, playing games and singing school songs. The party, which was chaperoned by Miss Iola Moore, returned to this city shortly before twelve o'clock.

Owl Club Outing.

The Owl Club held its annual outing at Mountainside grove, near Sebring's Mills, yesterday. Forty members of and friends were in attendance and enjoyed athletic games, after which a dinner was served. The committee in charge was comprised of Edward Mattell, George Mead, George and Jacob Schlick.

HEAVENLY REST HAS A JOLLY GOOD TIME

The summer social under the auspices of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, assisted by the Women's Guild, at the church, Saturday afternoon and evening was a thoroughly enjoyable. In the afternoon a baseball game was played in the lot behind the church between the married and single men of the congregation. The benedicts won by the score of 19-5.

Tables were placed on the church lawn and the grounds were brilliantly illuminated by electric lights. During the evening, dancing and progressive euchre were enjoyed in the parish house.

Those in charge of the various tables were department store, Mrs. Michael Rimmer, Mrs. Charles Borden, Miss Julia Praed, Miss Tabling; candy, Mrs. Sutton and the Misses Elizabeth and Alice Foster; fancy articles, Mrs. George Ludgate, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Joseph Taylor, and Mrs. Moore; cake, Miss Mary Gravis, Mrs. Corless, Mrs. James Chamberlain; lemonade, Mrs. Hotchcroft; orange tree, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt; guessing doll, Miss Blanche Thorne; ice cream, George Ludgate and Samuel Wilson.

SOLD BORROWED DRESS; GETS A JAIL SENTENCE.

Lottie Copeland, a colored damsel, released only a short time ago from the county jail, was before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, charged by Mrs. Henry Johnson, of West Third street, with appropriating a silk waist and skirt. When the defendant returned to town after her stay at Elizabeth, she asked Mrs. Johnson for the loan of the clothes in order to secure a position. They were given to her with the understanding that they be returned within a few days. Miss Lottie returned evil for good by selling the outfit, valued at $15, and having a good time on the proceeds.

Judge DeMeza showed his contempt for the Copeland woman's action by lecturing her severely and then imposing a fine of $20 or sixty days in jail. She will probably take the latter as her funds are short.

Auto Party and Shore Dinner.

A. C. Thompson and thirteen of his mechanics and chauffeurs took a trip to Boynton Beach yesterday by automobile. After spending several hours at the amusement park, the party went to the Packard House, in Perth Amboy, where a shore dinner was enjoyed, after which Charles Wiggin presented Mr. Thompson with a leather suit case from his employes. Mr. Thompson is about to start on an extended trip.

Will Prepare Plans.

Engineer J. L. Bauer, of Union county and Engineer Joshua Daughty, of Somerset conuty, will meet today and fix up the plans for the proposed new bridge on Washington avenue, and after being passed upon by the freeholders of the two counties, bids will be advertised for. It is the desire to start the construction work soon.

Start Macadam Work.

Mobus & Burke, the contractors, started work this morning on the work of macadamizing West Front street between Grant and Madison avenues, with a bituminious binder, similar to that used on the south side of West Front street, west of Grant avenue. When completed it will make a fine thoroughfare.

The Pastor in New York.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Medison Avenue Baptist church, New York, who has a home at Watchung, delivered an interesting discourse at his church yesterday morning on "The Glorious Privilege of Being a Pastor in New York City." He characterized New York as the "bloody angle" in the struggle of the Nation to save its soul.

Cut by Empty Soda Bottle.

George Winans, of Somerset street, was badly cut at the ministers-physicians' game Saturday afternoon, when an empty soda bottle thrown from the top of the bleachers, struck him. Mr. Winans was walking below the bleachers when the bottle hit him on the head inflicting a deep wound. The gash was sewed up at Muhlenberg hospital.

On the Trail Note.

Rudolph Ungtr, a "Dog Corner" farmhand, was arrested for drunkenness Saturday night. Judge DeMeza released him on his own recognizance yesterday to appear in court this morning, but he failed to show up. The cops have started the bloodhounds on his trail and it is believed he will be treed before night.

Charles Frederickson, son of Captain and Mrs. Frederickson, of Leland avenue, who went to Dallas, Texas, to erect a press for the Walter Scott Printing Company, is ill with typhoid fever in a hospital in Dallas. He is now convalscent, although his condition was serious for two or three weeks.

HIS $50 WERE NOT LOST

Though the Old Vest Went to the Ragman, Wife Appeared in a Fine New Hat.

A certain thrifty Sewickleyan, who contrives to "hold out" a little for sundry personal purposes despite the alertness of his better half, is often put to queer shifts to keep his private bank roll from her prying eyes. When he some time ago began a systematic conservation of his resources, with an eye to attractive odds in the baseball betting on the pennant, he bethought himself of an old vest thaat he had seen hanging in a dark part of the cellar, which he wore when he was making garden in the spring. The vest would make an excellent depository, so he thought.

Deciding on Tuesday morning to come up to the city and "look 'em over," he repaired to the cellar. Horrors! The vest was gone. Search as he might it was nowhere to be found, and with a fallen heart he resorted to the last desperate expedient and sought his wife.

"Why, yes," she replied with a frown on her pretty face, "it smelled of mold and paint, so I just had to get rid of it, and I sold it to the ragman."

She watched him sink limply into a chair with a groan that shook the china in the china closet.

"But don't worry, pet, the $50 you so carelessly left in the vest is not lost, but is safely invested in this beautiful fall hat. Isn't it a beauty, dear?"

And as she produced one of the latest bucket-shaped monstrosities as big as a water pail, he pulled a long breath and fell into a faint on the dining room floor.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

NIETZSCHE'S VIEW OF WOMAN

Everything in Her Is a Riddle, and She Is Man's Most Dangerous Plaything.

Nietzsche, the German philosopher, has little to say of women. In his philosophy there is to be no overwoman. "Everything in woman is a riddle," he says. And again, "The true man wants two different things—danger and diversion. He therefore wants a woman as the most dangerous plaything." In his Wagner book, he puts women in a strange category. "In the theater," he declares, "one becomes mob, herd, woman, Pharisee, voting animal, patron, idiot, Wagnerian." "As yet," he says, in Zarathustra, "women are incapable of friendship."

"In a woman's love," Nietzsche says, "there is unfairness and blindness to all she does not love. And even in woman's enlightened love there are still outbreaks and lightnings." In his Wagner essay he says: "Woman would like to believe that love can do all. It is a superstition peculiar to herself. Alas! he who knows the heart finds out how poor, helpless, pretentious and liable to error even the best, the deepest love is; how it rather destroys that saves."—Forum.

The Ignoble George IV.

Then there was the precious regent. What a creature! Good men and bad men unite in saying that he was absolutely without a virtue; the shrewd, calculating Greville described him in words that burn; the great duke, his chief subject, uses language of dry scorn. "The king could only act the part of a gentleman for ten minutes at a time;" and we find the commonest satellites of the court despised the wicked fribble who wore the crown of England. Faithless to women, faithless to men, a coward, a liar, a mean and groveling cheat, George IV. nevertheless clung to a belief in his own virtues; and, if we study the account of his farcical progress through Scotland, we find that he imagined himself to be a useful and genuinely kingly personage. No man, except, perhaps, Philippe Egalite, was ever so contemned and hated; and until his death he imagined himself to be a good man.—Runciman, "Sidelights."

A Clock of 1790.

An interesting specimen of a long clock, made in 1790, is owned by a gentleman at Lutterworth, England. It has an oval face, a hand which points to the days of the week, completing the round in seven days. One which shows the true dead beat, and another which points to the chimes and quarters.

On the upper part of the clock is a small orchestra, which includes a flute, a cello, and two violins, and a boy and girl in addition to three singers. The hours and the quarters are struck and ever three hours a tune is played "three times ever either on the bells alone, the lyricord or on both together," while the three figures beat time and the boy and girl dance to the music.

A Bad Boy in Colonial Days.

A notebook of a justice of the peace in Connecticut, in the year 1750, specifies the behavior of a certain small meeting house boy as felows:

"A rude and idel behaver in the meting hows such as smiling and larfing and intiseing others to the same evil.

Such a larfing or smiling and pulling the heir of his nayber benoni simkin in the time of publick worship.

Such as throwing Sister Penticost Perkins on the ice it being Saboth Day or Lord's Day between the meting hows and his place of abode."—Bliss, "Side Glimpses."

OTHER JOB IS JUST AS BAD

School Teacher and Housewife Find by Comparison That Neither One Should Envy the Other.

There had been a severe storm, lasting several days, and the little school teacher was getting very tired of it. She found it hard to go back and forth to her work, and when she reached her boarding place Friday night she was in a complaining mood. As she passed through the flat on her way to her room she said to the friend with whom she boarded, a young married woman: "You ought to be thankful you do not have to go out in these storms. It is horrible."

The other young woman looked up with a queer expression in her eyes. "I was just envying you," she said, "to think you were free to go. For three days I have been house-bound and I'm just ready to cry for a good walk in the open air. These two babies can't be taken out in such weather, and I have no one to leave them with, so that keeps me shut in. You ought to be glad you can go out."

"Queer, isn't it," mused the small pedagogue, "how the other fellow's work often looks the more desirable. Perhaps each one of us will feel more resigned now, when we realize that every position has its disadvantages and that, after all, nobody can fill another's."

CAPTURED THE LADY'S WATCH

Auburn-Haired Young Man Didn't Mean to Do It, but It Caught on a Button.

He was such a straight, manly fellow—with a military bearing and a soldiery tread. He had auburn hair, and he blushed easily, and, above all, he was keenly alive to the rights of his fellow-beings and anxious to do the right thing by them. But he and his friend were hurrying from the local to catch the subway express, and they would have caught it, but—

"He's got my watch!" a woman screamed.

The manly fellow strode on, conscious of virtue.

"Hold on, hold on!" said the auburn-haired man's friend, clutching his arm, "you're carrying off a lady's watch," and he untwisted the watch and chain, which had wound itself around his coat button.

The woman was still angry when she overtook them, and scarcely convinced that the blushing man was not old at the game, but she got away in time to board the express.

The auburn-haired man and his friend missed it.

The Short-Lived Pin.

By a series of experiments conducted on his estate a French investigator has discovered that pins go the way of all flesh and are resolved into dust. Hairpins, which the experimenter watched for 154 days, disappear at the end of that time, having been resolved into a ferrous oxide, a brownish rust, which was blown away by the wind. Bright pins took nearly 18 months to disappear; polished steel needles nearly two years and a half; brass pins had but little endurance; steel pens at the end of 15 months had nearly gone, while their wooden holders were still intact. Pencils, with which he also experimented, suffered little by exposure; the lead was unharmed, and the cedar almost as good as new. —Human Life.

War, Wives and Whales.

Workmen excavating for a cellar in Sag Harbor, L. I., have laid bare the foundations of the home of Capt. David Hand, a hero of the Revolutionary war. Many relics were found, flintlock rifles and coins. The house of Captain Hand was the first house built in Sag Harbor. Besides being a famous soldier, Captain Hand, who was mentioned in several of J. Fenimore Cooper's books, was a well known master whaleman. The old warrior lies buried in Oakland cemetery, Sag Harbor, besides the graves of his five wives. The epitaph on his tombstone reads as follows:

"Behold, stranger, as you pass by, how thick the partners of one husband lie."

Swift's Face.

There is nothing new to learn, it seems, about Swift's relations with Stella and Vanessa. There is, however, it is pointed out, a hint in a hitherto unpublished letter of Chetwide to Swift written in October, 1714, which may be worth noting: "The ladies of your acquaintance are, I confess, a little hard upon you in regard to faces to tie you down to ugliness and age. But you know best if it be not just, since the world says you may command a very agreeable one and yet defer it." The last sentence is erased in the draft as if on second thoughts the writer feared to arouse Swift's indignation by alluding to so private a matter as Stella's regard for him.

Four Generations in Hunting Field.

It was interesting to see four generations of one family in the saddle at a meet of the York and Ainsty. Sir Edward Green, who is now in his eightieth year, was there wearing scarlet, finding just the same pleasure as he took in the sport 50 years ago.

His sons, Lycett Green (many years master of the pack) and Frank Green, were present, also the latter's son, Edward Green, and finally E. Green's son, Master Edward Green, who looks like being as keen on fox hunting as his forbears are.—Pall Mall Gazette.

BIG DEMAND ON EDUCATION

Modern Life Requires That It Shall Furnish Opportunities for the Fullest Individualism.

Opportunities for the fullest individualism is the demand which modern life makes upon education. The school should be an experiment station replete with alluring incentives to intellectual growth. Here, aided by the helpful sympathy of teachers who have discovered the difference between schooling and education, children could try their powers, and moments of enthusiasm be utilized for mental growth in various lines. Mental tendencies, like animal instincts, must be coaxed out by stimulating situations, and the present school environment is too barren to offer the needed excitation. Boys are continually trying to understand themselves, to find the occupation that their nature vaguely craves, but the pedagogical rope always pulls them back to the curriculum. Then their enthusiasm cools, while the teachers go on trying to strike an intellectual spark with the mental temperature at zero. This is not only an extravagant waste of educational forces, but, what is far more serious, it awakens hatred of study in those whose mental organization does not suit the school plan. The restraint of a system suited to the average child inhibits the powers of unusual children and awakens resentment. Uniformity in treatment and instruction suppresses the tendency to vary and creates dullards.—Edgar James Swift, in Harper's Magazine.

THOUGHT IT SACRED RITES

Morning Gymnastics of a Traveler Caused Kurds in Armenia to Leave the General Room.

Everything is liable to be misunderstood, even gymnastic exercises. This truth was brought home to George H. Hepworth, and he tells his experience in "Through Armenia on Horseback." The author was stopping in a Kurdish village, and the inn possessed but one general living room.

In the morning I began my regular gymnatsics, stooping until my fingers touched the floor, throwing my arms about like the spokes of a wheel, striking out from the shoulder, and going through all the exercises, none of which I ever omitted. I would gladly have taken a sponge bath, but it would have been impossible to get enough water; a pint is enough to suffice a Turk.

Well, I got under way with my exercises, when I saw that my audience was excited; conversation dropped into a whisper, then ceased; word passed from one to another, and one by one the occupants of the room quietly left. I feared that they were offended, and wanted to call them back and apologize. Just then then my dragoman entered, laughing.

"What has happened?" I asked.

He laughed the harder as he replied:

"The Kurds think you are practising devotional religious exercises, and they retired under the impression that you would regard their presence as an intrusion."—Youth's Companion.

A Scolding Dress.

"Before I take off this dress," said the woman to the home dressmaker, who was fitting a party gown, "I want to go into the kitchen and read the riot act to Maria."

"Oh, not with this dress on," the dressmaker protested. "She is cooking and the grease might pop—"

"Can't help it," the woman interrupted. "Maria needs a lecture. She has been needing it for some time, but I didn't dare deliver it because I hadn't good enough clothes to make it effective. Maria is black and lately from the south. She judges people by the clothes they wear. If I had scolded in shirt waist and skirt or even in my old blue afternoon dress Maria would have scorned me, but with all this finery on I can speak my piece and Maria will be properly impressed and maybe she will reform."

The Moon on Fish.

A recent report of the Scotch fishery board mentioned a curious habit which, according to fishermen, is associated with fish; the phases of the moon, it was asserted, have a very direct connection with the willingness of fish to be netted.

To test this theory statistics were obtained of the catch of herrings from 1860 to 1900, with the result that the biggest catches were found to have coincided with the new moon and the smallest with full moon. The report suggested that a full moon enabled the nets to be seen much more easily than at times of new moon or the crescent phase or that the tides, which vary with the lunar phases, were possible factors in the matter.—Westminister Gazette.

Fastidious Tastes of the Porker.

An apology is due to the farm yard pig, who has been grossly maligned in regard to his food. Instead of being ready to eat anything, he has just proved himself the most fastidious of animals. Experiments recently carried on in France and Sweden show this to be the case. In Sweden the record tells that out of 575 plants the goat eats 449 and refuses 126; the sheep, out of 494 plants, eats 387 and refuses 141; out of 528 plants the cow eats 276 and refuses 218; out of 474 plants the horse eats 262 and refuses 212, and the pig, out of 243 plants, eats only 72 and refuses the other 171.

HE TOOK MEAN ADVANTAGE

Broker Banked "Friend's" Check After the Borrower Thought He Had Protected His Money.

"See that heavily built guy who just came in?" said the broker to his friend in the cafe. "You may have noticed that he caught my eye, but passed on without a sign of recognition. Well, he's a promoter. He and I used to be great friends—ostensibly. He rushed into my office one afternoon in a state of great excitement, saying that a little deal he was putting through made $50 necessary at once, and would I save him a little trouble by cashing a check for the sum. He always seemed to have plenty of money, so I gave him the cash and took his check. I did not see him again soon, and on my depositing the check it came back marked 'No funds.' I looked up his bank, and found he did have a deposit there at one time. I deposited the check again and again it was returned. A week later I tried again, with the same result. More for amusement than anything else, I sent the check to the bank for the fourth time, and this time it went through!

"Soon after that our friend calls me up on the telephone, and in the most outraged tone of voice asks what I mean by taking advantage of him that way. He could not have been more indignant had I double-crossed him in a straight deal. And that explains why he no longer speaks to me."

CAUSE OF NERVOUS HEADACHE

Overwork, Worry, Eye-Strain and Other Things That Bring on This Very Distressing Ailment.

Nervous headaches occur in hysterical or neurasthenic individuals and those suffering from overwork or worry. In this class might also be mentioned headaches due to eye strain.

The error of vision may be so slight that the patient is not conscious of any impairment of her sight, but the constant effort to counteract it is sapping her nervous energy. When frequent headaches occur it is important to have the vision carefully tested by a competent eye specialist. No further search for a cause may be necessary.

Disease of the ear, a deviated septum in the nose, adenoids, enlarged tonsils or other abnormalities of the nose and throat are often responsible for persistent headaches that resist treatment. In all cases these possible conditions must be considered and one by one eliminated. Persistent headaches require careful study by a careful, competent physician and painstaking observance of the advice and directions he gives.—Woman's Home Companion.

Bible Reading.

In an optimistic sermon of a week ago Sunday it was stated that along with the dread of diphtheria and the bubonic plague and having your children sold into slavery there had disappeared out of the world the fear of being caught reading the Bible. I was especially struck by that statement, because the time lies within my own memory when the fear of being caught reading the Bible had not disappeared out of the world. Perhaps it lies within the memory of any man or boy who has had the fortune of a pious rearing. I should speak with hesitation for the girls, but I saw with confidence that it is habitual for healthy boys of a certain age to be ashamed of being good. And much as I enjoy rising to an optimistic sermon, I cannot help doubting whether the fear of being caught reading the Bible has actually disappeared out of the world.—From the Atlantic.

Bird That Is Bee's Enemy.

Bees have enemies of various kinds like the rest of creation. Every one knows that many birds are insectivorous, but all insects do not form the food of any one species.

The bird which has formed a taste for bees is the blue tit, and if a pair of these discover a suitable nesting place in the neighborhood of an apiary it is surprising how many bees will be carried off to satisfy them and their young. Generally their work is mostly felt where queen raising is extensively indulged in, for queens and drones, bein glargest and slowest on the wing, form a desirable and an easy prey.—Agricultural Economist.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

"I could not understand," she replied, evidently with much less enthusiasm, and to Keith's thinking, a shade resentful of the familiarity, "but naturally supposed you must be unexpectedly delayed."

"Well, I was," and he apparently flung both coat and hat on a bench, with the intention of remaining. "The marshal arrested a fellow for a murder committed out on the Santa Fe Trail, and required me as a witness. But the man got away before we had any chance to try him, and I have been on his trail ever since."

"A murder! Did you imagine he came this way?"

"Not very likely; fact of it is, the sand storm yesterday destroyed all traces, and, as a result, we've lost him. So I headed a few of the boys over in this direction, as I wanted to relieve you of anxiety."

She was silent an instant, and the man crossed to the fireplace, where Keith could gain a glimpse of him. Already suspicious from the familiar sound of his voice, he was not surprised to recognize "Black Bart." The plainsman's fingers gripped the negro's arm, his eyes burning. So this gambler and blackleg was the gentlemanly Mr. Hawley, was he; well, what could be his little game? Why had he inveigled the girl into this lonely spot? And what did he now propose doing with her? As he crouched there, peering through that convenient crack in the door, Keith completely forgot his own peril, intent only upon this new discovery. She came slowly around the end of the table, and stood leaning against it, her face clearly revealed in the light of the lamp. For the first time Keith really perceived its beauty, its fresh charm. Could such as she be singer and dancer in a frontier concert hall? And if so, what strange conditions ever drove her into that sort of life?

"Is—is Fred with you?" she questioned, doubtfully.

"No; he's with another party riding farther west," the man's eyes surveying her with manifest approval. "You are certainly looking fine to-night, my girl. It's difficult to understand how I ever managed to keep away from you so long."

She flushed to the hair, her lips trembling at the open boldness of his tone.

"I—I prefer you would not speak like that," she protested.

"And why not?" with a light laugh. "Come, Christie, such fine airs are a trifle out of place. If I didn't know you were a concert hall artist, I might be more deeply impressed. As it is, I reckon you've heard love words before now."

"Mr. Hawley, I have trusted you as a gentleman. I never came here except on your promise to bring me to my brother," and she stood erect before him. "You have no right to even assume that I am Christie Maclaire."

"Sure not; I don't assume. I have seen that lady too often to be mistaken. Don't try on that sort of thing with me—I don't take to it kindly. Perhaps a kiss might put you in better humor."

He took a step forward, as though proposing to carry out his threat, but the girl stopped him, her eyes burning with indignation.

"How dare you!" she exclaimed passionately, all fear leaving her in sudden resentment. "You think me alone here and helpless; that you can insult me at your pleasure. Don't go too far, Mr. Hawley. I know what you are now, and it makes no difference what you may think of me, or call me; you'll find me perfectly able to defend myself."

"Oh, indeed!" sneeringly, "you are melodramatic; you should have been an actress instead of a singer. But you waste your talent out here on me. Do you imagine I fear either you, or your precious brother? Why, I could have him hung to-morrow."

She was staring at him with wide open eyes, her face white.

"What—what do you mean? What has Fred done?"

He was cold and sarcastic.

"That makes no difference; it is what I could induce men to swear he had done. It's easy enough to convict in this country, if you only know how. I simply tell you this, so you won't press me too hard. Puritanism is out of place west of the Missouri, especially among ladies of your profession. Oh, come, now, Christie, don't try to put such airs on with me. I know who you are, all right, and can guess why you are hunting after Fred Willoughby. I pumped the boy, and got most of the truth out of him."

"You—you have seen him, then, since you left me," she faltered, bewildered, "and didn't bring him here with you?"

"Why should I?" and the man stepped forward, his eyes on her, his hands twitching with a desire to clasp her to him, yet restrained by some undefinable power. "While I believed your brother story, I could have played the good Samaritan most beautifully, but after I talked with Willoughby I prefer him at a distance."

"My brother story! Do you mean to insinuate you doubt his being my brother? He told you that?"

"He gave up the whole trick. You can't trust a kid like that, Christie. A couple of drinks will loosen his tongue, and put you in wrong. Come, now, I know it all; be reasonable."

Apparently the girl had lost her power of speech, staring blindly at the face of the man before her, as a bird meets the slow approach of a snake. Keith could see her lips move, but making no sound. Hawley evidently interpreted her silence as hesitation, doubt as to his real meaning.

"You see where you are at now, Christie," he went on swiftly. "But you don't need to be afraid. I'm going to be a friend to you, and you can be mighty glad you got rid of Willoughby so easily. Why, I can buy you diamonds where he couldn't give you a calico dress. Come on, let's stop this foolishness. I took a liking to you back there in the stage, and the more I've thought about you since the crazier I've got. When I succeeded in pumping Willoughby dry, and discovered you wasn't his sister at all, why that settled the matter. I came down here after you. I love you, do you understand that? And, what's more, I intend to have you!"

He reached out, and actually grasped her, but, in some manner, she tore loose, and sprang back around the end of the table, her cheeks flushed, her eyes burning.

"Don't touch me! don't dare touch me!" she panted. "You lie; Fred Willoughby never told you that. If you come one step nearer, I'll scream; I'll call your men here; I'll tell them the kind of a cur you are."

He laughed, leaning over toward her, yet hesitating, his eyes full of admiration Her very fierceness appealed to him, urged him on.

"Oh, I wouldn't! In the first place they probably wouldn't hear, for they are camped down in the corral. I suspected you might be something of a tigress, and preferred to fight it out with you alone. Then, even if they did hear, there would be no interference—I've got those fellows trained too well for that. Come on, Christie; you're helpless here."

"Am I?"

"Yes, you are."

He took a step toward her, his hands flung out. With one quick movement she sprang aside and extinguished the lamp, plunging the room into instant darkness. A few red coals glowed dully in the fireplace, but all else was dense blackness. Keith heard the movements of Hawley, as he felt his way uncertainly along the table, swearing as he failed to find the girl. Then, like a shadow, he glided through the partly open door into the room.

CHAPTER XI.

The Fight in the Dark.

Had the room been filled with men Keith could have restrained himself no longer. Whatever her past might be, this woman appealed to him strangely; he could not believe evil of her; he would have died if need be in her defense. But as it was, the ugly boast of Hawley gave confidence in the final outcome of this struggle in the dark, even a possibility of escape for them all. The gambler, assured of being confronted merely by a frail and not overscrupulous woman, had ventured there alone; had stationed his men beyond sound; had doubtless instructed them to ignore any noise of struggle which they might overhear within. It was these very arrangements for evil which now afforded opportunity, and Keith crept forward, alert and ready, his teeth clenched, his hands bare for contest. Even although he surprised his antagonist, it was going to be a fight for life; he knew "Black Bart," broad-shouldered, quick as a cat, accustomed to every form of physical exercise, desperate and tricky, using either knife or gun recklessly. Yet it was now or never for all of them, and the plainsman felt no mercy, experienced no reluctance. He reached the table, and straightened up, silent, expectant. For an instant there was no further sound; no evidence of movement in the room. Hawley, puzzled by the silence, was listening intently in an endeavor to thus locate the girl through some rustling, some slight motion. A knife, knocked from the table, perhaps, as she slipped softly past, fell clattering to the floor, and the gambler leaped instantly forward. Keith's grip closed like iron on his groping arm, while he shot one fist out toward where the man's head should be. The blow glanced, yet drove the fellow backward, stumbling against the table, and Keith closed in, grappling for the throat. The other, startled by the unexpected attack, and scarcely realizing even yet the nature of his antagonist, struggled blindly to escape the fingers clawing at him, and flung one hand down to the knife in his belt. Warned by the movement, the assailant drove his head into the gambler's chest, sending him crashing to the floor, falling himself heavily upon the prostrate body. Hawley gave utterance to one cry, half throttled in his throat, and then the two grappled fiercely, so interlocked together as to make weapons useless. Whoever the assailant might be, the gambler was fully aware by now that he was being crushed in the grasp of a fighting man, and exerted every wrestler's trick, every ounce of strength, to break free. Twice he struggled to his knees, only to be crowded backward by relentless power; once he hurled Keith sideways, but the plainsman's muscles stiffened into steel, and he gradually regained his position. Neither dared release a grip in order to strike a blow; neither had sufficient breath left with which to utter a sound. They were fighting for life, silently, desperately, like wild beasts, with no thought but to injure the other. The gambler's teeth sank into Keith's arm, and the latter in return jammed the man's head back onto the puncheon floor viciously. Perspiration streamed from their bodies, their fingers clutching, their limbs wrapped together, their muscles strained to the utmost. Keith had forgotten the girl, the negro, everything, dominated by the one passion to conquer. He was swept by a storm of hatred, a desire to kill. In their fierce struggle the two had rolled close to the fire place, and in the dull glow of the dying embers, he could perceive a faint outline of the man's face. The sight added flame to his mad passion, yet he could do nothing except to cling to him, jabbing his fingers into the straining throat.

The negro ended the affair in his own way, clawing blindly at the combatants in the darkness, and finally, determining which was the enemy, he struck the gambler with the stock of his gun, laying him out unconscious. Keith, grasping the table, hauled himself to his feet, gasping for breath, certain only that Hawley was no longer struggling. For an instant all was blank, a mist of black vapor; then a realization of their situation came back in sudden flood of remembrance. Even yet he could see nothing, but felt the motionless figure at his feet.

"Quick," he urged, the instant he could make himself speak. "The fellow is only stunned; we must tie and gag him. Is that you, Neb? Where is the girl?"

"I am here, Captain Keith," and he heard the soft rustle of her dress across the room. "What is it I may do?"

"A coil of rope, or some straps, with a piece of cloth; anything you can lay hands on."

She was some moments at it, confused by the darkness, and Hawley moved slightly, his labored breathing growing plainly perceptible. Keith heard her groping toward him, and held out his hands. She started as he thus unexpectedly touched her, yet made no effort to break away.

"You—you frightened me a little," she confessed. "This has all happened so quickly I hardly realize yet just what has occurred."

"The action has only really begun," he assured her, still retaining his hold upon her hand. "This was merely a preliminary skirmish, and you must prepare to bear your part in what follows. We have settled Mr. Hawley for the present, and now must deal with his gang."

"Oh, what would I have done if you had not been here?"

"Let us not think about that; we were here, and now have a busy night before us if we get away safely. Give me the rope first. Good! Here, Neb, you must know how to use this—not too tight, but without leaving any play to the arms; take the knife out of his belt. Now for the cloth, Miss Maclaire."

"Please do not call me that!"

"But you said it didn't make any difference what I called you."

"I though it didn't then, but it does now."

"Oh, I see; we are already on a new footing. Yet I must call you something."

She hesitated just long enough for him to notice it. Either she had no substitute ready at hand, or else doubted the advisability of confiding her real name under present circumstances to one so nearly a stranger.

"You may call me Hope."

"A name certainly of good omen," he returned. "From this moment I shall forget Christie Maclaire, and remember only Miss Hope. All right, Neb; now turn over a chair, and sit your man up against it. He will rest all the easier in that position until his gang arrives."

He thrust his head out of the door, peering cautiously forth into the night, and listening. A single horse, probably the one Hawley had been riding, was tied to a dwarfed cottonwood near the corner of the cabin. Nothing else living was visible.

"I am going to round up our horses, and learn the condition of Hawley's outfit," he announced in a low voice. "I may be gone for fifteen or twenty minutes, and, meanwhile, Miss Hope, get ready for a long ride. Neb, stand here close beside the door, and if any one tries to come in brain him with your gun-stock. I'll rap three times when I return."

He slipped out into the silent night, and crept cautiously around the end of the dark cabin. The distinct change in the girl's attitude of friendship toward him, her every evident desire that he should think well of her, together with the providential opportunity for escape, had left him full of confidence. The gambler had played blindly into their hands, and Keith was quick enough to accept the advantage. It was a risk to himself, to be sure, thus turning again to the northward, yet the clear duty he owed the girl left such a choice almost imperative. He certainly could not drag her along with him on his flight into the wild Comanche country extending beyond the Canadian. She must, at the very least, be first returned to the protection of the semi-civilization along the Arkansas. After that had been accomplished, he would consider his own safety. He wondered if Hope really was her name, and whether it was the family cognomen, or her given name. That she was Christie Maclaire he had no question, yet that artiste embellishment was probably merely assumed for the work of the concert hall. Both he and Hawley could scarcely be mistaken as to her identity in this respect, and, indeed, she had never openly denied the fact. Yet she did not at all seem to be that kind, and Keith mentally contrasted her with numerous others whom he had somewhat intimately known along the border circuit. It was difficult to associate her with that class; she must have come originally from some excellent family East, and been driven to the life by necessity; she was more to be pitied than blamed. Keith held no puritanical views of life—his own experiences had been too rough and democratic for that—yet he clung tenaciously to an ideal of womanhood which could not be lowered. However interested he might otherwise feel, no Christie Maclaire could ever find entrance into the deeps of his heart, where dwelt alone the memory of his mother.

He found the other horses turned into the corral, and was able, from their restless movements, to decide they numbered eight. A fire, nearly extinguished, glowed dully at the farther corner of the enclosure, and he crawled close enough to distinguish the recumbent forms of men sleeping about it on the ground. Apparently no guard had been set, the fellows being worn out from their long ride, and confident of safetly in this isolated spot. Besides, Hawley had probably assumed that duty, and told them to get whatever sleep they could. However, the gate of the corral opened beside their fire, and Keith dare not venture upon roping any of their ponies, or leading them out past where they slept. There might be clippers in the cabin with which he could cut the wires, yet if one of the gang awoke, and discovered the herd absent, it would result in an alarm, and lead to early pursuit. It was far safer to use their own ponies. He would lead Hawley's horse quietly through the water, and they could mount on the other shore. This plan settled, he went at it swiftly, riding the captured animal while rounding up the others, and fastening the three to stunted trees on the opposite bank. Everything within the cabin remained exactly as he had left it, and he briefly explained the situation, examing Hawley's bonds again carefully while doing so.

"He'll remain there all right until his men find him," he declared, positively, "and that ought to give us a good six hours' start. Come, Miss Hope, every minute counts now."

He held her arm, not unconscious of its round shapeliness, as he helped her down the rather steep bank through the dense gloom. Then the two men joined hands, and carrying her between them, waded the shallow stream. The horses, not yet sufficiently rested to be frisky, accepted their burdens meekly enough, and, with scarcely a word spoken, the three rode away silently into the gloom of the night.

Somerville took Westfield down a peg in the Central New Jersey League Saturday by the score of 7-1. From the start the Mt. Ararat combination was overwhelmed and helpless before the Somerville sluggers. S. V. White, the crack Princeton twirler, who was on the mound for for the Westfield team, was no puzzle to the opposing batsmen in the first two innings and seven runs were gleaned from his delivery. After the second round he held the Somerville team safe.

Westfield was saved from a shutout in the fifth inning when Boyd brought O'Rourke home by a clean single. This was the only time that Westfield had a chance to score.

The fielding of the Somerville team was perfect while two errors were charged up against the Westfield ball tossers. Clinton pitched a steady game, allowing only five hits and striking out seven men. Donohue and McDonald divided the batting honors with three hits apiece. Erxleben accepted thirteen chances on first without an error.

In the prettiest, as well as quickest game of the season, the Scotch Plains team defeated High Bridge, Saturday afternoon on the 'Plains diamond. The playing was of the snappy order and in one hour and three minutes the last man had been retired and the 'Plains boys had the game, 3-2.

The first three innings went off in one, two ,three order, both MacLaughlin and Blackwell pitching great ball.

In their half of the fourth inning the 'Plains aggregation put one run over the rubber. Mullen up went out second to first, H. Alberts found one to his liking and placed it in left field for a two bagger, Gray sacrificed and took Alberts to third base, Frentz clouted a two base drive to center and Alberts scored. In the sixth, High Bridge found the ball and put two runs over. C. Walton laced a single to center field, stretching the hit to a two-bagger on the slow handling,E. Walton brought him in with a two bagger in the same territory. Blackwell put a single in right garden and scored E. Walton. MacLaughlin tightening up and the batting fest was over. Score 2-1 in favor High Bridge.

The 'Plains bunch came back in the seventh and pounded Blackwell for three hits. These together with Greenfield's error in dropping Baldwin's fly, gave Scotch Plains two runs and the game as High Bridge was unable to score again.

JUNE TROPHY PLAY AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

Continuation of play for the June trophy was the chief event at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon, and the cards returned indicate that nearly every match was closely contested. This was the second round and as the competition continues the real strength of the players is shown. The course was thronged with players throughout the day, some of whom also took part in the 18-holes match play, handicap against par.

Besides the play on the course the clubhouse was thronged with members and friends. In the evening Superintendent John Hilton served dinner for about fifty people. These cards were returned in the play for the June trophy:

Class A—E. T. Wilson defeated S. H. Patterson 2 up and 1 to play; R. S. Rowland defeated J. E. Erickson, 2 up and 1 to play; H. D. Hibbard defeated W. Lester Glenny, 4 up and 3 to play; C. C. Riggs won from Willard Wadsworth by default.

These cards were returned in the 18-holes match play, handicap, against par:

Class A—W. T. Kaufman, 1 up; C. B. Morgan, 2 down; W. T. Glenney, 2 down; E. B. Shoemaker, 3 down.

Class B—C. M. Church, 4 down; H. F. Fox, 8 down.

R.V. CARPENTER WINS SPRING 'CHAMP' CUP

The chief event at the Park Golf Club, Saturday was the final play for the Spring championship cup. R. V Carpenter won the trophy, defeating Dr. H. K. Carroll, 1 up, in a close and exciting match. Both players were about at the top of their game and it was nip and tuck as to who would eventually win out.

In the weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups, these cards were returned:

R. V. Carpenter, 99, 15-84; N. A. Morrison, 116, 27-89; J. V. Beekman, 113, 20-93; C. W. McCutchen, 104, 11-93; A. M. Morrel, 117, 18-99; S. W. Thompson, 141, 25-116.

These scores were posted in the women's competition, nine holes:

Mrs. G. S. Powell, 85, 29-56; Miss Harriet Shreve, 76, 19-57; Mrs. F. W. Jones, 67, 9-58; Miss Grace TenEyck, 65, 4-61; Miss Bess R. TenEyck, 82, 21-61.

Stevens, 8; Rutgers, 4.

Stevens Institute defeated Rutgers College in the final game of the series between the two teams on the Rutgers diamond, Saturday afternoon. Several local people witnessed the contest, which was preceeded by an Alumni parade. Rutgers outbatted the engineers but gave the game away on errors and loose fielding.

BANKING CONVENIENCE
4% PROFIT

One of the strongest arguments in favor of keeping one's bank account in Plainfield, whether it be a checking account or a savings account, is convenience. Especially is this true of the savings account; for who has not wearily waited his turn on a New York Savings Bank line in July or January, when he wished to deposit or withdraw money? Better bring in your passbook to us and allow us to attend to the transfer of your account without expense and without the loss of interest and at the same time relieve your estate of a possible inheritance tax.

DUNELLEN WON CLOSE GAME FROM CRANFORD

Dunellen defeated Cranford Saturday at Dunellen in an interesting and very exciting game 5 to 4. Frederickson, who failed to warm up sufficiently before the game, was hit hard during the first session, but was a complete puzzle from then on.

A double play by Barnes, unassisted, his three base drive with two men on the sacks and a difficult catch by Elliott, which made possible a double play, were the features of the game.

Children's Day Exercises.

Children's Day exercises were held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, yesterday, when the program as published in The Daily Press of Saturday, was presented. It included recitations and songs by the children. The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion by John McCormick, assisted by John Goodman. The whole decorative scheme was called "The Gateway of Life." In the evening there were addresses by laymen on the subject, "What Religion Means to Me in my Business."

CLERGYMAN TALKS

Englishman Includes Cost of Living and Fast Living Among Our Troubles.

IMMIGRATION PROBLEM, TOO.

As the Rev. William Spurgeon, of London, England, Sees us is Told by Himself in a Lecture.

Facts and figures of a nature startling enough to make people ponder more than ever over the high cost of living, were given by Rev. Dr. William Spurgeon in the Park avenue Baptist church last night. The information was divulged in the course of his lecture on "An Englishman's Impressions of America." The speaker did not mince matters in expressing his views and gave his audience plenty of food for thought in comparing Yankee methods with those of John Bull's subjects.

Dr. Spurgeon devoted a considerable portion of his address to the cost of living in this country and explained the reason for some of it. In America, he said, housewives are compelled to pay twenty cents for thirteen and a half ounces of bread. In England for four pence or eight cents, they can get four pounds of bread made from Kansas wheat. American beef, the product of the western plains, is sold in the British Isles cheaper than it can be had in Chicago markets, despite the fact that transportation across the Atlantic and import duty cost money.

"The reason for this is plain," said Dr. Spurgeon, "the trusts place the burden upon America in order to compete with the foreign markets. Losses encountered in the competition of the latter are made up by the immense profits of the former.

Speaking from another viewpoint, the English divine declared Americans live too fast. The rapid pace in business and social affairs is detrimental to the race and if continued, he declared, Americans would be a nation of nervous wrecks in another quarter of a century. The speaker said he had a brother who went into Wall street and in a few years amassed a fortune. At the same time his health had been impaired and his wealth amounts to naught when the cost is considered. In contrast to this reference, Dr. Spurgeon quoted the case of an uncle he has in London. This man has been in business in the world's metropolis for forty years. While he has not made millions or hundreds of thousands, in the eyes of the people who know him he is a successful merchant with an independent income.

"And what is more," added the clergyman, "he is in good health and likely to live for many more years to enjoy the fruits of his labors."

Immigration, as it is permitted at present, is another American feature that impresses Englishmen, Dr. Spurgeon said, and it is one that needs stricter supervision. Twenty-five years ago, the people flocking to these shores were peaceful, industrious and desirable English, Irish, Scotch, Germans and Scandinavians. Now it is the undesirable Europeans who are pouring into the country by thousands, a large part of them lawless, many of them shiftless and not a few a detriment to the welfare of the nation. Unless something is done to restrict this class of immigration, Dr. Spurgeon said, America will some day be confronted with a question far more serious than the so-called race problem which is now a matter of national discussion.

In the course of his lecture, Dr. Spurgeon told other things that had impressed him forcebly, one of which was New York's sky line when he first entered the great harbor. The immense buildings were a source of wonderment to him at first but after lengthy reflection it occured to him that those of London, though much closer to mother earth, were more massive and in better conformity to the general architectural tone of the city.

N. P. H. S. Class Day Tomorrow.

The class day exercises of the senior class of the North Plainfield High School will be held tomorrow night at eight o'clock in Debele's Hall. An attractive and interesting program of jokes and songs has been arranged by the class. The exercises will be followed by an informal dance.

J. F. GARRETSON'S FUNERAL IS HELD

The funeral service of Jeremiah F. Garretson was held at the late home on West Fourth street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, it being largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mr. Garretson was an attendant for many years, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections, offered prayer and read the selection, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," which was Mr. Garretson's favorite poem. Mr. Broek also made a short address.

There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from relatives and friends; also from Mr. Garretson's fellow-employes of the New Jersey Central, including the Veteran Employes' Association of which he was a member for many years. The burial was in the cemetery at Somerville near which place Mr. Garretson was born.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WM. C. CHAMBERLIN

The funeral service of William C. Chamberlin was held at the late residence on East Third street, yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including delegations from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., Franklin Council, No. 41. Jr. O. U. A. M., the Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association and the Plainfield fire department.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mr. Chamberlin was a member, conducted the services, reading Scripture selections and making a short address. Afterward the officers of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. &. A. M., conducted its ritualistic service.

There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from all of the lodges represented; also from Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Prost, of Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Allen, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Coulter, of Passaic; Miss Lelia Gulick, of Stanford, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. W. R. VanSickle, and Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Adelberg, of this city.

The burial was in the family plot of the new cemetery at Somerville, and the pall-bearers were John C. Bicknell and William Addis, from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Fred Rose and William Harper, of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., and Robert Skinner and Patrick McDonald, from the fire department.

WESTFIELD'S THEATRE WILL SOON BE BUILT.

A theatre for Westfield is the latest project being discused in that town. Lawyer W. G. Peckham, owner of the Westfield Inn property in Broad street, Westfield, is authority for the statement that negotiations have been going on for some time to build a theatre in Westfield.

The site for the proposed playhouse is at the rear of the Westfield Inn, with entrance through the inn or adjoining that property. Tentative plans of the proposed playhouse have already been made and the proposed theatre will not only be a place of amusement but will furnish the great demand for a large auditorium in the town, which is so badly needed for public meetings, school graduation exercises and concerts.

Sullivan, Elizabeth M. Schuck, Sarah V. Traynor, Mary F. Wilson, Agnes T. Phillips, Julia M. Regan, Elizabeth A. McAlvannah, Margaret L. Keating, Ella A. Mattox and Ellen E. Regan.

PETITION TO WIDEN WATCHUNG AVENUE

Approved by those controlling the majority of the frontage, a movement has been begun to have Watchung avenue, between the railroad bridge and East Front street widened on its easterly side. The agitation is started at this time because extensive improvements will shortly be made on that thoroughfare. Among the projects will be the Federal building to cost over $100,000 at the southeast corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street and the Elks club on the westerly side of Watchung avenue, between East Second street and East Front street.

The proposed plan is that the avenue be widened ten feet on the easterly side and a petition for that purpose is now being circulated. Among the signers are the Home Real Estate company, Charles Sebring, J. F. MacDonald, Frank H. Smith and Charles H. Hand. It is reported that the Elks will also sign. Those mentioned control a majority of the property affected.

When the petition is completed, it will be filed with City Clerk MacMurray and will be presented at the early opportunity to the Common Council for action. Report has it that there will be no objection on the part of the city fathers, particularly as the improvement would relieve the congested condition which would be brought about when the postoffice building is erected.

'BILL' NOT 'AFEARED' OF 'BURGLAR MAN'

There was considerable excitement at the home of Mrs. Walter Freeman, on South avenue last night when she and family returned from town and found the house illuminated. Only an hour previous they left the house in darkness, and naturally were frightened to find the lights burning. It was some time before any member of the party could muster up courage to approach the residence and finally the whole family decided to go together, after first securing Captain William Townley, of the Netherwood fire house, to accompany them.

Upon opening the house and making a search, the fears of the party subsided by finding everything all right. The solution to the trouble was found to be that some one had left the electric light switch turned on.

NASH TO HELP STEER BOARD OF EDUCATION

At the meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night, Charles I. Nash, of DeLacy avenue, was chosen to fill the unexpired term of Rev. George A. Warner, whose resignation was accepted. Mr. Nash's term of service will continue until the annual school committee meeting in March, 1912, although Mr. Warner had been elected for a term of three years, such being in accordance with the rules of the Board of Education. Mr. Nash's name was presented by Hiram A. Woodruff, who dilated on his capacity for the work.

The resignation of Miss Phoebe N. Waller, who has been a teacher of English in the borough high school for the past three years, was also accepted. Miss Waller has taken a position as English instructor in a private school at Madison, where she will take up her duties next fall.

Albert C. Steiner was chosen clerk of the board for another year.

The bids for coal for the coming year were considered and the contract awarded to the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company. Peckam and Little, of New York, were given the contract for stationery and school supplies for next year, that firm being the lowest bidder.

In addition to the routine business of ordering bills to the amount of $10,000, paid, the board signed the diplomas of the graduates from the North Plainfield High School. It was on account of this work that the meeting of the board was called for last night instead of next Monday, which is the regular date.

After Mr. Nash was chosen, he was immediately notified and took his place on the board at last night's meeting. All of the members were present except Nelson Miller.

Mayor Anderson Makes Arrest.

Mayor W. deLaR. Anderson, of Watchung, together with Detective Sergeant Perret, of the force of that borough, arrested Alle Dolby and Louis Barbier, both French, on the charge of being drunk and disorderly on the Valley road last night. The prisoners were held in the North Plainfield jail until this morning when they were given a hearing before Justice Hughes, of Watchung, at the borough court. Both men were fined $5 apiece.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade an exceptionally fine assortment of fancy strawberries and cherries for either table use, canning or preserving.

REAL ESTATE SWAP

Local Property Aggregating $75,000 in Value Changes Hands in a Deal.

SPENCER TRACT IS INCLUDED.

No. 137 Crescent Avenue Also Figures in Transaction in Which Lederer, Abbott and Mulford Take Part.

Undoubtedly one of the largest and most important realty deals in this city, recently, was closed today by Albert Lederer and Armstrong Mulford, real estate brokers, and which aggregates a consideration of about $75,000. The deal is more in the nature of an exchange and will result in extensive improvements. Mr. Lederer sold for William Abbott, the valuable Spencer tract at Park avenue and East Seventh street, to Dr. P. J Zeglio, who plans to make many improvement to the same. This tract 210 feet on Park avenue and 150 feet on East Seventh street, is considered the highest priced land in the city.

In connection with this deal, Mr. Lederer also sold to William Abbott for Dr. Zeglio, the latter's residential property at 137 Crescent avenue, occupied by Mrs. L. R. Williams, who will continue to live there for a year at least.

Armstrong Mulford then sold the property at 137 Crescent avenue for Mr. Abbott to Ernest Sharpe and he also sold to Mr. Abbott a large tract of land on Evergreen avenue, with several hundred feet frontage, upon which Mr. Abbott will build a number of houses.

The deal for the Spencer tract is probably the most important, as it has changed hands a number of times since last September. Several parties have been endeavoring to secure the tract, but without success.

FINAL DECREE FOR MRS. MARGARET BALL.

J. Henry Crane, representing Mrs Margaret W. Ball, the petitioner, has received from Chancellor Mahlon Pitney, the final decree of divorce from Karl M. Ball. The latter made no reply to the suit. Mr. and Mrs. Ball formerly resided here, the former at one time being manager for the Clarkhurst Dairy in this city. He was also well known as a singer, being a member of the vested choir at Holy Cross church.

Mrs. Ball is now residing at Messina, N. Y., where she has been ever since she started her suit for divorce, several months ago. Mr. Ball's present whereabouts is not known. He removed from Plainfield sometime ago prior to the commencement of the suit.

MEETINGS AT THE NETHERWOOD CHURCH.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Dutch Arms of the Netherwood Reformed church was held last night at the home of Arthur Kienzle on Netherwood avenue. After the business was transacted, a social hour and refreshments were enjoyed.

The Christian Endeavor Society will hold its business meeting tonight. Tomorrow night the officers, teachers and older members of the Sunday-school will hold a business meeting after the regular church prayer meeting.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold a business meeting at the church Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Funeral of Mrs. Robert Armstrong.

The funeral service of Mrs. Delia Armstrong, widow of Robert Armstrong, was held at the late home on East Fourth street, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, officiated in the absence of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, of which Mrs. Armstrong was a member. The service was attended by many friends and neighbors and there were a number of floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Ciocco Found Guilty.

Phillip Ciocco, the Italian shoemaker, residing on Liberty street, who was charged with assault on Mary Ennis, aged twelve years, about a month ago, was convicted of the charge in the Union County Court, yesterday and will be sentenced next week. Patrolman Cornelius McCarty, who arrested Ciocco, and Chief Kiely were among the witnesses for the State.

Baggage Expressman.

Plainfielders going away for the summer and desiring a reliable expressman for the transportation of their baggage are reminded that A. E. Hoagland, whose advertisement appears in another column of this issue is equipped for such service.

MR. ROCK A FREAK

He Had Two Mouths, Two Tongues, Three Eyes and Perfectly Formed Body.

NOT A NATURE FAKE STORY.

This Chick Born at Theodore Leurssen's Hennery at Watchung Village, Where There Are Other Freaks.

Did you ever hear of a little chick with two mouths, two tongues, three eyes, and a perfectly formed body in every other particular? Theodore Leurssen, a farmer of Watchung, has such a chick and this is not what Theodore Roosevelt terms a "nature fake." The queer looking speciman from the poultry farm entered the hennery of one hundred chickens at the Leurssen place on Sunday morning together with twelve brothers and sisters. He belonged to the Plymouth Rock family and according to the usual custom of these birds, he proudly walked around his little world of chicken corn as soon as he emerged from his broken shell.

The freak was an exceptional fowl although the product of a single yoked egg of pure Plymouth breed. Upon entering this land of sin and corrupt politics, he became aware of the fact that he had and important mission to fulfill, that of becoming an orator for he was blessed with two mouths. He saw himself proudly leading his little band of brothers back to the home of their ancestors, perching themselves on the runis of Plymouth Rock, crowing defiance to all butchers and pillow makers, and reclaiming the land which had been taken from them.

The exceptional bird became excited in his imaginings and immediately started to argue with himself, one mouth taking the affirmative while the other upheld the negative. The heat of the discussion was too much for his young brain and within six hours of his birth, he died of neuritis.

Mr. Leurssen is exhibiting the remains of his wonderful fowl to his friends today. He says that he had set thirteen eggs, all of which were hatched in exactly three weeks. None of the eggs were unusually large and the rest of the brood are strong and healthy. The two mouthed chicken was clothed in its full quota of feathers and normal in every detail except that it weighed a few more ounces than the ordinary normal chick of his age.

ORDINATION SERVICE FOR REV. WM. P. DUNN.

Rev. William Parmly Dunn, son of Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Dunn, formerly of this city, but now of Tioga, Pa., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Dunn, of Park avenue, who was ordained at Christ Presbyterian church, Hempstead, L. I., on Friday evening, has accepted a call to the First Presbyterian church, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as assistant pastor to Rev. Dr. Farr, who was formerly associated with the late Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, at the Brick Presbyterian church, New York.

Mr. Dunn's father was ordained in Christ church, twenty-seven years ago. The ordination was conducted by Rev. Dr. Frank M. Kerr, moderator of the Presbytery of Nassau and pastor of the Hempstead church. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of this city, preached the sermon. Rev. Dr. Russell, of Oyster Bay, gave the charge to Mr. Dunn, referring to the fact that he was present at the ordination of the candidate's father, when he became pastor of the Hempstead church in July, 1884. The prayer of ordination was offered by Mr. Dunn's father.

A party of Plainfield friends attended the ordination and they were interested in the historical statement printed on a standard near the church door, setting forth the fact that the church organization of Christ church, Hempstead, is the oldest Presbyterian organization in the United Sttes, dating back to 1844.

Failed to Get Bail.

Mike Vanduro, one of the Italians who was arrested Sunday morning for stealing wood from Mount St. Mary's College, is still being held at the borough jail, having failed to obtain his $200 bail. He will be taken to the Somerset county jail today, to be held for the action of the Somerset County grand jury in September.

Decision This Afternoon.

City Judge William G. DeMeza will render his decision this afternoon in the embezzlement charge of Frank Peppi against Ralph Matthews, the local real estate dealer. Directly afterward a hearing will be given on a similar charge made against Matthews by Michael Importico.

Back Broken, Lived Two Years.

Somerville, June 20.—After living for two years with a compound fracture of the spine, John Austin, of this place, died Saturday at the State Hospital at Trenton, where he was taken two weeks ago, after he had become violently insane as the result of his injury. Austin was formerly a blacksmith. He fell from a hayloft two years ago and was picked up with a broken back and taken to the Somerset Hospital. His death was expected in a few weeks, but he astonished the doctors with his remarkable vitality and continued to improve slightly, although paralyzed below the waist.

Thomas Walsh, of Prospect avenue, returned yesterday to his position in New York, after a two weeks' vacation.

The regular monthly meeting of Excelsior H. & L. Co., was held last night in the company's parlors.

Frank Hand, who has been catching for the Y. M. C. A. team, played with Dunellen Saturday.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Jonn Mason continues his highly successful engagement at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre in "As A Man Thinks," under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. The performance will continue throughout the summer except for a brief vacation in the midst of the hot weather. In this play, Mr. Mason is breaking all records for a serious dramatic production opening so late in the year, and there is every reason to believe that the production will run for an entire second season in New York. The company appearing in the support of Mr. Mason includes Vincent Serrano, Walter Hale, John Flood, William Sampson, Chrystal Herne, Amelia Gardner, Charlotte Ives and Gail Kane. Regular matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Best seats Wednesday matinees, $1.50.

The Willard Loyal Temperance Legion will hold its annual picnic on June 26.

SOUTH ORANGE MEN IN AUTO CRASH ARE HURT.

Rockaway, June 20. — Charles Hughes, of 134 Ward place, South Orange, and Ira T. Redfern, the engineer of that village, were injured in an automobile crash in front of a garage here Sunday afternoon. They were hurt when Mr. Hughes' machine, standing at the curb, was knocked against them by a car in which former Mayor Thomas Brady, of Bayonne, and an elderly woman were riding.

The front of the Hughes machine was wrecked and one of the front wheels torn off. Mr. Redfern was standing at the side of the car on the sidewalk while Mr. Hughes was near the front of it as an employe of the garage was filling a tank with gasoline. Mr. Brady's car came from the direction of Denville and the chauffeur made a frantic effort to avoid the crash.

Dr. S. W. Flagge was summoned to attend the injured men and they later were able to go to their homes. Dr. Flagge said he could not determine how badly injured either of the men was, but that a superficial examination disclosed no broken bones.

At their homes in South Orange yesterday morning it was said Mr. Hughes was cut about the head and body, while Mr. Redfern escaped with a shaking-up.

Alleged "Speakeasy" Raided.

New Brunswick, June 20.—A raid was made upon the alleged speakeasy of L. Guillon, on the Old Bridge road, near the racetrack, Sunday afternoon, by detecitves sent out by Prosecutor T. B. Booream. The raiding force was in charge of Detective William Housell. The proprietor and four men were caught by the five officers. Housell is also a justice of the peace, and upon the arrests being made he held court. Guillon was released on $500 bail and the four men held under $50 bond as witnesses. It is alleged that beer was sold at six cents a bottle and whiskey at ten cents a nip.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will close his services at the church on Sunday, July 2, when the communion service will be held. He and Mrs. Chambliss plan to live in East Orange after leaving this city.

PET CAT'S BITE MAY COST FARMER'S LIFE.

North Branch, June 20.—Suffering from blood poisoning due to the bite of a cat, Simon P. Nevius, a farmer of this section, is in a critical condition. For some time the cat, a pet of the family had been catching chickens. After several unsuccessful attempts to catch the beast, Mr. Nevius, three days ago, succeeded in nabbing her, when she turned on him and bit him in the little finger of the right hand. He shook her loose, but she seized the thumb of the same hand and hung on. It was only after a hard tussel that the cat was forced to let go.

The wounds were not very deep, and Mr. Nevius failed to treat them. Soon the scratch on the little finger began to pain him, and a physician was summoned. The wound had been neglected so long, however, that it was impossible to prevent the poison from spreading through Mr. Nevius' system. The wound in the thumb did not become infected.

Mr. Nevius was taken to Somerset Hospital in Somerville Sunday.

"Jim" to Speak in Newark.

For the dollar dinner to be given June 28, by the Woodrow Wilson Democratic League of Essex County the full list of speakers has been announced. Besides Governor Wilson there will be addresses by United States Senator Gore, of Oklahoma; Senator Martine, of this State; Congressmen Townsend, McCoy and Hughes; Dudley Field Malone, assistant Corporation Counsel of New York and son-in-law of United States Senator O'Gorman, and Senator Harry V. Osborne. To these there may be added one or two more.

Sustains Verdict Against P. S. C.

Trenton, June 20.—Finding that the verdict of the jury was not contrary to the weight of evidence, the Supreme Court has sustained a judgment for damages recovered by Mary F. Tevlin against the Public Service Railway Company. The woman was thrown down and dragged by the trolley rope attached to one of the defendant's cars.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, of East Ninth street, leaves today for Maine, where he will spend the summer.

Oliver B. Leonard, of the borough, is spending the week at Rochester, N. Y., attending the reunion of his class at Rochester University.

James E. Church, of Somerset street, left today for an extended trip in the west. Mrs. Church and her doughter, Miss Glayds Leland, will spend the summer at Ocean Grove.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Ard have returned from their honeymoon and are residing at Park avenue and West Sixth street. Since their marriage two weeks ago the couple have been enjoying an automobile tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur VanArsdale, who were married here last week, have been visiting in Washington for a few days. This week they will go to Belmar for a couple of weeks, after which they will return home.

Mrs. Pearson, who accompanied her mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Vermeule from Fort Russell, Wyoming, has left town to join her husband, Captain S. B. Pearson, of the Ninth U. S. Cavalry, at San Antonio, Texas. Mrs. Vermeule is stopping at the home of her son, Frank Vermeule, of East Sixth street.

AWOKE TO FIND HERSELF BLIND.

Hackettstown, June 20.—To be stricken blind in her sleep was the lot that fell to Mrs. Henry Stryker, a widow, who resides with her daughter in Washington street. It is said that her sight is hopelessly gone.

Mrs. Stryker is well along in years. Her eyesight has been impaired, but the affliction of blindness was not anticipated. She retired as usual Friday night and slept through without interruption. It was not until she awakened in the morning that she discovered she could not see.

A daughter at Hartford, Conn., the wife of Rev. W. H. Kidd, has been informed of her mother's affliction.

P. S. C. LOST CASE IN STATE SUPREME COURT.

Trenton, June 20.—Upholding the view that the Public Service Railway Company was responsible for an accident in which a team owned by Christian H. von Rhein was struck by a trolley car, the Supreme Court has sustained a verdict for damages recovered by von Rhein. The accident happened in September, 1906, on Frelinghuysen avenue, between Elizabeth and Newark, when the plaintiff's wagon was being driven close to the tracks of the trolley company.

While in this position one of the milk cans upon the wagon was struck by a trolley car, which was approaching from behind. The impact threw the horses around on the track and thus brought about the accident. The defendant claimed that the accident happened because the driver turned his horses upon the track just as the car was about to pass the wagon. The ground urged for setting aside the verdict was that it was contrary to the preponderance of evidence.

Rev. E. W. Roberts, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, has returned from Providence, R. I., where he attended the New England Baptist convention, it being the seventh anniversary. Mr. Roberts is one of the managers of that body. Mr. Roberts also attended the World's Baptist convention in Philadelphia.

ENDORSE BRODHEAD FOR STATE SENATOR

The Plainfield Democratic Club at a largely attended meeting last night adopted resolutions urging Assemblyman Calvin E Brodhead, of this city, to consent to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination of State Senator, to succeed the Republican incumbent Senator Ernest R. Ackerman. A copy of the resolutions were ordered sent to Mr. rBodhead.

A few weeks ago a complimentary dinner was given to Mr. Brodhead by the Plainfield Democratic Club, at which time his candidacy for the State Senate was launched. He said then that he was not seeking the office, but his most intimate friends believe that if nominated he will run. Last night the club pledged its hearty support to Mr. Brodhead. The club elected five new members and discussed routine matters. A large delegation of Elizabeth Democrats attended the meeting.

OUTING ENJOYED BY SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS

The Sunday-school class of Trinity Reformed church, of which Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, is the teacher, enjoyed an outing at the Park Club Golf Club, last night. The party of fifteen young men were accompanied by Mr. Dolliver and Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of the church. A fine dinner prepared by Mrs. Dolliver, wife of Recorder Dolliver and her mother, Mrs. Reeber, of New York, was taken to the club and the spread was one of the most pleasing features of the outing.

The young men afterward had a good time playing games, singing songs and telling stories. They remained at the club until late in the evening, returning home in the light of the moon. Those in the party were Rev. J. Y. Broek, Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, Joel Allegar, Clifford E. Cole, Arthur Dawe, LeRoy Hann, Russell Hann, Edward Allen, Howard Debele, Raymond Hodge George Morrison, Vlentine Steenson, Herbert Renninger, Lester Renninger, Joseph E. Kirch, John Schofield.

TWO LIBEL SUITS MARK TRENTON'S CAMPAIGN

Following a sensation and bitter campaign, which resulted yesterday in the Trenton Evening Times and the Trenton Sunday Advertiser instituting suits for libel against each other for $25,000 and $50,000 damages, respectively, the voters of Trenton go to the polls today to decide the question of substituting the commission form of municipal government for the present Councilman plan.

Never has Trenton experienced such a spirited and factional fight, and as the chief issues have been made purely local ones it is not believed last week's defeat of the proposal in Bayonne will have any effect whatever on the result at Trenton. The result, however, is in doubt, and the only safe prediction is that the contest will be exceedingly close.

Advocated by Governor Wilson and hundreds of prominent merchants and manufacturers of the city, there was at first a widespread sentiment in favor of the change, but suddenly powerful opposition developed, party lines being forgotten friends and foes of the plan taking their stand, regardless of political affiliation.

The Evening Times has been supporting the campaign, while the Sunday Advertiser has as strongly assailed the movement. Both are known as independent organs, and their fight has resulted in sensational attacks on each other, the former charging that the Advertiser publishers are self-confessed "grafters" on public printing, while the Advertiser asserted that sordid motives prompted the Times to champion the crusade.

It is declared by the supporters of the commission government idea that the brewing interests and political machines are back of the opposition and that "gum shoe methods" are being used. Thousands of marked ballots have been sent out, mass meetings have been held day and night, campaign literature has been distributed profusely and the citizens are worked up to a great pitch over the outcome.

Incomplete.

A German statistician has calculated that, roughly, there are 1,200,000,000,00 bees in the world. It is of course, imposs'ble to give the exact figures, as so many persons hide their bees in their bonnets.—Punch.

TEACHERS SELECTED FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

Arrangements have been made by the Plainfield Board of Education for the opening of a summer school for backward pupils. It is the intention that pupils who have fallen behind in a subject may have the opportunity of attending this school and getting help so as to make up the work and start in the Fall with a clean record.

The classes will be held in the Whittier School, from 8 to 11:30 a. m., and are intended for pupils in the three higher grades or in the High School. No pupil will be permitted to take more than two subjests, and no one will be retained in the class who is not there for work. The classes will be opened Monday, July 10, and will run six weeks, but any pupil may take an examination in a subject as soon as his teacher is satisfied that he is able.

Mrs. Sarah L. Wardner will have charge of the school, and will be assisted by Miss Margaret Case.

THE FORUM.

Home for Blind Children.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

May I use your columns to call attention to the Home for Blind Children maintained by the International Sunshine Society at Summit, N. J.

It has been found that blind children are taken as soon as they are blinded, they can be trained so as to enter the grades later and work with ordinary children. Also, in the case of children blind at birth, in many cases, they grow up feeble-minded or idiotic, when, if they had been sent to an institution where they would obtain proper training, they would have been found to be as bright as normal children.

An effort is being made to get into this home all the blind children in New Jersey, and especially the very young children. If any one who reads this knows of a child that is blind, they would confer a favor on the child by sending the name and address to me or to Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, 96 Fifth avenue, New York city.

Sincerely yours,
H. M. MAXSON.

BAYONNE PRINCIPAL DECLINES TO QUIT.

Bayonne, June 20.—Grown-ups who used to attend Public School No. 1 in Bayonne are wrought up because Principal Henry E. Harris, who has been in charge of the school for thirty-two years, has been asked by a member of the Board of Education to send in his resignation so a younger man might be appointed in his place.

Mr. Harris declines to quit and at the next meeting of the board the four members who favor his retirement will try to put through a resolution ousting him on an annual pension of $1,130. Four of the five other members say they are going to stick by the principal and the fifth is said to be undecided.

Mr. Harris is the dean of the Bayonne schoolmasters and one of the oldest in service in the State. He has taught in New Jersey thirty-six years and is nearly seventy years old.

BIRD AS THE CAUSE OF AN ODD MISHAP.

Asbury Park, June 20.— An innocent sparrow was the cause of a collision between an automobile and a horse and wagon yesterday morning, in which one man was hurt. The automobile was being run by William Winans, who was on his way from Avon to this city. As he neared the city line a sparrow crossed the path of his machine and struck Winans in the eye, temporarily blinding him. He lost control of his car, which swerved into Dr. Stephne A. Disbrow's rig.

The doctor was thrown from his carriage, landing on the macadam road. He was terribly bruised about the body and it is feared that he may be injured internally. The horse was pitched on to the mudguards of the auto and was extricated with much difficulty.

POLITICS.

I have never been troubled to be bothered about politics, especially the tics! But there is one matter that tics me and that I am like some of you. I do not know what I am talking about, for I have been too busy to follow up the papers. And that is the water question. If that is settled, it should not be, for that is a very very serious concoction. For our water may some day get low and there is not a river near enough to us to drink swill from. We should spend a million or two and hire a phrenologist to see if the company's heads are swelled or otherwise. In case the wells begin to go dry if their heads are wrong they will cut the water off from towns at the other end rather than this end, but if they are right they will cut it off at this end on the whole business. That will give you what you want (water in the wells) and provide them with paper to kindle their fires with, you chump you, You will never be able to get nervous prostration because your brains are in your feet. Wish our Banquet Board of Trade would go with me to Easton, and let the Board of Trade there, show you as they did me, their $601,000 guaranty fund to help chumps like me, and the only thing between us is their Delaware River water. If you have any Real Estate of any description come and see me. No charge for listing. Will make you an offer the first day you call.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Recorder Campbell had a busy session in his court Sunday morning, three offenders being arraigned before him. Thomas Ryan, who had caused a disturbance at Tozzi's barber shop, was dismissed after a reprimand. Sentence was suspended on Timothy Foley, an eighteen-year-old boy, arrested by Marshal Davenport Saturday night, for drunkenness. Edward Quinn, aged fifteen years, was arraigned on a disorderly charge. He refused to remain out of a borough pool room, being below the age limit, and the proprietor complained against him. The court warned Quinn to behave himself and stay away from pool rooms or he would be severely dealt with.

John Doty, yardman at the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company's yard, met with a serious injury Saturday while driving a load of shingles near the Howard Bird place. The forward wheels of the truck struck a ditch and the load was overturned. Mr. Doty was struck by some of the shingle bales and others pinned him down. He was rescued by men nearby and assisted to the office of Dr. Platt. It was found that two of his ribs were cracked and he had also sustained severe bruises. He was able to be about yesterday, but only to walk around.

The strawberry and ice cream festival in the Presbyterian church last night was well attended and proved a successful affair. It was conducted by the entertainment committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of which Miss Laura Todd is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, and family, of North avenue, will move to Plainfield on July 1.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

While stealing a ride on a freight train about eight o'clock last night a Polish boy from Perth Amboy had one arm cut off and a large gash cut in his head. He was taken to the Perth Amboy Hospital and is not expected to live. The accident occurred at Perth Junction the freight being enroute to South Plainfield.

Harry Mundy while canoeing on Spring Lake yesterday upset. Harry is only eleven years old and weighs 165 pounds. He swam to shore and pulled the canoe with him.

Joseph Horn and John Miller, who graduated from the grammar school last week, expect to take a business course at Drake's College.

Mrs. Nathan Snider and children, who have been visiting friends in Easton and Bethlehem have returned home.

Mrs. John Maguire has returned from a visit with friends in Metuchen.

Miss Marie Nevins is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Robert Hamilton has purchased a new bicycle.

Expert Masseur and Hydropath.

BASEBALL.

The P. H. S. freshmen took the measure of the sophomores on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon in a loosely played game to the tune of 20-10. This victory gives the Freshies the lead in the inter-class championship baseball league.

Caughlin, the sophomore twirler, was hit hard after the first inning, while Newell, the opposing slab artist, held the sophomore sluggers safe throughout. He allowed only a few scattered hits.

The line up and score by innings:

Freshmen—Hetfield, ss; Bolby, lf; Newell, p; Buckle, 3b; Glen, c; Mills, 1b; Van Zandt, 2b; Kunzman, cf, and Stierer, rf.

Sophomores—Sharkey, c; Rosenson, ss; Zerega, 2b; Brynisky,, 3b; Caughlin, p; Dennison, lf; McDowell, 1b; Jenkins, cf; and Guttridge, rf.

Sophomores ...0 1 1 0 3 0 1 4 0—10

Umpires—Wilson and Doane.

MISS SELINA M. CRANE NOW MRS. CHARTERS.

Miss Selina May Crane, daughter of Rev. Arthur Crane, of Brooklyn, and sister of J. Henry Crane, the lawyer, of this city, was married last evening at the home of the bride's father in Brooklyn, to William Allen Charters, also of Brooklyn. Rev. Joel Byron Slocum, pastor of the Greenwood Baptist church, Brooklyn, performed the ceremony.

There were about one hundred relatives and friends present, and following the ceremony a reception was held. The couple left last night for a two weeks' trip and upon their return will reside in Brooklyn. The bride formerly resided in this city, where she has many friends.

Proctor's Fine Show.

The vaudeville show at Proctor's theatre this week is one of the best offered in a long time. Edward's European Circus is an excellent animal act, the bucking mule alone being worth the price of admission. Several men tried to ride him last night, causing no end of fun. Muller & Stanley, offer a clever singing, talking and travesty skit. Margaret Bennett & Co., in a sketch, "Borrowed Finery," is a scream, while Mae Bush, a dainty comedienne, sings three up-to-date songs.

Witnessed Ordination.

Mrs. Frank Linke of West Second street, returned yesterday from St. Meinard's, Indiana where she attended the ordination service of her cousin, Rev. David P. Fitzgerald, at the Abbey. Father Fitzgerald is a graduate of St. Meinard's seminary and will have temporary charge of St. Anne's church Terre Haute, his native city. In the fall he will be transferred to the cathedral at Indianapolis. He is very popular at Terre Haute and at the seminary.

Mrs. Amy Anne Felmly.

Mrs. Amy Anne Felmly, wife of Moses Felmly, died yesterday at her home at Lebanon, Hunterdon county. The funeral service will be held at the late home, Thursday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Mrs. Felmly was well-known in this city, by a number of Plainfielders who were accustomed to spend several weeks at her delightful home in Lebanon, during the summer months.

Five Suspended.

The five Italians, who were arrested by Marshal Weiss and Keller, at Smalley's stone quarry Sunday night on the charge of being drunk and disorderly, were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Snape at the borough court last night. A fine of $20 apiece was suspended upon the lawbreakers, who were released after paying the costs of court.

Lew Dockstader Coming.

Manager H. S. Sanderson, of the Plainfield theatre, has signed contracts for the appearance of Lew Dockstader's big minstrel troupe, at the playhouse on August 3, as the season's opening attraction. The famous comedian will come to Plainfield with a company of forty, numbering some of minstrelsy's best known artists.

Pastor's Mother Ill.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will leave tomorrow for Grand Rapids, Mich., to visit his mother whose condition is not so favorable. She recently had a relapse and is reported to be failing and sent a request to see her son. Mr. Broek will be away about ten days.

Returned from Wedding Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Karner have returned from their wedding trip and are at home at 112 Plainfield avenue, in the house formerly occupied by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cadmus.

PERSONAL.

William F. Arnold and family, of Third place, are spending the summer at Ocean Grove.

Robert Morley, who was recently discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, is critically ill at the home of his son, Robert Morley, Jr., of Pond place.

H. B. Sutphen, of East Fifth street, has returned from a six weeks' business trip to California in the interest of the Prudential Insurance Company.

Harry Feinberg, formerly of this city, but now of Washington, Warren county, returned to the latter place this afternoon after several days' visit with local friends.

Mrs. Theodore J. Shirley and children, of Orchard place, left yesterday for Lake Hoptacong, where they will occupy a cottage in Castle Rock Park for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corona, of West Third street, are the parents of a daughter, born to them a few days ago. Mrs. Corona is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Green.

A. C. Thompson, of the Thompson Auto Company, of Park avenue, left today for Detroit, Mich., to visit the Chalmers' factory, where he will spend some time inspecting the 1912 models.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Crandall, of Idaho Falls, are visiting Mr. Crandall's aunt, Mrs. T. B. Titsworth, of the Babcock building. Mr. Crandall is principal of the public school at Idaho Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull have sold the residential property on West Front street, occupied by them for many years to Mr. Kline, of Brooklyn, and they will remove to 939 Madison avenue, near Stelle avenue.

Scotch Humor.

David R. Forgan, the Chicago banker, has a dry Schotch humor. Speaking of the danger of being puffed up by sudden honors, Mr. Forgan told this story of Simpson, the great Scotch physician.

"Dr. Simpson had been absent from his class for sometime, and on his return he announced that a great professional honor had been conferred upon him," said Mr. Forgan.

"'I am very happy to inform you young gentlemen that a very great honor has come to me since last we met here,' said Professor Simpson, his face beaming with honest pride. 'I have just received notification that I have been appointed physician-in-ordinary to her Majesty Queen Victoria.'

"The great discoverer of chloroform looked over his glasses as if he expected his class to be quite taken away by the great news. Instead, he was shocked to hear those Scotch boys burst into the national anthem, 'God Save the Queen!'

"And still they say the Scotch have no sense of humor," added Mr. Forgan.—Milwaukee Free Press.

Plainfielders in Class Day.

Frederick M. Smith, of this city, delivered the tree oration at the 1911 class day exercises at Rutgers College yesterday afternoon. Many local people attended the affair which was held on the campus and in the Ballantine gymansium. The class history was composed by Delancey Ferguson, also of this city. Both of these men have been elected to the Phi Beta Kappa honorary society.

Local Men Won College Prizes.

John DeLancey Ferguson and Cornelius F. Schenck, both of this city, are among the prize winners at Rutgers. Mr. Ferguson captured the Vail prize for scholarship and tied for the prize in political science offered by the class of 1876. Mr. Schenck won second prize in the Spader contest in modern history.

Struck by Auto.

An automobile driven by a local man struck John Tompson, of Dunellen, on North avenue, that borough yesterday. He was thrown a considerable distance, receiving a sprined ankle and severe bruises. He was taken to his home on Mountain terrace and Dr. T. H. Platt gave teartment.

Jules Boutes Very Ill.

Jules Boutes, for many years Plainfield's best known costumer and hair dresser was removed today from his home on East Front street, to the Alexion Brothers' hospital, at Elizabeth. He has been suffering from pulmonary trouble and complications for the past six months.

ORIGIN OF MAIL CAR

Railway Postal Service First Operated in Missouri.

William A. Davis, Before the War, Postmaster at St. Joseph, Devised System Now in Vogue for Distributing Mail En Route.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Progress in the carrying and distribution of United States mails has been remarkable in this country in the last fifty years. A half century ago, the first railroad west of the Mississippi river, from Hannibal to St. Joseph, Mo., was constructed, and on this road the railway mail service of the country had its origin and inception. Then, only the mails for the whole western country came in bulk on freight and passenger trains to be distributed in ton lots and carried to many destinations by courier, by buckboard, horseback and stage lines, the only methods in those days.

It remained for William A. Davis, postmaster at St. Joseph from 1855 to 1861, to invent and inaugurate the great system now in vogue. Before this time the mails, all mixed and in bulk, were carried to some central distributing point. Independence, Mo., was one of these and St. Joseph later was another. When the railroad was built the task all came to the St. Joseph office, in distributing the entire overland mail.

The idea occurred to Mr. Davis that these mails could be distributed while in transit. It seemed to him in every way possible and desirable. So he wrote to the people in Washington for authority to fit up some cars on the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad to try out the experiment. The authority came and Mr. Davis went to the railway headquarters at Hannibal and superintended the arrangement of several way cars with pigeon holes, doors, windows and other conveniences and the initial run with a carload of mail was made from Hannibal to St. Joseph in record time, the mails properly distributed and ready for the overland stages, couriers, etc.

The first trial was so satisfactory that other cars were brought into requisition and soon a most remarkable change for the better was made in the receipt and distribution of mails. The great railway mail service had been inaugurated!

The problem of forwarding overland mails without delay was solved, and Mr. Davis was soon made a special agent of the department and given full charge of the branch of the service which he had originated.

William A. Davis, inventor of the railway mail service, was born in Barren County, Kentucky, in September, 1809. In early youth he went to Virginia, where he entered the postal service, at Richmond and other places, and with his career in St. Joseph he had been in the postal service about fifty years.

The first car for the distribution of the mails was an old-time "way" car, fitted up with pigeon holes. Extra windows were arranged and the "distributors" used candles to assist in lighting the cars. Mr. Davis made a trip on the first car as far as Palmyra, Mo., and then left the work with an assistant while he returned to Hannibal for the second car. There are many old railroaders yet alive who remember the first mail cars.

GEESE ON THE STAGE REBEL

Object to Understudy for Singer in Halle Performance of Humperdinck's "Konigskinder."

Berlin.—An amusing incident occurred this week at a performance of Humperdinck's "Konigskinder" at the Halle opera house.

Live geese are employed for the Halle production in contrast to the papier mache variety which indulge in make believe cackles at Berlin. The prima donna who regularly sings the part of the goose maid was taken ill suddenly and it became necessary to obtain an understudy. When the latter, however, went on the stage the geese rebelled against the intrusion of a stranger. They became so enraged they threatened to do the singer bodily injury.

The conductor of the orchestra had to stop the performance until the geese could be quelled. They refused to subside until the familiar figures of the wood chopper and the broom maker came upon the scene.

PIONEER OF HAREM SKIRT

Woman Fell In With Bloomer Craze Forty Years Ago, and Has Kept It Up.

Jersey City.—Talking of your Broadway beauties in their freakish harem skirts, why not give a little attention to this old lady, who has worn 'em for ever since the early bloomer movement long before those Broadway freaks were born and wears 'em with entire satisfaction to herself at least to this very day. She is Miss Fowler of Vineland N. J. She donned the costume she is seen wearing in the illustration at the time the bloomer movement first started 40 years or more ago. What has become of the other bloomerites no one knows, but this particular bloomerite blooms on in her quaint old costume, and doesn't condescend to notice skittish rivals who prance up Broadway wearing duds that are feeble variations of her original dress.

CATTLE GUARD IS EFFECTIVE

Novel Device Prevents Cow From Wandering on Rails and Meeting Injury.

Chicago.—The old story about someone asking George Stephenson, the inventor of the locomotive, what would happen to a train if a cow wandered on the line, to which the latter replied he would "be very sorry for the cow," seems to have found a sympathetic echo in the western states in the form of a novel cattle guard on railways, the practical utility of which is demonstrated in the illustration. The device claims to effectually prevent cattle straying up the railway line and thus meeting with injury or death from oncoming trains. As the cow walks along the track she meets a tilting platform between the rails which tips up as she steps upon it. The cow, imagining her progress to be barred and not endowed by nature with a superabundance of intelligence—a fact which the wily inventor must have borne in mind—instead of walking round the obstruction proceeds to compliment the exceeding ingenuity and foresight of its originator by walking off the line altogether.

SAUERKRAUT LONGEVITY AID

Rev. Flynn of California Makes Some Peppery Remarks on Diet and Fat—Two Meals Enough.

Cincinnati.—"Any man who is so fat that he cannot see his feet while walking, ought to be arrested," said the Rev. Earl Flynn of Berkeley, Cal., to a Y. M. C. A. audience the other day. "Two meals a day are enough for the average person to eat and remain in a healthy condition. The person who eats three meals a day needs 12 hours sleep to refresh himself."

Mr. Flynn, who is 75 years old, continued:

"The food which collects the longevity germ is sauerkraut. The man or woman who keeps on a diet of this kind, ought to live a century or more. Sauerkraut is very nutritious and should be on the table of everybody."

Continuing his health talk, Mr. Flynn wound up with saying: "To be healthy every minister must sweat twice a week. A good many ministers only sweat once a month, when they draw their salaries."

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend an Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance Establishing a Sanitary Code for the City of Plainfield," Adopted December 18, 1902.

The Board of Health of the City of Plainfield, by virtue of the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled, "An Act to Establish in this State Boards of Health and a Bureau of Vital Statistics, and to define their respective powers and duties," approved March 31, 1887, the several supplements and amendments thereto, and of other acts, doth hereby ordain as follows:

That Article No. 1 of the Ordinance to which this is an amendment be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

ARTICLE NO. I.

General Nuisances.

Section 1. Whatever is dangerous to human life or to health, and whatever renders the ground, air, food or water unwholesome and an injury to human health is hereby declared to be a nuisance and is prohibited.

Sec. 2. The casting, draining, throwing or discharging or causing to be cast, drained, thrown or discharged into any public street or highway, gutter, alley or other public or private grounds within said city, any slops, kitchen water, laundry water, sewage, waste water, swill, or filth, shall be deemed and hereby is declared to be a nuisance; and all ponds, pools or collections of still and stagnant water, all heaps and quantities of manure (stable manure used as a fertilizer or kept in manure pit built as hereinafter directed, excepted) or filth of any kind, all cow yards and hog pens, and accumulation or deposit of offal or of decaying animal or vegetable matter, in or upon any lot or land near any inhabited dwelling house or any public street or highway, alley or other public or private place within said city is declared to be a nuisance.

Sec. 3. Other nuisances within the city are hereby defined and declared to be, and they shall include and embrace: Placing or depositing in or upon any street or alley, or in or upon any public or private property, any dead animal not killed for consumption as food, or any part of same, or filth from privies or cesspools or catch basins, or garbage; also any foul or offensive or noxious matter or substance whatever; also throwing or allowing to drop into any sewer, receiving basin, or in or upon the bed of Green Brook or of Cedar Brook, any dead animal or decomposing animal or vegetable matter whatever; also any full or overflowing privy vault, cesspool or other receptacle for filth; also permitting any liquid or solid matter taken from cesspools or privy vaults to be deposited in or upon any lawn, lot, or place within the city; also allowing any night soil, garbage, swill or other offensive or decomposing solid or fluid matter or substance to leak or ooze from cart or wagon or vessel in which the same may be conveyed or carried; also the conveying or carrying through any street of any substance which has been removed from any privy vault or cesspool, unless the same shall be enclosed in air-tight barrels or tanks.

Sec. 4. No rags, bones, scraps or refuse matter shall be brought into or be stored or kept within the limits of the City of Plainfield, except on permit of this Board, said Board to reserve the right of revocation at any and all times.

Sec. 5. No dwelling or any part thereof, within the City of Plainfield, shall be used for the sale, storage, sorting or handling of rags, without a written permit of the Board of Health.

Sec. 6. The construction, maintenance, use or continuance of any privy vault or other receptacle for human excrement in or upon the ground, in such manner that the filthy contents thereof shall be accessible to flies, shall constitute and is hereby declared a nuisance, and the construction, maintenance, use or continuance thereof is hereby prohibited.

Sec. 7. No person shall have or keep upon any premises or in any building, lot or place within the city, any swine without the permission of the Board of Health; and the pens and places in which any swine may be permitted by the Board of Health to be kept, shall at all times be kept clean, and in such condition as to be free from any noxious or unhealthful odors.

Sec. 8. No person shall keep or allow to be kept in any dweling house or any part thereof, any horse, cattle, swine, goats, or fowls, nor shall any such animals or fowls be allowed to run at large in the city.

Sec. 9. No animal or vegetable substance, or swill or garbage, street sweepings or muck, dirt gathered in cleaning yards, buildings, sewers, waste of mills and factories, or any offensive material, either separately or mixed with ashes or rubbish, shall be deposited on or used to fill in or raise the surface or level of any ground, lot or street, nor shall any person maintain any sunken land from which there shall arise offensive gases deleterious to health.

Sec. 10. No person or persons shall carry on any trade or business within the city in such a manner as to be obnoxious and offensive to the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield or any part thereof, or which may be attended by noisome or unhealthful odors, or which may be attended by such noise or noises as may be detrimental to life or health.

Sec. 11. No person owning, occupying or having charge of any house, stable or other buildings or premises, shall keep or allow therein or thereon any dog or other animal which shall by noise disturb the quiet and repose of any person therein or in the vicinity to the detriment of life or health.

Sec. 12. Any imperfect trap, sink, or water closet within any house, or any other drainage appliance or fixture within any house, from which there shall arise any foul or noxious gas or odor detrimental to human health, is hereby declared to be a nuisance.

Sec. 13. The keeping of any house or building or part thereof in such a state of uncleanliness, or the crowding of persons in any house or building in such a manner as to endanger the health of the persons dwelling therein, is hereby declared to be a nusance and is prohibited.

Sec. 14. No owner, agent or lessee of any building or any part thereof shall occupy, nor let, lease, or hire out the same or any portion thereof, to be occupied either for domestic or business purposes by any person, or allow the same to be occupied as a place for any one to dwell or lodge or conduct business, where such building or parts thereof are not provided with adequate means of ingress and egress, or not sufficiently supported, lighted, ventilated, drained, cleaned or provided with proper water closets.

Sec. 15. No building or premises shall be rented, let, leased or occupied, either for domestic or business purposes, which shall not have a plentiful supply of pure water suitable for domestic purposes furnished at one or more places in such building or yard thereof so that the same may be adequate and reasonably convenient for the use of the occupants of said building or premises.

Sec. 16. Whenever it shall be decided by this Board that any building or part thereof is unfit for human habitation by reason of the number of occupants, want of cleanliness or by reason of its being in a condition dangerous to health or life or likely to be the cause of sickness among the occupants, and notice of such decision shall have been affixed conspicuously on the building or any part thereof and personally served upon the owner, agent, or lessee, if the same can be found in the State, requiring all persons therein to vacate such building or part thereof for the reasons stated therein, such buildings or part thereof shall within ten days thereafter be vacated, or in case of special emergency, within such shorter time as may be specified in said notice.

Sec. 17. It shall be the duty of all owners, lessees, tenants, or occupants of any and all buildings in the City of Plainfield to keep the gutters and sidewalks and alleys surrounding said buildings free from any offensive substance, liquid or solid, or any dirt, rubbish, water, bottles, broken glass, crockery ware, iron, tin, wire, or stones, or any other thing dangerous to health, life or limb of man or beast.

Sec. 18. Each and every railway car running through or upon the streets of, or elsewhere in the City of Plainfield, and engaged in carrying passengers in said city, or to other places, shall be kept carefully and thoroughly washed and cleaned, and when so directed by this Board, fumigated so that all dirt and filth, or causes of disease are removed from the inside, steps and platform of said cars.

Sec. 19. No person shall burn within the City of Plainfield any matter or substance (other than coal, charcoal, wood, gas or oils) which shall emit into the air or cause or produce or cast off any foul or obnoxious or offensive or hurtful or annoying or repulsive gas, smoke or odors of any kind whatever.

Sec. 20. It shall be the duty of any owner, tenant, lessee, or occupant of any lot, ground, building, house, or stable in the city, on notice from this Board to forthwith remove therefrom any rubbish, waste paper, garbage, offal, or any offensive matter or thing; and it shall be the duty of any person on notice from this Board to abate any nuisance existing on any premises of which he may be the owner, tenant, lessee, or occupant. If any person shall refuse or neglect to remove any foul or noxious or hurtful matter or thing, or if any person shall refuse or neglect to abate any nuisance, then this Board may proceed under the provisions of "An Act to Establish in this State Boards of Health and a Bureau of Vital Statistics and to Define their Respective Powers and Duties," approved March 31, 1887, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and remove said nuisance, source of foulness or cause of sickness, and shall recover by action of debt the expense incurred by said Board by such removal.

Sec. 21.—Penalty. Every nuisance herein defined is prohibted and forbidden within the city, and any person or association of persons making, causing, permitting or maintaining any of the said nuisances shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two (2) dollars nor greater than fifty (50) dollars for every such offense, and in the case of a continuing offense shall be liable to a further penalty of ten (10) dollars for each and every day after written notice of the offense from this Board.

IS FRIEND OF FISHERMAN

Humble Silkworm Furnishes Cat-Gut Much Used by Disciples of Isaak Walton.

Rome, Italy.—It is doubtful whether the average rod and reel fisherman who angles with flies and hooks strung with fine translucent cat-gut is aware of the invaluable friend he has in the humble silkworm. The cat-gut is the most unbreakable substance that holds the hooks against the fiercest struggles of the struck fish and comes from silkworms. The principal center of the manufacture of this kind of cat-gut is the island of Procida, in the Bay of Naples, but most of the silkworms employed are raised near Torre Annunziata, at the foot of Vesuvius. The caterpillars are killed just as they are about to begin the spinning of cocoons, the silk glands are removed and subjected to a process of pickling, which is a secret of the trade, and afterward the threads are carefully drawn out by skilled workers, mostly women. The length of the thread varies from a foot to nearly twenty inches.

HAREM SKIRT DANCE LATEST

New Terpsichorean Feature, Borrowed From Orient, Is Introduced In France—How Executed.

Paris.—Almost every important change in the fashion of gowns in Paris means the introduction of a new dance, or at least one comparatively unknown to the western world.

As is natural, the orient has been drawn upon for a terpsichorean feature in keeping with a trousers skirt. This dance, which is called "La Cherouille," is said to have been long popular in Turkey, Syria and Arabia. A dancing master's description of how it is done follows:

"Place the right foot behind the left. Slide the left foot to the dancer's left. Cross right foot. Raise leg sideways without bending knee, toe pointing to floor."

This dance is said to be impossible of execution in a hobble skirt. French dancing masters in general hail with joy the advent of the trouser skirt, as it will, they say, force women and girls who heretofore have been content to be pulled around a ball room to pay proper attention to their steps. With the trouser skirt every movement of the feet is noticeable.

One in 275 Is Insane.

New York.—One out of every 275 persons in New York city is insane, according to Dr. Albert W. Ferris, president of the state lunacy commission, who is delivering a course of lectures before the New York School of Philanthropy. The state hospitals for the insane now house 32,000 patients, and private institutions care for 11,000 more. New cases admitted to the state asylums average about 150 a week. The cost of caring for an insane patient is approximately $200 a year.

CHAPTER XII.

Through the Night Shadows.

Keith had very little to guide him, as he could not determine whether this mysterious cabin on the Salt Fork lay to east or west of the usual cattle trail leading down to the Canadian. Yet he felt reasonably assured that the general trend of the country lying between the smaller stream and the valley of the Arkansas would be similar to that with which he was already acquainted. It was merely a wild stretch of sandy desolation, across which their horses would leave scarcely any trail, and even that little would be quickly obliterated by the first puff of wind. As they drew in toward the river valley this plain would change into sand dunes, baffling and confusing, but no matter how hard they pressed forward, it must be daylight long before they could hope to reach these, and this would give him opportunity to spy out some familiar landmark which would guide them to the ford. Meanwhile, he must head as directly north as possible, trusting the horses to find footing.

It was plains instinct, or rather long training in the open, which enabled him to retain any true sense of direction, for beyond the narrow fringe of cottonwoods along the stream, nothing was visible, the eyes scarcely able even to distinguish where earth and sky met. They advanced across a bare level, without elevation or depression, yet the sand appeared sufficiently solid, so that their horses were forced into a swinging lope, and they seemed to fairly press aside the black curtain, which as instantly swung shut once more, and closed them in. The pounding hoofs made little noise, and they pressed steadily onward, closely bunched together, so as not to lose each other, dim, spectral shadows flitting through the night, a very part of that grim desolation surrounding them. No one of the three felt like speaking; the gloomy, brooding desert oppressed them, their vagrant thoughts assuming the tinge of their surroundings; their hope centered on escape. Keith rode, grasping the rein of the woman's horse in his left hand, and bending low in vain effort at picking a path. He had nothing to aim toward, yet sturdy confidence in his expert plainscraft yielded him sufficient sense of direction. He had noted the bark of the cottonwoods, the direction of the wind, and steered a course accordingly straight northward, alert to avert any variation.

The girl rode easily, although in a man's saddle, the stirrups much too long. Keith glanced aside with swift approval at the erectness with which she sat, the loosened rein in her hand, the slight swaying of her form. He could appreciate horsemanship, and the easy manner in which she rode relieved him of one anxiety. It even caused him to break the silence.

"You are evidently accustomed to riding, Miss Hope."

She glanced across at him through the darkness, as though suddenly surprised from thought, her words not coming quickly.

"I cannot remember when I first mounted a horse; in earliest childhood, surely, although I have not ridden much of late. This one is like a rocking chair."

"He belonged to your friend, Mr. Hawley."

She drew a quick breath, her face again turned forward.

"Who—who is that man? Do you know?"

"I possess a passing acquaintance," he answered, uncertain yet how much to tell her, but tempted to reveal all in test of her real character. "Few do not who live along the Kansas border."

"Do you mean he is a notoriously bad character?"

"I have never heard of his being held up as a model to the young, Miss Hope," he returned more soberly, convinced that she truly possessed no real knowledge regarding the man, and was not merely pretending innocence. "I had never heard him called Hawley before, and, therefore, failed to recognize him under that respectable name. But I knew his voice the moment he entered the cabin, and realized that some deviltment was afoot. Every town along this frontier has his record, and I've met him maybe a dozen times in the past three years. He is known as 'Black Bart;' is a gambler by profession, a desperado by reputation, and a cur by nature. Just now I suspect him of being even deeper in the mire than this."

He could tell by the quick clasping of her hands on the pommel of the saddle the effect of his words, but waited until the silence compelled her to speak.

"Oh, I didn't know! You do not believe that I ever suspected such a thing? That I ever met him there understanding who he was?"

"No, I do not," he answered. "What I overheard between you convinced me you were the victim of deceit. But your going to that place alone was a most reckless act."

She lifted her hand to her eyes, her head drooping forward.

"Wasn't it what he told me—the out-station of a ranch?"

"No; I have ridden this country for years, and there is no ranch pasturing cattle along the Salt Fork. Miss Hope, I want you to comprehend what it is you have escaped from; what you are now fleeing from. Within the last two years an apparently organized body of outlaws have been operating throughout this entire region. Oftentimes disguised as Indians, they have terrorized the Santa Fe trail for two hundred miles, killing travelers in small parties, and driving off stock. There are few ranches as far west as this, but these have all suffered from raids. These fellows have done more to precipitate the present Indian war than any act of the savages. They have endeavored to make the authorities believe that Indians were guilty of their deeds of murder and robbery. Both troops and volunteers have tried to hold the gang up, but they scatter and disappear, as though swallowed by the desert. I have been out twice, hard on their trail, only to come back baffled. Now, I think accident has given me the clue."

She straightened up; glancing questioningly at him through the darkness.

"This is what I mean, Miss Hope. I suspect that cabin to be the rendezvous of those fellows, and I half believe Hawley to be their leader."

"Then you will report all this to the authorities?"

He smiled grimly, his lips compressed.

"I hardly think so; at least, not for the present. I am not blood-thirsty, or enamored of man-hunting, but I happen to have a personal interest in this particular affair which I should prefer to settle alone." He paused, swiftly reviewing the circumstances of their short acquaintance, and as suddenly determined to trust her discretion. Deep down in his heart he rather wanted her to know. "The fact of the matter is, that Neb and I here were the ones that particular posse were trailing."

"You!" her voice faltered. "He said those men were under arrest for murder, and had broken jail."

"He also said it was easy to convict men in this country if you only knew how. It is true we broke jail, but only in order to save our lives; it was the only way. Technically, we are outlaws, and now run the risk of immediate re-arrest by returning north of the Arkansas. We came to you fugitives; I was charged with murder, the negro with assault. So, you see, Miss Hope, the desperate class of men you are now associating with."

The slight bitterness in his tone stung the girl into resentment. She was looking straight at him, but in the gloom he could not discern the expression of her eyes.

"I don't believe it," she exclaimed decisively, "you—you do not look like that!"

"My appearance may be sufficient to convince you," he returned, rather dryly, "but would weigh little before a Western court. Unfortunately, the evidence was strong against me; or would have been had the case ever come to a trial. The strange thing about it was that both warrants were sworn out by the same complainant, and apparently for a similar purpose—'Black Bart' Hawley."

"What purpose?"

"To keep us from telling what we knew regarding a certain crime, in which either he, or some of his intimate friends, were deeply interested."

"But it would all come out at the trial, wouldn't it?"

"There was to be no trial; Judge Lynch settles the majority of such cases out here at present. It is extremely simple. Listen, and I will tell you the story."

He reviewed briefly those occurrences leading directly up to his arrest, saying little regarding the horrors of that scene witnessed near the Cimmaron Crossing, but making sufficiently clear his very slight connection with it, and the reason those who were guilty of the crime were so anxious to get him out of the way. She listened intently, asking few questions, until he ended. Then they both looked up, conscious that dawn was becoming gray in the east. Keith's first thought was one of relief—the bright sky showed him they were riding straight north.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Ford of the Arkansas.

They were still in the midst of the yellow featureless plain, but the weary horses had slowed down to a walk, the heavy sand retarding progress. It was a gloomy, depressing scene in the spectral gray light, a wide circle of intense loneliness, unbroken by either dwarfed shrub or bunch of grass, a barren expanse stretching to the sky. Vague cloud shadows seemed to flit across the level surface, assuming fantastic shapes, but all of the same dull coloring, imperfect and unfinished. Nothing seemed tangible or real, but rather some grotesque picture of delirium, ever merging into another yet more hideous. The very silence of these surrounding wastes seemed burdensome, adding immeasurably to the horror. They were but specks crawling underneath the sky—the only living, moving objects in all that immense circle of desolation and death.

Keith turned in his saddle, looking back past Neb—who swayed in his seat, with head lolling on his breast as though asleep, his horse plodding after the others—along the slight trail they had made across the desert. So far as eye could reach nothing moved, nothing apparently existed. Fronting again to the north he looked upon the same grim barrenness, only that far off, against the lighter background of distant sky, there was visible a faint blur, a bluish base, which he believed to be the distant sand dunes bordering the Arkansas. The intense dreariness of it all left a feeling of depression. His eyes turned and regarded the girl riding silently beside him. The same look of depression was visible upon her face, and she was gazing off into the dull distance with lack-luster eyes, her slender form leaning forward, her hands clasped across the pommel. The long weariness of the night had left traces on her young face, robbing it of some of its freshness, yet Keith found it more attractive in the growing daylight than amid the lamp shadows of the evening before. He had not previously realized the peculiar clearness of her complexion, the rose tint showing through the olive skin, or the soft and silky fineness of her hair, which, disarranged, was strangely becoming under the broad brim of the hat she wore, drawn low until it shadowed her eyes. It was not a face to be easily associated with frontier concert halls, or any surrender to evil; the chin round and firm, the lips full, yet sufficiently compressed; the whole expression that of pure and dignified womanhood. She puzzled him, and he scarcely knew what to believe, or exactly how to act toward her.

"Our friends back yonder should be turning out from the corral by now," he said finally, anxious to break the silence, for she had not spoken since he ended his tale. "It will not be long until they discover Hawley's predicament, and perhaps the welkin already rings with profanity. That may even account for the blue haze out yonder."

She turned her eyes toward him, and the slightest trace of a smile appeared from out of the depths of their weariness.

"If they would only remain satisfied with that. Will they follow us, do you think? And are we far enough away by this time to be safe?"

"It is hardly likely they will let us escape without a chase," he answered slowly. "We possess too much information now that we have their rendezvous located, and 'Black Bart' will have a private grudge to revenge. I wonder if he suspects who attacked him! But don't worry, Miss Hope; we have miles the start, and the wind has been strong enough to cover our trail. Do you see that dark irregularity ahead?"

"Yes; is it a cloud?"

"No; the Arkansas sand dunes. I am going to try to keep the horses moving until we arrive there. Then we will halt and eat whatever Neb has packed behind him, and rest for an hour or two. You look very tired, but I hope you can keep up for that distance. We shall be safely out of sight then."

"Indeed, I am tired; the strain of waiting alone in that cabin, and all that happened last night, have tried me severely. But—but I can go through."

Her voice proved her weakness, although it was determined enough, and Keith, yielding to sudden impulse, put out his hand, and permitted it to rest upon hers, clasped across the pommel. Her eyes drooped, but there was no change of posture.

"Your nerve is all right," he said, admiringly, "you have shown yourself a brave girl."

"I could not be a coward, and be my father's daughter," she replied, with an odd accent of pride in her choking voice, "but I have been afraid, and—and I am still."

"Of what? Surely, not that those fellows will ever catch up with us?"

"No, I hardly know what, only there is a dread I cannot seem to shake off, as if some evil impended, the coming of which I can feel, but not see. Have you ever experienced any such premonition?"

He laughed, withdrawing his hand.

"I think not. I am far too prosaic a mortal to allow dreams to worry me. So far I have discovered sufficient trouble in real life to keep my brain active. Even now I cannot forget how hungry I am."

She did not answer, comprehending how useless it would be to explain, and a little ashamed of her own ill-defined fears, and thus they rode on in silence. He did not notice that she glanced aside at him shyly, marking the outline of his clear-cut features. It was a manly face, strong, alive, full of character, the well-shaped head firmly poised, the broad shoulders squared in spite of the long night of weary exertion. The depths of her eyes brightened with appreciation.

"I believe your story, Mr. Keith," she said at last softly.

"My story?" questioningly, and turning instantly toward her.

"Yes; all that you have told me about what happened."

"Oh; I had almost forgotten having told it, but I never felt any doubt but what you would believe. I don't think I could lie to you."

It was no compliment, but spoken with such evident honesty that her eyes met his with frankness.

"There could be no necessity; only I wanted you to know that I trust you, and am grateful."

She extended her hand this time, and he took it within his own, holding it firmly, yet without knowing what to answer. There was strong impulse within him to question her, to learn then and there her own life story. Yet, somehow, the reticence of the girl restrained him; he could not deliberately probe beneath the veil she kept lowered between them. Until she chose to lift it herself voluntarily, he possessed no right to intrude. The gentlemanly instincts of younger years held him silent, realizing clearly that whatever secret might dominate her life, it was hers to conceal just so long as she pleased. Out of this swift struggle of repression he managed to say:

"I appreciate your confidence, and mean to prove worthy. Perhaps some day I can bring you the proofs."

"I need none other than your own word."

"Oh, but possibly you are too easily convinced; you believed in Hawley."

She looked at him searchingly, her eyes glowing, her cheeks flushed.

"Yes," she said slowly, convincingly. "I know I did; I—I was so anxious to be helped, but—but this is different."

It was noon, the sun pitiless and hot above them, before they straggled within the partial shelter of the sand dunes, and sank wearily down to their meager lunch. Their supply of water was limited, and the exhausted ponies must wait until they reached the river to quench their thirst. Yet this was very far off now, and Keith had seen enough of their surroundings to locate the position of the ford. Slow as they must proceed, three hours more would surely bring them to the bank of the stream. They discussed their plans briefly as the three sat together on the warm sand, revived both by the food and the brief rest. There was not a great deal to be determined, only where the girl should be left, and how the two men had better proceed to escape observation.

Fort Larned was the nearest and safest place for their charge, none of the party expressing any desire to adventure themselves within the immediate neighborhood of Carson City. What her future plans might be were not revealed, and Keith forebore any direct questioning. His duty plainly ended with placing her in a safe environment, and he felt convinced that Mrs. Murphy, of the Occidental Hotel, would furnish room, and, if necessary, companionship. The sole problem remaining—after she had rather listlessly agreed to such an arrangement—was to so plan the details as to permit the negro and himself to slip through the small town clustered about the post without attracting undue attention. No doubt, the story of their escape had already reached there, embellished by telling, and serious trouble might result from discovery. Keith was surprised at the slight interest she exhibited in these arrangements, merely signifying her acquiescence by a word, but he charged it to physical weariness, and the reaction from her night of peril; yet he took pains to explain fully his plan, and to gain her consent.

This finally settled, they mounted again and rode on through the lanes traversing the sand dunes, keeping headed as straight as possible toward the river. The ford sought was some miles down stream, but with the horses' thirst mitigated, they made excellent progress, and arrived at the spot early in the evening. Not in all the day had they encountered a living object, or seen a moving thing amid the surrounding desolation. Now, looking across to the north, a few gleaming lights told of Fort Larned perched upon the opposite bluffs.

95c for HIGH-GRADE SHIRTS

OF IMPORTED MADRAS AND FINE PERCALE
MOST OF THEM WORTH $1.50 AND $2; SOME WORTH AS MUCH AS $2.50.

This ought to prove the shirt sensation of the season—it ought to be one of the biggest shirt sales Newark has ever known, and when shirts of such character as these are offered under a dollar the whole lot of them ought to be whisked away by thrifty men in less than half a day.

We've provided a big lot of these shirts, all made of beautiful imported madras and finest shirting percales, in neat figures and handsome stripes and rare colorings; both plain and plaited bosoms; most of them with cuffs attached.

These shirts come from a maker widely known for his high-class product. They are all perfect and strictly up-to-date, and may be had in a full range of sizes so that we can suit all who come.

They are just such shirts as retail in the best stores at $1.50, $2 and $2.50, and we are going to give you choice of the big lot tomorrow and while they last.....95c

Men should buy at least a half dozen of these shirts while they may be had at such a diminutive price.

50c NECKWEAR—Ties made of beautiful silks in ever so many patterns and colorings; ends of lines that we bought advantageously are to be closed out in conjunction with the big shirt sale at the astonishing price of.....19c

MORE OF THE WHITE WAISTS

Men Without a Country.

Culver's Lake, June 20.—Although banished from the county some years ago under the penalty of a State prison sentence for stealing chickens from his father-in-law, Nelson Smith, William Van Horn, otherwise known as "Rattlesnake Bill" is defying the court, and has returned. Last week he made himself conspicuous at this resort by appearing and soliciting funds. "Bill's" favorite story has been that he wants to erect a family monument in the Stillwater cemetery. As he did not receive much financial encouragement he left. "Rattlesnake Bill" was exiled from the county by former Judge Joseph Coult, Jr., who has since retired. Since he left Sussex he has become familiar with the inside of every county seat jail for a hundred miles around.

OCEANIC PRESBYTERIANS IN TRIPLE CELEBRATION.

Red. Bank, June 20.—A triple celebration—the installation of the new pastor, Rev. Arthur Albert McKay, the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the church and the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the present edifice—took place Sunday at the Oceanic Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dr. Charles B. Austin, moderator of the Monmouth Presbytery, presided.

Rev. Albert B. Robinson, of New York, read scripture. Rev. Dr. J. W. Rogan, pastor of the Red Bank Presbyterian church, preached the sermon, and Rev. Dwight L. Parsons, pastor of the Shrewsbury and Eatontown churches, made a prayer. The charge to the pastor was delivered by Rev. John G. Lovell, of Long Branch, and the charge to the people was by Rev. Joseph E. Curry, of Cranbury. The pastor pronounced the benediction.

MURDER SCARE CAUSED BY BURSTING TIRE.

Atlantic City, June 20.—Two reports like pistol shots, followed by the screams of a woman in a taxicab at Tennessee and Atlantic avenues, yesterday, created excitement. The crowd pressed forward to find a Philadelphian attempting to attack a man seated with a woman and child in the taxicab.

"This cur is running away with my wife and child," shouted the Philadelphian, as he struggled in the arms of a policeman. The woman shrugged her shoulders and said:

"Why, he is not my husband; neither is he," she continued, nodding toward her companion. Stumped by this declaration, the police let the couple proceed.

Finding himself temporarily routed the Philadelphian, who gave his name as John Martin, made his way to police headquarters and attempted to have a warrant sworn out for the arrest of the couple.

The reports which led the crowd to believe a tragedy had occurred emanated from the explosion of an automobile tire in front of the city hall.

Elizabeth Chief Hurt.

Elizabeth, June 20.—Three fires kept the Elizabeth Fire Department busy from 7:30 Saturday night until 9:30 Sunday morning. Assistant Fire Chief William J. Mahoney, who has charge of the Elizabethport section of the city, was injured going to the last blaze, but not seriously. His rig collided with a pile of brick.

SOME RARE VOLUMES GIFTS TO PRINCETON

Announcement has been made of several gifts to the Princeton University library of unusual significance. The first is the addition by R. W. Patterson, of the class of '76, of 549 volumes to his Horace collection.

The Patterson additions include two early manuscripts of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, editions of 1482 (the first containing the commentary by Landino), 1483 and 1495, richly bound copies which belonged to Louis XIV. and Talleyrand; specimens of printing in miniature by Jannoni, Pickering and Mesnier, and a proof set, bound by Chatelin, of the vignettes by J. Chauvet for Simeon's Horace.

The Patterson collection of Horaces now numbers about 650 volumes including duplicates. When not in interesting old covers the books are all in special extra bindings. The collection has now become a fitting companion to the Morgan collection.

STATE SUFFRAGISTS PLAN A CONVENTION.

Mrs. A. Swan Brown, president of the Passaic Equal Suffrage League, has received word from the State Association that the offer to entertain the State convention at Passaic, next fall, has been accepted and the annual conference will be held in Willard Hall, Passaic, November 3 and 4, with three sessions each day.

Among the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Anna Balcom Shaw, Judge Wood and Mrs. Raymond Brown. Representatives will be present from the New Jersey State Men's League.

"Damper Men" to Prison.

Elizabeth, June 20.—James Gagney, alias "Sport McKenzie," fifty-six years old, and Patrick Gallagher, fifty-five years old, both of Manhattan, known in police parlance as "damper men," were taken to State prison, yesterday from the Union county jail, to serve a term of eighteen months for robbing Dominick Boezkus, an Elizabethport dry goods dealer, of $142. The thieves pretended to be postoffice inspectors, and while one held Boezkus' attention, by examining the mailbox outside the store, his companion looted the money drawer. The pair were afterward captured in Manhattan.

WOMEN IN SINGLES AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The preliminary round of the women's championship singles was played at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday afternoon. For the most part the matches were easily won with the exception of the one between Miss Edith Mellick and Miss Hope Ivins, which took three hard fought sets to decide.

The results in the preliminary round were as follows:

Miss Alice Titus defeated Mrs. Osborne, 6-1, 6-1; Miss Mary Runkle defeated Mrs. A. M. Collens, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3; Miss Marion Brown defeated Miss Grace Burke, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4; Miss Madeline Ashwell defeated Miss Gertrude Butler, 6-1, 6-3; Mrs. W. B. Tyler won from Miss Barbarra Fleming by default; Mrs. Francis Frost won from Miss Edna Wildey by default; Miss Marion Coombs won from Miss Eba Brown by default; Miss Edith Mellick deefated Miss Hope Ivins, 9-7, 2-6, 7-5.

In the first round one match was played. Miss Burke defeating Miss Titus, 6-3, 6-2.

BASEBALL.

That game between the Saints and the—(well let it go at Doctors) wasn't such a carnival afterall. There was some fast work at times and that man Conover was certainly there like a duck with all his feathery curves.

But just keep your eye peeled on that Plainfield team. From the looks of things at Bound Brook Saturday, Dave Driscoll and his bunch are going through the league without a set-back. The local nine has plenty of speed and lots of head work, two important factors in the make-up of a winning team.

The great Tyrus Cobb, idol of the Detroit fans and demon slugger of the American League, is the first man in either of the big organizations to make a hundred hits this season. Up to Sunday, he had registered ninety-six safe drives. In the game with Chicago Sunday, however, he pounded out five clean wallops in five trips to the plate.

Walter C. Bowen, of South Jersey, was elected captain of the Rutger's College baseball team for next year, after the Stevens game Saturday. Bowen has caught on the varsity nine for three years and has been the most consistant batter for the last two years.

That they can come back and stay there was clearly demonstrated at Bound Brook Saturday when "Red" Waller held his opponents down to five hits. "Red" had all kinds of speed and twisters, which he controlled like a motorman. The sun-singed box artist says that he never felt better in his life and will hand 'em over the pan with the best of 'em this season.

Frank Bowerman, the former Giant back-stop, has been signed by the Kansas City American Association team to play first base for this season.

On account of the recent fine imposed upon "Bugs" Raymond, the eccentric pitcher of the New York Nationals, it is reported that McGraw has given up hope of ever reforming the big twirler and is considering his release.

Steve White, the crack Princeton pitcher, who was pounded unmercifully by Somerville in the first two innings of the game against Westfield Saturday, was invincible after the third round. The cause of the batting fest on his delivery is laid to the fact that he came in the game late and was not able to warm up. It certainly looks as if this were the reason.

Westfield will be the next victim for Doerflinger's boys. So save Saturday afternoon for a trip down the line and root, root, root, for the home team.

AMERICAN COLLEGE TRACK TEAM PICKED.

Harvard and Yale track team which will go to England to complete against Oxford and Cambridge at Jeltes in London on July 11 has been decided with the exception of the hammer throwers. Yesterday Capt. Foster of the Harvard team announced the American competitors as follows:

100-yard dash, Reilly and Thatcher of Yale; quarter-mile run, Keller of Harvard and Stewart of Yale; half-mile run, Jacques of Harvard and Preble of Harvard; mile run, Lawless of Harvard; two-mile run, Withington of Harvard and Ryan of Yale; 120-yard hurdles, Chisholm of Yale and Cummings, of Harvard; runing high jump, Barker of Harvard and Canfield of Yale; running broad jump, Kilpatrick of Yale and Holden of Yale.

The hammer throwers, Howard and Cable of Harvard and Childs of Yale, will meet in competition this week to decide which two shall take the trip abroad.

Mrs. Arthur Murphy, of Watchung avenue, who has been sojourning at Atlantic City, is now registered at Olde Fort Inn, Kennebunkport, Me.

BANKING CONVENIENCE

One of the strongest arguments in favor of keeping one's bank account in Plainfield, whether it be a checking account or a savings account, is convenience. Especially is this true of the savings account; for who has not wearily waited his turn on a New York Savings Bank line in July or January, when he wished to deposit or withdraw money? Better bring in your passbook to us and allow us to attend to the transfer of your account without expense and without the loss of interest and at the same time relieve your estate of a possible inheritance tax.
The time to act is now.

W. U. CO. RESTRICTS IT BUSINESS HOURS

The Western Union Telegraph Company, adopting a policy of retrenchment in expenses, has just put in effect a new order which will result in great inconvenience to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The Company has ordered the local telegraph office closed at 11 o'clock every night, and on Sunday the office will be open only between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning and 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, shutting Plainfield off from communication with the outside world, except by means of the telephone, the greater part of Sunday and between the hours of 11 o'clock at night and 8 o'clock the following morning on week days.

This action has aroused considerable protest as it did once before when the company adopted similar hours. In the first instance so much pressure was brought to bear in the matter that the company made a new arrangement keeping the office open all of the time. Plainfield and North Plainfield combined has a population of about 30,000 and it is a general opinion that the two municipalities are entitled to the best service possible from the telegraph company.

It is argued that the telegraph company by closing its office here at night and on Sundays is able to save considerable in the way of expense and at the same time compel people to use the telephone for outside communication. As the telegraph company also controls the telephone system it makes little difference, for it is sure to get the money one way or the other. It is said that the inconvenience that the new order will make cannot be measured in dollars and cents to people who have heretofore relied on the telegraph company to transact large business interests.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT IS GIVEN A SET-BACK.

Advocates for commission government at Hoboken received a severe set-back last night. The Commission Government League had extensively advertised two meetings to be held, one at First and Washington streets, and the other at First and Clinton streets, of that city. About thirty men assembled at each place at 8 o'clock and waited patiently until 9 o'clock when word was sent to them that the meetings had been postponed. Inquiring at the headquarters of the league why the meetings were not held, developed that owing to a misunderstanding the league had failed to obtain speakers.

About fifty members of the league held a meeting at headquarters for the purpose of discussing the methods to be pursued on the day of the special election which will be June 27. Rudolph Schroder, secretary of the Board of Trade, said the campaign for commission government would begin tomorrow night and would be pushed vigorously.

The members of the league last night appeared to be much depressed over the defeat of commission government in Bayonne, and some openly said that it would lead to a defeat of the project in Hoboken.

EXPECT ELECTION CALL FOR COMMISSION RULE.

New Brunswick, June 20.—It was announced yesterday that the call would be issued today for the special commission government election to be held here June 27.

Former Judge J. Kearny Rice made public an opinion Saturday, asked for by local citizens, among them said to be certain city officials who are opposing the commission government move, to the effect that any election held here would be illegal, because there is no provision in the commission government law providing for officers to hold the election.

A meeting of the officers of the Commission Government League was held Saturday night to consider the opinion. There was data in hand, sent from Trenton, which held that the old election officers remain in power until their successors are appointed.

The members of the local league are willing to back the data they have against the opinion of former Judge Rice and the election will be proceeded with.

Tar Finds Picture.

Trenton, June 20.—Tim Casey, of New York, who was a sailor on the battleship Trenton, came here unday to take a last look at the oil painting of the ship the members of the crew presented to the city in 1880. After some search the picture was found in the cellar of the city hall, and Casey expressed his indignation with the way in which the picture had been used. He told how the boys of the ship collected $350 and had the picture painted in Italy. Casey was one of the committee which came to Trenton and presented the picture to the town. Now that he has brought the matter to light the picture will likely be restored and given a place of honor.

Lives With Neck Broken.

Paterson, June 20.—Although his neck has been broken since last Thursday, William L. Gregory, of 20 North Third street, is still alive at St. Joseph's Hospital. An operation has resulted in improvement in his condition. This operation confirmed the diagnosis of his attending physician, Dr. William Jacobs, for it showed that the paralysis resulted from a pressure on the spinal cord. Gregory was injured as the result of a fall from a tree.

WELCOME OLYMPIC

Newest, Biggest and Most Luxurious Steamship Afloat Docked Today.

OVATION IN THE NORTH RIVER.

Description of the Giant TransAtlantic Boat Whose Length is Greater Than Height of Largest Sky-scraper.

The blowing of whistles and the flying of colors on every craft in the harbor greeted the great Olympic, the largest boat afloat, as she majestically made her way to her dock at the foot of Eighteenth street, New York, this morning having completed her maiden trip maintaining an average speed of twenty-two knots an hour. Her commander, Captain E. J. Smith, commander of the White Star fleet, was on the bridge, as she steamed opposite the "sky-scraper" section of Gotham and the docks and ships were crowded wth a curious and admiring people. It took a fleet of twelve tugs to get the great ship into her dock. Among the first to clasp the hand of the commander were James Bruce Ismay, president, and E. E. Parvin, of this city, secretary of the International Mercantile Marine company, to congratulate him, Ismay having been a passenger on the boat and Parvin having awaited for hours at the dock to see the biggest vessel afloat come into port. There were 500 saloon passengers aboard.

This great liner, almost 900 feet in length, is expected to make the transatlantic crossing all the year round in six and a half or seven days and to arrive here regularly on Wednesday morning. She is expected to be a very steady ship in a seaway and to a great extent to defy the big billows that roll smaller vessels down in a winter gale. The Olympic was launched on Oct. 20 last at the yards of Harland & Wolff at Belfast. Her principal dimensions are as follows:

Length over all, 882½; breadth over all, 92½; breadth over boat deck, 94; height from bottom of keel to boat deck, 97; height from bottom of keel to top of captain's house, 105½; height of funnels above casing, 72; height of funnels above boat deck, 81½; distance from top of funnel to keel, 175 feet; number of steel decks, 11; number of watertight bulkheads, 15.

As the Great Eastern marked the arrival of the 700-foot steamship as long ago as 1858, so the Olympic marks the advent of the 900-foot ocean liner.

When the Lusitania came out in September, 1907, great stress was laid upon her size as well as upon her speed. The Cunarder is 789 feet long and her length was emphasized by various comparisons. The same is true in regard to the Olympic. Comparisons as to her size are made in the official announcement as follows:

In length thte Olympic overtops by 182½ feet the height of the Metropolitan tower in New York, the highest office building in the world, and 132½ beyond the height of the new Woolworth building, now under construction. The ship is four times as long as the height of the famous Bunker Hill Monument and 327 feet longer than the height of the Washington Monument. She is likewise longer than the height of the Philadelphia City Hall, the Great Pyramid, St. Paul's, London, or the Cathedral of Cologne.

In appearance the new steamship is more bluff-bowed than the big Cunarders and her lines resemble those of the Adriatic, which was the largest White Star liner before the Olympic was placed in service. She has four funnels, the last of which is used as a ventilator. The Cunard's big ships are quadruple screw liners, but the Olympic is triple screw, a combination of reciprocating engines and turbines. The "wing" propellors are operated by the reciprocating machinery and the third propeller, in the centre, below the rudder, is revolved by the turbines, which re-

MAST OF 'THE PURITAN' TO BE A FLAGSTAFF

The mast of the triumphant "Puritan," which twice won the international race for the America's cup, will soon be raised on the spacious lawn of Frederick D. Harrington's estate on the southern slope of the picturesque mountain over-looking the City Beautiful. After a whole lot of trouble New Jersey's leather king obtained possession of the much coveted trophy of yachting history and it was given safe conduct to his estate today by Sheriff Mobus, who personally supervised its transportation.

Twice "The Puritan" defeated the speedy Genesta, the pride of England, once in September 1885 and again in September 1886. Old Glory flew from its mast then and so will it again when the Stars and Stripes are raised on Mr. Harrington's lawn in the near future. Just as soon as the majestic pole is in place, the leather king will summon his friends to a celebration.

RECALL HAPPA DAYS AT OAK TREE SCHOOL

One hundred of the alumni of the old Oak Tree school attended the reunion of the association at Boynton Beach yesterday. Graduates of the school gathered from all over the east and from as far west as Illinois. The oldest graduate present was over seventy years of age and the majority of them had passed the three score milestone of life.

Speeches were made by several of the prominent alumni and the old days of the hickory stick and the "Three R's" were recalled. Eight of the association's members have died during the past year, but as it had been decided to admit to the membership of the organization the children and grandchildren of the old pupils in the days before the Civil War, there were a large number of younger men and women present yesterday.

The old frame schoolhouse with its "old oaken bucket," where Bethune Duncan taught the children of the surrounding countryside readin', writin' and 'rithmetic from 1820 to 1865, is still standing on property owned by the Misses Kelly, of Oak Tree, who at one time attended the school. Another building is used as a schoolhouse today but the old frame structure still stands as a remembrance of the early days of education.

It was decided at the meeting yesterday to hold reunions on the twentieth day of June each and every year.

Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur and Abram Angleman, of this city, attended yesterday's gathering. Mr. Angleman was a member of the school for three years while Mrs. Wilbur is the daughter of Ellis Campbell, who attended the school during his boyhood as did his father and his father's father.

PASTOR GOES ABROAD TO COLLECT FORTUNE

Rev. A. E. Finn, formerly pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, but now of the First Baptist church, Rochester, Pa., will leave on June 28 for England to be present at the settlement of the estate of his cousin who died, leaving him a considerable sum of money and some valuable real estate. Mr. Finn will be accompanied by his mother. The exact value of the estate is not known, but it is believed to be quite large.

According to the laws of England the eldest son or daughter in a family is entitled to an estate and it is then left to the other members of the family according to their age. Mr. Finn's cousin, who died some months ago, was the last member of the family abroad and the bulk of the estate now comes to Mr. Finn.

SWACKHAMER'S BIG CATCH.

Local Barrister Pulls in a Judgment in Action Brought Against His Client, William R. Julliard.

The case on appeal of the State aganist William Julliard was tried yesterday before Judge Clarence L Case, in the Somerset County court the charge being that of violating section 25 of the game and fish laws of 1903, which provides that it is unlawful to take or attempt to take any fish from any of the waters of this State by means of any contrivance whatsoever excepting in the manner commonly known as angling with hand line or with rod and line, under a penalty of $20 for each offense.

The case, a test one, excited great interest among those who are fond of fishing and a number were in court during the trial. It was charged that in April last the defendant was attempting to catch fish by casting out a line and drawing it in rapidly, and that this was done without bait on the hook.

The State used several witnesses in an attempt to prove that this was not the method commonly known as angling, and was in violation of the law. Josiah Stryker appeared for the attorney-general, while S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, represented the defendant. Objection was made by Mr. Swackhamer to the introduction of expert testimony to prove what the method commonly known as angling is and he cited several authorities to prove that the opinions of experts are not admissable.

Mr. Swackhamer contended that such testimony should not be allowed especially in cases where it is the jury's or court's function to determine facts. The court permitted the witnesses to testify, reserving right for Mr. Swackhamer to move to strike out the evidence later in the trial if it appeared to be incompetent.

After all the evidence had been presented, Mr. Swackhamer moved to strike out that which had been objected to and then moved for judgment for the defendant, contending that the State had failed to make out a prima facia case. After arguments by the respective counsel, the court gave a judgment in favor of the defendant.

Two other cases in which the defendants were represented by Codington & Swackhamer, involving the same facts, were called, but were laid over for the term, to permit the attorney-general time to decide whether to take the Julliard case to the Supreme Court. If this is not done, it is understood that all three cases will be dismissed. The other two cases were those of the State against Thomas J. Waldron and Peter . Smith. Mr. Julliard had nine witnesses to prove that he was simply angling in the ordinary way, using bait, but the case was won on the evidence offered by the State's witnesses, without using that of the defendant's witnesses.

Missionary Societies Class.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the First Baptist church held a union meeting for the close of the season yesterday afternoon in the lecture room, Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, president of the Foreign Society and Mrs. Reuben Knox, president of the Home Society, taking charge. Mrs. William A. Conner, presented some interesting facts on "Woman's Mission Work in the Philippines," and plans were made for next year's work. The Foreign Society will study "Christianity and the Ethnic Religions," using for a text book "The Light of the World," by Robert E. Speer. "Alaska" will be the subject of study for the Home Society. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Chambliss.

Will Hold Vesper Services.

The members of the Temple Baptist church during the summer months will hold a vesper service on the lawn in the rear of the church, Sunday evening from 6:45 to 7:30, which will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Evarts C. Conover. It is believed that these early Sunday evening services will prove popular during the warm weather. Mr. Conover will give a short talk at the service and there will be special music.

—Now is the time to buy your shoes. M. Abrams is closing out his stock at greatly reduced prices. See adv. page 8. 6 21 2

—While the strawberry season is about over, Neuman Bros. will display tomorrow a large assortment of fancy berries, just right for table use, canning or preserving, also cherries.

CLASS DAY FROLIC

Paper Medals Awarded at Plainfield High School Seniors' Exercises.

VIRTUE AWARDS PRESENTED.

Graduates Garbed As Rubes in the Stage Setting Depicting a Country Fair—Class Prophecy Real Fun.

A country fair was presented before 700 people in the High School auditorium last night by the senior class as the setting of the class day exercises. The scene was complete in detail, the sixty-two members of the class being costumed as farmers and the idea of a rube at a country gathering was carried out in every particular. The class prophecy was expounded in the form of fortunes, the Misses Margaret Hutchinson and Anne Johnson acting as the mysterious analists of the futuer. They were seated in a booth at the fair and with the spin of a wheel, they proclaimed the message of the spirits of fate for each member of the class.

When the curtain was raised the class was grouped on the stage singing its class song, led by the president, Sidney Karr. A brilliant electric effect was augmented by numerous banners among which was the large class penant. Miss Helen Pierce then read the class poem which was written by her and the class history for the four years in Plainfield High School was read by Wilbur Tovell.

Sidney Karr awarded the paper medals for prize winners in class statistics, which had been decided by the vote of the class. The class will and testament of the graduating body was prepared and announced by Alfred A. Clarke. Among the gifts to the undergraduates were the use of the new Parker field, the new wings on the school building, and the pleasure of taking the new course in oratory and public speaking.

After the exercises the floor was cleared for dancing, which continued until twelve o'clock. Ten dances and four extras were on the program and the music was furnished by a three piece orchestra under the direction of Charles Suhr.

The hit of the fortune telling was the fate of Gordon Moy, the son of Mayor G. W. V. Moy. It was predicted that he would come to a sad end for he would purchase a cake of milk chocolate in Plainfield on Sunday and would be sent to jail for life.

The medals of virtues were presented as follows:

Neatest girl, Helen Campbell; sportiest, Frank Schwed; best actor, Sewall Ulrich; best actress, Alice Mehl; done most for P. H. S., Louise Bird, Sidney Karr; done most for 1911, Margaret Hutchinson, Luther Banks; worst fusser, Thrya Stiles, Gordon Moy; biggest appetite, May Day, Sidney Karr; worst knocker, Edith Whitney, Nathan Wilson; worst kicker, Sue Whitney, Fred Van Hoesen; most careless, Alice Mehl, Benjamin Berse; most dignified, Bertha Nelson, Wilbur Tovell; most happy-go-lucky, Anne Johnson, Alfred A. Clarke; most talkative, Elizabeth Hardwicke, Alfred Clark; boy orator, Sewall Ulrich.

Most likely to succeed, Ruth Stryker, Sidney Karr, Alfred Clark; most graceful, Anne Johnson Frances Mosher; most practical, Margaret Vail, Lewis Matlack; most diligent, Agnes Scribner, Charles Schuck, worst giggler, Elizabeth Hardwicke, Frances Mosher, Ludlow Van Deventer; world's record for altitude, Elizabeth Hardwicke, Luther Banks; teachers' blessing, Louise Bird, Wilbur Tovell; teachers' curse, Alice Mehl, Ludlow Van Deventer; most soulful expression, Margaret Hutchinson, Samuel Silbert; best dressed, Louise Bird, Frank Schwed; best poet Helen Pearce; most attractive, Thyra Stiles, Gordon Moy; most childish, Mabel Stutsman, Herman Shrager; most easily fussed, Sarah Howe, Gordon Moy; most executive ability, Louise Bird, Sidney Karr, Alfred Clark.

Most bashful, Sarah Howe, Edward Hatfield; most athletic, Ruth Wean, Alfred Manley; biggest tease, Betty Hardwicke, Sidney Karr; sleepiest, Nellie Geary, Benjamin Harris; worst joy-rider, Sidney Karr, Gordon Moy, Ludlow Van Deventer; most sedate, Agnes Leighs, Wilbur Tovell; best-looking, Marion Snyder, Gordon Moy; most likely to marry, Susan Bennett, Gordon Moy; most generous, May Day, Sidney Karr; most class spirit, Ruth Wean, Sidney Karr; most systematic, Ruth Stryker, Lewis Matlack; ladies' man, Gordon Moy; men's lady, Thyra Stiles, most energetic, May Stafford, Samuel Silbert; best all-round, Anne Johnston, Sidney Karr.

EXCITING RUNAWAY

Horse Ran Wild For Six Hours Before Being Captured.

COVERED A WIDE TERRITORY.

Took Fright at a Jumping Cat and Upset Several Neighborhoods Before Heading for Fanwood.

Frightened by a cat which leaped directly at it from a nearby fence, a horse belonging to Morris Bershad, of New and Third streets, ran away at noon yesterday, smashing a wagon and all records for long distance going. It left the starting point at 12:45 and after putting two or three neighborhoods in an uproar was finally chased into a barn between Fanwood and Graceland at 7 o'clock last night. The owner and three friends were in pursuit the entire afternoon and the owner says he would rather give up a hundred dollars than go through the ordeal again.

Bershad drove into the stable yard at noon after delivering groceries during the morning. He had half unhitched the horse when the feline flip-flop scared the seven senses out of the usually tractive animal. It gave a leap in the air, danced a jig on its hind legs, snorted like a steam roller and then dashed out of the yard before Bershad could collect his scattered wits. The wagon hooked fast to a tree on New street, but most of the harness hung to the horse's back, broken straps serving to frighten it all the more. Every now and then somebody would spring at the runaway only to add to its frenzy.

In front of Patrick Corrigan's yard at 446 West Fourth street, several men formed an obstruction which caused the horse to swing into the yard. Once in back it misbehaved something awful It kicked, bit and squealed, sometimes jumping around on two legs and then bucking on all fours like a Buffalo Bill broncho. One Wisenheimer yelled that it had hydrophobia, causing six or seven would-be captors to run as though from smallpox.

With the way cleared, the animal suddenly dashed to the front of the yard, leaped the fence into a big crowd that had gathered to see the fun. Two or three kids were knocked down in the rush, but were more frightened than hurt. Mothers rubbernecking from windows who believed their darlings were among those sent to earth, added to the confusion by emitting shrieks that could be heard for blocks.

The cause of all the disturbance circled into Fifth street. More yelling and hollering ensued and children sought the safety of front porches. Nobody could stop the flight of the apparition and it disappeared around a corner. All trace of it was lost until an hour afterward when it was seen tearing down South avenue as if shot out of a gun. Once again it passed out of view and at 4 o'clock it suddenly re-appeared on the Martine avenue bridge over the Jersey Central tracks, much the same way as the moving picture changes are seen on the curtain. It was still running, apparently fresh as a daisy. James Kane, of Plainfield avenue, a member of a Public Service electric light gang, jumped at the runaway's head only to be knocked one side by a well delivered kick.

For the next two hours reports of the horse came from as many places as Dorothy Arnold was last seen. First it was in Scotch Plains, then Dog Corners and later on at Graceland. Bershad was on the trail in a buggy almost on the verge of despair. He said afterward it seemed to him as if his property had divided in triplets which were separately cavorting over the country. Finally at 7 o'clock the runaway was sighted on a side road near Graceland, but although it was forced into a farm yard, it did not give up until cornered in the barn.

Bershad said today that the wagon was pretty well wrecked but the horse was none the worse for the long run. No one has heard from the cat.

Board Bill Causes Trouble.

Joseph Schwartzman, a mason, was arraigned in the city court this morning, charged by Mrs. Mary Wagner, of East Fifth street, with refusing to pay her a board bill of $12. The plaintiff argued it was contracted in April and her requests for the money elicited only jeers and the remark that she would get it when he got ready and not before. Judge DeMeza held Schwartzman in $200 bail to pay the bill within twenty-four hours or go to jail.

M. Abrams must dispose of his stock of footwear before moving to his new building. See adv. page 8. 6 21 2

BOYS' MODEL CAMP ON HUDSON'S BANKS

John B. Cottrell, of West Sixth street, together with his brother-in-law, Major J. Harold Randolph, who is commandant of the Hudson River Military Academy, has completed arrangements for conducting a summer camp for boys and young men at Piermont-on-Hudson, twenty-six miles from New York city. The camp will be opened on July 6 and will be continued until September.

The prime object is to provide a suitable place for boys and young men where their vacation may be spent amid helpful and inspiring influences. There will be a senior and junior camp, boys thirteen years of age and younger being assigned to the junior camp and all over thirteen to the senior camp. Among the many attractions at the camp will be fishing, boating, swimming, horseback-riding, military training and coaching. Further information can be obtained from Mr. Cottrell, 'phone 1570-W.

BOY'S DEATH THIRD FATALITY IN FAMILY

Edward Peterson, the sixteen-year-old son of John Peterson, colored of 648 South Second street, was struck and instantly killed by a Philadelphia express on the Jersey Central between Washington and Richmond street at 5:45 yesterday afternoon. The boy had ridden uptown on an east bound freight train and alighted without first looking around. He crossed over the east-bound passenger track and was directly on the wast-bound passenger when the flyer bore down on him. He was tossed to one side with every bone in his body broken. The engineer was on the opposite side of the cab and did not know of the accident until informed at the North Avenue station.

Witnesses to the fatality summoned the police and one of the officers identified the victim. The body was aken to Cole's undertaking rooms, where it now remains pending funeral arrangements.

The death of young Peterson is the third in his immediate family in three years that has resulted from accidents. An eighteen-year-old sister was drowned in a boating accident at Boynton Beach, two others losing their lives at the same time. A younger brother, who had attended an excursion with her hastened home to tell his mother the news. At Fourth and Liberty streets, he jumped from a trolley car before it stopped and received injuries from which he died later. The drowning accident increased in the telling and when the news reached the colored population of the West End, it caused a great sensation. It was reported to have been the sinking of pleasure launch with all on board and the families which had relatives on the excursion were in frenzy until the truth was learned.

The funeral service will be held at the home of the boy's mother on South Second street Friday afternoon at 2:30 and in the Mount Zion A. M. E. church at 3 o'clock.

ITALIANS TO SERVE SHORT TERMS IN JAIL

Emelio Burgazio, aged thirty-one years, an Italian, who was found guilty of assault on a fellow-countryman, Andrew Alexander, about two months ago, was today sentenced by Judge Atwater to three years in State Prison. J. Henry Crane and Francis J. Blatz appeared for Burgazio the former making a strong plea for a light sentence. He said that the man has a wife and four children depending on him for support, and asked for a light sentence. Former City Judge W. N. Runyon, appeared in behalf of Alexander and urged the court to impose a heavy penalty.

The assault followed a game of cards in which the two men engaged in a quarrel. Alexander struck Burgazio, knocking him down, and then as he was making his escape, Burgazio drew a revolver, fired four shots, three of which hit Alexander.

Philip Ciocco, of Liberty street, who was found guilty of an assault on Elizabeth Ennis, aged twelve years, was also arraigned before Judge Atwater today in the county court and given two years in State Prison.

BURGLARS GET $18 IN MARION AVENUE HOME.

Burglars invaded the south section of this city, last night, or early this morning, and gained entrance to two homes. One of them was the residence of J. T. Weir, on Marion avenue, where a window was forced. They secured $18 in cash which was in the change pocket of Mr. Weir's trousers. The home of Superintendent Moller, of Hillside cemetery, on Hilside avenue, was entered in the same way but so far as known, nothing was taken. The visitors were evidently frightened away before accomplishing their purpose.

The police are making an investigation in the Weir case but have no authority in the other as the house is just over the city line in Middlesex county.

SURPRISED BY ELEVEN ON ELEVENTH BIRTHDAY.

Miss Katherine MacClymont, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue, was tendered a surprise party at the home of her parents yesterday afternoon by eleven of her young friends in honor of her eleventh birthday. The afternoon was spent in playing games on the lawn after wrich refreshments were served. Miss Dorothy MacClymont was assisted in entertaining the guests by Miss Edith Palmer, of Fanwood.

Those present were the Misses Helen Newman, Hazel Todd, Stelle Bowler, Laura Bowler, Marguerite Gulick, Eleanor Donner, Winifred Titus, Virginia Glover, Ruth Gulick and Marion Shaddel.

POSTAL BANK REPORTS SHOW SUCCESS OF PLAN.

Washington, June 21.—A total of $390,666 has been depostied in the forty-eight savings banks during the five months in which they have been in operation, according to a statement issued by the Postoffice Department yesterday. This figure is from the banks started with which the postal system was started. For the forty-five additional depositories, which were opened on May 1, the receipts have been in the one month of their operation, $70,749. This is $8,944, or fourteen per cent. more than was received at the original offices during the first month they were open.

Of the original forty-eight postal banks, Leadville, Col., led in the number and size of deposits, having 513 separate accounts, totaling $61,897.

Bisbee, Ariz., leads the division of banks opened on May 1. On the last day of the month the Bisbee office had on deposit $11,770.

On July 1, it will be possible for depositors to convert their savings into United States bonds bearing two and one-half per cent. interest.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock was greatly pleased today at the reports received from the banks. Postoffice authorities predicted that at the close of the presnt fiscal year, June 30, there would be approximately $1,000,000 on deposit at the various banks throughout the country.

The Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will hold its last meeting for the season in the parish house tomorrow night.

John Goodwin, of the borough, accompanied by Percy Cannon, of this city, conducted a successful meeting at the Rahway Reformatory on Sunday. They had an audience of about 400 men.

SIXTY DELEGATES

Union County's Party to State C. E. Convention to Travel in a Special Car.

TO ATLANTIC CITY JULY 6.

Lexington Hotel Headquarters—The Annual Big Gathering to Come to a Close July 12—Plans Announced.

All arrangements for the trip of the Union county delegates to the Atlantic City convention have been completed, and the party of sixty will go Thursday, July 6, by special car attached to the afternoon Atlantic City express, which stops at Elizabethport, at 4:05 p. m. It had been planned to have a special train, but the size of the delegation does not warrant this, and the Endeavorers will go by special car instead. The return trip will be made at the convenience of the delegates, the special tickets being good on any regular train. For the benefit of those who must return Monday morning, both the Central and Pennsylvania railroad companies have provided special trains leaving Atlantic City at 6 a. m. Monday, bringing the passengers into New York city in time for the business day. The convention will close Wednesday evening, July 12, and special trains will go out of Atlantic City at the close of the session.

All Union county delegations have been registered at the Lexington Hotel which is located but a short distance from Young's Million-Dollar Pier, where the convention will be held. The county transportation manager Purdy F. Benedict, sent out last week requests for the deposit of $2 required by the hotel and advised the delegates as to their room numbers. The balance due the hotel is to be paid in the customary manner. Railroad tickets will be purchased on day of departure. Registration for the convention will be made in advance, the delegates paying to the committee the fee of one dollar that will provide them with badges, hymn books, etc. This advance registration is made necessary by the fact that the train will arrive in Atlantic City at 6:45, too late to permit of personal registration before the opening session of the convention that evening. This will also necessitate taking supper on the train.

Elizabeth, Roselle, Garwood, Westfield, Plainfield, Rahway, Union, Springfield and Summit are included in the list of those who will represent the county. Some go as official delegates elected by their societies, others as general delegates. Mr. Benedict is the official delegate of the county union. Those who are not members of the C. E. organization will be registered as visitors. The members of the party are looking forward to a pleasant trip in congenial company and a profitable time at Atlantic City.

Special trains from every part of the country will bring the delegates into Atlantic City, Wednesday and Thursday, July 5 and 6. Large delegations are scheduled to arrive at the great city by the sea from many distant points. In some States Atlantic City clubs were formed more than a year ago and there is much enthusiasm. For the edification and pleasure of these thousands of young people a strong and comprehensive program has been planned by the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

Several cities will compete for the honor of having the 1913 convention, the most determined of these being Dallas, Texas.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION PLANNING ITS ANNUAL PICNIC.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will hold a picnic Monday, June 26, which will take the place of the usual closing exercises. The children will meet at the W. C. T. U. rooms at 10 o'clock in the morning and take the Arlington avenue trolley to Willow Lake ranch, the property of Mrs. Percy Ohl.

The members of the W. C. T. U. are cordially invited to bring lunch and join the children. The Loyal Temperance Legion has had a successful year under the direction of Mrs. Henry Thomas and is now in a prosperous condition. The children are now busy preparing scrap books and when completed will be sent away to brighten other lives.

PLAN BALL LEAGUE OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Representatives from several local Sunday schools attended a largely-attended and enthusiastic meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night, when plans for forming a Sunday school Baseball League were discussed. It was the unanimous opinion of all present that such a league would be successful and in order to encourage honest, wholesome rivalry, it was decided to award a $25 silver trophy at the end of the season to the winning team.

After some discussion as to the organization of the league, it was finally decided to defer further definite action until Monday evening, June 26, when another meeting of the representatives will be held. This action was taken because some of the schools were not represented last evening. It was decided, however, that the first league game shall be played on Saturday, July 1, between the Runyon Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and the Probasco Bible class of the First Baptist church.

The Sunday schools to be represented in the league thus far will comprise the Park Avenue Baptist, First Baptist, Trinity Reformed First Presbyterian, Hope chapel, South Plainfield Baptist and Temple Baptist.

At the meeting next Monday evening the question of a schedule will be taken up and settled; also that of umpires and other details important to the successful conduct of the league. Teams from the Park Avenue and First Baptist churches have already played several games this season, and the idea of forming a league is really the outgrowth of the success attending the work of these teams.

There is an abundance of good material to be developed in all of the Sunday schools of the city and borough and undoubtedly the proposed league will result in great rivalry among the different teams. The Sunday schools yet to be heard from include the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, First M. E., Congregational, as well as those from the Episcopal churches.

Lipkin Became Enraged.

Morris Lipkin, a cobbler on Somerset street, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss last night on complaint of his wife, who said that her husband had threatened to strike her with a chair. The trouble started in a family argument and Lipkin became excited and lost control of his temper. After spending the night in the borough jail, he was quite penitent this morning when arraigned before Recorder Dolliver and sentence was suspended with a warning.

Rev. and Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, are spending sometime at Easthampton, L. I.

YOU CAN CUT YOUR LIVING EXPENSES DOWN WITH A CALORIC FIRELESS COOKER

This is a Fireless Cooker that you really need. It cooks, roasts, boils and bakes almost anything and if possible far better than a regular fire.

Take four pounds of meat for instance; put it in the Caloric and when fully cooked you will take out four pounds of the most delicious and tempting roast you ever ate, lacking perhaps one or two ounces. All of the delicious juices are retained in the roast.

But COME IN. Let us tell you all about this wonderful Fireless Cooker—The Caloric. And how it will cut down your fuel bills.

WHERE PEDAGOGUES WILL SPEND SUMMER

The teachers of the Plainfield High School in planning for their summer vacations, will cover a wide range of territory. Several will go abroad, while others will take canoe trips. Maine and the Maine woods appears to be the favorite resort for many. Principal Lindsey Best and his family will take a trip through the Great Lakes and the surrounding regions. Miss Annie Miller will leave on the Steamship Olympic for Paris, where she will remain for about ten days. There she will join a party in a trip to Switzerland.

Henry R. Hubbard will take a canoe trip through the Maine woods, covering the distance of about four hundred miles. Mr. Hubbard, who is a registered Maine guide, will be accompanied by Jack Zerega, Walter Harrington, and Dixon Phillips, of the Plainfield High School, and Mr. Webster, of the North Plainfield High School. They will enter the woods about July 10 and return early in September.

Charles R. Bostwick will remain in Plainfield and act as dirrector for the Parker Field during the summer. The athletic field will be opened sometime during July and Mr. Bostwick will be in charge until fall.

Miss Alice Mumper will spend the summer at Lake Champlain. Miss Adriadne Gilbert will enjoy the summer in Cristoco, Maine and Miss Katherine Ball will enjoy her vacation in Maine. Samuel B. Howe, Jr., and family will travel through the New England States. Miss Lena Bass will sojourn at East Gloucester, Mass., and Miss Alice Forsythe will spend the summer at Buckport, Maine.

SOLD PORTION OF RUSHMORE ESTATE

George F. Brown and Frederick A. Martin, real estate men in the borough, have purchased a portion of the old Rushmore estate on West Eighth street below Plainfield avenue of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Tremain, of Westfield, and are planning to erect a $14,000 house on the property. The tract is on the south side of Eighth street and has a frontage of 155 feet with a depth of 135 feet.

It is intended to build a beautiful modern home on the site, the plans for which are now being drawn up by the architect, Arthur Aalholm. Work will be started on the foundations as soon as possible. Messrs. Brown and Martin have also purchased from Mrs. Tremain two lots on the north side of Stelle avenue near Grant.

Held on Two Charges.

City Judge DeMeza rendered his decision in the embezzlement charge preferred against Ralph Matthews by Frank Peppi, declaring the evidence warranted his being held for the grand jury. The defendant was immediately afterward held on a similar charge preferred by Nicholas Importico. Bail in each case was fixed at $100. It was furnished by Matthews' brother-in-law, Antonio Parretti, of St. Mary's avenue.

A Souvenir of the Maine.

Leo Kenney, of Watchung avenue, who is in the employ of the New York Dock Company, has a piece of the mast of the battleship Maine, which was blown up in Havana harbor in 1898. The mast was brought to New York yesterday on the Ward line steamer Bayonna and Mr. Kenney obtained a chip of it as a souvenir.

Mrs. William H. Shotwell, of Fairview avenue, is slowly convalescing form a severe attack of indigestion.

POLITICS.

I have never been troubled to be bothered about politics, especially the tics! But there is one matter that tics me and that I am like some of you. I do not know what I am talking about, for I have been too busy to follow up the papers. And that is the water question. If that is settled, it should not be, for that is a very very serious concoction. For our water may some day get low and there is not a river near enough to us to drink swill from. We should spend a million or two and hire a phrenologist to see if the company's heads are swelled or otherwise. In case the wells begin to go dry if their heads are wrong they will cut the water off from towns at the other end rather than this end, but if they are right they will cut it off at this end on the whole business. That will give you what you want (water in the wells) and provide them with paper to kindle their fires with, you chump you, You will never be able to get nervous prostration because your brains are in your feet. Wish our Banquet Board of Trade would go with me to Easton, and let the Board of Trade there, show you as they did me, their $601,000 guaranty fund to help chumps like me, and the only thing between us is their Delaware River water. If you have any Real Estate of any description come and see me. No charge for listing. Will make you an offer the first day you call.

ceive steam from the exhaust of the ordinary engines. Some interesting figures in regard to the weight and size of these fittings follow:

The largest plates employed in the hull are 36 feet long, weighing 4½ tons each and the largest steel beam used is 92 feet long, the weight of this double beam being 4 tons. Further, the colossal rudder, which is operated electrically, weighs 100 tons, the anchors 15½ tons each, the centre (turbine) propeller 22 tons and each of the two "wing" propellers 38 tons each. The huge after "bossarms," from which are suspended the three propeller shafts, tip the scales at 73½ tons and the forward "bossarms" at 45 tons. It is also interesting to note that each link in the anchor chains weighs 175 pounds.

Many new feature have been embodied in the construction of the latest and greatest floating hotel. There is a swimming pool, squash court, tennis court and a Turkish bath, and even a deck golf course on the top deck. There is no reason why you should not keep in shape for record-breaking athletic performances while on the trip across. Although this is the steadiest of ships, there is no billiard room, as the successful seagoing billiard table has not yet come along.

The new ship has eleven decks, two more than that tall ship, the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. There are three passenger lifts or elevators in the first class and one in the second class. The bridge deck promenade is 550 feet long and this gives a good idea of the huge scale that the vessel is built on. Five times around is more than a mile walk. The main dining saloon, which runs the width of the ship, is over 90 feet broad by 114 feet long and seats 532 persons. Its interior decoration is done in the style of the early seventeenth century. There is also an "a la carte" restaurant decorated in the style of Louis XVI.

The other public rooms are all grouped on the promenade deck and include a writing room forty-one feet square, a lounge in Louis XV. style, 63 by 59 feet, and a smoking room, 65 by 61 feet. The swimming pool is 32 by 13 feet in size, and the squash court 30 feet long, extending through two decks.

The palm court and veranda cafe are situated aft on the upper promenade. The lower promenade deck may be enclosed in glass if the weather is bad, thus giving a dry and windless walking place at all stages of the game. This is not a new feature, as the Adriatic, Rotterdam and oher liners boast of the storm deck.

In all there are 350 first class rooms, 100 of them being for a single occupant only.

On the bridge and shelter decks there are no fewer than sixty-nine suites decorated in various styles, such as Empire, Louis XV., Georgian, Queen Anne and Dutch. These suites are sumptuous and in price range from $1,200 to $2,150. They include a bedroom, siting room and bath, and in some cases a small dining room and trunk room.

The second class quarters are well fitted. On the promenade and bridge decks are situated the second class library and smoking room, and, if not as high in price, they are just as high in location. The second class dining saloon is a large one, seating 400 persons. It extends from side to side of the ship and is panelled in oak.

The Olympic has accommodations for 1,500 third-class passengers. The third class saloon seats 473 persons and there are a large smoking room, social hall and sheltered promenade on the lower deck.

The full complement of the Olympic and its future sister ship, the Titanic, will be about 3,700 persons, the total number being made up as follows: 650 first-class passengers, 500 second-class and 1,500 third. The officers and deck crew number 263; the engine room complement is 322 and the stewards' department 471.

Every modern appliance looking to safety has been used in the construction of the leviathian. A double bottom and watertight compartments are, of course, the most important of these. The double bottom extends the full length of the vessel, varying from 5 feet 3 inches to 6 feet 3 inches in depth and lends added strength to the hull. The hulls of both the Olympic and Titanic are subdivided into fifteen compartments separated by water tight bulkheads of steel. The whole of the plating of the hulls has been riveted by hydraulic power. A new type, seventon riveting machine, suspended from traveling cranes, accomplished this work with an almost entire absence of the usual deafening noises. Bilge or fin-keels prevent these huge steamships from rolling. The official prospectus also says that the combination in the Olympic's machinery of reciprocating engines operating the two wing propellors, and a low-pressure turbine operating the centre propeller, is an arrangement hitherto unique, having been tested thoroughly and found most satisfactory from an engineering point of view in the White Star line's Canadian service steamship Laurentic. Judging by the experience of passengers on the Laurentic, it is said that this combination of engines eliminates all vibration and does away with accompanying discomfort to passengers on the "ocean greyhounds" of old.

In quick succession to the Oceanic the line put into service the Baltic, Republic, Adriatic and Celtic, all or nearly all represented by other craft in service now and bearing their names. In 1873 the company's fleet of steamships, with their registered tonnage, gross tonnage, horse power and number of saloon passengers, was as follows: Britannic, 3,174, 5,004, 760, 220; Germanic, 3,174, 5,008, 760, 220; Celtic, 2,438, 3,888, 650, 150; Adriatic, 2,458, 3,888, 650, 150; Republic, 2,186, 3,707, 600, 140; Baltic, 2, 209, 3,707, 600, 140; Oceanic, 2,439, 3,707, 600, 140; Gallic, 1,712, 2,651, 400, 50; Belgic, 1,716, 2,651, 400, 50.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Lyon, of Washington avenue, are at Wolfboro, N. H., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Haberle, of West Fifth street, are sojourning at Manasquan for the summer.

Rev. and Mrs. E. G. Read, of Second place, wil leave on July 5, for a month's stay in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Charles Schermerhorn, of Sandford avenue, has returned from a two months' sojourn at Belmar.

LITERARY.

James Ford Rhodes, the historian, will contribute a number of historical papers to Scribner's Magazine in the near future. The July number contains "The Railroad Riots of 1877," a fair and judicial inquiry into the causes and results of a disturbance that almost reached the proportions of a revolution. Mrs. Burton Harrison in her "Recollections" pictures New York society in the seventies, with many amusing incidents and characters, among them Brown, the sexton of Grace church.

WALPOLE IS FINED $150; FORGER GETS ONE YEAR.

Charles Richardson, colored, who was charged with forging the name of his employer, E. H. Ladd, Jr., to several checks, each for $10, was sentenced to one year in State Prison by Judge Atwater in the county court at Elizabeth today.

Lynus Walpole was fined $150 on the charge of illegal selling of liquor. It was generally considered that Walpole got off with an extermely light sentence.

Fuel and Railroad Note.

John Dent, the general steward at the Elks' clubhouse, returned home yesterday, accompanied by ten pounds of extra avoirdupois, after a week's stay at the Glen Summit hotel, Glen Summit, Pa. During his sojourn Mr. Dent won the Alleghany open-air pinochle championship and also made frequent trips to the Wyoming Valley coal fields. He reports an abundance of anthracite on hand sufficient to last 5,000 years, geologists' statements to the contrary. He also declared great improvements in railroad transportation over mountains, one Baldwin triple expansion locomotive doing the work of one old-style "hog" and two pushers.

Coddington Case in Court.

The case of Horace Coddington was argued in the Court of Errors and Appeals, Trenton, yesterday, but no decision was anounced. This is the case on appeal in which Mr. Coddington seeks to set aside the sentence of the court on a charge of misappropriation of funds in Warren township.

Lightning Hits Chimney.

During the brief thunder shower which visited this city yesterday afternoon, lightning struck a chimney at the home of J. T. Vail, 1019 Putnam avenue. The damage was slight. It rained here for only a few minutes, but along the Jersey Coast the storm was severe.

Attending Wellesley Commencement.

Miss Elizabeth Goddard, of East Ninth street and Miss Eva Terry, of the borough, are attending the commencement week at Wellesley College. Miss Goddard is chairman of the fifth reunion committee while Miss Terry is in charge of the tenth reunion.

GOVERNOR MARSHALL FOR GOVERNOR WILSON

That Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, looms largest among the possible Democratic candidates for the presidency at the next election is the opinion of Governor Thos. Marshall, of Indiana, who is in Philadelphia, to deliver the oration at the University of Pennsylvania today.

Governor Marshall, who is himself a Democrat, and has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the chief place on his party's ticket in 1912, smilingly waived aside the suggestion that he would make a fight for the honor.

"You know every time a Democrat gets elected governor of a state," he said, "he is mentioned by some person or newspaper as a 'presidential possibility.' That's all there is to it in my case. But Woodrow Wilson is in a different position. If the reports we read are to be believed, he is very popular here in the east with the Republicans and independents, as well as the members of his own party. When he traveled through the west he was warmly received, and I think did not disappoint the expectations of those who went to hear him. He was my guest while in Indianapolis, and I found him most interesting and with every evidence of possessing great strength of character. He was already well thought of in the west, and I am inclined to believe his tour only cemented the liking of the people at large."

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen Democratic Club will present the rural playlet, "The Country Minister," in Junior Hall tomorrow and Friday nights. The production will be under the auspices of Washington Camp, No. 98, P. O. S. of A., and promises to be one of the club's best efforts. An excellent cast will interpret the action and the advance sale of seats indicates large audiences on both nights.

Captain B. A. Cole, of the borough, has been pdaced in charge of the Jersey Central's new ferryboat, "Westfield,' which commenced regular trips a few days ago between Communipaw and Twenty-third street.

Harry Halloway, of Philadelphia, has opened a jewelry and watch-repairing establishment in the corner store of John P. Fenner's hardware shop.

J. A. Moynihan, of Minneapolis, Minn., has returned home after a visit with his cousin, John Moynihan, of North avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gladden, of Front stret, have been spending some time at Hinsdale, Mass.

The G. E. Club will be entertained next Tuesday night by Miss Ethel Garretson.

LOS ANGELES TO GREET PHYSICIANS

Los Angeles, Cal., will be the center of attraction for the medical profession of the United States during the latter part of this month. The sixty-second annual session will be held in that city on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 27-30.

This meeting, which wil be the annual assembling of the representatives of the national organization of the medical profession, comprising more than 80,000 members, has not been held on the Pacific Coast since 1905, when the association met at Portland during the Lewis and Clark exposition.

The American Medical Association is composed of more than 2,000 county societies, and of fifty-two state and territorial associations. The meeting in Los Angeles will include the thirteen scientific sections as well as the annual session of the house of delegates, the business and legislative body, composed of representatives from all of the state associations. As the association in the sixty-three years of its existence ha only met three times on the Pacific Coast, its coming meeting is anticipated by physicians and the public throughout the west.

Many other medical organizations, either independent or subordinate to the association, will hold their meetings at about the same time, so that there are few physicians in the United States who will not be interested in some of the meetings, which will be held in the west during the next month. Among other organizations which will meet at Los Angeles are the American Academy, of Medicine, which meets on Saturday, June 24, and Monday, June 26; the conference of state and provincial boards of health of North America, which meets on Friday, June 30; the American Society of Medical Examiners, which meets on June 26 and 27, and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis which meets at Denver today. Besides these scientific meetings, many class and medical college reunion will be held during the week of the annual session.

SAMUEL M'CALL MAY YET HEAD PRINCETON.

Washington, June 21.—The rumor still persists here among some of the close friends of Representative Samuel McCall, of Massachusetts, that he is to be offered the presidency of Princeton University. These friends point as very significant that some weeks ago when Mr. McCall was invited to address the graduating class at Lawrenceville, although he had planned but the briefest cort of a visit, he was prevailed upon to lengthen his stay by Mr. Green, of Trenton, one of the most active and influential men in Princeton affairs.

McCall stayed at the home of Mr. Green and it was Mr. Green who took the Congressman to Princeton, introduced him to interested people there and who arranged to have some of the university officials meet him at his Trenton home. They also point out that the faculty and trustees have been utterly unable to agree upon Dr. Henry Van Dyke, dean, H. B. Fines or Professor Jack Hibben, the only three men now connected with the university, who have been in any way seriously considered. This deadlock practically throws the decision to some available outside man and it has been known for some time that Mr. McCall was one of the most acceptable "outsiders."

That Mr. McCall stands high in the esteem of academic circles they say is clearly shown by the fact that two years ago he was proffered the presidency of Dartmouth. At that time Mr. McCall was one of the most influential members of the majority party in Congress and had assumed so many weighty responsibilities that he was not able to accept the post. But now it is claimed circumstances have changed and it is practically certain that the Massachusetts statesman would readily accept.

Mr. McCall himself will say absolutely nothing on the subject and even his silence is cited as evidence favoring the contention of his friends. He is 60 years old, a graduate of Dartmouth, an able lawyer, a representative in Congress of many years standing, and a careful student of history and economics as shown by many of his books, speeches and papers.

Newark Auto is Burned.

Morristown, June 21.—An automobile truck, belonging to the W. V. Snyder Company, Newark, was burned up last Monday night on the Green Village road. The chauffeur and his assistant succeeded in getting most of the packages from the car before it was dstroyed. A few of the parcels were burned. Owing to the fact that there was no house with a telephone located near the scene of the accident, word could not be sent to the Morristown Fire Department. The company estimates its loss at $2,500.

Aged Woman in Fatal Fall.

Garfield, June 21.—Mrs. Josephine Eustrin, sixty-five years old, was almost instantly killed by a fall from a second-story window of her home here Monday. She was cleaning windows and lost her balance. Mrs. Eustrin lived in Grinnell avenue and is survived by two sons.

The Baker Telephones

"THAT'S a pretty big order but I guess I can fill it. If you had called up an hour later I couldn't have done it."

The baker frequently has an unusual demand upon the capacity of his plant.

If he happens to be short of material, he telephones to his wholesaler and saves valuable time.

His customer is in his own town, but he may have to use the long distance to reach the wholesaler. That's where the universal Bell Service counts.

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Plainfield People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine full of "brickdust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rhumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they help sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Plainfield people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Albert Naylor, musician, 256 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I suffered from an ache in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I took Doan's Kidney Pills, as I was told that they were good for such troubles and by the time I had finished the contents of two boxes, I was feeling better in every way. I have often recommended this remedy to people I have heard complaining of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

HIGH WATER LEVEL AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Lake Hopatcong, June 21.—The water in the lake is but four inches below high water mark, which is the highest it has been at this time of the year for many seasons.

Several big catches have been made by Lake Hopatcong anglers within the last week. Frank Crater captured a 5¼-pound bass yesterday, while Anse Decker landed three good-sized black bass Sunday. The largest weighed 6 pounds and 2 ounces, and the other two tipped the scales at 2½ pounds each. John Temple, a Trenton lawyer, landed a 4½-pound pickerel Saturday.

One of the members of an excursion party from Harrisburg, Pa., upset while paddling a canoe until about 200 yards off Nolan's Point Sunday. He was unable to swim but held on to the sides of the canoe until picked up by the motorboat Charlotte E.

Hudson Maxim will, it is announced, open a large hotel at River Styx, this season.

Twenty-five bungalows have been erected at Byram Cove during the winter. Most of them are already occupied.

Among those who have pitched camps at this resort this week are: A. L. Kennedy, of Bayonne, Mrs. G. H. Mortiz, of Bayonne, Uneek Club, of Dover; and William Irvin, of Richmond Hill, Long Island.

William Hockenjos, of Paterson, has opened the Vanover House, at Espanong, for the season.

Jerome Knight, of Orange, is at his bungalow, at Sperry Springs.

C. A. Lee, Jr., Charles Austin and Raymond Perrin, of Plainfield, have returned after spending several days at Wa Way Anda cottage.

Public Service Tank Explodes.

New Brunswick, June 21.—A small gas tank at the storgae plant of the Public Service Gas Company exploded about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. No one was hurt. People living in the neighborhood were frightened, and many window panes were knocked out in the Janeway & Co., wallpaper factory, which is across the street from the gas plant.

Took Too Much Headache Powder.

Asbury Park, June 21.—An overdose of headache powders proved serious to Edward Davis, book-keeper of the Hotel Brunswick, but he is now out of danger. Soon after taking the medicine Mr. Davis became dizzy, his condition soon became dangerous and he was hurried to Philadelphia, where he was treated by specialists.

Mrs. Charles H. Frost and family, of Franklin place, are at Rideau Ferry, Ontario, Canada, for the summer.

Hair Dresser

HAVE YOU
inspected the summer hair goods at Mme. Brunelly's Hair Dressing Parlor? They are entirely different from and a great improvement on all others in elegance, originality and exclusiveness, being light and fluffy.

Coronet braids and chignons are especially desirable for summer wear, being made of naturally wavy hair, not affected by damp weather and perspiration.

A special course of treatment to eliminate dandruff and falling hair evils is a feature of this parlor.

An experienced manicure is always in attendance.

Gray hair restored to its original color with one bottle of Gray Hair Restorer. Price $1.00.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Landlady of the Occidental.

Keith had crossed at this point so frequently with cattle that, once having his bearings, the blackness of the night made very little difference. Nevertheless, in fear lest her pony might stumble over some irregularity, he gave his own rein to Neb, and went forward on foot, grasping firmly the tired animal's bit. It was a long stretch of sand and water extending from bank to bank, but the water was shallow, the only danger being that of straying off from the more solid bottom into quicksand. With a towering cottonwood as guide, oddly misshapen and standing out gauntly against the slightly lighter sky, the plainsman led on unhesitatingly, until they began to climb the rather sharp uplift of the north bank. Here there was a plain trail, pounded into smoothness by the hoofs of cavalry horses ridden down to water, and at the summit they emerged within fifty yards of the stables.

The few lights visible, some stationary, with others dancing about like will-o'-the-wisps, revealed imperfectly the contour of various buildings, but Keith turned sharply to the right, anxious to slip past without being challenged by a sentry. Beyond the brow of the bluff other lights now became visible, flickering here and there, marking where a straggling town had sprung up under the protection of the post—a town garish enough in the daylight, composed mostly of shacks and tents, but now with its deficiencies mercifully concealed by the enveloping darkness. The trail, easily followed, led directly along its single street, but Keith circled the outskirts through a wilderness of tin-cans and heaps of other debris, until he halted his charges beside the black shadow of the only two-story edifice in the place. This was the Occidental, the hospitality of which he had frequently tested.

A light streamed from out the front windows, but, uncertain who might be harbored within, Keith tapped gently at the back door. It was not opened immediately, and when it was finally shoved aside the merest crack, no glow of light revealed the darkened interior. The voice which spoke, however, was amply sufficient to identify its owner.

"Is that ye agin, Murphy, a playin' av yer dirthy thricks?"

"No, Mrs. Murphy," he hastened to explain, "this is Keith—Jack Keith, of the 'Bar X.'"

"The Lord deliver us!" was the instant exclamation, the door opening wide. "They do be afther tellin' me to-night av the throuble ye was in over at Carson, an' Oi t'ought maybe ye moight turn up this way. It was a nate trick ye played on the loikes av 'em, Jack, but this is a dom poor place fer ye ter hide in. Bedad, there's a half-dozen in the parly now talkin' about it, wid a couple av officers from the fort. Is the nager wid ye?"

"Yes, but we have no intention of hiding here. I'd rather take my chance in the open. The fact is, Kate, we started off for the 'Bar X.'"

"Av course, ye did; Oi was shure av it."

"But down on the Salt Fork we ran across a young girl whom Black Bart had inveigled down that way on a lie. We had a bit of a fight, and got her away from him. This is what brought us back here—to put the girl where she will be safe out of his clutches."

The door was wide open now, and Mrs. Murphy outside, her interest at fever heat.

"Ye had a foight wid Black Bart! Oh, ye divil! An' ye licked the dirthy spalpane, an' got away wid his gyurl! Glory be! And would Oi take her? Well, Oi would. Niver doubt that, me bye. She may be the quane av Shaba, an' she may be a Digger Injun Squaw, but the loikes av him had better kape away from Kate Murphy. It's glad Oi am ter do it! Bring her in. Oi don't want ter hear no more."

"Just a word, Kate; I don't know whether she has any money or not, but I'll pay her bill, as soon as it is safe for me to come back."

"Oh, the divil take her bill. She'll have the best in the house, annyhow, an' Oi'm only hopin' that fellow will turn up huntin' her. Oi'd loike ter take one slap at the spalpane."

Fully convinced as to Mrs. Murphy's good-will, Keith slipped back into the darkness, and returned with the girl. Introductions were superfluous, as the mistress of the Occidental cared little regarding ceremony.

"An' is this you, my dear?" she burst out, endeavoring to curb her voice to secretive softness. "Shure, Jack Keith has told me all about it, an' it's safe it is yer goin' ter be here. Come on in; Oi'll give ye number forty-two, that's next behint me own room, an' we'll go up the back sthairs. Hilp the young loidy, Jack, fer shure ye know the way."

She disappeared, evidently with some hospitable purpose in view, and Keith, clasping the girl's hand, undertook the delicate task of safely escorting her through the dark kitchen, and up the dimly remembered stairs. Only a word or two passed between them, but as they neared the second story a light suddenly streamed out through the opened door of a room at their left. Mrs. Murphy greeted them at the landing, and for the first time saw the girl's weary white face, her eyes filled with appeal, and the warm Irish heart responded instantly.

"Ye poor little lamb; it's the bid ye want, an' a dhrap o' whiskey. Jack Keith, why didn't ye till me she was done up wid the hard ride? Here, honey, sit down in the rocker till Oi get ye a wee dhrink. It'll bring the roses back to the cheeks av ye." She was gone, bustling down the dark stairs, and the two were alone in the room, the girl looking up into his face, her head resting against the cushioned back of the chair. He thought he saw a glimmer of tears in the depths of her lash-shaded eyes, and her round white throat seemed to choke.

"You will be perfectly secure here," he said, soothingly, "and can remain as long as you please. Mrs. Murphy will guard you as though you were her own daughter. She is a bit rough, maybe, but a big-hearted woman, and despises Hawley. She nursed me once through a touch of typhoid—yes, by Jove," glancing about in sudden recognition, "and in this very room, too."

The girl's glance wandered over the plain, neat furnishings, and the rather pathetic attempts at decoration, yet with apparently no thought for them.

"You—you have not told me where you were going."

He laughed, a little uneasily, as though he preferred to make light of the whole matter.

"Really, I have hardly decided, the world is so wide, and I had no reason to suppose you interested."

"But I am interested," resenting his tone of assumed indifference. "I would not want to feel that our acquaintance was to wholly end now."

"Do you really mean that?"

"Why should I not? You have been a real friend to me; I shall remember you always with a gratitude beyond words. I want you to know this, and that—that I shall ever wish to retain that friendship."

Keith struggled with himself, doubtful of what he had best say, swayed by unfamiliar emotions.

"You may be sure I shall never forget," he blurted forth, desperately, "and, if you really wish it, I'll certainly see you again."

"I do," earnestly.

"Then, I'll surely find a way. I don't know now which direction we will ride, but I'm not going very far until I clear up that murder out yonder on the trail; that is my particular job just now."

Before she could answer, Mrs. Murphy re-entered and forced her to drink the concoction prepared, the girl accepting with smiling protest. The landlady, empty glass in hand, swept her eyes about the room.

"Bedad, but the place looks betther than iver Oi'd belaved, wid the gyurl Oi've got tindin' to it. She's that lazy she goes ter slape swapin' the flure. Jack, would ye moind hilpin' me move the bid; shure, it's rale mahogany, an' so heavy it breaks me back intoirely to push it 'round."

He took hold willingly enough, and the two together ran the heavy contrivance across the room to the position selected. Once a leg caught in the rag carpet, and Keith lifted it out, bending low to get a firmer grip. Then he held out his hand to the girl.

"It is not going to be good-bye then, Miss Hope; I'll find you."

She smiled up into his eyes, much of the weariness gone from her face.

"I am going to believe that," she answered, gladly, "because I want to."

Mrs. Murphy lingered until his steps sounded on the stairs, as he slowly felt his way down through the darkness.

"He do be a moighty foine bye. Jack Keith," she said, apparently addressing the side wall. "Oi wish Oi'd a knowed him whin Oi was a gyurl; shure, it's not Murphy me noime'd be now, Oi'm t'inkin'."

Left alone, the girl bowed her head on her hands, a hot tear stealing down through her fingers. As she glanced up again, something that glittered on the floor beside the bed caught her eyes. She stopped and picked it up, holding the trinket to the light, staring at it as though fascinated. It was the locket Keith had taken from the neck of the dead man at Cimmaron Crossing. Her nerveless fingers pressed the spring, and the painted face within looked up into her own, and still clasping it within her hand, she sank upon her knees, burying her face on the bed.

"Where did he get that?" her lips kept repeating. "Where did he ever get that?"

GOOD paint like the Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint is a great preservative for your wood work. Leave the lumber exposed to the elements without a firm coating of good paint and it will rot. It will cost you more to repair this wood-work, both in labor and materials, than the cost to re-paint your entire house.

Don't be short-sighted; remember that "to paint in time saves trouble."

You wouldn't be without insurance against loss by fire. Painting your home is insurance against destruction by the elements.

Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint is undoubtedly the paint for you to buy, because it is most economical. Not economical because it costs less (its price per gallon is a trifle more than the inferior kinds), but because less of it will cover a given area, and do it so well that you are entirely pleased. Its lasting quality is measured by years.

Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint is ready to apply when you are ready to use it. No mixing, no guess work, absolute uniformity, always the highest quality.

Bridgeport Standard Prepared Paint is "made up to a standard, not down to a price."

The week of June 26th, will be one of the big weeks of the early summer season at Keith and Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, and it is a timely and well diversified bill that the management have arranged for their host of patrons. The stellar attraction on this occasion will be Sumiko, the great Japanese prima donna, who is known as the Melba of Japan. Sumiko for the past few years has been appearing at the Imperial Opera House at Tokio, where her wonderful voice not only caused a sensation in her home country, but also attracted world-wide attention. In fact her services were in such demand that it caused much rivalry between many American managers, as for whom she would first appear in this country. Sumiko will sing selections from "Madam Butterfly," "Faust," and other big operas of the day, and will also sing a few of our recent rag-time bits.

BASEBALL.

The lawyers are now looking around for some formidable diamond opponents. A match between the legal advisors and the tooth pullers has been talked of and it is expected that the dentists will be challenged within a few days.

A game between the lawyers and the municipal employes would perhaps be more appropriate than a struggle with the gum-lancers. The "City Beautiful" has some speedy ball players on its payrolls and such game would be a fight for blood.

Any team that tries to play the lawyers, however, will have to be provided with counsel for will-makers will to the Cubs trick—if they win on hits, they will win on technicalities.

That home run by Harter at Bound Brook Saturday was not a foul despite the fact that it landed in the left field chicken yard. The swat startled the fans as well as the hens.

At the meeting of the magnates of the Central League tonight an agreement as to the extent of professionalism on the teams will have to be decided. Westfield's kick on the "Red" Waller question seems to be out of order since there has been no rule against such men in this organization.

Fred Tenney ,the manager of the Boston Nationals, has not as yet given Walter Nelson, the Plainfielder catcher, a work out in any of the games with the Giants. Nelson went to Boston Monday morning after Tenney had arranged with his employer to hold his position for a week so as to prepare for the inevitable in case the big back stop did not make good. With Johnny Kling behind the bat for the Beaneaters, now, Walter will have to go some in order to have a look-in. Tenney put Nelson on the receiving point Monday afternoon in an exhibition game with the Fall River team of the New England league. Hogg, another Boston "try-out," did the twirling for the "tdy-out," did the twirling for the the game, 4-3, but the Plainfield catcher made a favorable impression.

Just keep your eyes focused on Nolan, that lanky centerfielder of the Bound Brook team. He can swat the ball like a big leaguer and his running stride would almost give him a birth on a fast track team.

As we gallop to press we wonder what the league officials will do tonight about that umpire question. From the looks of things at Bound Brook Saturday, somebody is ill and a diagnosis should be made as quickly as possible.

But just wait until "Red" steps on the mound against that Mt. Arrarat combination Saturday! Come early and avoid the rush!

Frederickson, the lad who came into the limelight with the Y. M. C. A. nine last year, is pitching great ball for Dunellen this season. He held Cranford to a bunch of zeros after the first inning in last Saturday's game.

PROFIT

One of the strongest arguments in favor of keeping one's bank account in Plainfield, whether it be a checking account or a savings account, is convenience. Especially is this true of the savings account; for who has not wearily waited his turn on a New York Savings Bank line in July or January, when he wished to deposit or withdraw money? Better bring in your passbook to us and allow us to attend to the transfer of your account without expense and without the loss of interest and at the same time relieve your estate of a possible inheritance tax.

GOLF

What may prove to be the most attractive tournament ever conducted under the auspices of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests will be held at Lake Champlain the week beginning Monday, July 10. So many and varied are the competitions that the committee in charge announces a total of no less than seventy-nine prizes, which probably breaks all records so far as a golf tournament is concerned. On the first day there will be handicap foursomes of eighteen holes, for which eight prizes have been offered. With a view to promoting sociability partners in these foursomes will be players with a high and low handicap. The combined gross scores less the combined handicaps of the pairs will count.

Also starting on the first day will be a putting competition, to continue until Friday. Four prizes are offered in that event. There will be a "goat" competition to last throughout the week. At the start each member will have his "goat" medal, and at the end the one that has the greatest number of medals will be declared the winner.

The qualifying round of the tournament proper will begin on Tuesday, July 11, in an eighteen-hole medal play round. This will be a combination of scratch and handicap, and those making the sixteen best gross scores will qualify to continue on at match play for the championship of the association. In this medal round there will be first, second, third and fourth net prizes and first and second gross for the men, while for the women there will be one gross and three net prizes. An innovation will be the starting of the low handicap men first, which it is believed will help to avoid congestion so usual with large fields.

On Wednesday, July 12, the first set will continue on a scratch basis, while all the other eights will fight it out along the handicap lines. The match rounds of the first eight will consist of thirty-six holes, whereas in all the minor divisions eighteen hole rounds will suffice. Prizes have been offered for the winners of the various eights, also the beaten fours. There will be a special handicap on Friday for those put out at match play, and for the men there will be first, second and third net prizes and one gross trophy, while for the women there will be one gross and two net prizes.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet tomorrow evening.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will elect officers next Monday night.

FOR STATE SENATE

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer Would Succeed Frelinghuysen.

TELLS WHERE HE STANDS.

Lawyer Points to His Record and Goes Into Details Regarding His Political Platform—It Rests With the People.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer announces his willingness to run for the State Senate from Somerset county in the following open letter:

Editor, The Daily Press: —

Many friends have advised me to become a candidate for the State Senate, and I am inclined to file a petition and enter the primaries. The advice of friends, however, is not the only consideration. No man can fully discharge his obligations to society, and not give some time and attention to public affairs, if the people require his services; and, under the present election law, that question is settled by the primary vote.

While pursuing a calling, attended with little leisure, I have not felt at liberty to neglect the study and consideration of public questions and political methods; and in public office, I never hesitate to act in accordance with my convictions of the right, nor to urge the passage of such laws as I honestly believed would subserve the highest interests of the people, nor to oppose such measures as I thought would invade their rights.

For years the instruments of popular government have been slipping from the people's hands, and trade politicians, as agents of the special interests, have at times practically ruled the State.

Prior to the opening of the last gubernatorial campaign, many citizens had lost heart and believed there was little hope of deliverance from the tyranny of the Trusts, and the usurpations of 'Big Business Interests.'

Before last election, however, certain reform measures were summarily demanded by the public at large, and promises of obedience to the people's will went into political platforms and echoed from the stump—promises that abuses should be abolished, that the 'Special Interests' should be curbed, that elections should be purified, that the Boss should be unhorsed, and that government should be restored to the people.

On that platform, at the head of a host of earnest, patriotic citizens, drawn from all parties, stood a man who had mastered the science of government, and in whose personality the honors were divided between intellect and character, a man who believed that "nothing is politically right that is morally wrong," who believed that a platform pledge is as binding as a bond, although it has no seal attached.

Woodrow Wilson took the oath of office, and began at once to execute the contract between the Democratic party and the people, in exact accordance with the plans and specifications. The machine politicians were embarrassed, the Special Interests were nonplussed, and the Bosses were bewildered. To all these truth was stranger than fiction.

From the first, the Governor's supreme object was to restore the government to the people; to give them back the tools to work with; and these tools will be found in the session laws of 1911.

The direct primary law is one of the most effectual instruments of popular government ever put in the hands of the people, and the question now is; Will they use it? You may lie stretched on the burning sands of the desert, and die of thirst, with a cup of cold water in your right hand. The water will not save you unless you use it.

Every political machine and every political Boss, with henchmen and healers, will be at the primaries the instant the poles open, and will stay right there until the last second of the last minute of the last hour; and the people, if less alert, will stand no chance of beating the Bosses.

The Bosses are now counting on the absence of the reform forces from the primaries, and hope thereby to win.

At the primaries, under the present law, the people's servants must be sorted out and selected. When the primary point is passed, there is no remedy if a tool of the Trusts or a creature of the Bosses is selected instead of a real representative of the people. It is then too late.

The election laws have been secured in the teeth of iron opposition and bitter Boss resistance. Would it not be negative treason now to surrender this keen edged political rapier into the hands of the enemy? The voter at the primary is the switchman at the switch. The claims

RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

One Hundred and Twenty-Eight Pupils Complete Grammar School Course.

ADDRESSED BY REV. KEMBLE.

Superintendent Maxson Also Speaks at the Commencent Exercises —The Honor List is Announced—Program.

The Plainfield High School auditorium held a capacity audience yesterday afternoon when the graduating exercises of the Stillman Grammar school were held. Diplomas were presented by Leander N. Lovell, president of the Board of Education, to 128 girls and boys, over a score of whom had entered the High School last year but had not received their graduation certificates on account of conditions in their studies. A feature of the exercises yesterday was the singing of the class.

The principal address was made by Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, while Dr. Henry M. Maxson gave a talk to the graduates. Dr. Maxson said in part:

"The great business of childhood is to prepare boys and girls so that when they become men and women they can pluck the good things of life, and not get marred by the evil. The place pre-eminently to give this training is the home. In olden times, it was all given there. The school is a modern invention to aid the home in this work.

"We wish our children to pick the fruits of success. The foundation stones of success are punctuality, regularity, the power of initiative, persistence of application. These are fundamental principles in the work of a good school. We wish our children to pluck the fruits of integrity of character. The school teaches arithmetic, geography and the other dry subjects, but a good school does more than this; it orders its arrangements, its discipline, its school atmosphere so as preeminently to create in the child a sense of accountability, responsibility, uprightness, and integrity.

"We wish our children to pluck the fruits of happiness. A school that inculcates in its children the principles of success and integrity of character does much to insure the

MISS EMMA C. FAULKS NOW MRS. H. J. MANNING

Miss Emma C. Faulks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Faulks, and Harry J. Manning, both of South Plainfield, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church. There were about seventy-five guests.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine over silk and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Following the ceremony a reception was held and later the couple started on an extended trip. They will reside at South Plainfield upon their return.

The house was decorated with ferns, daisies and roses. There were guests from Newark, Elizabeth, Princeton, Kingston, Chatham, New Brunswick, New Market and South Plainfield. The bride received a large number of gifts. In going away the bride and groom started in a coach and later exchanged it for a carriage, in their successful efforts to escape their friends. They were followed in carriages through Plainfield and North Plainfield and finally gave the couple a great sendoff at the North Avenue Station.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF PRIVATE NIGHT SCHOOL

The private night school of which Mrs. A. M. Alexander is the teacher, held its closing exercises at Reform Hall last night. The program opened with an invocation by Rev. G. E. Scruggs, followed with songs and recitations. Those who took part in the program were the following:

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Mrs. Annie Moore, Mrs. Bertha Brinkly, Andrew Jackson, Mrs. Mattie Blynum, Mrs. Augusta Selby, Miss Effie Selby, Mrs. Hannah Henderson, Miss Claiborn, Mrs. Rose Jackson. Miss Ruth Alexander presided at the piano.

BOROUGH HIGH FUN

Class Day Exercises of North Plainfield Seniors at Debele's Hall.

A WEIRD STAGE SETTING.

Miss Stiglitz Gives Class Prophecy; Miss Demarest History; Miss Runyon Tells of the Present —Miss DeCamp Statistics..

A wierd scene was staged by the senior class of the North Plainfield High School at its class day exercises in Debele's auditorium last night. Three young women of the class played the roles of witches, being seated around a cauldron in the midst of a lonely heath. The hall was darkened and the stage was lighted by the wierd rays of a calcium light, alternating with the dim glow of the coals beneath the cauldron. During this scene of mystery the future for the members of the class was predicted by Miss Adelaide Stiglitz, the past was told by Miss Louise Demarest, and the present was announced by Miss Clara B. Runyon, these three being the witches at the cauldron. The members of the class appeared in turn as the curtains were drawn apart when the prophecy for each was foretold.

The program included in addition to the prophecy the singing of two solos by Herbert Stein, accompanied by Miss Nettie Steiner, an address of welcome by Percy Watson, the president of the class, the reading of the class will by Edward F. Bodin, singing of the class song, which was written by Percy J. Bailey, and the presentation of a picture to the school by the graduating class. Mr. Watson presented the gift and Professor B. J. Phelps accepted it in behalf of the school.

Class statistics, adopted by vote of the graduates, was read by Miss DeCamp. These included many topical hits on the members of the class. They were as follows:

Total weight of class, 2,625 pounds; average height, 5 feet 4 inches; favorite flower, daisy; best actor, Andrew Stiglitz; favorite novel, "The Fighting Chance;" favorite character in literature, Desperate Desmond; favorite exercises, cutting classes and running away from the faculty; favorite sport, baseball; favorite songs, "The Orange and the Black," led by the principal, B. J. Phelps, of Yale; brightest, James P. Bailey; handiest worker, Malcolm Krewson; biggest bluffer, Henry B. Harrison; most talkative, Emma Tetlow; strawberry blond, Percy Watson; most conceited, Herbert Stein; meekest, Katie Layton; most self-sacrificing, Raymond Wyckoff; man hater, Carrie Williams; class baby, Emma Tetlow; thinest, Percy Watson, faculty pet, Adelaide Stiglitz; class flirt, Clara Runyon; best all around fellow, Edward Bodin; best all around girl, Bessie Conroy; done most for N. P. H. S., Malcolm Krewson; most likely to succeed, Edward Bodin; best dressed boy, Herbert Stein; best dressed girl, Clara Runyon; biggest eater, Percy Bailey; cutest, Louise Demarest; noisest, Andrew Stiglitz; grouchiest, Herbert Stein; most congenial, Teresa Schmidt; handsomeest boy, Harry Jackson; prettiest girl, Katie Layton; meekest boy, Arthur Stewart; class dictator, Lena Rilling; class batchelor, Malcolm Krewson; stingiest, Percy Watson; most persevering Teresa Schmidt and Andrew Stiglitz; greatest financier, Jacob Abrams.

The school insignia was presented by Mr. Phelps to the following boys: Walter Walker, Fred Becker, Raymond Wyckoff, George Wall, Jacob Abrams, Carroll Taylor, Edward Bodin, Frank Dunning, Herbert Stein, William Taylor, Percy Bailey, Harry Jackson and Malcolm Krewson. Mr. Phelps accompanied each presentation with a few words of commendation upon the work of the athletes during the year.

After the exercises the floor was cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed by three hundred people until after 12 o'clock. The music was furnished by Messrs. Squires and Paroubek.

FREE LUNCH EVIL

Common Councilman Says Saloons "Gratis Eats" Are Objectionable.

MANY COMPLAINTS RECEIVED.

An Amendment to Excise Ordinances to Be Introduced to Abolish the Saloonkeepers' Custom.

It became known today that the Common Council will in all probability take action at its next regular meeting to prohibit the serving of free lunches in the local saloons. The custom is one that has been in vogue for many years and has grown to such proportions that on certain occasions the expenditure of a nickle for a schooner of beer entitles the spender to all the emoluments of a full course dinner ranging from soup to nuts. It is pointed out that the variety and convenience of the viands have been the means of inducing men to remain in the thirst emporiums instead of going home for meals. The proprietor of the place wins out in the long run as the amount usually spent for booze defrays the cost of the so-called free eats many times over.

A member of the Common Council said today that he had been frequently appealed to by wives and mothers who wanted him to do something to offset the lunch proposition. He has given the matter a studied inspection, he said, and accordingly believes the custom to be harmful. He has decided to introduce an amendment to the ordinance governing the conduct of saloons. Support has been promised him by fellow-members and it is extremely probable the measure will go through.

The custom of passing out free lunch began in a small way but has steadily grown until the saloon proprietors have resorted to extremes to outdo each other. Crackers and cheese formerly served as an inducement to draw trade, but they have long since been shoved aside to make way for savory fish cakes, bowls of hot soup, ham and tongue sandwiches and oysters on toast. On Saturdays and special occasions specials are added to the regular bill and there are always side dishes of pickled cabbage and onions, vinegared beets, watercress or radishes. Pretzels, fresh from the oven, are also used to entice the German element from their homes and firesides and he who craves sardines and saltines may have his fill for the asking.

It is declared by people in a position to know that the lunches set out in Plainfield are among the most eilaborate in the State. In several instances the daily expense of the elaborate in the State. In several the entire expense of a saloon twenty years ago.

HIGH SCHOOL WON EIGHT OF EIGHTEEN CONTESTS

Plainfield High School Baseball Team.

Second row—Arthur Grisley, 2b; William Davenport, ss; Terry, p.

The City High School baseball nine has finished its season with a record of eight victories in eighteen games. The team clouted the ball for the season for an average of .291 but poor fielding was responsible for the majority of the defeats. Frank Clarke did the best individual batting, having a record of .440 for the entire season.

Terry, the star twirler for the P. H. S. aggregation last year, was far below form this season. An injury to his pitching wing in the winter seriously affected his usual steady and efficient work on the mound, consequently the slag work on the team was weak in all the games.

Captain Runyon was the best fielder on the nine and his work as a leader was first class. Carty proved to be a Rock of Gibralter on first base as well as with the big willow stick which he wielded among the best of them.

The scholarship eligibility rule was strictly enforced by the school faculty this year and three star players were prevented from participating in the important games with North Plainfield High School at the close of the season. Illness also handicapped the team by keeping Jack Zerega, the speedy shortstop, out of the game for the whole year.

The record of games follows:

April 8, P. H. S., 11, Roselle H. S., 7; 12th, P. H. S., 12; Cranford H. S. 11, (10 innings); 17th, P. H. S. 6, Camp Bowser 11; 19th, P. H. S. 3, Somerville H. S. 3 (7 innings); 26th, P. H. S. 2, Rutgers Prep. 9; 29th, P. H. S. 12, Alumni 9.

May 3rd, P. H. S. 16; Upsala College, 15; 9th, P. H. S. 6, Perth Amboy H. S. 12; 11th, P. H. S. 2, North Plainfield H. S. 8; 13th, P. H. S. 9, Kingsley School 0, (forfeited because of non-appearance); 15th, P. H. H. 5, Somerville 9; 20th, P. H. S. 4, Upsala College 3, (10 innings); 24th, P. H. S. 4, Roselle H. S. 0; 27th, P. H. S. 0, Perth Amboy H. S. 9 (forfeit because of ineligility of some Plainfield players); 30th, P. H. S. 7, Morris H. S. 13.

June 10th, P. H. S. 11; North Plainfield H. S. 9; 14th, P. H. S. 2, North Plainfield H. S. 3.

MRS. L. C. PUTNAM, AGED 75 YRS., DEAD

Mrs. Lewis C. Putnam, aged seventy-five years, one of the oldest residents of this city, died yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John E. Laird, on Ridgewood avenue, Newark, from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Putnam was born in this city her maiden name being Betsy T. Connett. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Connett, who were old residents here. Mrs. Putnam was believed to be about the oldest member of the First M. E. church, and when health permitted was a regular attendant. She is survived by two sons, Frank Putnam, of the firm of Putnam & DeGraw, and Frazee Putnam, of this city; one daughter, Mrs. John E. Laird, of Newark, and two brothers, Frazee and Henry Putnam, of San Jose, Ill. The funeral will be held at the home of her son, Frank Putnam, 542 East Second street, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will officiate. Interment will be in the M. E. cemetery.

A. B. FROM WESLEYAN FOR W. D. ANDERSON.

William D. Anderson, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Anderson, of Central avenue, was graduated at Wesleyan University with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Mr. Anderson received his preparatory course at Hasbrouck Institute and was valedictorian of his class in 1907, entering Wesleyan University that year.

Dr. and Mrs. Anderson have just returned from Wesleyan University, where they attended commencement exercises. Mr. Anderson was in Hasbrouck Institute, while his father was presiding elder of the Jersey City district of the Newark Conference.

MISS BERTHA HARRISON REV. J. C. HOFER'S BRIDE.

Miss Bertha May Harrison daughter of George B. Harrison, of New Dover, and Rev. John Charles Hofer, of Newfield, N. J., pastor of the M. E. church at Rockland Mass., were married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, by Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, assisted by Rev. G. L. Heisaman pastor of the New Dover church.

The bride wore a gown of white organdie silk, trimmed with silver beaded lace, wore a net veil and carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid was Miss Grace H. Harrison, sister of the bride and her gown was of white batiste, and she carried yellow roses. The best man was Leonard C. Vanderhoogt, of Brooklyn, an intimate friend of the groom. The house was elaborately decorated with yellow and white roses.

A reception followed, during which a wedding repast was served. Later the couple left for Washington, where they will remain for a week. They will be "at home," at 865 Liberty street, Rockland, Mass., after July 5. This is Mr. Hofer's first year at Rockland. The bride has been a resident of New Dover all her life. Mr. Cain was pastor of the M. E. church at that place ten years ago and it was the request of the bride that he perform the ceremony. Mrs. Hofer received a large collection of gifts. There were about sixty relatives and friends at the wedding and reception.

OLD FIRE HORSES SOLD BY COUNCIL COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the councilmanic fire committee, Tuesday night, Chief Doane was given authority to dispose of three horses which have grown old in the city's service. Purchasers have been found for them who guarantee they will receive kind treatment and easy work in their declining days.

The animals specified are "Teddy," the bay formerly used for the chief's rig and since then doing relief duty in all four houses; "Jim," the big gray of the truck team at headquarters, and "Andy," the gray which formerly belonged to No. 3's prize-winning team. William Demler, of Watchung, gets "Teddy," Joseph Burke, the contractor becomes the owner of "Jim" and former Mayor Charles J. Fisk is the purchaser of "Andy."

POLITICS.
I have never been troubled to be bothered about politics, especially the tics! But there is one matter that tics me and that I am like some of you. I do not know what I am talking about, for I have been too busy to follow up the papers. And that is the water question. If that is settled, it should not be, for that is a very very serious concoction. For our water may some day get low and there is not a river near enough to us to drink swill from. We should spend a million or two and hire a phrenologist to see if the company's heads are swelled or otherwise. In case the wells begin to go dry if their heads are wrong they will cut the water off from towns at the other end rather than this end, but if they are right they will cut it off at this end on the whole business. That will give you what you want (water in the wells) and provide them with paper to kindle their fires with, you chump you, You will never be able to get nervous prostration because your brains are in your feet. Wish our Banquet Board of Trade would go with me to Easton, and let the Board of Trade there, show you as they did me, their $601,000 guaranty fund to help chumps like me, and the only thing between us is their Delaware River water. If you have any Real Estate of any description come and see me. No charge for listing. Will make you an offer the first day you call.

FOR STATE SENATE

of good citizenship, as well as our highest personal interests, command us to attend the primaries and cast our ballots for the men whom we are willing to hire and trust with a work of far greater importance than any private business can possibly be. If we value our government, and understand our rights, we will go to the primaries.

I believe, with Governor Wilson, that "the business of politics at this moment is to reconstruct our government by putting it upon its right basis again, which is the basis of popular will and not the basis of private arrangement."

I believe the people have firmly resolved to free themselves from the feudalism of the privileged classes and that they wil stand by the man who stands by them in this fierce struggle for rights.

I believe that the Wilson program should be carried out, and that men should be elected who are in sympathy and accord with the great progressive movement which he has courageously and powerfully advanced in this State and in the nation.

Henceforth the contest will be between the Progressive and the Reactionary, between the advocates of popular rights and the agents of special privileges, between the rank and file of all parties and the spoilsmen and manipulators in all parties.

In less than twelve months New Jersey has been pushed fifty years ahead, and, if in the coming election, men are nominated and elected who are willing and able to support the Governor in his great undertaking, this State will have the proud distinction of supplying the next president of the United States.

It was my high privilege to represent the people of Somerset county two terms in the Assembly, and I tried to deserve their approval. These years were years of hard work and heavy responsibilities, and I can only refer to my record as the evidence of how I discharged the duties of the office.

I have always firmly believed in the right and the capacity of the people to govern themselves, and I tried to defend that right while entrusted with Legislative powers, and I should continue to defend that principle, and all other rights of the people without fear or favor, and with all the powers at my command.

CODINGTON APPEAL ARGUED AT TRENTON

The first case argued before the Court of Errors and Appeals after the opening of the June term at Trenton yesterday was the appeal of Horace Codington from his conviction for unlawfully obtaining money. He was sentenced to eighteen months in prison. The conviction was based upon the charge that while clerk of Warren Township, Somerset county, Mr. Codington obtained money from his brother, Joel Codington, the township treasurer, without the authority or knowledge of the Township Committee.

Former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins argued that the conviction should be set aside upon the grounds that the indictment failed sufficiently to charge the alleged crime, that the trial court did not properly construe the legislative intent in charging the jury, that the Supreme Court justice presiding lacked power to excuse from service upon the grand jury two citizens who had been drawn, and that the trial judge erred in refusing to make certain charges requested by the defendant.

The State's case was defended by Prosecutor Frederick A. Pope. Mr. Pope devoted a good deal of his attention to answering the argument of Mr. Colins that the Supreme court justice was not authorized to excuse grand jurors for cause.

Freshmen Unfurl Banner.

When the sun first shed his radiant beams over the horizon this morning, the banner of the freshmen class of the North Plainfield High School was seen floating triumphantly from the top of the Somerset school building in the cool, steady breeze. The four spuare yards of maroon bunting bearing the insignia "1914" cried defiance to the sophomore class and it kept on issuing its bold notes until after 9 o'clock, when the seniors produced an extension ladder from the fire house and tore the tattered ensign down.

happiness of its children. In addition to this, the various subjects of the school contribute strongly to this purpose. The grammar grades are much richer in their content than the primary grades. The high school is much richer in what it gives the life of the child than is the grammar school. It is a misfortune for any child to drop out before he has gotten all the preparation that the school can give. Parents, study your children. If they have mind enough to benefit from the high school then strain every nerve to give them opportunity to get that benefit."

An invocation was delivered by Rev. John Y. Broek and recitations were given by Miss Dorothy Simons, "The Beautiful Legend;" Arthur B. McKay, "Sermon to the Birds;" Miss Mary Duncan, "The Hot Porridge;" Miss Dorothea Case, "The Awakening of Brunhild."

After Dr. Maxson's address the graduates marched across the platform and were given their diplomas by Leander N. Lovell.

The address of Rev. C. S. Kemble follows:

Per angusta ad augusta, through difficulties to glory, that was the motto with which a number of us, hearts beating high with the lust of conquest marched forth from the Philadelphia High School some years ago. We did not appreciate its full meaning then, we only partially realize it now. I want to impress its essential truth on your impressionable minds today, the path to glory is exceeding rough and very dangerous. Does the road wind up hill all the way? Yes to the very end and does the journey take the whole long day? From morn till night, my friend. On coming closer to common life, discarding a Latin cloak or high flown metaphon let us put it in plain speech. This is what I want to leave indelibly imprinted on your memory today.

Nothing worth getting comes without sweating. We see it in everyday toiling for wages. But it is just as true in every sphere, in the least things and in the greatest. I have often heard indignant charity visitors exclaim in protest against the filthy condition in many of the homes they visited. "Their poverty may be excusable but not their dirt. It doesn't cost anything to clean."

I sympathise with the disgust expressed but not with the philosophy, doesn't cost anything to be clean?" O, yes it does, it cost just what everything else desirable costs, it cost work. And cleanliness is commendable and admirable just because it is a certificate of toil and care. It certainly does cost something.

The same principle holds in every field of working achievement.

Edison, the Wizard, of West Orange, counts it one of his chief discoveries that there are no lucky strikes even in his field of scientific recomancy. He asserts that he is so sure of this that he throws away seemingly wonderful discoveries that have come without toil assured that full imertigation will only prove their worthlessness, he declares is the result of prolonged and arduous toil.

Not even inventors strike wealth by one happy thought.

Don't go out into the world looking for easy money or easy laurels. "Come easy, go easy," is the sententious epitaph that records the fate of goods unearned in the sweat of brow or brain.

"The fault of this age is a mad endeavor to leap to heights that were made to climb, by a burst of strength or a thought most clever. We plan to forestall and outwit time." But is won't work. There is no way to get to the mountain top of excellence except by climbing. Don't waste any of your precious time waiting for the elevator.

But I have a second thought I want to impress upon you still more particularly because it hasn't been so generally emphasised. It is this: You never can rest on part achievements.

Perhaps I can impress that upon you more fully by an illustration. I once heard of a man, a rather undemonstrative hard headed sort of a fellow he was, who married a romantic, affectionate girl, who yearned for unstinted displays of affection of which he was not at all prodigal. One day she leaned toward him seductively and cooed pleadingly, "Kiss me, John." "Oh!" he exclaimed rather testily, "what's the use of kissing you? You won't stay kissed."

Now that's the truth under an easily remembered metaphor. You undemonstrative people remember that last year's manifestation of affection isn't a satisfying demonstration of your undying love.

Which reminds me of another story, of a young lady who after her first long automobile ride was asked by a friend if she didn't get tired after several hours in the automobile.

"Oh, yes," she confessed, "at first the constant osculation annoyed me a little but I soon got used to it."

It is the persistence that counts. You are not only climbing up hill, your are rowing up stream, and you can never rest on your oars without going backward when you are pulling against the current. You can't live on past effort.

"The mill will never grind with the waters that are past."

The conspicuous exception to this rule is the man who is living on invested capital but let me right here give you a word of warning for the coming days.

Do you know whose scalp it is the dreaded Socialist is after? He isn't on the war path against mere wealth. He is after the man who is contributing no ounce of work of hand or heart or brain to the great world's upkeep but who expects the world to give him a luxurious livelihood because his grandfather was a worker. He is hot on the trail of the man who counts on living on some one else's labor.

"If a man will not work neither shall he eat," is a part of the slogan of Socialism. When that principle wins its way fully into the constitution of civilized society there will be no living on invested capital. Not past but present achievements will be the recognized currency—"pay as you go or you can't go," will be the sign up everywhere.

Now this is peculiarly true of intellectual attainments, a certain attainment in knowledge or culture of any kind can only be maintained by constant addition or replacements.

We live in a world where everything wears out or tears out, where things will grow musty or dusty or rusty, nothing stays done.

"I used a cake of your soap ten years ago and I have used no other soap since," is a sincere tribute to an excellent soap but the efficiency of the best brand of soap will inevitaby wear off in ten years.

A house doesn't stay cleaned after it has been thoroughly scrubbed from top to bottom, a garden doesn't stay weeded, a lawn doesn't stay cut, any more than a wife stays kissed.

Everything has to be not only set right but constantly kept right.

So you will find it with your stock of knowledge—it is a pile of ice in an August sun—to be kept even at its present dimensions it must be continually added to.

Every day you lose a fact, a date, a name a word. You can't afford to stop learning even to stay as wise as you now are, don't stop school unless you are obliged to, there are many, many things yet to learn. But if you do stop school, don't, I beg of you, don't stop studying. All knowledge practically is within the reach of the boy or girl who has learned to read.

You are well started on the road to learning and "well begun is half done." But the man who halted on third base to congratulate himself didn't make a home run. Don't stop at any half way house.

"Do it! Leap on. Keep on, go through it.

If you don't go on through it.
You'll live on to rue it
Someone who isn't a quitter will do it.
He won't care a pin
If he does bark his shin,
He'll leap on and keep on until he gets in."

SHORTEST ROUTE TO JAPAN

It Is Along the Aleutian Islands, Which Stretch Out From Alaska Toward Asiatic Continent.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved to vessels trading with the Orient by coasting along the Aleutian Islands, rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian Islands, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle. While the Aleutian Islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the Orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Behring Straits lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

CANNOT SHOW THEIR TEETH

Dentists at Disadvantage in the Matter of Advertising, Compared With Other Professions and Businesses.

"Men in every other profession and business have the advantage of dentists in the matter of advertising," said a man with forceps in his hand. "They can persuade good-looking young women to wear their goods for photographic purposes; the dentist cannot. The whitest, evenest set of false teeth ever made cannot tempt a woman to wear them and be photographed with her mouth wide open.

"Manufacturers of cosmetics and artificial hair are besieged by women who are willing to daub their faces with paint and powder and build their heads out with puffs and braids into any style of architecture desired for photographic advertisements. Neither do they balk at patent wearing apparel. The most absurd garment ever invented can find somebody to pose in it before the camera. But false teeth are universally blacklisted.

"Every woman who gets photographed with her mouth spread into a smile wants people to think that the teeth she shows are her own, and the dentist who would dare to label the picture 'These teeth made by Dr. Plank' would lay grounds for a libel suit."

His Book.

He was very old, and he scrambled into the "pay-as-you-enter" car with difficulty. Once safely inside he seated himself in the corner of the car and began to read.

The car bumped its way along Walnut street, past Broad, past Rittenhouse square. Not once did the old man look up. He was absolutely buried in his book, in which he gave the absorbed attention of a scholar.

At Fifty-fourth and Spruce streets the old man cast a startled glance out of the window, got up and hobbled to the front of the car. On the way he dropped his book and several passengers had a chance to see the title before it was picked up and given back to its owner.

The volume which had so absorbed the octogenarian was "Jack Spot, the Young Highway Robber; or, the Desperado of Devil's Gulch."—Philadelphia Times.

Pews at Cut Rates.

"A reduction of $2 a year in pew rent will fetch the bargain hunter every time," said a sexton. "Only last week a young woman who expects to make her home in this city concluded that of all city churches of this denomination she liked ours best and would take a pew here, but when she found she could get a pew that suited her about as well in another church for $3 a year less she let all other considerations go by the board and identified herself with that church.

"The cut rate pew hunter is a recognized feature of modern church life. Because a new member elects to join our congregation does not at all signify that he shares our religious convictions or likes the pastor and our service; it may mean that we charge less for the pew he likes than another church up the street."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Adjustable Picture Frames.

"Did you ever see," said a shopper, "among ornamental picture frames designed to stand on desk or table one oblong in shape that could be used either upright, as it would commonly be for a portrait, or lengthwise, as it would be for a landscape picture?

"You know it isn't easy to find small frames designed for landscapes, frames that are longer than they are tall, but this frame can be used either way. The support on the back, the foot that you spread out to make the frame stand up, is mounted on a disk in the back of the frame, a disk that can be turned so that this frame can be as readily used one way as the other, either upright or with its greatest length horizontal."

His Creed.

Howell—Have you any creed?

Powell—I make it a rule never to be struck by an automobile before breakfast.

EXPERT COWBOYS OF SPAIN

Mounted Herdsmen of the Andalusian Plains are Fine Looking Fellows and Skillful Horsemen.

The perfection of Spanish horsemanship is to be seen among the vaqueros, ganaderos or garrochistas, by which various names the mounted herdsmen of the Andalusian plains are known—in brief, what we should call a cowboy. Every farm seems to maintain a larg number of these, for each herd, flock or drove has its own herdsman, goatheard, or swineherd, as the case may be. The vaqueros are a fine-looking lot of men. Tall, thin, light and loosely made, they look ideal horsemen—as, in point of fact, they are, though their mounts are poor.

The vaquero rides very high on a huge saddle, with a long stirrup and straight leg, using a single rein and a very heavy curb; but he has such beautiful hands that, although using this barbarous bit, he never cuts his horse's mouth about. It is different with the animal's sides, however, for he uses his spurs without mercy, and the white horses—of which there are a large number—all have ominous red stains behind the girths.

All the herdsmen who look after cattle carry a long lance, called a garrocha, of thick and heavy wood, which, except when standing still, they always carry "in rest" and not "at the carry," presumably on account of its great length and possibly its weight. With this weapon, in the use of which he acquires amazing dexterity, the garrochista is able to control the most unruly brutes in his herd, not excepting the savage fighting bull.—Wide World.

HINTS FOR HOUSECLEANING

Timely Instructions for Men Which Will Enable Them to Get the Task Done in Short Order.

Housecleaning time is dreaded justly by a great many people, but the thoughtful husband may get it through with in short order. Washing windows, for instance, is always gone about in such an awkward way, the windows being washed in statu quo, so to speak. A simpler way is to take the windows out and send them to the laundry.

Dusting the pictures is also usually attended with much hard work. A quick and simple plan is to take hold of the frame firmly and swing the picture back and forth, hitting it sharply against the wall each time. This dislodges the dust, which falls to the floor and may easily be swept up.

If you have no vacuum cleaner, you may improvise one with an old bicycle pump by attaching a funnel to the nozzle. Then work the pump backward, so that, instead of forcing the air out it will be drawn in. The rugs may soon be cleaned in this way.

Washing the woodwork is another futile procedure. Simply get a few gallons of paint and paint over the grime on the woodwork.

To repolish the hardwood floors, take your wife's manicure buffer and sit down in a comfortable position and go to work. You will be surprised at what a pleasant way this will be to while away the evenings.—Judge.

Paying Taxes in Kind.

The natives of the Congo pay their taxes in kind, as might be expected in a territory just beginning to be civilized. The value of domestic animals in that country is such that one wishes it were nearer London, in view of the high price of meat here. A bullock is valued at about 19s 6d, a cow £2 2s, a horse £3 15s, a sheep 1s 3d. The camel commands the highest price, viz £4.

The custom of payment in kind is not so remote as most persons would think. The Reverend the late Professor Flint of Edinburgh, we know, has stated that during the time he was professor of moral philosophy in St. Andrews he was accustomed to receive part of the emoluments of his chair in kind from the farms belonging to the university. This would be prior to 1876, in which year he was translated to Edinburgh.—London Globe.

Uncle Hiram to His Nephew.

"Stevy," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful young nephew, "while I think of it let me tell you a little one, something that you can jot down in your memory.

"When you come to get grown up and in business for yourself, employing many people and hiring other people to look after them, bear this in mind when it comes to hiring bosses.

"Whatever his other merits may be never hire a man for a boss unless he has also good sound health. A healthy, hearty man who is feeling good and cheerful himself all the time can get out of men twice the work that can be got by a man in poor health and feeling all the time sour and grumpy."

Should Be Binding Oath.

For a devout and ironclad oath, the following, administered to the officials of Siam, is not likely to be outdone: "May the blood flow from the veins, may crocodiles devour me, may I be condemned to carry water to the flames of hell in vessels without bottoms. After death may I enter into the body of a slave. May I suffer the harshest treatment during all times in years as numerous as the sands of the seas. May I be reborn deaf, dumb and blind and afflicted with dire maladies. May I also be thrown into Nerak—the lower regions—and tortured by Prea Yam, if I break the oath."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 25, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—VI. Missions in China. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Chinese empire extends over nearly one-tenth of the habitable globe. In China proper there are eighteen provinces, each of which is about as large as Great Britain, "so that China proper may be compared to eighteen Great Britains placed side by side." But when Manchuria, Mongolia and other dependencies are included the territory embraced is as large as Europe and one-third more. Estimates made from the recent census taken in the empire place the population of this vast territory at over 500,000,000. China is therefore by far the largest missionary field in the world, and too much cannot be done to bring the gospel within the reach of these vast millions of people.

The Chinese are a wonderfully interesting people to study. Their history embraces a period of more than forty centuries. Confucius, the great Chinese philosopher, was born in 551 B. C. and was therefore a youth when the children of Israel returned from the Babylonish captivity. The great wall was built in the third century before Christ as a protection against the invasion of the Tartars. The Chinese language has no alphabet. Each character represents a word, and in the written language the characters are arranged in perpendicular columns and read from top to bottom and from left to right. The Chinese are a mysterious people. Though they have passed through many profound changes, conservatism is one of their predominating traits. Their antipathy to change and to any and everything that is foreign is one of the greatest obstacles to the advancement of Christianity in the empire. This fact emphasizes the importance of native missionaries. When the masses of the Chinese hear the gospel proclaimed by members of their own race they will the more readily listen to the story of Jesus and His love.

Modern mission work dates back a little over 100 years. The pioneer missionary was Robert Morrison, who arrived in China in 1807. He baptized his first convert in 1814. His principal work was the translation of the Bible and other books into the Chinese language. In 1860 a new impetus was given to Chinese mission work. By the treaty of Tientsin Christian missions were legalized, the rights of the native Christians were acknowledged and an increased number of places opened to the gospel. In the face of many difficulties great progress has been made from that time down to the present.

Medical missions have been extensively carried on in China. The opportunity was great, for the Chinese have made little progress in the science of medicine. Dr. Peter Parker was the founder of medical missions in China. In 1835 he opened a hospital in Canton. The government has aided in the support of hospitals and dispensaries. Thousands have been treated and have thus indirectly learned something of the gospel. The terrible plague has called into service every possible agency of the medical branch of mission work. Plague patients sought the hospitals, and outside work among other patients was greatly increased. Thus even in time of national distress new avenues for spreading the gospel have been opened up.

CHAPTER XV.

Again Christie Maclaire.

Keith possessed sufficient means for several months of idleness, and even if he had not, his reputation as a plains scout would insure him employment at any of the more important scattered army posts. Reliable men for such service were in demand. The restlessness of the various Indian tribes, made specially manifest by raids on the more advanced settlements, and extending over a constantly widening territory, required continuous interchange of communication between commanders of detachments. Bold and reckless spirits had flocked to the frontier in these days following the Civil War, yet all were not of the type to encourage confidence in military authorities. Keith had already frequently served in this capacity, and abundantly proved his worth under rigorous demands of both endurance and intelligence, and he could feel assured of permanent employment whenever desired. Not a few of the more prominent officers he had met personally during the late war—including Sheridan, to whom he had once borne a flag of truce—yet the spirit of the Confederacy still lingered in his heart; not in any feeling of either hatred or revenge, but in an unwillingness to serve the blue uniform, and a memory of antagonism which would not entirely disappear. He had surrendered at Appomattox, conquered, yet he could not quite adjust himself to becoming companion-in-arms with those against whom he had fought valiantly, for four years. Some of the wounds of that conflict still smarted. A natural soldier, anxious to help the harassed settlers, eager enough to be actively employed, he still held aloof from army connections except as a volunteer in case of emergency.

Just now other considerations caused him to desire freedom. He had been accused of murder, imprisoned for it, and in order to escape, had been compelled to steal horses, the most heinous crime of the frontier. Not only for his own protection and safety must the truth of that occurrence at the Cimmaron Crossing be made clear, but he also had now a personal affair with "Black Bart" Hawley to be permanently settled. They had already clashed twice, and Keith intended they should meet again.

Memory of the girl was still in his mind as he and Neb rode silently forth on the black prairie, leading the extra horse behind him. He endeavored to drive the recollection from his mind, so he might concentrate it upon plans for the future, but somehow she mysteriously wove her own personality into these plans, and he was ever seeing the pleading in her eyes, and listening to the soft Southern accent of her voice. Of late years he had been unaccustomed to association with women of high type, and there was that touch of the gentlewoman about this girl which had awakened deep interest. Of course he knew that in her case it was merely an inheritance of her past, and could not truly represent the present Christie Maclaire of the music halls. However fascinating she might be, she could not be worthy any serious consideration. In spite of his rough life the social spirit of the old South was implanted in his blood, and no woman of that class could hold him captive. Yet, some way, she refused to be banished or left behind. Even Neb must have been obsessed by a similar spirit, for he suddenly observed:

"Dat am sutt'nly a mighty fine gal, Massa Jack. I ain't seen nothin' to compare wid her since I quit ol' Virginia—'deed I ain't."

Keith glanced back at his black satellite, barely able to distinguish the fellow's dim outlines.

"You think her a lady, then?" he questioned, giving thoughtless utterance to his own imagination.

"'Deed I does!" the thick voice somewhat indignant. "I reck'n I knows de real quality when I sees it. I'se 'sociated wid quality white folks befo'."

"But, Neb, she's a singer in dance halls."

"I don't believe it, Massa Jack."

"Well, I wouldn't if I could help it. She don't seem like that kind, but I recognized her as soon as I got her face in the light. She was at the Gaiety in Independence, the last time I was there. Hawley knew her too, and called her by name."

Neb rubbed his eyes, and slapped his pony's flank, unable to answer, yet still unconvinced.

"I reck'n both ob yer might be mistook," he insisted doggedly.

"Not likely," and Keith's brief laugh was not altogether devoid of bitterness. "We both called her Christie Maclaire, and she didn't even deny the name; she was evidently not proud of it, but there was no denial that she was the girl."

"Dat wasn't like no name dat you called her when we was ridin'."

"No; she didn't approve of the other, and told me to call her Hope, but I reckon she's Christie Maclaire all right."

Across Its Face Was Plainly Written, "Miss Christie Maclaire."

They rode on through the black, silent night as rapidly as their tired horses would consent to travel. Keith led directly across the open prairie, guiding his course by the stars, and purposely avoiding the trails, where some suspicious eye might mark their passage. His first object was to get safely away from the scattered settlements lying east of Carson City. Beyond their radius he could safely dispose of the horses they rode, disappear from view, and find time to develop future plans. As to the girl—well, he would keep his word with her, of course, and see her again sometime. There would be no difficulty about that, but otherwise she should retain no influence over him. She belonged rather to Hawley's class than his.

It was a lonely, tiresome ride, during which Neb made various efforts to talk, but finding his white companion uncommunicative, at last relapsed into rather sullen silence. The horses plodded on steadily, and when daylight finally dawned, the two men found themselves in a depression leading down to the Smoky River. Here they came to a water hole, where they could safely hide themselves and their stock. With both Indians and white men to be guarded against, they took all the necessary precautions, picketing the horses closely under the rock shadows, and not venturing upon building any fire. Neb threw himself on the turf and was instantly asleep, but Keith climbed the steep side of the gully, and made searching survey of the horizon. The wide arc to the south, east and west revealed nothing to his searching eyes, except the dull brown of the slightly rolling plains, with no life apparent save some distant grazing antelope, but to the north extended more broken country with a faint glimmer of water between the hills. Satisfied they were unobserved, he slid back again into the depression. As he turned to lie down he took hold of the saddle belonging to Hawley's horse. In the unbuckled holster his eye observed the glimmer of a bit of white paper. He drew it forth, and gazed at it unthinkingly. It was an envelope, robbed of its contents, evidently not sent through the mails, as it had not been stamped, but across its face was plainly written, "Miss Christie Maclaire." He stared at it, his lips firm set, his gray eyes darkening. If he possessed any doubts before as to her identity, they were all thoroughly dissipated now.

As he lay there, with head pillowed on the saddle, his body aching from fatigue yet totally unable to sleep, staring open-eyed into the blue of the sky, the girl they had left behind awoke from uneasy slumber, aroused by the entrance of Mrs. Murphy. For an instant she failed to comprehend her position, but the strong brogue of the energetic landlady broke in sharply:

"A bit av a cup av coffee fer ye, honey," she explained, crossing to the bed. "Shure an' there's nuthin' loike it when ye first wake up. Howly Mither, but it's toird 'nough ye do be lookin' yet."

"I haven't slept very well," the girl confessed, bringing her hand out from beneath the coverlet, the locket still tightly clasped in her finger. "See, I found this on the floor last night after you had gone down stairs."

"Ye did!" setting the coffee on a convenient chair, and reaching out for the trinket. "Let's have a look at it once. Angels av Hiven, if it isn't the same the ol' Gineral was showin' me in the parly."

The other sat up suddenly, her white shoulders and rounded throat gleaming.

"The old General, you said? What General? When was he here?"

"Shure now, be aisy, honey, an' Ol'll tell ye all there is to it. It's not his name Ol know; maybe Ol niver heard till av it, but 'twas the 'Gineral' they called him, all right. He was here maybe three days outfittin'—a noice spoken ol' gintlemin, wid a gray beard an' onc't he showed me the locket—be the powers, if it do be his, there's an openin' to it, an' a picter inside."

The girl touched the spring, revealing the face within, but her eyes were blinded with tears. The landlady looked at her in alarm.

"What is it, honey? What is it? Did you know him?"

The slender form swayed forward, shaken with sobs.

"He was my father, and—and this is my mother's picture which he always carried."

"Then what is your name?"

"Hope Waite."

Kate Murphy looked at the face half hidden in the bed-clothes. That was not the name which Keith had given her, but she had lived on the border too long to be inquisitive. The other lifted her head, flinging back her loosened hair with one hand.

"Mr. Keith dropped it," she exclaimed. Where do you suppose he got it?" Then she gave a quick, startled cry, her eyes opening wide in horror. "The Cimmaron Crossing, the murder at the Cimmaron Crossing! He—he told me about that; but he never showed me this—this. Do you—do you think—"

Her voice failed, but Kate Murphy gathered her into her arms.

"Cry here, honey," she said, as if to a child. "Shure an' Ol'm tellin' ye it niver was Jack Keith what did it—murther ain't his stoyle."

CHAPTER XVI.

Introducing Doctor Fairbain.

Headed as they were, and having no other special objective point in view, it was only natural for the two fugitives to drift into Sheridan. This was at that time the human cesspool of the plains country, a seething, boiling maelstrom of all that was rough, evil, and brazen along the entire frontier. Customarily quiet enough during the hours of daylight, the town became a mad saturnalia with the approach of darkness, its ceaseless orgies being noisily continued until dawn. But at this period all track work on the Kansas Pacific being temporarily suspended by Indian outbreaks, the graders made both night and day alike hideous, and the single dirty street which composed Sheridan, lined with shacks, crowded with saloons, the dull dead prairie stretching away on every side to the horizon, was congested with humanity during every hour of the twenty-four.

It was a grim picture of depravity and desolation, the environment dull, gloomy, forlorn; all that was worthy the eye or thought being the pulsing human element. All about extended the barren plains, except where on one side a ravine cut through an overhanging ridge. From the seething street one could look up to the summit, and see there the graves of the many who had died deaths of violence, and been borne thither in "their boots." Amid all this surrounding desolation was Sheridan—the child of a few brief months of existence, and destined to perish almost as quickly—the center of the grim picture, a mere cluster of rude, unpainted houses, poorly erected shacks, grimy tents flapping in the never ceasing wind swirling across the treeless waste, the ugly red station, the rough cowpens filled with lowing cattle, the huge, ungainly stores, their false fronts decorated by amateur wielders of the paint brush, and the garish dens of vice tucked in everywhere. The pendulum of life never ceased swinging. Society was mixed; no man cared who his neighbor was, or dared to question. Of women worthy the name there were few, yet there were flitting female forms in plenty, the saloon lights revealing powdered cheeks and painted eyebrows. It was a strange, restless populace, the majority here today, disappearing tomorrow—cowboys, half-breeds, trackmen, graders, desperadoes, gamblers, saloon-keepers, merchants, generally Jewish, petty officials, and a riff-raff no one could account for, mere floating debris. The town was an eddy catching odd bits of driftwood such as only the frontier ever knew. Queer characters were everywhere, wrecks of dissipation, derelicts of the East, seeking nothing save oblivion.

Everything was primitive—passion and pleasure ruled. To spend easily made money noisily, brazenly, was the ideal. From dawn to dawn the search after joy continued. The bagnios and dance halls were ablaze; the barrooms crowded with hilarious or quarrelsome humanity, the gambling tables alive with excitement. Men swaggered along the streets looking for trouble and generally finding it; cowboys rode into open saloon doors and drank in the saddle; troops of congenial spirits, frenzied with liquor, spurred recklessly through the street firing into the air, or the crowd, as their whim led; bands played popular airs on balconies, and innumerable "barkers" added their roneyed invitations to the perpetual din. From end to end it was a saturnalia of vice, a babel of sound, a glimpse of the inferno. Money flowed like water; every man was his own law and the gun the arbiter of destiny. The town marshal, and a few cool-headed deputies moved here and there amid the chaos, patient, tireless, undaunted, seeking merely to exercise some slight restraint. This was Sheridan.

Into one long street just at dusk rode Keith and Neb, the third horse trailing behind. Already lights were beginning to gleam in the crowded saloons and they were obliged to proceed slowly. Leaving the negro at the corral to find some purchaser for the animals, and such accommodations for himself as he could achieve, Keith shouldered his way on foot through the heteragenous mass toward the only hotel, a long two-storied woden structure, unpainted, fronting the glitter of the Pioneer Dance Hall opposite. A noisy band was splitting the air with discordant notes, a loud-voiced "barker" yelling through the uproar, but Keith, accustomed to similar scenes and sounds elsewhere, strode through the open door of the hotel, and guided by the noisy, continuous clatter of dishes, easily found his way to the dining-room. It was crowded with men, a few women scattered here and there, most of the former in shirt-sleeves, all eating silently. A few smaller tables at the back of the room were distinguished from the others by white coverings in place of oil-cloth, evidently reserved for the more distinguished guests. Disdaining ceremony, the new comer wormed his way through, finally discovering a vacant seat where his back would be to the wall, thus enabling him to survey the entire apartment.

It was not of great interest, save for its constant change and the primitive manner in which the majority attacked their food supply, which was piled helter-skelter upon the long tables, yet he ran his eyes searchingly over the numerous faces, seeking impartially for either friend or enemy. No countenance present, as revealed in the dim light of the few swinging lamps, appeared familiar, and satisfied that he remained unknown, Keith began devoting his attention to the dishes before him, mentally expressing his opinion as to their attractiveness. Chancing finally to again lift his eyes, he met the gaze of a man sitting directly opposite, a man who somehow did not seem exactly in harmony with his surroundings. He was short and stockily built, with round rosy face, and a perfect shock of wiry hair brushed back from a broad forehead; his nose wide but stubby, and chin massive. Apparently he was between forty and fifty years of age, exceedingly well dressed, his gray eyes shrewd and full of a grim humor. Keith observed all this in a glance, becoming aware at the same time that his neighbor was apparently studying him also. The latter broke silence with a quick, jerky utterance, which seemed to peculiarly fit his personal appearance.

"Damn it all—know you, sir—sure I do—but for life of me can't tell where."

Keith stared across at him more searchingly, and replied, rather indifferently:

"Probably a mistake then, as I have no recollection of your face."

"Never made a mistake, sir—never forget a face," the other snapped with some show of indignation, his hands now clasped on the table, one stubby forefinger pointed, as he leaned forward. "Don't tell me—I've seen you somewhere—no, not a word—don't even tell me your name—I'm going to think of it."

Keith smiled, not unwilling to humor the man's eccentricity, and returned to his meal, with only an occasional inquiring glance across the table. The other sat and stared at him, his heavy eyebrows wrinkled as he struggled to awaken memory. The younger man had begun on his pie when the face opposite suddenly cleared.

"Damn me, I've got it—hell, yes; hospital tent—Shenandoah—bullet imbedded under third rib—ordinary case—that's why I forgot—clear as mud now—get the name in a minute—Captain—Captain Keith—that's it—shake hands."

Puzzled at the unexpected recognition, yet realizing the friendliness of the man, Keith grasped the pudgy fingers extended with some cordiality.

"Don't remember me I s'pose—don't think you ever saw me—delirious when I came—hate to tell you what you was talking about—gave you hypodermic first thing—behaved well enough though when I dug out the lead—Minie bullet, badly blunted hitting the rib—thought you might die with blood poison—couldn't stay to see—to damn much to do—evidently didn't though—remember me now?"

"No, only from what you say. You must have been at General Waite's headquarters."

"That's it—charge of Stonewall's field hospital—just happened to ride into Waite's camp that night—damn lucky for you I did—young snip there wanted to saw the bone—I stopped that—liked your face—imagined you might be worth saving—ain't so sure of it now, or you wouldn't be out in this God forsaken country, eating such grub—my name's Fairbain—Joseph Wright Fairbain, M. D.—contract surgeon for the railroad—working on the line?"

SIDNEY KARR WINNER OF YALE CUP AT P.H.S.

The Yale cup, for the fellow in the graduating class of the city high school obtaining the highest average both in athletics and studies, was presented at the closing exercises of the school this morning to Sidney Karr. The cup, which is offered by the Plainfield Yale Club, was presented by former City Judge William N. Runyon, Yale, '92, who accompanied the gift with appropriate remarks. Mr. Karr has been actively engaged in athletics for the past two years, being one of the mainstays of the football eleven last season. He is president of his class and the head of several of the studen organizations, as well as being a remarkably efficient student in mathematics and the sciences.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson bid farewell to the senior class, wishing them the best of success in the future.

Ribbons were presented the winners in the school track meet and James Nash was given a silver medal for the all around championship. Frank Clarke received a silver medal, given by Henry R. Hubbard for the best batting average on the baseball team. Charles Schuck and Fred VanHoesen won the chess club prizes the former receiving a silver and the latter a bronze medal. A member of the senior class, Miss Ruth Wean, was mentioned with honor for the best attendance. She has not been late or tardy throughout her high school course.

BANKING CONVENIENCE 4% PROFIT

One of the strongest arguments in favor of keeping one's bank account in Plainfield, whether it be a checking account or a savings account, is convenience. Especially is this true of the savings account; for who has not wearily waited his turn on a New York Savings Bank line in July or January, when he wished to deposit or withdraw money? Better bring in your passbook to us and allow us to attend to the transfer of your account without expense and without the loss of interest and at the same time relieve your estate of a possible inheritance tax.

The time to act is now.

LOCAL POLICE WARRING ON COAL TRAIN RIDERS

At the request of the Jersey Central officials, the local police have commenced a war on coal train riders. Complaints have been made all along the line that boys have been throwing missiles from the cars through factory windows and a large amount of damage has been occasioned. The local shops have been put to a great deal of annoyance in this way.

A detail of cops raided a train yesterday afternoon and captured four youths ranging from sixteen to eighteen years of age. They are all from Bayonne and gave their names as Sigmund Schulttz, Cornelius LaFontre, John Dooley and Daniel Monahan. When arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning they denied knowing anything about the window smashing but a Central detective who was present, declared they are members of a gang, which has been riding up and down the road. At the request of Chief Kiely the young men were remanded for the purpose of further examination.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN FOR THE LADIES' HOME

The incorporators of The Ladies' Home of Plainfield, which was incorporated by John H. Van Winkle as executor of the estate of Catherine R. Webster in 1910, held a meeting Tuesday evening. The original incorporators were: Charles J. Fisk, George D. Hallock, Horace G. Phillips, Clarence B. Vail, Charles E. Vail, William J. Buttfield and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman.

The fifteen trustees named in the certificate of incorporation were: Dr. E. W. Hedges, Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Mary Byrd Corlies, Mrs. Mary S. Myers, Miss Isabelle Tweedy, Mrs. Frances J. Mali, Mrs. Mary L. C. Fisk, Charles W. McCutchen, William M. Stillman, and in addition all of the incorporators named above except Senator Ackerman. At the meeting Tuesday evening the same trustees were re-elected but their term of office were divided so that five serve for one year, five for two years and five for three years.

By-laws and a constitution were adopted, after the meeting of the incorporators adjourned, a meeting of the trustees was called and the following officers were chosen: President, G. D. Hallock; vice-president, William M. Stillman; treasurer, Horace G. Phillips; secretary, Clarence B. Vail. John H. Van Winkle, Jr., was chosen as agent upon whom process against the corporation might be served in place of the late Craig A. Marsh.

Under the will of Catherine R. Webster, the residue of the estate was left to found a ladies' home, and the property is yet to be selected and the home erected.

Girl Killed by Trolley Car.

Paterson, June 22.—A Riverside trolley car ran down Elizabeth Schwartzberg, six years old, Tuesday and killed her. The girl was crossing the street at the time. Motorman Raymond H. Parmelli, of Ridgewood, and Conductor Leo Gillen, of this city, were arested. The parents of the child live at 287 River street, where the body was removed. An inquest will be held.

Newton, June 22.—The Board of Trade will hold a special meeting Monday night to take action on a change of town government. It has been known for some time that the members are dissatisfied with the present system, and a borough incorporation may be upheld.

LOCAL MEN HONORED BY RUTGERS COLLEGE

Frederick M. Smith, of this city, the first honor student in the senior class at Rutgers College, delivered an ovation yesterday at the commencement exercises on "The Opportunity of the Engineer." John DeLancey Ferguson, also of this city, spoke on the subject, "Diaz, a Failure?" Both of these men were graduated with honors, and having been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. The degree of B. Sc., was conferred upon Mr. Smith and A. B., upon Mr. Ferguson.

The honorary degree of mining engineer was conferred upon Joseph A. VanMaretr, of the borough, who was a member of the class of 1880.

Several Plainfielders attended the commencement exercises which ended last night.

Robert M. Morley.

Robert M. Morley, aged 48 years, a well known machinest, having been employed in a number of the local shops, died at his home, 228 Pond place, last night, following an illness of several months. He is survived by a wife, two sons, Robert Morley, Jr., who is employed at Proctor's theatre, and Walter Morley; also four daughters. Notice of funeral will be announced tomorrow.

No Cause of Action.

The contract case of W. H. Abbott against Charles H. Lyman, was tried before a jury in the District Court this morning for the second time. The jury rendered a verdict of no cause of action, at 2:45, after deliberating two hours. The suit was based on a claim for alleged commission on a real estate sale and a promissory note.

WINS PRESS PRIZE

Miss Day's Essay on Advantages and Disadvantages of Commission Gov't Best.

For the best essay on a topic of municipal government, Miss May V. Day, class salutatorian, was presented with The Daily Press prize, ten dollars in gold, at the hand of Vice-President Tyler at the Plainfield High School commencement exercises last night. This gifted young woman chose for her subject "The Advantages and Disadvantages of a Commission Form of Government." The topic is one of special interest just at this time when a movement is on foot to introduce this scheme of municipal administration in Plainfield. Consequently her meritorious essay will be instructive to citizens generally. The second best essay submitted the judges found was that written by J. Wilbur Tovell. Miss Day's essay follows:

Municipal government has been called "America's conspicuous failure." But even now changes are taking place which promise, if wisely carried out, to improve conditions. At present there is no uniform system of city government in the United States. The several forms which now exist are the result of gradual development, "the outgrowth of our industrial and social conditions." The latest development and the one attracting most attention is the commission form of government. No other form of municipal government has grown so rapidly. One of the chief reasons for its growth is that it seeks to correct the defects in the governmental machinery of the city by centralizing the power and responsibility and by conducting affairs in a business-like way. So many of our cities are suffering from the wide-spread decentralization of power and responsibility and are groaning under burdens imposed by the laxity and carelessness of those in charge that any plan which alleviates these evils is sure to be acceptable.

Briefly a commission government is one which provides that the control of the city shall be vested in a small body of men (usually five), elected at large, who are known as commissioners. One of the five, thus elected, is the mayor and presides at the meeting and may or may not have the veto power, (the citizens, as a rule, reserve this power for themselves). These commissioners receive yearly salaries ranging from $1,500 to $3,000, and devote their entire time to the management of city affairs. Individually they conduct the work of administration, while collectively they pass on all needed legislation. These men are the heads of the various departments of the city and are responsible for the work of their several departments. They meet in daily session to pass on all needed legislation. Every month a detail account is published of both the expenses and the proposed outlays for the benefit of the voters. However, the commissioners' powers are well curbed by the use of the initiative, the referendum and the recall in the hands of the citizens. Such are the chief points of the commission government, nor is it as new as it seems nor as un-American as its opposers say, (being the outwroth of a system long in practice under a different name). In New England towns this form has been practiced successfully for many years, the government being carried on by a "Board of Selectmen" who assume and concentrate in themselves the administrative and legislative functions.

But the question before us is: What are the advantages and disadvantages which a city will secure by the adoption of this method?

The salient advantage of such a mode of government is that by the election of a small body of men, responsibility can easily be placed. The present systems are for the most part so complex with their various boards, and committees, and sub-committees that it is almost impossible to do this. Here are five men, each one responsible for a certain department. If the work is not satisfactory the man responsible is told thereof and bidden to correct it and if he still refuse compliance he is recalled from office and another put in his place. It has been clearly shown by the experience of many American cities that, unless the governing body is reduced to a single chamber, with small membership, responsibility cannot be enforced.

By having this limited number of men responsible, prompt and efficient work is assured. "In a multitude of councillors there may be wisdom, but there is also, almost inevitable, friction, delay and intriguery." The present division of power counterbalances what it gains in security from hasty and arbitrary action, by what it loses in its inability to cope with pressing problems. In present day city affairs prompt attention is not only desirable, but is also imperative. When responsibility is placed, efficiency must, almost of a certainty, follow.

Moreover a commission government is business-like in every detail. Its very organization is made according to business ideals, similar, to a large corporation over which a Board of Directors is placed with one man presiding. All appointments are made on a basis of efficiency. Approved business methods are used in the civic financeering. Published accounts are issued monthly giving exact facts and figures.

Such a business basis for a government is economical in every respect. All the cities which have tried it give witness to this fact. It must needs follow that such should be the case. The expense of salaries is easily offset by the gain in efficiency, good government, and financial standing.

Added to these advantages is the fact that men of higher calibre are willing to take office, who are proud to take a position in a government where no party or party platform must be followed, but

SANITORIUM PLANS

Plans For Building Inspected by Union County Board of Freeholders.

The committee from the Board of Freeholders having charge of the work of establishing a tuberculosis camp on the slope of the Watchung mountain back of Scotch Plains, of which J. Hervey Doane, is chairman, met at the court house, Elizabeth, yesterday and went over the plans which have been prepared by Jesse Oakley, the architect. The plans were not finally passed upon because the specifications are not complete. This work will be finished in a few days and the designs will then be sent to Trenton to be approved by the State Board of Health. Dr. Spees Carrington, of New York, who has conferred with the committee on the work, will also inspect them and then the committee will take final action.

The committee has arranged for a meeting of physicians at the office of the architect, on Broad street, Elizabeth, next Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon, when they will be given an opportunity of inspecting the plans. It is hoped that as many physicians in the county as possible will take this orportunity of making any suggestion that may occur to them.

The freeholders are planning to provide for fifty patients at the sanitorium, but if there are more some provision will be made for them. This work will probably lead to a systematic canvass of the county for the purpose of ascertaining how many persons there are suffering from tuberculosis.

Such a canvass was made in Elizabeth and it is said that there are 1,100 persons in that city who have the disease, but it would be impossible for the county to provide for that number at the sanitorium. It is said that there are a large number of cases in Plainfield that have never been reported, because the patients do not employ a physician, and no reports are received either by the Board of Health or the Anti-Tuberculosis League. Some effort will be made to compile a complete and correct list of all such cases.

JULES BOUTES' BURIAL TOMORROW MORNING

The funeral of Jules Boutes, aged sixty-one years, who died on Wednesday night at Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, where he was taken on Monday suffering from pulmonary troubles, will take place tomorrow morning. Prior to being removed to the Elizabeth hospital, he had been detained to his home on Eats Front street for several months.

Mr. Boutes was born at Toulouse, France, and he had lived in this city more than forty years, coming here when a young man. He was a descendant of Huguenot stock and was accomplished as a musician. For many years he was soloist at St. Mary's church, where he was a regular attendant. He was a wig-maker by trade and established a reputation as an artist in this kind of work. Mr. Boutes ws a well-known person about the city and he counted everyone as his friend.

Surviving besides a wife are three step-children, Mrs. E. Minnay, of Elizabeth; Edward and Felix Chargois, of Elm place, this city. The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and the burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

BOROUGH COUNCIL TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley has issued a call for a special meeting of the borough council tonight, to take action in protests from residents of upper Somerset street, against the erection of a number of frame buildings on that thoroughfare between Howard street and Fritz place. The permit has not been passed upon by the council as a whole and immediate action is necessary as the work is now underway.

According to the by-laws of the cuncil, five votes are necessary to pass a building permit.

Hope Chapel Lawn Fete.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel, assisted by the Men's Club, will conduct a lawn fete at the home of Rev. F. L. HETFIELD'S WORK

Asst. Prosecutor Obtains Conviction of Perognia Making a Record For Term.

The atrocious assault and battery case of Francisco Cirrello against Antonio Perognia, in which Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., representing the State, secured a conviction, makes the twenty-second case Mr. Hetfield has tried during the present term of court and there has not been a single acquittal. In yesterday's case the jury was out but twenty minutes when it returned with a verdict of guilty against Perognia, who was represented by J. Henry Crane, of this city.

The assault occurred on February 27, 1911, at New Providence. Up to July 1910, Cirrello and Perognia had been good friends, but in that month when the former was married, the two men engeged in a quarrel and after that they were enemies. The bad blod culminated in the fight on February 27, when the defendant slashed Cirrello alongside the face with a razor, inflicting a deep and ugly wound. The argument of the defendant's counsel was based on self-defense, attempting to show that Perognia was trying to take the razor away from Cirrello, and in so doing cut the latter. Mr. Hetfield presented such a strong case against the defendant that it only took the jury a few minutes to determine his guilt.

ABNER CORIELL WEDS MISS MABEL I. HAND

Miss Mabel Idelle Hand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Hand, of Orange, formerly of this city, was married yesterday afternoon to Abner Smalley Coriell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Coriell, of Dunellen. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents at 5 o'clock and was witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, of East Orange, performed the ceremony, the bridal party standing beneath a floral bell as the nuptial vows were taken.

Miss Hand wore a becoming gown of white marquisette over white satin and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ethel Garretson, of Dunellen, as maid of honor. The latter wore white marquisette over pale green messaline. She carried pink sweet peas. Lewis T. Churchill, of Dunellen, acted as best man and the ushers were Percy E. Hand, brother of the bride, and Philo Park, of Bound Brook, brother-in-law of the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Hazel Boice, cousin of the bride.

The color scheme in decorating was green and white. Palms and cut flowers predominated in the parlor and the dining room and hall were a mass of daisies. An informal reception followed the ceremony, the guests numbering seventy-five in all. They were from Albany, N. Y.; Red Bank, Bound Brook, Dunellen, Stelton, Newark, the Oranges and Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Coriell left after a wedding supper for a three weeks' trip. At its conclusion they will make their home at Dunellen in a newly-erected residence on Washington avenue. The groom is an employe of the Standard Oil Company in the New York offices and is also borough clerk of Dunellen. Both he and his bride have many friends in Plainfield as well as in their respective home towns, a large array of wedding gifts bearing evidence to their popularity. There was also an exchange of gifts in the bridal party.

ACCUSED OF SELLING LIQUOR TO A MINOR.

Stanley stroke and John Hensey, officers of a Polish benevolent society, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with selling liquor to Stanley Manhattan. They were held in $300 bail each for appearance before the grand jury. The amount was furnished.

The complaint is said to be the result of a squabble in the Polish organization. The charge was made by Joseph Manhattan, who was formerly one of the leaders in the society and the father of Stanley, who is only nine years old. The boy was named after Stroke, one of the defendants.

ELEVEN GRADUATE

Dr. H. B. Krebs Addresses Grammar School Seniors at Scotch Plains.

Commencement exercises of the Scotch Plains Grammar School was held in the assembly hall of the school last night when a pleasing program was presented by the class of eleven boys and girls. The exercises opened with an address of welcome by Supervising Principal S. Dana Townsend. The class song, "Leaving the Nest," was sung by the entire class, after which Miss Marguerite Jahn read the class history from 1903 to date.

Miss Ruth Dunn read the class prophecy which was amusing and enjoyed by all, the gentle knocks being received good naturedly. This was followed with a pleasing solo, "Far Away," by Miss Evelyn Buckley. Fred Coombs read the class will, leaving the various school relics to the Class of '12. Miss Nettie Ford gave a recitation entitled, "An Uprising in 1776."

The address of the evening was by H. C. Krebs, supervising principal of the North Plainfield schools. His subject was "Heroism—the Advantages of the Boy or Girl Who is Given a Chance for an Education." Mr. Krebs talked somewhat at a disadvantage, for just as he began, an electric fuse burned out and he was obliged to give the greater part of his address in the dark. After the program, dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The hall was attractively decorated with flowers and ferns with a sprinkling of the class colors, maroon and gold. The members of the class are as follows: Miss Marion Clark, Miss Nettie Ford, Miss Rose Thomae, Miss Grace Mellick, Miss Mary Murray, Miss Ruth Dunn, Miss Sadie Manning, Miss Evelyn Buckley, Miss Marguerite Jahn and Fred Coombs, Southard Outwater, Sidney Lidgate and Clifford Franch.

CLOSING EXERCISES ST. MARY'S PAROCHIAL

Closing exercises of St. Mary's Parochial School were held in the assembly hall yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance of parents and friends of the children. An interesting program of songs and recitations was given by the children and Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of the church, awarded the certificates for perfect attendance and prizes for good work done by the various pupils of the different grades; also the Palmer diplomas to the Grammar grades. He was assisted by Father Sciola, of St. Mary's church.

Father Bogan commended the children for the good work accomplished by them during the year, calling attention to the gold medal won by St. Mary's school for writing given by A. M. Palmer Co., and also expressing pleasure at the spirit of loyalty and appreciation toward their pastor and teachers, these sentiments being delivered with much feeling by the valedictorian, Miss May A. E. Frawley. Many of the graduates were visibly affected. After the exercises, refreshments were served to the graduates and Father Bogan entertained them with a humorous talk.

Graduation exercises will be held Sunday evening in St. Mary's church. There will be nineteen graduates from the Grammar grade and fifteen from the commercial. Rev. William Livingston, rector of St. Gabriel's church, New York, will address the graduates.

The program of yesterday's exercises follow:

Opening chorus, "Song of Welcome," school; class history, commercial, Miss Mary Jaeger; prophecy, eighth grade, Master Richard Lawton; farewell address, eighth grade, Miss Agnes Phillips; valedictory, commercial graduates, Miss May A. E. Frawley; duet, "God Bless You," the Misses Sarah Traynor and Livina Fulmer, accompanied by Miss Mary Smith; address, Father Bogan; chorus, "Sweet Saviour Bless Us Ere We Go."

Holy Cross Services.

Rev. Royal R. Miller, of New York, will again officiate at the Church of the Holy Cross on Sunday by special request. Beginning with the first Sunday in July, Rev. Elory G. Bowers, rector of St. Stephen's, will have charge of the services until August.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES CLASS OF 60

Dr. Lyman Abbott Makes the Address; Leander Lovell Presents Diplomas; W. S. Tyler Awards the Prizes and Miss Louise Bird Delivers Valedictory.

"Give all of yourself to what you do," was the striking thought uttered by Rev. Lyman Abbott, LL.D., editor of "The Outlook," in addressing the sixty graduates and a thousand of their friends at the forty-first annual commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School in the First Baptist church last night. Dr. Abbott, speaking extemporaneously, gave some sound advice on life in the world to the members of the largest class that has completed the high school course.

Despite the warm weather, the church edifice was filled to its capacity when the exercises were opened with an overture by Suhr's Imperial orchestra of ten pieces. During this selection, the senior class marched slowly up the church aisles, seating themselves on the platform, which was elaborately decorated with palms. The members of the Board of Education and Lindsay Best, principal of the school, were seated at the left of the class. Leander N. Lovell, president of the board, introduced the several speakers on the program.

The invocation was by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, and was followed by the salutatory address by Miss May V. Day, which appears on page nine. The salutatory essay was written and read by Miss Helen E. Pearce, this also being published on page nine. These two young women had tied for the salutatorian honor and consequently the address and essay were given separately.

After the address by Dr. Abbott and two numbers by the orchestra, selections from "Katy Did" and "Hits of 1911," the prize rewards for the year were presented by William S. Tyler, vice-president of the Board of Education. A list of these prize winners together with the essay, which captured The Daily Press prize, appear in full in this issue, as does also the valedictory essay and address by Miss Louise Bird.

The closing number on the program was a selection, "The Band Master," composed by Charles M. Suhr, of this city, leader of the orchestra. Immediately after the diplomas were presented by Leander N. Lovell, the graduates assembled at the High School auditorium, where a reception was tendered them by the classes of 1909 and 1910.

Dr. Abbott, in prefacing his remarks, said that he came to give to the graduating students a bit of advice from his own experience which might be useful to them in future life, and that he would speak for the fathers and mothers and not to them.

Examinations in life, Dr. Abbott pointed out, differ greatly from examinations in school, the former being tests on what one knows while the latter are tests on what one can do. A doctor, in his first year of medical school, is obliged to commit to memory the names of all the bones in the body, and here the speaker humorously added that he could never be a doctor of medicine, but if you break your arm, you do not ask the physician if he knows the Latin names for all the bones in human physiology but you simply want to know if he can set that arm and do it correctly. The world today wants men and women for what they can do and not for what they know.

"But to succeed in this twentieth cenutry," continued the famous editor, "we must have energy, force and vigor. We are living in an age of steam and electricity and to get ahead, we must push like steam and think like lightning. There are many good men in this universe (and a few good women)—who wonder why they cannot go up on the ladder of success. The trouble with the majority of these people is that they lie lazily in bed in the morning while the world's train moves on and they miss it.

"A lazy man doesn't like to do anything but an indolent person does what he doesn't like to do." And here Dr. Abbott emphasized the fact that the power to do what you undertake is an essential factor in the problem of success.

"To do what you undertake, however," declared the speaker, "requires all of your energy in what you do. Everyone must be master of himself and must be able to control all of his forces, maintaining temperance in all things." Dr. Abbott pointed out that not drinking beer is temperance but temperance is not abstinence from drinking beer.

"Young men," said Dr. Abbott, "control your appetites; young women, control your tongues! What kind of a person you are depends upon how much the intellectual is in control of the animal portion of your nature.

"The man who can pound the longest and who can stand the longest pounding is the one to succeed in life's battle. 'The greatest among you shall be the servant of all,' says the Holy Scriptures and upon this principle, President Taft is conducting his administration, for we are called into life to serve one another.

"Be wise all the while but not too wise. Render the best service where you can serve best, for it is better to pound the anvil and make a good horseshoe than to pound the pulpit and make a poor sermon."

In concluding his speech, Dr. Abbott declared that to succeed one needs a vision into the invisible future and to acquire this, one must first have faith in order to work out God's design. It was in this particular that George Washington was a greater man than King George, the Third, and wherein Abraham Lincoln excelled his contemporaries, Clay and Calhoun. Both of these foremost Americans went with God by being able to see in which way God was going.

"My parting words," said the great editor and preacher, is: "Give all of yourselves to what you do."

ALUMNI RECEPTION AT P.H.S. LAST NIGHT

Over a hundred couples danced until the early hours of this morning at the Plainfield High School auditorium following the commencement exercises of the school last night. The reception was given to the members of the graduating class by the classes of 1909 and 1910, many of whose members returned to this city for the reunion.

Red and green prevailed in the decorations, these being the colors of the senior class. The lighting effect in the auditorium was beautiful with red and green lights casting alternate dim rays upon the crowd of dancers. Suhr's Imperial orchestra which furnished the music, was seated on the platform behind a bank of palms and greens. The school library was decorated in red with red electric lights and was used as a cosy corner. Colege banners, hung about the walls of the auditorium, and a cluster of American flags draped from the ceiling added an appropriate charm to the effective scene.

Twenty dances and four extras were on the program but on account of a delay in starting only sixteen were played by the orchestra, which left at 1:40 in order to catch a train to New York. Sewall Ulrich, one of the members of the graduating class kept up the festivities by playing the piano until 2 o'clock.

Between the tenth and eleventh dance a collation was served by Benjamin Evans. The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Miss Helen M. Rogers, Walter Knowlton and Richard Harrigan, of '09, and the Misses Margaret V. Leggett and Helen Smith and Fred D. Loizeaux, of '10.

Unusual Occupations Revealed in Census Report.

Kansas City Man Who Bottles Smoke—Unique Task Performed by Government Employees in Washington—Raise Frogs for Profit.

Washington.—As a part of the task of compiling the thirteenth census of the United States, the bureau will publish a report on the various occupations by which men and women in this country earn their daily bread. Though it will be many months before this report will be given to the public, a conservative estimate places the number of classifications of industry at between 7,000 and 8,000.

It seems a safe prediction to state that there will be found but one man in the entire country making a living from bottling the smoke of burning hickory wood. This man, who lives in Kansas City, contends that his bottled smoke, let loose in an air tight compartment in which meat has been placed, will produce the same effect upon the meat as though cured by hickory smoke in the usual manner.

Nor would the uninitiated expect to find profit in raising bullfrogs for their legs. Two New Jersey women, however, are making a good livelihood by so doing and a certain California woman obtains over $100 an ounce wholesale for the seeds of petunias.

In some of the reports of the census enumerators in the field are found tabulations so unusual that they require no end of labor in properly classifying them at the bureau. One man frankly asserted that he was a "booze fighter," and another, who works in a saloon, styled himself as a "destroyer of men."

Shows Danger in Digging Wells.

Such occupations as "pouncer," in a hat factory; "tobies," a maker of stogies; "whittler," in a straw works; "dock walloper," a longshoreman; "vibrator," in a clock factory; "tonger," in connection with oysters; "teaser," in a glass factory; "scabbler," in quarrying; "flosser," in a corset factory, and "dubber," in ship building, are all unusual occupations that must be listed.

In Washington especially are there a large number of persons who earn their living by performing unusual tasks. The majority of them are employed by the government. There is a young man in the National museum—Henry Hendley—who is known as the official portrait-bust maker of Indian features for a unique portrait gallery of the North American redskins.

I. B. Milliner is an expert modeler in papier mache of things past, present and future for the National museum.

Along similar lines is the work of Edwin Howell, a maker of maps. In his workshop he evolves relief maps of certain sections of the country which not only indicate rivers and mountains and towns, but all the minerals, rocks, flowers, trees, and varying soils to be found there.

One of the most interesting of his maps was made for the marine hospital and public health service. It is intended as a warning against allowing people ignorant of geological conditions to dig wells, and as a plea for the artesian well.

There are expert tea and coffee tasters in the treasury department who tell the value and grades of these commodities by placing a few grains on the tongue. And in the department of agriculture there is a squad of young men who eat drugged foods to determine just how poisonous they are.

Stuff Rabbits With Quail.

Topeka, Kan.—Stuffing cleaned rabbits with quail and shipping them out of the state has enabled many hunters to evade the quail-shooting law in Kansas this season. Prof. L. L. Dyche, state fish and game warden, who has just obtained proof of the violations, said warrants probably would be sworn out for the hunters.

Noted Inns to Go.

New York.—Two of New York city's famous hotels—the Hoffman house and the Gilsey house—will close their doors immediately. The Gilsey house will be converted to business purposes. Both hotels in their day have had the names of many men of national prominence upon their registers.

Announcement!

ALBERTO BUCCINI

347 Fifth Ave., New York City

Respectfully announces that he is now ready to offer to the Plainfield public his new artistic ideas and the execution of work for the interior decorations of residences. He has just completed the decorations of Mr. R. A. Meeker's residence, at Belvidere avenue, Plainfield, to the full satisfaction of the owner. Mr. Buccini had also decorated many high class residences in New York City and New Jersey and is ready to submit references and credentials on request. Any resident contemplating to make his home more beautiful will do well to communicate or call at Buccini's Studios to inspect the kind of work that he produces. He would appreciate the privilege of estimating on any work that may be desired.

POLITICS.

I have never been troubled to be bothered about politics, especially the tics! But there is one matter that tics me and that I am like some of you. I do not know what I am talking about, for I have been too busy to follow up the papers. And that is the water question. If that is settled, it should not be, for that is a very very serious concoction. For our water may some day get low and there is not a river near enough to us to drink swill from. We should spend a million or two and hire a phrenologist to see if the company's heads are swelled or otherwise. In case the wells begin to go dry if their heads are wrong they will cut the water off from towns at the other end rather than this end, but if they are right they will cut it off at this end on the whole business. That will give you what you want (water in the wells) and provide them with paper to kindle their fires with, you chump you. You will never be able to get nervous prostration because your brains are in your feet. Wish our Banquet Board of Trade would go with me to Easton, and let the Board of Trade there, show you as they did me, their $601,000 guaranty fund to help chumps like me, and the only thing between us is their Delaware River water. If you have any Real Estate of any description come and see me. No charge for listing. Will make you an offer the first day you call.

YOU CAN CUT YOUR LIVING EXPENSES DOWN WITH A CALORIC FIRELESS COOKER

This is a Fireless Cooker that you really need. It cooks, roasts, boils and bakes almost anything and if possible far better than a regular fire.

Take four pounds of meat for instance; put it in the Caloric and when fully cooked you will take out four pounds of the most delicious and tempting roast you ever ate, lacking perhaps one or two ounces. All of the delicious juices are retained in the roast.

But COME IN. Let us tell you all about this wonderful Fireless Cooker—The Caloric. And how it will cut down your fuel bills.

THE DAILY PRESS.
Plainfield, N. J., June 23, 1911.

DR. GREEN SPEAKS TO ST. MARY GRADS

"Woman's Perspective," was the subject of the address by Dr. James M. Green, principal of the State Normal School at Trenton, at the graduation exercises of Mt. St. Mary's college at the Park Club, yesterday afternoon. Praising the institution and the church it represents and declaring it to be an important factor in the State, he said that the Mother Superior had suggested the subject of "Higher Education," for him, but he had modified this by selecting that of "Woman's Perspective."

Dr. Green made a strong argument for higher education for men and women and said that if the same progress is made in the next twenty-five years by women, as in the last quarter century, they will take the place of men, many of whom are dissipating their time. The speaker then referred to the progress being made by women in relation to the higher education. He said that he was glad to state that the only distinction between men and women is in occupation and in his opinion that the truest definition of education is that which fits a person best for life's work.

Dr. Green said that women had entered man's field of occupation with possibly a few exceptions. He did not think there were any steeplejacks or lumbermen. "Thought and reasoning rules the world," said the speaker, "There are four States where women have all the franchise rights and other States allow them partial rights." He hoped the time would never come when women will go into politics. "I honor motherhood and the proper care of the home. I honor this institution and have hopes of its increasing value in the solution of many problems."

Bishop McFaul awarded the prizes to the four graduates and also the diplomas and then made a few remarks. He referred to the trouble through which the college had passed this year, but added that he believed the institution has a great future in a rapidly growing population and predicted that when the college is rebuilt it will be found to be fireproof and will be able to withstand the elements.

After the exercises an informal reception was held for the graduates. Later the Bishop and other guests were entertained at the home of Father W. H. Miller. Among the other priests present were Father Baldwin, chaplain, of Mt. St. Mary's College; Father Dunphy, of Dunellen and Monsignor Connolly, of Phillipsburg.

E.C. OSTLIN CHOSEN PHYSICAL DERECTOR

E. C. Ostlin physical director of the Williamsbridge Branch, Y. M. C. A., of New York, has been chosen to succeed Thomas G. Whittaker in the physical directorship of the local association. He will enter upon his duties here August 1.

Mr. Ostlin has served for two years in his present position. Prior to that he was assistant physical director of the Wilmington, Del., Y. M. C. A. He is a graduate of the Silver Bay Y. M. C. A. Summer School for Physical Directors, and has taken advanced work in physical training in Columbia University.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO 7TH-DAY BAPTISTS.

"Jesus, the Rebuker," will be the theme for Rev. Edwin Shaw's sermon at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The weekly prayer-meeting will be held this evening and visitors are always welcome. The Sabbath-school will meet at the close of the preaching service tomorrow morning at 11:45 o'clock. There will be the quarterly review under the direction of the members of Dr. Henry M. Maxson's class.

The Junior C. E. Society has closed its work for the season and no meetings will be held until the last of September. The topic for the Senior C. E. Society, which meets tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock will be "Missions in China," and Mrs. Irving A. Hunting will be the leader.

The newly-elected executive committee of the Christian Endeavor Society will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The members are Miss C. Isabel Randolph, Miss Ethel L. Titsworth, Miss Nettie G. Stillman, Roy E. Titsworth, Franklin A. Langworthy and Mrs. Frank R. Kellogg.

where the will of the majority of the people rules; where the work is carried on in a sensible, business-like way.

Finally the commission form of government is more democratic than any other. Every citizen who so desires may be registered as a candidate for commissioner. Furthermore every citizen may vote for the man he wishes; not the man whom a certain party tells him, but the man he thinks most fit. It is urged he can do this now. True he can; but under what conditions? He goes to the polls and is handed a ballot with forty or fifty names upon it. Perhaps he knows three of them, perhaps none, except by name; and in despair he votes for all the men his party endorses and then washes his hands of affairs until the next election. Here he has ten names before him to vote for five whom he wishes and when he has voted he has by no means finished. It is his business (not his party's) to see how these men do their work. Here, too, citizens may attend the meetings of the commission and be granted opportunity to express their opinions. All measures are placed before the people ten days before they are voted upon by the commission. The citizens retain in their hands the initiative, the referendum, and the recall.

The advantages have been so obvious as to scarcely require emphasis. The defects are not so evident but "must be closely considered for the cause of city government may be seriously injured by the advocacy of any plan of administration which has not been adequately studied in the light of conditions which now exist or are likely to exist in American cities."

In the first place, "political education which is gained by choosing and being chosen in candidacy and service is more limited by the commission system. As things now are with the numerous councillors, boards, and committees the chance for such an education is afforded to many who would not receive it by the commission method.

Again, in a commission administration, the appropriating and spending authorities are fused into one department—a proceeding likely to lead to extravagance, and a radical departure from all examples in both Europe and America.

Finally the commission form of government would invite State intervention, the State being always unwilling to allow individual cities to pass upon broad legislative questions. This would be the case should a commission of five men have grave legislative questions to decide and State intervention is by no means a wise thing.

In stating these facts the burden of proof has been laid upon those who advocate this system. However, the plan deserves a sympathetic trial on a sufficiently broad scale to enable it to be fairly judged.

N Gave a Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Mallison, of 117 Plainfield avenue, gave a party for their three-year- old daughter, Margaret Elizabeth, Wednesday afternoon. There were a number of little tots present to enjoy the informal program, after which refreshments were served.

Michael Conesky Injured.

Michael Conesky, aged 13 years, while picking cherries from a tree on Everitt place, yesterday, slipped and fell a distance of about ten feet, receiving a lacerated wound of the right leg. He is now under treatment at the hospital.

Funeral of Robert Morley.

The funeral of Robert Morley will be held at the home of his son, Robert Morley, Jr., on Pond place, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and Rev. Frederick L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, will baptize seven candidates, four men and three women, on Wednesday evening, June 28, and on the following Sunday he will receive new members and have charge of the communion service.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade choice peaches, apricots, pineapples, oranges, grape fruit, strawberries, raspberries, cherries, etc., all fancy fruit and selected with care.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

William N. Runyon and his Bible class from the Park Avenue Baptist church will have charge of the meeting at the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be good music.

The first union service of the First Baptist, First M. E., Trinity Reformed and First Presbtyerian churches, will be held at the First Baptist church, Sunday evening, July 2, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will preach.

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held its final meeting for the season in the parish house last night . The business connected with the recent festival was transacted and a program for next year discussed. The men enjoyed a social hour and adjourned to meet in October.

Somerville Man a Suicide.

Made despondent because of ill health, Charles W. Chickener, one of the best known residents of Somerville, committed suicide early this morning, by hanging himself in his barn. He was seventy years old and well-to-do. His father was at one time mayor of Hoboken. Chickener is survived by two maiden sisters with whom he resided on their homestead property in East Somerville. The place has been in only four families since it was purchased from the Indians in 1681.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. George H. Robins, of East Second street, has gone to Riverside, Conn., for the week end.

Robert Wallace, of Morris avenue, has returned to his duties on the Fourth street trolley line after a week's rusticating at Samptown.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of Putnam avenue, are spending the week at Easton, Pa., enjoying the program at the Lafayette College commencement.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pearson, of Fork Spring, Pa., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Kulp, of Grace Poultry Farm, near Somerville. Mr. Pearson is an uncle to Mr. Kulp.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flynn, of New York, are spending a week at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Catherine Flynn, of West Fourth street. Mr. Flynn is one of New York's "finest" attached to the traffic squad in Herald Square, declared to be the city's busiest spot.

ELECT COX TRUSTEE OF COUNTRY CLUB

Robert H. Cox was elected a trustee to fill the vacancy on the board of the Plainfield Country Club at the June meeting last night. John P. Stevens was chosen vice-president, and E. W. Bulkley was appointed an additional member of the house committee. The house committee reported greater business for the restaurant in May than any other month in the history of the club, averaging about $450 a week. It is reported that connection had been made with the city water main and that the new sheds for horses are completed. The women's dressing room has been enlarged and re-decorated, and the south deck piazza has been permanently roofed.

The report of J. E. Erickson, as chairman of the green committee, was of unusual interest. It was learned that the committee has been put to the expense of securing new horses, better animals being required to stand the hard work. The trustees authorized the committee to proceed this summer with the completion of the new fifteenth hole, and when finished, the new five hundred yards in length will be available.

Baseball is to be introduced and the committee has arranged a game with the South Orange Field Club on Saturday, July 1, to be played on the club's new diamond.

The club has decided to repeat last year's Independence Day celebration, provided the members subscribe to the fund for that purpose. A prompt response is desired so that arrangements can be made for a band, fireworks, etc.

The tennis committee reported that the invitation tournament was a success and that the visiting players pronounced the lower courts as good as any clay courts in the country. The courts are now being used by guests to a considerable extent, in violation of the rule requiring the payment of a fee for the privilege. Unless this rule is observed the committee may be obliged to require all tennis players to obtain cards at the office before playing on the courts.

RECEPTION TONIGHT FOR THEIR PASTOR

The members of the Temple Baptist church will give a reception this evening at the church to Rev. Evarts C. Conover, the pastor, and his wife, the affair being in charge of the Board of Deacons, Ladies' Aid Society and the King's Daughters.

There will be an informal program, including selections by an orchestra, under the direction of William A. Conger; piano selections by Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley; duets by Mrs. William Crow and Miss Marie Viebrock; also short speeches by Rev. Frank Fletcher and Dev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, as well as officers of the Temple Baptist church. A social time will follow and ice cream and cake will be served.

Those representing the several organizations of the church on the committees will be as follows: Board of Deacons—L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane, Frank Stewart, Edward Baker, Jr., Christian Utzinger. Ladies' Aid Society—Mrs. Charles Jeter, Mrs. Brooks Carson, Mrs. Edward Baker, Jr., Mrs. C. L. Murphy, Mrs. William C. LaRue. King's Daughters—Miss Ella Mackey, Miss Mattie Viebrock, Miss Ella Carlson, Mrs. Harry Bouton, Mrs. Fred Borrup and Mrs. William Crow.

THREE GOOD GAMES IN LEAGUE TOMORROW.

The schedule for tomorrow afternoon in the Central League is as follows:

Plainfield at Westfield.
Somerville at Bound Brook.
Scotch Plains at High Bridge.

On account of the recent ruling of the league officials not restricting the salaries of players several changes will appear in the line ups. It is reported that Bruggy, the Bound Brook back stop, will play on the High Bridge team tomorrow and that a Tri-State League catcher will do the receiving for the Bound Brookers, while Ortlieb will take a vacation from the mound work.

"Red" Waller and Steve White will be the opposing slab artists in the Plainfield-Westfield game tomorrow.

—Delicious muskmelons, the finest that grow, will be among the special offerings at Neuman Bros. tomorrow. The prices will be reasonable.

BRIDE FRIGHTENED BY PET BEAR CUB

A pet bear cub placed in the bridal carriage by friends of the couple caused a great deal of excitement among the forty guests who attended the wedding of Randolph Chandler of Codington avenue, North Plainfield, to Miss May E. Emhart, of Philadelphia, at Philadelphia Wednesday night. The young bruin was not discovered until Mr. and Mrs. Chandler had stepped into the vehicle and the animal jumped out at them and started to run away. The bride aws badly grightened as were also the perpertrators of the joke. The animal was captured after an exciting chase.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. George Scheer at his home in Philadelphia, after which a reception was tendered the couple by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Emhart, Miss Edythe M. Otto, of Philadelphia, was the maid of honor and Edward Mundy, of this city, was best man. The bride was gowned in marquisette over white satin and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

After a honeymoon of two weeks in this city, the couple will live in Philadelphia, where Mr. Chandler has recently taken a position. The groom is well known in this city, having lived here for several years. He was president of the young people's society of the First Baptist church this year.

YATES BORDEN INJURED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Yates Borden, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Borden, of Hillside avenue, was painfully injured in a runaway accident on Putnam avenue, this morning. A spirited pony he was riding took fright at some object in the road and dashed away at breakneck speed. At Kensington avenue the animal swerved suddenly, throwing the boy against a tree.

The force of the blow rendered young Borden partially unconscious and he was carried to the home of W. S. Maltby. Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, who was summoned, found he had sustained a broken rib and numerous severe bruises, also a number of bad scratches from contact with the tree. The boy was afterward taken to his home where it was said this afternoon that he is resting comfortably.

The pony was caught after running a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Hirsch Sentence Deferred.

Gustave Hirsch, the Watchung boy, who admitted stealing a handbag filled with valuables belonging to Mrs. George Hauser, was arraigned before Judge Clarence E. Case at Somerville this morning. Because of a delay in receiving the Justice's papers in the case and the fact that the boy's parents were not in court, sentence was deferred for a week. Hirsch was re-committed, having been in jail since his hearing in the borough court.

Lawn Festival.

Remember the strawberry and ice cream festival on the beautiful lawn of Mrs. E. J. Cooley, Watchung avenue and Sixth street, tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church. Homemade cake, candy, etc., will be on sale and an extra attraction will be automobile rides for a nominal price.

Churchmen Hold a Social.

The men of Holy Cross church parish met in the parish house, last night for a social time and for the purpose of betting better acquainted. There was a smoker and during the evening refreshments were served by a committee appointed for the purpose. It is proposed to hold similar affairs occasionally during the year.

Saw Coronation Parade.

Among the Jerseymen who witnessed the Coronation parade from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey in London, yesterday was Robert H. Bellows, of Woodland avenue. Mr. Bellows will leave Southampton on the New York for home on Saturday, July 8.

Gets Suspended Sentence.

Edward Cunningham, of Scranton, Pa., a one-legged cripple, was arrested by the police yesterday afternoon for drunkenness. He was let go on suspended sentence in the city court this morning.

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, of Putnam avenue, will leave in a few days for their summer home in New Hampshire.

FIRST CONTRIBUTION FOR BABY CAMP FUND

Following the annual custom, The Daily Press will receive contributions for the Baby Camp and following its annual custom the Woman's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church is the first subscriber to the fund. The society, through its secretary, Mrs. F. A. Dunham, sent a $5 bill today to this office as a nucleus for the fund.

Donations will be received, promptly acknowledged and at once transmitted to The City Union of The King's Daughters.

Received today:

Woman's Christian Work Society ..7th Day Baptist Church $5.00

YALE GIVES AN LL. D. TO DR. GEO. E. VINCENT

Dr. George Edgar Vincent, son of Bishop John Vincent, who was for many years a resident of this city, graduating from the Plainfield High School, and who is now president of the University of Minnesota, delivered one of the cleverest speeches that has been heard at Yale University for years at the Yale Alumni dinner Wednesday. Among the speakers on the program were President, William H. Taft, president Hadley, of Yale, and U. S. Supreme Court Justice Lamar. The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon Dr. Vincent, by Yale.

President Taft said of Dr Vincent Wednesday:

"Lastly, a degree was conferred upon a member of the class of '85, who lighted up Chicago, and who is now scintillating and giving to the northwest the benefit of the spirit that gives forth those flaming words that we have heard here today. Yale influence, as Mr. Justice Lamar has pointed out, was carried by her sons as presidents of younger institutions the country over, and it is a pleasure and a pride to Yale men to know that that influence continues and has such a remarkable exponent as the orator of the afternoon."

Straw Ride for N. P. H. S. Nine.

A party of twenty-five boys and girls from the North Plainfield High School enjoyed a straw ride given by William L. Smalley, Jr., to the school baseball team for having defeated the Plainfield High School nine in the series of games this year. The party went to Westfield, where a collation was served, returning to the borough about midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Grover Schuck chaperoned the young people.

Surprise Party.

Miss Ella Cowley, of the West End, was given a surprise party at her home, last night, in honor of the seventeenth anniversary of her birthday. There were about twenty-five friends and relatives present. The features of the affair were vocal and instrumental music and games, and a large and beautiful birthday cake, surrounded with candles added to the enjoyment of Miss Cowley. During the evening refreshments were served, and it was 2:30 o'clock this morning when the company left for home.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were heavy in New York yesterday.

Taft made speeches at two dinners at Manhattan Beach.

The police raided an alleged pool-room in 59th street near Broadway, New York.

One hundred and nine students were graduated by the College of the City of New York.

It was said that the National City Bank, of New York, was planning to form a security company.

Judge Moore, the American exhibitor, won another prize at the Olympic Horse Show, London.

Ex-Governor Yates, of Illinois, defended Senator Lorimer before the Senate investigating committee.

After winning in swimming contests in the Hudson, a boy who tried to cross the river was drowned in midstream.

The Saxe Massachusetts ballot bill was unanimously advanced to the order of final reading in the Senate at Albany.

King George participated, by cable, in the laying of the cornerstone of the new Fishermen's Institute at St. Johns, N. F.

The Board of Estimates of New York approved the creation of new places in the Tax Department, to cost $66,000 a year.

President Shonts issued a statement that contained no suggestion of what action the Interborough would take in the subway report.

The jury which is to try Frank H. Henwood, of New York, on a charge of murdering George C. Copeland, in Denver, was completed.

An alleged embezzler of Richmond, Va., was captured through a letter written by the fugitive, asking his wife to join him in Denver.

Many nations were represented at impressive services held at Trinity church, New York, in thanksgiving for the coronation of King George.

Gilbert was the first of the European circuit aviator contestants to reach Utrecht from Liege; several of the other airmen met with mishaps.

The prosecution in the trial of Joseph B. Reichmann sought to prove more cases of "check kiting," and the $130,000 loan from the Northern Bank was reached.

Edward Valentine Lee, paymaster's clerk, arrested in Buffalo, was alleged to have confessed to embezzling $46,000 from the pay chest of the United States battleship Georgia.

The captains of the American warships at Kiel, Germany, and owners of American sonder class boats dined with Emperor William, on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

W. E. D. Stokes declined the advice of the District Attorney to change the charge against Miss Lillian Graham and Miss Ethel Conrad from attempted murder to assault.

A dispatch from Tiajuana stated that the surrender of Jack Mosby, the rebel leader, to the Mexican federal forces, it was believed, would end the revolt in Lower California.

The relations of the Mormon church beet sugar interests to the American Sugar Refining Company were explained to the House sugar committee by a former Mormon bishop.

The will of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy was admitted to probate in Boston; Attorney General Swift immediately took an appeal to the Supreme Court on the question of domicile.

Congress.—Senate: The wool and Farmers' Free List bills were reported adversely from the Committee on Finance, and the debate on reciprocity continued. The House was not in session.

George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., State Superintendent of Banks, at Albany, gave out a statement that he had started proceedings for the assessments of the stockholders of the defunct Union Bank of Brooklyn.

King George V. was crowned in Westminster Abbey amid scenes of impressive splendor, more than six thousand persons witnessing the actual ceremony, which passed off without a hitch; the popular sentiment in London and throughout England was evinced in bonfires, illuminations and public rejoicings.

Last Dance of Season.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Ancient Order Hibernians, will hold its last dance of the season this evening in T. A. B. Hall, in connection with which there will be a strawberry and ice cream festival.

LITERARY.

The St. Nicholas League editor set the great national holiday as the subject of the prose and verse contributions to the July number; and it is interesting to note that those patriotic young members of the League who chose the subject, "The Best Way to Celebrate the Fourth of July," are almost unanimously in favor of "the safe and sane Fourth," instead of the old noisy, and dangerous celebration which has held sway for so long. "A Fourth of July Adventure" is made the subject of some excellent descriptions of a number of unusual and amusing incidents, many of them happenings in far-away corners of the world; and the young poets who chose "My Country" as their inspiration deserve honorable mention. As usual the League is one of the best things in St. Nicholas' rich store.

The Wide World for July is full of interesting material, the variety and number of the photographic reproductions rendering it a vertiable geographical picture book. "Life in the Magdalen Islands" deals with a group of islands in the St. Lawrence, which are little known even to Canadians. H. Hesketh Prichard continues an interesting and inspiring account of his remarkable trip, "Across Unknown Labrador" and Major P. M. Sykes contributes a third paper on "The Wilds of Persia."

The July Strand contains an interesting coronation article, "How it Feels to be Crowned," being the written impressions of Queen Anne Boleyn, William and Mary, Queen Anne, George IV, the Empress Josephine and Queen Victoria. The subject is particularly interesting at the moment. A second article by Sir Henry Lucy is entitled "Some Coronation Stories." Sir Henry was at the "dress rehearsal" of the Edward VII coronation and his description of it makes good reading.

Library Privileges.

The Plainfield Public Library again extends to its patrons who are going out of town for the summer or on short trips, the privilege whereby books may be taken with them while they are away on their vacations.

Mixed Doubles Final.

The finals in the mixed doubles, spring championship, will be played at the Park Golf Club tomorrow between Miss Elizabeth Nash and Harry S. Eddy and Miss Helen C. Moody and Charles B. Morse.

Why She Couldn't.

"Kitty," said her mother, reprovingly, "you must sit still when you are at the table.

"I can't, mamma," protested the little girl, "I'm a fidgetarian."—Chicago Tribune.

Dressy Summer Suits of Blue Serge

WITH AN EXTRA PAIR OF TROUSERS.

The Blue Serge Suit is the one indispensable in the well-dressed man's wardrobe or in the wardrobe of any man for that matter.

The blue serge has been fashionable for more years than we can remember, and it is just as much in vogue today as ever.

That makes this proposition interesting.

Here are splendid plain blue serge suits that are practically unmatched at the price we have marked them, $12.98—suits cut by the most skilled designs and tailored by the highest-priced tailors; made of fabrics that are strictly all wool, that will stand every test in colors that are practically unfadable, with a finish that the best custom tailors are hardly capable of giving—and yet, despite their undoubtedly worth and the low price which we have marked them, we are giving with each suit

An Extra Pair of Trousers—thus overcoming the prejudice a few people have against blue serge because the coat outlives the trousers.

We want you to see these excellent blue serge suits and we'd like you to compare them with any you see elsewhere at as low a price at.....$12.98

Blue Serge Coats—Skeleton lined; good for outing or office wear; all wool; a full range of sizes; up from $2.98

Flannel Trousers—Fine for outing; every man at the shore should have them for wear with blue serge coats; here at $4 to $6.

Men's Khaki and White Duck Trousers at $1.25.

Men's Light Office Coats up from 50c.

Combination Suits for Young Americans

Clothes that will stand the knocks of the most vigorous youngster—clothes that will allow the boy to live and breathe and move without fear of disaster to them or to him. Substantially built of most serviceable materials, cut in most attractive styles in pretty patterns; offered to you with an extra pair of knickerbockers for only $4.85

Washable Knickerbockers, all sizes; 50c.

Percale Flannel and Blouses, up from 24c.

BOYS' BLUE SERGE SUITS

Double-Breasted Suits of guaranteed all wool, fast color blue serge; trousers in knickerbocker style, seamed thruout; splendidly made; sizes 8 to 17; a feature of Saturday's selling at $3.98

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVILL.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

Keith shook his head, feeling awakening interest in his peculiar companion.

"No; just drifted in here from down on the Arkansas," he explained briefly. "Did you know General Waite was dead?"

The doctor's ruddy face whitened.

"Dead?—Willis Waite dead?" he repeated. "What do you mean, sir? Are you sure? When?"

"I ought to be sure; I buried him just this side the Cimmaron Crossing out on the Santa Fe trail."

"But do you know it was General Waite?" the man's insistent tone full of doubt.

"I have no question about it," returned Keith, conclusively. "The man was Waite's size and general appearance, with gray beard, similar to the one I remember he wore during the war. He had been scalped, and his face beaten beyond recognition, but papers in his pockets were sufficient to prove his identity. Besides, he and his companion—a young fellow named Sibley—were known to have pulled out two days before from Carson City."

"When was this?"

"Ten days ago."

Fairbain's lips smiled, the ruddy coloring sweeping back into his cheeks.

"Dama me, Keith, you came near giving me a shock," he said, jerkily. "Shouldn't be so careless—not sure my heart's just right—tendency to apoplexy, too—got to be guarded against. Now, let me tell you something—maybe you buried some poor devil out at Cimmaron Crossing—but it wasn't Willis Waite. How do I know? Because I saw him, and talked with him yesterday—damn me, if I didn't, right here in this town."

CHAPTER XVII.

In the Next Room.

Keith, his eyes filled with undisguised doubt, studied the face of the man opposite, almost convinced that he was, in some way, connected with the puzzling mystery. But the honesty of the rugged face only added to his perplexity.

"Are you certain your are not mistaken?"

"Of course I am, Keith. I've known Waite for fifteen years a bit intimately—have met him frequently since the war—and I certainly talked with him. He told me enough to partially confirm your story. He said he had started for Santa Fe light, because he couldn't get enough men to run a caravan—afraid of Indians, you know. So, he determined to take money—buy Mexican goods—and risk himself. Old fighting cock wouldn't turn back for all the Indians on the plains once he got an idea in his head—he was that kind—Lord, you ought to seen the fight he put up at Spottsylvania! He got to Carson City with two wagons, a driver and a cook—had eight thousand dollars with him, too, the damn fool. Cook got into row, gambling, cut a man, and was jugged. Old Waite wouldn't leave even a nigger in that sort of fix—natural fighter—likes any kind of row. So, he hung on there at Carson, but had sense enough—Lord knows where he got it—to put all but a few hundred dollars in Ben Levy's safe. Then, he went out one night to play poker with his driver and a friend—had a drink or two—doped, probably, and never woke up for forty-eight hours—lost clothes, money, papers, and whole outfit—was just naturally cleaned out—couldn't get a trace worth following after. You ought to have heard him cuss when he told me—it seemed to be the papers that bothered him most—them, and the mules."

"You say there was no trace?"

"Nothing to travel on after forty-eight hours—a posse started out next morning, soon as they found him—when they got back they reported having run the fellows as far as Cimmaron Crossing—there they got across and escaped."

"Who led the posse?"

"A man called Black, I think," he said.

"Black Bart?"

"Yes, that's the name; so, I reckon you didn't bury Willis Waite this time, Captain. You wouldn't have thought he was a dead one if you had heard him swear while he was telling the story—it did him proud; never heard him do better since the second day at Gettysburg—had his ear shot off then, and I had to fix him up—Lord, but he called me a few things."

Keith sat silent, fully convinced now that the doctor was telling the truth, yet more puzzled than ever over the peculiar situation in which he found himself involved.

"What brought the General up here?" he questioned, finally.

"I haven't much idea," was the reply. "I don't think I asked him directly. I wasn't much interested. There was a hint dropped, however, now you speak about it. He's keen after those papers, and doesn't feel satisfied regarding the report of the posse. It's my opinion he's trailing after Black Bart."

The dining-room was thinning out, and they were about the only ones left at the tables. Keith stretched himself, looking around.

"Well, Doctor, I am very glad to have met you again, and to learn Waite is actually alive. This is a rather queer affair, but will have to work itself out. Anyway, I am too dead tired tonight to hunt after clues in midst of this babel. I've been in the saddle most of the time for a week, and have got to find a bed."

"I reckon you won't discover such a thing here," dryly. "Got seven in a room upstairs, and others corded along the hall. Better share my cell—only thing to do."

"That would be asking too much—I can turn in at the corral with Neb; I've slept in worse places."

"Couldn't think of it, Keith," and the doctor got up. "Besides, you sleep at night, don't you?"

"Usually, yes," the other admitted.

"Then you won't bother me any—no doctor sleeps at night in Sheridan; that's our harvest time. Come on, and I'll show you the way. When morning comes I'll rout you out and take my turn."

Keith had enjoyed considerable experience in frontier hotels, but nothing before had ever quite equalled this, the pride of Sheridan. The product of a mushroom town, which merely existed by grace of the temporary railway terminus, it had been hastily and flimsily constructed, so it could be transported elsewhere at a moment's notice. Every creak of a bed echoed from wall to wall. The thin partitions often failed to reach the ceiling by a foot or two, and the slightest noise aroused the entire floor. And there was noise of every conceivable kind, in plenty, from the blare of a band at the Pioneer Dance Hall opposite, to the energetic cursing of the cook in the rear. A discordant din of voices surged up from the street below—laughter, shouts, the shrieks of women, a rattle of dice, an occasional pistol shot, and the continuous yelling of industrious "barkers." There was no safety anywhere. An exploding revolver in No. 47 was quite likely to disturb the peaceful slumbers of the innocent occupant of No. 15, and every sound of quarrel in the thronged barroom below caused the lodger to curl up in momentary expectation of a stray bullet coursing toward him through the floor. With this to trouble him, he could lie there and hear everything that occurred within and without. Every creak, stamp, and snore was faithfully reported; every curse, blow, snarl re-echoed to his ears. Inside was hell; outside was Sheridan.

Wearied, and half dead, as Keith was, sleep was simply impossible. He heard heavy feet tramping up and down the hall; once a drunken man endeavored vainly to open his door; not far away there was a scuffle, and the sound of a body falling down stairs. In some distant apartment a fellow was struggling to draw off his tight boots, skipping about on one foot amid much profanity. That the boot conquered was evident when the man crawled into the creaking bed, announcing defiantly, "If the landlord wants them boots off, let him come an' pull 'em off." Across the hall was a rattle of chips, and the voices of several men, occasionally raised in anger. Now and then they would stamp on the floor as an order for liquid refreshments from below. From somewhere beyond, the long-drawn melancholy howl of a distressed dog greeted the rising moon.

Out from all this pandemonium Keith began to unconsciously detect the sound of voices talking in the room to his left. In the lull of obstructing sound a few words reached him through the slight open space between wall and ceiling.

"Hell, Bill, what's the use goin' out again when we haven't the price?"

"Oh, we might find Bart somewhere, and he'd stake us. I guess I know enough to make him loosen up. Come on; I'm goin'."

"Not me; this town is too near Fort Hays; I'm liable to run into some of the fellows."

A chair scraped across the floor as Bill arose to his feet; evidently from the noise he had been drinking, but Keith heard him lift the latch of the door.

"All right, Willoughby," he said, thickly, "I'll try my luck, an' if I see Bart I'll tell him yer here. So long."

He shuffled along the hall and went, half sliding, down stairs, and Keith distinguished the click of glass and bottle in the next room. He was sitting up in bed now, wide awake, obsessed with a desire to investigate. The reference overheard must have been to Hawley, and if so, this Willoughby, who was afraid of meeting soldiers from the fort, would be the deserter Miss Hope was seeking There could be no harm in making sure, and he slipped into his clothes, and as silently as possible, unlatched his door. There was a noisy crowd at the farther end of the hall, and the sound of some one laboriously mounting the stairs. Not desiring to be seen, Keith slipped swiftly toward the door of the other room, and tried the latch. It was unfastened, and he stepped quietly within, closing it behind him.

A small lamp was on the washstand, a half-emptied bottle and two glasses beside it, while a pack of cards lay scattered on the floor. Fully dressed, except for a coat, the sole occupant lay on the bed, but started up at Keith's unceremonious entrance, reaching for his revolver, which had slipped to the wrong side of his belt.

"What the hell!" he exclaimed, startled and confused.

The intruder took one glance at him through the dingy light—a boy of eighteen, dark hair, dark eyes, his face, already exhibiting signs of dissipation, yet manly enough in chin and mouth—and smiled.

"I could draw while you were thinking about it," he said, easily, "but I am not here on the fight. Are you Fred Willoughby?"

The lad stared at him, his uncertain hand now closed on the butt of his revolver, yet held inactive by the other's quiet assurance.

"What do you want to know for?

"Curiosity largely; thought I'd like to ask you a question or two."

"You—you're not from the fort?"

"Nothing to do with the army; this is a private affair."

The boy was sullen from drink, his eyes heavy.

"Then who the devil are you? I never saw you before."

"That's very true, and my name wouldn't help any. Nevertheless, you're perfectly welcome to it. I am

"Oh, You Mean Hope? Do You Know Her?"

Jack Keith." No expression of recognition came into the face of the other, and Keith added curtly, "Shall we talk?"

There was a moment's silence, and then Willoughby swung his feet over the edge of the bed onto the floor.

"Fire away," he said shortly, "until I see what the game is about."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Interviewing Willoughby.

Coolly, yet without in the least comprehending how best to proceed, Keith drew toward him the only chair in the room, and sat down. Miss Hope—more widely known as Christie Maclaire—had claimed this drunken lad as her brother, but, according to Hawley, he had vehemently denied any such relationship. Yet there must be some previous association between the two, and what this was the plainsman proposed to discover. The problem was how best to cause the fellow to talk frankly—could he be reached more easily by reference to the girl or the gambler? Keith studying the sullen, obstinate face confronting him, with instinctive antagonism over his intrusion, swiftly determined on the girl.

"It was not very nice of me to come in on you this way," he began, apologetically, "but you see I happened to know your sister."

"My sister? Oh, I guess not!"

"Yes, but I do," throwing a confidence into his tone he was far from feeling, "Miss Hope and I are friends."

The boy sprang to his feet, his face flushed.

"Oh, you mean Hope? Do you know her? Say, I thought you were giving me that old gag about Christie Maclaire."

"Certainly not; who is she?"

"That's more than I know; fellow came to me at Carson, and said he'd met my sister on a stage west of Topeka. I knew he was lyin', because she's home over in Missouri. Finally, I got it out of him that she claimed to be my sister, but her name was Maclaire. Why, I don't even know her, and what do you suppose she ever picked me out for her brother for?"

He was plainly puzzled, and perfectly convinced it was all a mistake. That his sister might have left home since he did, and drifted West under an assumed name, apparently never occurred to him as possible. To Keith this was the explanation, and nothing could be more natural, considering her work, yet he did not feel like shattering the lad's loyalty. Faith in the sister might yet save him.

"Perhaps the fellow who told you," he hazarded blindly, speaking the first thought which came to his mind, "had some reason to desire to make you think this Maclaire girl was your sister."

The suggestion caused him to laugh at first; then his face suddenly sobered, as though a new thought had occurred to him.

"Damn me, no, it couldn't be that," he exclaimed, one hand pressing his head. "He couldn't be workin' no trick of that kind on me."

"Whom do you mean?"

"A fellow named Hawley," evasively. "The man who claimed to have met my sister."

"'Black Bart' Hawley?"

The boy lifted his head again, his eyes filled with suspicion.

"Yes, if you must know; he's a gambler all right, but he's stuck to me when I was down and out. You know him?"

"Just a little," carelessly; "but what sort of a trick could he be working trying to make you acknowledge Christie Maclaire as your sister?"

Willoughby did not answer, shifting uneasily about on the bed. Keith waited, and at last the boy blurted out:

"Oh, it wasn't nothing much. I told him something when I was drunk once, that I thought maybe might have stuck to him. Odd he should make that mistake, too, for I showed him Hope's picture. Bart's a schemer, and I didn't know but what he might have figured out a trick, though I don't see how he could. It wasn't no more than a pipe dream, I reckon. Where did you meet Hope? Back in Missouri?"

One thing was clearly evident—the boy's faith in his sister. If he was to be rightly influenced, and led back to her, he must have no suspicion aroused that her life was any different from what it had been before he left home. Besides if Keith hoped to gain any inkling of what Hawley's purpose could be, he must win the confidence of Willoughby. This could not be done by telling him of Hope's present life. These considerations flashed through his mind, and as swiftly determined his answer.

"Oh, I've known her some time. Not long ago I did her a service for which she is grateful. Did you know she was out in this country searching for you?"

"Out here? In Kansas?"

"Sure; that isn't much of a trip for a spirited girl. She got it in her head from your letters that you were in trouble, and set out to find you and bring you home. She didn't tell me this, but that is the way I heard it. It was for her sake I came in here. Why not go to her, Willoughby, and then both of you return to Missouri?"

The sullenness had gone out of the boy's face; he looked tired, discouraged.

"Where is Hope?" he asked.

"Fort Larned, I suppose. She went to Carson City first."

"Well, that settles it," shaking his head. "You don't suppose I could go browsin' 'round Larned, and not get snapped up, do you? They don't chase deserters very far out here, but that's the post I skipped from, and they'd jug me all right. Besides, I'm damned if I'll go back until I get a stake. I want to see a fellow first."

"What fellow?"

"Well, it's Hawley, if you want to know so bad. He said if I would come here and wait for him he'd put me on to a good thing."

The boy fidgeted along the edge of the bed, evidently half ashamed of himself, yet obstinate and unyielding. Keith sat watching his face, unable to evolve any means of changing his decision. Hawley's influence just at present was greater than Hope's, because the lad naturally felt ashamed to go slinking home penniless and defeated. His pride held him to Hawley, and his faith that the man would redeem his promise. Keith understood all this readily enough, and comprehended also that if "Black Bart" had any use for the boy it would be for some criminal purpose. What was it? Was there a deeply laid plot back of all these preparations involving both Willoughby and his sister? What was it Hawley was scheming about so carefully, holding this boy deserter in one hand, while he reached out the other after Christie Maclaire? Surely, the man was not working blindly; he must have a purpose in view. Willoughby had acknowledged he had told the fellow something once when he was drunk—about his family history, no doubt, for he had shown him Hope's picture. What that family secret was Keith had no means of guessing, but Hawley, the moment he saw the face on the cardboard, had evidently recognized Christie Maclaire—had thought of some way in which what he now knew could be turned to advantage. The few scattered facts which Keith had collected all seemed to point to such a conclusion—Hawley had sent the boy to Sheridan, where he would be out of sight, with orders to wait for him there, and the promise of a "stake" to keep him quiet. Then he had gone to Independence and Topeka seeking after Christie Maclaire. Evidently he meant to keep the two apart until he had gained from each whatever it was he sought. But what could that be? What family secret could Willoughby have blurted out in his cups, which had so stimulated the gambler's wits?

VALEDICTORY AND SOME OTHER ADDRESSES AT THE PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL EXERCISES

Miss Louise Bird chose as her theme for the valedictory address at the Plainfield High School commencement exercises last night,

Miss Louise Bird.

"Jane Addams." The discourse follows:

Forty years ago, a thoughful, seven-year-old child, seeing for the first time the "squalor that implies poverty" and wondering at the "horrid little houses all huddled together," gravely announced to her father that when she grew up she "should have a large house, of course, but it would be built right in the midst of horrid little houses like these." It is not often that youthful dreams come true; but the dreams of this little girl were realized, for the child was Jane Addams, now the head of Hull House, as an Englishman has said "the first woman of America."

Her very childhood foreshadowed the self-forgetful life to follow. Her father, ("dear, double-d'ed Addams," Abraham Lincoln called him) was the object of all her devotion; she worshipped him with a love in which there was only one bitter thought, the regret that he had such a grotesquely ugly daughter as she. She hated her crooked little back because of the shame she fancied it brought him. So deep-rooted was this idea that when a stranger came to their little church, she never walked beside her father, although the Sunday walk was the great event of her week. But sheltered and unnoticed among her large family of cousins, she felt quite safe in the knowledge that no one would ever connect homely little Jane with handsome Mr. Addams. This youthful sacrifice is symbolic of the entire trend of Miss Addams' life.

Through her four years at boarding school, she had had dim longings "to ease the burden of the world," but it was not until eight years after graduation that her ambition took any definite form and was realized in Hull-house. Then, in 1889, in spite of the dismal predictions of her friends and her own ill-health, Miss Addams bought and fitted out a house on Halstead street, Chicago, a part of the city notorious even then for its filth and crowded poverty. "To provide a center for a higher civic and social life; to institute and maintain educational and philanthropic enterprises; and to investigate and improve the conditions in the industrial districts of Chicago"—this was the formally worded purpose of the undertaking. Briefly, it was to spread among the immigrants of the neighborhood the spirit of brotherhood and kindliness.

It was a heavy task, this, to bring a dozen nationalities, all steeped in the class distinctions of their countries, into brotherhood with each other and with the settlement; and still more difficult to make men and women whose life was a long struggle against poverty, understand the kindly purpose of the settlement. A glimpse of the fearlessness and determination with which she began is given by her work as garbage inspector, a position which even the matrons of the neighborhood considered "not a lady's job." It has been just this fearlessness, this willingness to do the commonplace things of life, that has brought her the love and respect of every one about her.

It would be impossible to touch upon the many ways in which Miss Addams has tried to accomplish her purpose, but a few incidents from her interesting life may show something of her brave spirit, of the successes which cheered her on and the failures which could not discourage.

Almost the first undertaking of the settlement was an effort to reach the boys and girls of the slum and to inspire them with higher ideals. Towards this end, a story club with "Young Heroes" as its subject was organized. Miss Addams must have felt the encouragement of success when one day she met a sullen-faced boy, stamping away from the house, and asked him what the trouble was. "There's no use coming here any more," he replied, "Prince Roland is dead."

Another little incident illustrates the "spontaneous and vital gratitude" which Miss Addams says is her best reward. While on a street car which was filled with Italian laborers, she discovered that her fare had been paid. Very much surprised, she asked the conductor to whom she was indebted for the little courtesy. "I cannot tell one dago from another when they are in a gang," he replied, "but, sure, any one of them would do it for you as quickly as they would for the Sisters."

But better than all, more heart-felt and sincere, is the little name by which some of her neighborhood friends call her, "Kind Heart." The love in those two words must compensate for all the times of failure, for there have been days of defeat and discouragement as well as success, when all her toil seemed without result and she despaired of ever accomplishing her end. The resentful feeling of some of the people has been perhaps the hardest obstacle. For example, there was the failure of the Soup Kitchen, which was to supply nutritious food. One woman expressed exactly the attitude of the neighbors toward this effort to change their way of living. "I don't want to eat what's nutritious," she said. "I want to eat what I'd ruther."

Then, too, although the Trade School is generally appreciated, there are some to whom its ultimate value is hidden in present difficulties. One boy fled the manual training class in disgust, because "it was too much like arithmetic." And so it goes.

Still, never daunted or disheartened by apparent defeat, Miss Addams goes cheerily on, doing her appointed work with her utmost strength and courage. Some four years ago, there was published in the "Outlook" a little parable which gives most beautifully the keynote of Miss Addams' life.

"There was once a man who had wanted all his life long to write, but there was never any time for it, because he had been so busy through the day scattering seeds that never came up. Still he kept on sowing, 'though he was very tired, for this was the business he was called upon to do. Finally, he died and went to another world. At the first moment of his arrival, he noticed the people surging by in crowds as if they were all going to one place. He touched the arm of a man passing him.

"Where are they going?" he asked.

"We are going to the play. Come with us," said the other.

"What is it called?"

"'The Sower,' and the way it was written is the best of all. You see it really happened, and one of us saw it happening. Then he sat down and wrote."

"Where did it happen?" asked the man.

"On the earth. Why, that's where you've been living, isn't it?"

They came to a large green place surrounded by white columns and sat down before a great stage. After that the man could only listen and look for he saw acted before him the story of his own life. As the curtain went down, he said to himself in wonder.

"But there is one difference in the play. All the seed came up."

"Yes," said a voice at his side, "Of course it came up. It always comes up."

Then it seemed to the man that his heart would break with joy and he asked timidly, "Are you sure?"

"Yes," said the other. "It comes up—after a long time."

And so we may be quite certain that the seed which Jane Addams has been sowing so patiently in unpromising soil of a Chicago slum, will "come up—after a long time."

Class-mates: This is the last night of our High School life; but we must not think of it as the end of endeavor. It is rather the beginning, a true commencement of the life we are to give to the world. In the four years of our course here, we have sowed the first few seeds of effort, faint attempts, it is true, but still the seeds that may quicken in the years to come. The inspiration to plant the very best of seeds must come from the lives of men and women like Miss Addams. We cannot all do what she is doing at Hull-house, but we can carry with us as we go her message of helpfulness and cheer; and, as we part and wish one another God-speed, we can have the determination in our own feeble way to do simply and well the little things nearest home, remembering that "he is greatest who serves best."

The Salutatory.

Following is the salutatory address delivered by Miss May V. Day:

Every joyful occasion doubles its sweetness if those who have helped make it possible are present. So tonight we feel that a great part of our pleasure is due to the fact that you are here,—you our friends and benefactors. For what your presence means, we welcome you to our commencement exercises. And we wish to make our welcome not only general but personal.

At this commencement time we look backward as well as forward and as we do so we understand more fully the many blessings which have surrounded us. As we think of our high school course, we realize how much we owe to the unselfish work of the Board of Education, and we wish to acknowledge and thank you for your untiring efforts in our behalf.

With us here tonight is one whom we have come to regard almost as a father and without whose presence our commencement time would be indeed incomplete. We thank our dear Dr. Maxson for all that his cheery personality and kindly advice have done for us. May we, as he suggested, let our little candles throw out their beams of helpfulness and cheer wherever we can.

Miss May V. Day.

And to those who have been nearest to us in our daily work, Mr. Best and members of the faculty, you know how warm our greeting is to you. You have been the means of bringing out whatever was best in us. You have made the years of work in Plainfield high school years of pleasure as well as of profit. We look upon you not only at teachers, but as friends.

We are fortunate indeed, to have with us this evening one who is widely known and whose work has been an inspiration to many. We wish, Dr. Abbott, to assure you of our welcome and to thank you for the message of help and encouragement which we know you will bring to us.

And you, our friends, we are glad that you are here. We hope to repay your sincere and heartfelt interest in us by lives of devotion to the service of others. Again, we thank you all, and bid you welcome.

Salutatory Essay.

The salutatory essay of Miss Helen E. Pearce follows:

One of the finest sights of every-day street life is a game of hide and seek. Aside from the real fun and hearty exertion that the child it getting out of the sport, he is gaining his first lessons in self-control and quick judgment, that will be so essential to his future success. Just so, the kitten, poncing for a ball, altho it appears to be having a mere frolic, is perfecting itself in its life's one great task— to capture its prey.

Within the last quarter of a century, educators have come to realize that play must be a factor in education. Their tendency "to turn work into play and play into work" has given us the kindergarten with its manifold benefits. In this ante-room of the school system, the little fingers are kept happily busy and the individual talents, just cropping out, are utilized and directed. Moreover, this same realization of the demand for play, in every healthy child, has brought the playground into the lives of the children of the cities, who have grown up with the street as their only possible place for out-door recreation. Then, as one worker has put it, "only the harmful amusements seem to be legal." It is against the law, not only to play cat and ball in the streets, but even to dance with the hurdy-gurdy. At the recent child welfare exhibit, the crying wants of these playless children and the admirable work of the playground commissions and settlements were brought most forcefully before the public. The keynote of all their effort is "the good of the child." As Dr. Eliot has said, "if we are hoping to reform mankind, we must begin, not with adults, whose habits and ideals are set, but with children who are still plastic. We must begin with the children in the home, the school, the street, and the play ground."

As a nation, however, we have been severely criticized for one phase of our play, athletics. No doubt, they have been carried to extremes in some instances and have consequently brought harmful results. In the case of the Plainfield High School, opposition has been strong against all the outside amusements, such as school dances and athletic meets and contests. But, in realitly, the benefits obtained from a hard football scrimmage or a social evening far outweigh the disadvantages.

In the first place, athletics are beneficial because they build up a permanently strong body, an asset of no mean value to the man or woman, who must fight his own way thru the world. The average student, who "makes a team," reaps a harvest of surplus energy and hard muscle for every minute spent at his tennis or his baseball. In addition to this physical advantage, the athlete is apt to be better fitted, morally and mentally, for his life work. Every track meet, every critical game calls forth all his ingenuity and self control; every clash with opposing teams leaves him a greater tolerance of the little peculiarities of his fellow-men and a deeper insight into human nature. As Dean Briggs of Harvard once said, "a football player may get his culture from his studies, but he gets his real education from his football." The Duke of Wellington, too, had the same firm belief in the good effects of competitive play, for while watching a cricket match at Rugby, he exclaimed, "There's where the battle of Waterloo was won." Finally athletics must have a place in the school, simply to promote a spirit of good-fellowship and a lasting kindly feeling toward others, a feeling rare enough in this world. For the team victories, the hard-won meets, the exciting moments on the field, all tend to fill a school, not only with enthusiasm, but with friendship.

The social affairs, which are chiefly class dances and Friday afternoon "at homes," are just as necessary as athletics for the students' best development. They promote a cordial relationship between faculty and students; they make a most needed break in the school routine without interfering with the studies, for all these entertainments come at the end of the week or before holidays; thru the dancing, they offer an hour of the finest exercise, far better than idleness at home or on the street corner; and, last of all, they give the highest opportunity, to every pupil, to form sensible boy and girl friendships and to gain ease in society. Indeed, during the winter term, our "Friday afternoons" are the pride of the school. Then, the teachers and students mingle like school-mates, enjoying every moment of the two hours.

In the man, the need of recreation of one sort or another is fully as urgent, and, if he would keep kind and sunny-hearted to the end of his life, he must satisfy that need. For the financier, golf may be a veritable "Fountain of Youth;" for the lawyer, a gallop before breakfast or after work, may be the needful escape from a maze of briefs and law books.

Play, then, in its broadest meaning, is becoming the living question of the times. If we are to have a nation of strong men and women, we must give the child a chance for well-directed play, and must satisfy the logical demands of youth. If we are to live normal, sane lives, we must take time to be in God's "Out-of-Doors" and so develop, as some one has said, "a health, strength, courage and morality, that would come in no other way."

To Observe Anniversary.

The congregation of the Netherwood Reformed church will observe its second anniversary on Sunday, July 2. Communion will be celebrated in the morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening a special program will be given. The boys' choir, in charge of Horace J. Martin, will sing patriotic songs and the pastor, Rev. Royal A. Stout, will preach on the subject, "The Space of Two Years." All the auxiliary departments of the church will attend by special request.

JAS E. CHURCH RETIRES AS S. S. SUPERINTENDENT.

James E. Church, who has been superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday-school since the retirement of George H. Batchelor more than a year ago, has tendered his resignation, and Frank W. Jones, the first assistant, is filling the position for the present. Mr. Church has gone west on an extended trip and in view of the fact that he will be away an indefinite time and may possibly remove from the city, led him to resign his position in the school, where he has been an active worker for several years.

Mr. Jones will probably fill the position during the summer months and in the fall it will be filled permanently at a business meeting of the officers and teachers of the school. Mr. Church also holds a position in the State Sunday-school Association and if he removes from the State he will be obliged to retire from that organization. The Men's Bible Conference class has elected George H. Batchelor as one of its teachers, H. W. Herrman being the other.

E. O. Clark's New Position.

Edward O. Clark, of this city, on June 1 became associated with The Corporation Organization and Maintenance Company, of Newark, of which J. B. R. Smith, assistant secretary of State, is president and general counsel. The objects are the general incorporation of companies, and their maintenance after incorporation, including the preparation and filing of reports, the auditing of accounts and counsel and advice on any and all matters in any way pertaining to corporation law. Mr. Clark is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, the borough.

Camp-Meeting Continued.

The local corps of the Salvation Army will continue its Friday evening camp-meetings at Wayside Park, Dunellen, this evening. This will be the third weekly service and a profitable time is anticipated. The large well-lighted auditorium, which is cool, together with the hearty singing of the old time Gospel songs and short Gospel address, makes the services very attractive. The public is invited.

Special Musical Service.

The qpartet choir of the First M. E. church will give a special musical service Sunday evening, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster. Mrs. June Bilby, soprano, who will go to St. Louis after next Sunday, will only be away for the summer months, returning in September. During her absence, Miss Margaret Harrison, of New York, will take her place.

Parks to Play at Colonia.

The Park Golf Club will send a team of ten men to the Colonia Golf Club, tomorrow afternoon to play a match with the team at that place. Charles B. Morse is captain of the Park Golf Club team. A return match will be played on the borough links on July 15. Last year these teams met in two matches, each winning a match on its own course.

Will Give Organ Recitals.

Beginning Sunday, June 25, Herbert J. Harold, organist of the First Presbyterian church, will give a fifteen-minute organ recital before the evening service. The numbers for Sunday evening will be as follows: "Grand Choeur on the Fourth Gregorian Tone," Wolstenholme; "Prelude and Sicilian," from opera "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni.

Reception to Pastor.

The members of the Temple Baptist church will give a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Evarts C. Conover and his wife at the church this evening. The affair will be in charge of a committee from the Ladies' Aid Society and the King's Daughters and the Board of Deacons. All persons interested are cordially invited.

Walter Firstbrook a Delegate.

The third annual summer conference of the young people's department of Presbyterian churches, will be held at Pocono Pines, Pa., August 2-9. Walter Firstbrook, of East Second street, will represent Hope chapel. This is one of the five conferences held by the department throughout the country.

Rev. Mr. Fletcher at Trinity.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, will occupy the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning and evening, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek, who was called to Grand Rapids, Mich., by the illness of his mother.

Her Ninety-first Birthday.

Mrs. Martha Scott, colored, of Fairchild's alley, celebrated the ninety-first birthday yesterday. She has lived thirty-three years in the house where she now resides. Mrs Scott enjoys fairly good health for one of her years.

Disorderly Case Adjourned.

In the city court yesterday morning, the case of Joseph Struck, charged by Mrs. Abram Epstein with disorderly conduct, was adjourned until Monday.

The tenth tribe of Israel gave a concert and entertainment at the Shiloh Baptist church, yesterday, for the benefit of the church. E. R. Randolph and family sang; also the chorister, J. H. Bollings.

UPLIFT OF DRAMA

Miss Agnes DeCamp's Valedictory Theme "The Regeneration of the Theatre.

An excellent essay on "The Regeneration of the Theatre," was the valedictory of Miss Agnes DeCamp, at the North Plainfield High School exercises last night. The essay follows:

Since the time of Sheridan and the old comedy writers up to the beginning of this century England has produced no great plays. The interest in the theatre seemed to die out to a great extent. The novel and poetic drama held the attention of the class of persons who formerly patronized the theatres. In fact, the theatre was rather looked down upon by persons prominent in literature as being less elevating than fiction and essays. For this reason England had to depend upon the French and the classics for her plays.

At the beginning of this century there seemed to be an unusual interest in dramas of all descriptions. Not only the managers and actors, but also the public were giving serious thought to the uplifting and regeneration of the theatre. Everyone seemed to be aware that something was radically wrong, but it took years to place the trouble.

Many thought that the attention paid to the setting of the plays had attracted the interest away from the literary to the mechanical art of the theatre. To a certain extent this is true for the theatre has much to contend with from critical and disillusioned audiences. In the regeneration of the drama, the imagination will first of all have to be cultivated. There was a time when we did not care whether thunder came from a sheet of tin or the patter of rain from peas in a pan. Therefore, one of the first things will be to bring back the old fashioned curiosity of audiences. When we criticize the Elizabethan stage, with its paper signs, or the mystery play platform with its bowl of water for the sea, we discount the responsiveness of an audience whose education may not have been as general as ours, but whose minds were more active and more sensitive to mere suggestion. So rapidly has illusion deserted us, and so surprisingly have the mechanical excellences of the theatre increased that the elaborateness of scenery and costuming have tended to overshadow the art of the actors and the literary merits of the play.

People are beginning to realize that in exchanging the mechanical for the literary art, the theatre has sold its birthright for a mess of pottage, and scenery can no longer prop a poor drama. The result of this has been that in many of our plays, there is less change of scenery and greater simplicity in costuming than formerly. Some plays in fact, have required no change of scenery, while others have had one change instead of three or four as in former years.

Audiences are becoming more critical as to the quality and technique of the play than ever before. Many of our most prominent literary writers seeing the widespread interest in the theatre were not slow to take advantage of this fact. Well known novelists such as Barry, and Booth Tarkington, have given up novel writing for the more difficult art of playwriting and have given us such plays as "Peter Pan," "What Every Woman Knows," and the "Man From Home." This is one of the most hopeful signs for the drama for it indicates that the day of the novel is passing and that of the drama is at hand.

In the regeneration of the theatre the playwright is growing to recognize that his own citizenship means something in his drama. The scenic idea has created a seeable American drama but hardly a readable one. "Salomy Jane," "The Girl of the Golden West," "In Old Kentucky," and such titles occur to everyone. In fact, it is not too rash to state that the theatre has considered the local differences of the country very well. Yet the widespread interest will have to produce a genius properly accustomed to exact technique and well trained in the cultural phases of his trade, who will at last succeed in drawing from the soil, matter which is the essence of national life, before our plays will be considered as dramas. This intimate reproduction of the life of the people must not come from artificial means, but must come from an intimate knowledge of the lives and hearts of the people he pictures. It is not an observational drama such as we have in the "Lion and the Mouse," or in the "Gamblers" that we must have, but one that reproduces the real inner life in such a way as to challenge public interest, not public excitement.

The book play which has lately raged on our stage, is a recent manifestation and it lives on sturdily, being still to all appearances at the height of its vigorous supremacy in the dramatic world. A novel no sooner establishes its success than the author is besieged by a manager or more often an actor, who sees in it a part suitable for himself, to dramatize the work. In the end the author yields to temptation and the book is dramatized. The transfer is of necessity a desecration of a good novel, and a production of a poor play, since the novel and the drama are two distinct forms of literary art not interchangeable.

It would be unfair to the American drama not to mention a movement that took place some nine or ten years ago. Although in Germany Shakespeare was played in a winter season even in the smaller towns, he was seldom accorded a place upon the stage in greatest American cities. There were cities of hundreds of thousands of people who passed the entire season without a single Shakespearean production being played at any playhouse. We had not left among us one great actor except possibly Robert Mantell who devoted himself to Shakespearean parts, and whose name was identified with Shakespeare's. Mediocre actors and actresses it is true, were quite commonly possessed with a desire to be seen in Shakespearean roles, but as a

FOUR SUCCESSFUL YEARS IN BUSINESS

M. & A. Tepper, the West Front street dry goods merchants, who have just completed four successful years as merchants in this city, have purchased the Landsberg department store on George street, New Brunswick, and have taken possession. They will begin stock taking on Monday and will re-open the store within a short time. J. P. Tepper, a brother of the local firm, who lives in Louisville, Ky., will have charge of the New Brunswick store.

The firm will follow the same policy for the New Brunswick store as in this city, that is they will carry a full and complete line of goods, the best in the market, at New York prices. The Landsberg store is one of the largest in New Brunswick, having a frontage of 78 feet with three floors. The building was erected a year ago and is modern in every respect.

LIVE WIRE AROUSES UP THE NEIGHBORHOOD

The neighborhood at Grant avenue and Third street was roused from its slumbers at 2:30 this morning by a premature Fourth of July celebration due to a live electric light wire falling at the corner. The broken ends connected with pools of water left by the prevailing thunderstorm and streaks of spluttering flame and flashings of grounded current vied with the lightning in illuminating the surroundings. At the same time a continued sputtering and crackling made sleep out of the question in nearby homes.

Councilman W. W. Wilson was one of those awakened by the racket and telephoned police headquarters. Several other men stood guard until a Public Service wagon and two cops came up on the run. The trouble was stopped by cutting the broken strands clear of the circuit.

The prompt action of the neighbors undoubtedly prevented at least one serious accident. The electrical display ceased at times and pedestrians had no means of knowing the danger that lay in their path. The watchers had hardly taken their places when a large number of young people returning from a dance reached the corner. Several of them would have walked directly into the danger zone. Three milk wagons were also headed off, the drivers being unaware of the lurking current.

S. S. CARVALHO PURCHASES MRS. S. A. B. GREEN'S HOUSE.

S. S. Carvalho, general manager of the New York American, who owns a beautiful summer home at Metuchen known as "Red Top," which comprises about two hundred acres, has purchased Mrs. S. A. B. Green's handsome residence, 402 West Eighth street, and he plans to spend a part of the year in this city.

This is one of the best known properties in the city and it is the first time since 1868 that it has been out of the present family. Mr. Carvalho plans to make extensive improvements.

Funeral of Mrs. L. C. Putnam.

The funeral service of Mrs. Betsy T. Putnam, was held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of her son, Frank Putnam, on East Second street. There was a large gathering of friends and neighbors and there were also many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Mrs. Putnam was the oldest member, officiated. The burial was in the M. E. cemetery on Plainfield avenue, and relatives of the family acted as pall-bearers.

Birds in 500 Mile Race.

Plainfield carrier pigeons are today engaged in a five hundred mile flight, the longest of the season, and in consequence there is unusual interest. There were about seventy-five birds liberated at 4:35 o'clock this morning at Newton, N. C., and the report was favorable for good time, there being practically no wind. If the birds meet with favorable weather conditions throughout the day they may reach Plainfield around 6 o'clock tonight.

GREET NEW PASTOR

Reception in Honor of Rev. Evarts C. Conover at Temple Baptist Church.

Rev. and Mrs. Evarts C. Conover were given a reception at the Temple Baptist church, last evening, by the members and friends and the edifice was thronged with people, who were glad to accept the opportunity to greet the new pastor and his wife.

The program opened with a selection by the Temple orchestra, under the direction of W. A. Conger, organist. There were brief remarks by L. W. Randolph, superintendent of the Sunday-school, and representing the Board of Deacons, in which he welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Conover to this new field of work. Another selection by the orchestra, preceded a soprano solo by Miss Leila Druse, and a piano solo by Ida Randolph-Smalley,a piano duet by Miss Marie Viebrock and Mrs. William Crow and a piano solo by Miss Lambert, all of which were greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Conover responded to the remarks of Mr. Randolph on behalf of his wife and himself and again reassured his people of his earnest desire to preach the gospel and with the cooperation of all to be the means of winning many souls for Christ.

A social hour then followed, during which ice cream and cake and lemonade were served, and all greeted Mr. and Mrs. Conover. Those in charge of the affair were the following representatives from the church societies:

Board of Deacons—L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane, Frank Stewart. Edward Baker, Jr., Christian Utzinger. Ladies' Aid Society—Mrs. Chas. Jeter, Mrs. Brooks Carson, Mrs. Edward Baker, Jr., Mrs. C. L. Murphy, Mrs. William C. LaRue. King's Daughters—Miss Ella Mackey, Miss Mattie Viebrock, Miss Ella Carlson, Mrs. Harry Bouton, Mrs. Fred Borrup and Mrs. William Crow.

DELIGHTFUL DINNER FOR BRIDAL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phillips, of Rockview terrace, gave a delightful dinner party at their home last evening for the members of the bridal party, who will attend their daughter, Miss Helen Phillips, at her wedding to John F. Harper, of New York, at Grace church, July 1. Covers were laid for fourteen. The decorations were green and white and a feature was the presentation of gifts to the bridal party by both Miss Phillips and Mr. Harper.

Those present were Miss Helen Phillips, John F. Harper, Miss Mary A. Faber, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Mr. and Mrs. Kieth Summer Brahe, Dr. James P. Haney, James I. Harper, of New York; Charles Harper, of Brooklyn; Henry Russell Phillips, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Faber, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs Henry R. Phillips.

LADIES' AUXILIARY A. O. H. HOLDS STRAWBERRY PARTY.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order Hibernoins a successful strawberry and ice cream festival was held last evening in T. A. B. Hall. The affair was largely ttended nd liberal patronage was accorded. In connection with the festival there was a dance, an enjoyable feature. This was the last socil event of the auxiliary this season.

Mrs. Frank Cullen was chairman of the general committee, the other members being Mrs. Patrick Harrington, Miss Jennie Gready, Miss Lizzie Cooney, Miss Kenney, Mrs. Moore and they were assisted by Miss May Frawley, Thomas Farrell and Patrick Harrington.

Spent Week in Detroit.

Andrew C. Thompson has just returned from a week's stay in Detroit, while there Mr. Thompson went through all the automobile factories, principally the Chalmers factory, where he spent two whole days.

Mr. Thompson says the automobile business in general looks very good. The Chalmers Motor Co. has sold their entire output for 1911, and will commence shipping 1912 models in two weeks.

Mr. Thompson is very enthusiastic over the 1912 Chalmers models which includes a model "30" selling for $1500, fully equipped, and a new model "36" selling for $1800 equipped with self-starting motor, 4 forward speed transmission, Bosch dual system ignition, 36x4 Q. D. Continential demountable rims and a 4¼ x 5¼ long stroke motor; all models built with fore-door touring, torpedo, roadster, and limousine bodies.

Mrs. Lemuel Smith, Jr., of Somerset street, returned home today from Brooklyn, where she visited her mother, Mrs. Charles Falk.

BURGLAR AT WORK

Enters Three Houses in Willever Street Using Chloroform in One.

Burglars again visited a remote section of the city early this morning, entering three houses on Willever street and getting away with a small amount of booty. The work was that of professional talent as evidenced by the use of chloroform in one instance and the skilled way in which windows were "jimmied." The police went over the ground carefully but have little to aid them in the way of clues.

Willever street is one of the new thoroughfares near the Safe Works plant between Clinton and Rock avenues. The patrolman in the territory has a long beat and made it possible for the gentry to keep going without outside interference. The home of Joseph Gray at 1535 Willever street, where the largest haul was made, was the first entered Mr. Gray woke up at 4:30 this morning feeling nauseated and depressed. He called to his wife in an adjoining room and he detected the odor of chloroform. A large yellow stain on Mr. Gray's pillow was further proof that it had been used. A suspicion that burglars had been at work was confirmed when a hurried search of the rooms was made. The place had been ransacked from top to bottom and it was learned the following had been taken: $15 in cash, a meerschaum pipe, a gold ring valued at $10, a baby's gold ring worth $4 and a gold pin valued at $5.

Mrs. Gray had awakened during the thunderstorm at about 2:30 and being frightened by the lightning covered her head. This probably saved her from being chloroformed as the intruder would have roused her up in using it.

The second house entered was that of Joseph Taylor at 1531 Willever. No attempt was made to chloroform but the contents of bureaus were scattered about as if plenty of time had been taken in looking about. The only thing missing is a gold locket, valued at $5, and thirty cents in change. The locket bore the pictures of Mr. Taylor and his wife and was treasured as an heirloom.

The home of William Smith at 1537 Willever was also entered. Ingress was made easy by the medium of an open window, but the burglars got nothing for their trouble. The family were made aware of the visit on arising by finding things topsy-turvy.

This morning's work s undoubtedly some more from the gang which operated on Marion avenue and adjoining territory a few days ago. Every indication is that of professionalism and undoubtedly comes from organized crooks who make periodical trips to suburban towns.

PASTOR TO COMMENCE LONG LECTURE TOUR

Immediately after the regular service in the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, will leave to commence a two month's vacation given him by his congregation. He will proceed at once over the Lackawanna and Great Northern routes for Portland, Oregon, where he will give the initial lecture in a series at summer chautauquas.

The circuit arranged for Mr. Maguire includes large cities in Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Colorado and the Dakotas. He will speak at various times on "An Irishman's Trip Through Europe," "The Three Crosses of Calvary," "With the Cannibals in the Upper Congo," "Rome, Ancient and Modern" and "Six Years on the Dark Continent." On completing the tour, the pastor will return home via the Sante Fe route.

During Mr. Maguire's absence, Mrs. Maguire and Miss Ruth Maguire will visit at Asbury Park and attend the Northfield conference. The pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptisa church will be supplied by Rev. Dr. J. W. Wedell, of Bucknell University.

At tomorrow morning's service in the church, Mr. Maguire will extend the right hand of fellowship to eight. His sermon subject will be "Job's Host," and at night "A Royal Invitation."

Will Tell of Mission Work.

Martin A. Korff, of the borough, will conduct a special meeting at the Parker Schoolhouse, Lincoln, tomorrow evening, and will speak on "Missions in Chinatown and the Bowery." Mr. Korff is one of the leaders of two of the Christian missions in New York, and he will relate many interesting experiences. Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mr. Korff will teach the review lesson at the session of the Sunday-school. All are cordially invited.

ENGAGE TEACHERS

Six Selected to Take the Place of Those Who Have Resigned.

The borough schools will lose only six teachers this year. All of these but one go to accept positions elsewhere at higher salaries. George Baker to the high school, West Chester, Pa.; Miss Waller to a private school at Madison, N. J.; Miss Eldredge to Montclair; Miss Trenbath to Plainfield; Miss McClintock to White Plains, N. Y. Miss Doud retirés from teaching for one year.

Albert Earley will have charge of the mathematics in the high school next year. He is a graduate of the Trenton State Normal School, and of Dickinson College. He has taught five years, the last as principal of the high school at Glen Cove, Long Island.

There will be three new teachers in the seventh grade. Miss Cosette Bratten is a graduate of the Geneseo State Normal School, and has had five years of experience in Ohio.

Miss Ora B. Tanner is a graduate of the Cortland State Normal School, and has had six years of experience in teaching. Both Miss Bratten and Miss Tanner are well qualified in music, the latter being a graduate of the Cortland Conservatory, having taken the full pipe organ course.

The other seventh grade teacher is Miss Carrie M. Davis, who has taught five years, the last three as principal at Far Hills. She is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, Penn

Miss McClintock will be succeeded by Miss Nellie Mantz, a graduate of the North Plainfield High School and of the Trenton Normal School. Miss Mantz, whose home is in the borough, has taught four years at Raritan with much success.

GRADUATION CLASS GIVEN RECEPTION

Alumni and members of the senior class of the North Plainfield High School assembled at the Park Club last night after the commencement exercises in the Plainfield theatre and enjoyed the reception given to the graduates by the class of '09 and '10. Forty couples did the light fantastic until after 2 o'clock this morning, there being twenty dances on the program.

The clubhouse was tastefully decorated for the occasion in the class colors and a bank of palms on the stage added attractiveness to the scene of happy dancers. Music was furnished by the Messrs Stuart and Valkenburg.

Between the tenth and eleventh dances a collation was served by Henry Johnson, Park Club steward. The cooling effects of delicious punch were also much enjoyed during the entire program of dances.

The committee in charge of the reception was composed of the Misses Helen George, Dorothy Reynolds, Nettie Steiner and Ruth Day and Preston Dunning, Pierson Bailey, Carlton Smith and Edward La Porte.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERS TO GO TO LAKE GEORGE

Delegates from the local Y. W. C. A. leave this city next Friday to attend the national association convention at Silver Bay, Lake George. The convention this year promises to be one of the largest in the history of the Silver Bay Association. The Misses Margaret McCutchen, Amy Tapping and Edith Hanaford will be in charge of the local delegation.

Those who will attend from this city are: the Misses Archer, Laura Dent, Mertie Fedderman, Clara Hallard, Margaret Hawkins, Mildred McAuliffe and Carrie Quipp.

Consider Tax Appeal.

The Union County board for the equalization of taxes went to Mountainside yesterday morning to look over the William G. Peckham property at that place. Peckham has appealed from several assesements made by local assessors and the borough of Mountainside has also appealed from a reduction made on one plot of property. The case was argued yesterday afternoon. The City of Rahway has also several appeals to go before the board.

Funeral of Jules Boutes.

The funeral of Jules Boutes, who died in Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Wednesday, was held at St. Mary's church, this morning at 9 o'clock, and was attended by a number of friends of Mr. Boutes. Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of the church, conducted the mass, and the burial was in St. Mary's cemetemy. Mr. Boutes had been a member of St. Mary's church for a long time and for more than twenty years was soloist in the choir.

NO PERMIT YET FOR THE DANCE PAVILION

Owing to the unavoidable absence of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, the North Plainfield Council did not hold its special meeting last night. Four of the Councilmen on hand informally discussed the question involved and decided upon a course followed out later.

The meeting was held to pass upon a petition from Peter Foufas, to erect a dancing platform and ice cream stand on the Lewis property, Somerset street, between Howard street and Fritz place. He had applied for the privilege and had proceeded with the work without authority. Residents in the vicinity made complaint and the council meeting was called to take action.

The solons who showed up last last night could take no official action but Chief Marshal Weiss was instructed to stop Foufas from going ahead with his plans. The matter will now be considered at the regular meeting in July.

DR. SAUNDERS WILL BE THE CHAIRMAN

Dr. William H, Morgan, of Newark, will make the chief address at the annual commencement exercises of thePlainfield Business College and

Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan.

School of English at the Plainfield theatre next Friday night. Former Mayor William L. Saunders, who has been closely identified with the school will act as chairman of the exercises. Mayor George W. V. Moy will represent the City of Plainfield. Dr. J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, superintendent of the Schools of Union county and Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., will deliver short addresses. Bertram F. Tallamy, tenor soloist, and Martin A. Korff's orchestra, will furnish a most excellent musical program.

The growth of this institution has been marked by the development of a scholastic spirit which has gradually brought the people to a realization of the fact that Plainfield fosters a commercial school that has made this city the centre of commercial education in a territory which includes seven surrounding counties.

Many features pertaining to a high grade classical school are in vogue in the school life of the institution and the most important of these features is the public commencement. The form of exercises is necessarilly different from those of the classical institutions by reason of the fact that the majority of those who publicly receive their diplomas at these exercises have been successfully employed in business for some time.

The reason for this condition of affairs is apparent when one stops to think that the students enter the school to begin their work at any time during the school year and as soon as they meet the requirements of the school regarding proficiency in the course of study chosen, they are placed in positions. Thus the personnel of the student body is constantly changing and all return at the commencement period to receive that credit which is due those who have faithfully performed their work in the school and who have already taken their places in the sphere of business.

Professor Herr extends a general invitation to the public to attend this affair and has arranged to have the theatre open early so those who come early will benefit by obtaining good seats. Electric fans have been installed to add to the comfort of those occupying the balcony and gallery.

GRADUATE TWENTY

Dr. Chapin Gives Sound Talk at the Borough High School Commencement

Despite the humidity a big crowd attended the commencement exercises of the North Plainfield High School in the Plainfield theatre last night. Singing by the school glee club and an address by Charles S. Chapin, Ph. D., were the features of the occasion. The last number on the program was the presentation of the Yale cup by James R. Joy, the winner being Herbert Stein, a member of the graduating class.

The invocation, which was by Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, was followed by a chorus selection, "Out on the Deep," by the school glee club under the direction of Professor Lloyd, accompanied by Miss Myra Emmons, pianist. Miss Katherine Layton then made the salutation and salutatory address, her words of welcome being published in another column of today's Press.

Two more numbers were rendered by the glee club before Miss Agnes De Camp gave her valedictory address and essay, which appear in another column of this issue. After "The Boatman's Good-night," by the glee club, Dr. Charles S. Chapin, principal of the Montclair State Normal School, was introduced by Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the borough Board of Education.

In presenting the Yale Cup, for the local Yale club, Mr. Joy told of the requirements upon which the awarding of this cup depended. He also said that the city and borough High Schools were the only public schools in the country in which this prize was offered by the town Yale club Mr. Stein, the winner of the trophy this year, has been the star athlete of the school for the past two years, having played on the football eleven, the basketball five and the baseball nine, as well as being a thorough student and soloist of the school glee club.

Diplomas were presented to the twenty graduates by Dr. Cooley. When Andrew H. Stiglitz stepped forward to receive his graduation certificate, Superintendent H. C. Krebs told of the work which the young man had been obliged to do within the last month in order to be graduated since an illness had kept him from school for two months.

The W. C. T. U. High School prize of $5 for the best essay on temperance was awarded to Louis N. Bennett. The prize of $3 for the best essay in the grammar grades on the same subject was won by Godfrey Diplock.

Dr. Chapin took for the subject of his address, "Education as Equipment for Living." In the course of his remarks, Dr. Chapin said in part:

"Education never makes brains, gumption or grit for its function is limited. The question to ask, however, is, what addition has these four years of high school work made on the characters of these young people. Education is not in its real meaning a matter of financial gain, but it is rather a question of bettering character.

"The three greatest things to be gained from an education are self control, self reverence, and self knowledge. Those who understand themselves are greatly in the minority and it is this knowledge of self which is to be desired in an education rather than high marks. Studies, athletics, dramatics and all school activities are simply of secondary importance in the real object of education.

"Self reverance is another product to be gained from the courses in our schools but too much of this quality is not to be desired. Nevertheless the world can reduce a swelled head but it cannot help the man who has no self confidence.

"The third element of importance in education is that of self control, having control over mental as well as spiritual powers.

"The republic of letters should be entered by every man or woman who has really been educated. A high school has failed in its purpose unless it has been able to instill in its graduates a love for good books, in the appreciation of which exists a power which wealth cannot give. Culture is the appreciation and appropriation of the best which men of all times have said, written, or done. Reading cheap novels is a threatening danger to the ruination of the intellect of the American people.

"We do not want men who think without acting in this country nor do we want men who act without thinking. In short, learn to supply your education and do not let it go to waste. We need men with patriotism in this country, not necessarily the patriotism in time of war for the true patriot is the man, who, in the time of peace, knows how to respect himself, his neighbor, and his God. Men, who seeing their present humble duty and do it without shirking, are

BOY DROWNED IN DEAL LAKE WHILE CANOEING.

Asbury Park, June 24.—Canoeing in Martin's branch of Deal Lake Thursday, was fatal to Holmes Woodruff, fifteen years old, who lived with his widowed mother, on Washington street, West Park. Woodruff attempted to stand in the frail craft when it upset throwing him and his companion, Herman Schaar, into nine feet of water. Woodruff was unable to swim.

Schaar, diving for him several times, became exhausted and screamed for help. Thomas Jennings went to Schaar's rescue and brought him ashore. Meanwhile Earl Davidson, who was on the bank, saw the plight of Woodruff and went to his aid. He got hold of Woodruff's body and was trying to bring him to the shore when the drowning boy got what seemed to be a death-like hold on his would-be rescuer. Davidson, by great strength, threw off Woodruff and then swam to land.

Twenty minutes later Woodruff's body was recovered by Tucker White, with the aid of grappling hooks. While White tried to resuscitate Woodruff a message was sent to Dr. George W. Potts. When he arrived on the scene he said that Woodruff was beyond medical aid. He declared that the boy was undoubtedly beyond saving when he was taken from the water.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Plainfield People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.
The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.
Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.
Backache is constant day and night.
Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.
The weakened kidneys need quick help.
Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.
Plainfield evidence proves their worth.

Mrs. P. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield N. J., says: "I can again endorse Doan's Kidney Pills and willingly allow the further publication of my former testimonial for the benefit of other kidney sufferers. I was afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for a long time and I doctored without being helped to any extent. In July 1905 I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and deciding to try them, I got a supply. They greatly relieved me and I have not had much need for a kidney medicine since."

HEAVENLY REST GUILD FINISHES UP SEASON.

The Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held its last meeting of the season at the parish hours Thursday afternoon with a large attendance.

The treasurer's report showed that the sum of $100 had been realized at the fair held last Saturday by the sale of candy, cake and fancy articles. The usual appropriations for the work of the church were made out of this amount and a balance was left in the treasury for beginning next year's work.

The rector, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, took occasion to thank the women for their self-sacrificing work on behalf of the church during the year, referring to the many and varied ways in which the Guild had been a tower of strength to him and said that he felt sure that the fall would find every one ready to begin another year's work with the same enthusiasm. The Guild adjourned to meet again the third Thursday in October, after which a number of the women were entertained at tea by Mrs. Juna A. Babcock, of Clinton avenue.

"Missions in China," will be the subject of the Christian Endeavor society meeting at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow evening at 6:45. The meeting will be in charge of the missionary committee.

DUNELLENITES IN A DRAMATIC PRODUCTION

The Dunellen Dramatic Club, which has been presenting a series of playlets during the winter, gave the first performance of comedy-drama, "The Country Minister," in Junior hal, Dunellen Thursday night. It was under the auspices of Washington Camp, No. 98, P. O. S. of A., and was witnessed by a large and appreciative audience. The members of the cast acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner, interpreting the action of the drama in a highly artistic way. Five acts are required to reveal the plot, special scenery adding to the general effect. A second performance was given last night.

Those in the cast are the following: William Giddes, Edgar Starker, Harry Giddes, Jesse Rogers, Robert Lowrie, Richard Ryan, Walter Law, Thomas Jones, Miss Jennie Ryan, Miss Hazel Runyon, Mrs. E. J. Krinic, Mrs. Winfield Hetfield and Mrs. E. L. Fields.

The committee from Washington Camp in charge of the production is composed of Clarence T. Voorhees, chairman, Benjamin Vail, Melvin Fritts and Harry Giddes.

SUMMER VACATIONS OF BOROUGH TEACHERS.

Among the teachers of the North Plainfield High School, who will be out of town for the summer vacation are: Principal B. J. Phelps, who goes to Suffield, Conn., Miss P. N. Waller, to Camp Eagle Point, N. H., Miss C. W. Stahlberger to central New York State, George C. Baker to Noxcin, Pa., Miss Myrtle Montague to Croyton-on-the-Hudson, George E. Webster to the Maine lake region, and Miss Elizabeth Claypole to Asbury Park.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs will spend the month of July teaching in the Cape May city summer school.

Stockholders Dine.

The second annual dinner of the shareholders of the Mutual Profit-Sharing Realty Company, in this city, was held at the Waldorf Hotel, on East Front street, Thursday night. There were about 30 guests, including the officers of the company from New York, and Henry C. Corsa, of this city, the local agent. Reports were presented, after the excellent dinner served by Henry Windham, to show the progress made the company during the past year.

Chief of Clinic.

Dr. H. V. Hubbard, of Central avenue, who for the past few years has been an instructor in the diseases of the eye at the Post-Graduate Hospital, New York city, has just been appointed chief of the clinic at that hospital, a high honor. Dr. Hubbard will spend his summer vacation at his former home in Vermont.

In Borough Court.

Amza Hetfield, a laborer, living in Fanwood, was arrested in the borough Thursday night by Marshal Herrmann for being helplessly drunk. A night in the "cooler" was enough to make him sober and Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence in the borough court this morning.

OBJECTS TO SCHOOL EXERCISES IN CHURCH.

Commencement exercises of the Westfield public schools were held in the Presbyterian church, Westfield, Thursday evening. It was announced last week that the exercises would be held in the church and the Catholic population of the town objected to it. Father Byer, of Holy Trinity, asked his people not to attend the exercises.

About one-sixth of the school children of the town are attendants at Holy Trinity. One member of the graduating class is a communicant of that church. Father Byer stated that he could not attend the exercises. The Board of Education states that the only reason the exercises were taken to the church was because it was the largest audience hall in the town.

Proctor's Great Show.

Those who enjoy music of the semi-classical order will enjoy the "Four Musical Hodges," at Proctor's theatre. Their program is the kind that pleases everyone. There are three stunning girls and one man and the comedy is clever. Dorothy Richmond-Ted Gibson Co., in the college character comedy sketch, "Two Boys and a Girl," is well acted, McGibson's impersonation of the wild hilarious college boy is good. Adams & Schaefer, two funny Hebrews, who imagine they are musicians, is very funny. The Three Cycling Cogswells, a trio of acrobatic comedy bicyclists present a fine act.

Bayonne Boys Arraigned.

Four boys arrested for trespassing on Jersey Central coal trains and believed to know something about the breaking of factory windows, failed to vary their original stories when questioned closely by Chief Kiely Thursday. They were accordingly arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning and placed in charge of Probation Officer Hamilton. The quartet was taken to Elizabeth yesterday afternoon and will turned over to the Hudson county officer today.

Accidentally Shot in Hand.

New Providence, June 24.—While shooting rats in the barn of his employed, Thursday, Paul Miller received a serious bullet wound in the hand He was using a twenty-two-caliber revolver, and throught over haste to get a shot at one of the rodents dropped the gun and it was discharged. He was taken to Overlook Hospital. Miller is employed as farm man by Alexander Irving, of Springfield avenue, the West End.

Peter Cooper.

One of the greatest Philanthropists of New York, well known through the world, was always an advocate of total abstinence was feeble with age when he got strong again on Speer's Port and lived for years happy. If you are weak and debilitated, use Speer's Port Grape Wine, it will purify your blood, and make you feel young and prolong your life.

Opens a New Barber Shop.

Alexander Stills, who for nearly fourteen years, has been in the employ of E. B. Maynard, at his tonserial establishment on North avenue has opened a new shop in the Smalley building, depot park, off of Park avenue, near the eastbound station. The shop it decorated entirely in white and is cleanliness personified.

OLD SCHOOL METHOD HIT BY HOMEOPATH

Asbury Park, June 24.—Speaking before the International Hahnamannian Association yesterday, Dr. W. F. Freeman, of Brooklyn, took a fling at the "Old School" of medicine.

"Let us be charitable to the old school," he declared. "They are conscientious, but unfortunately they haven't the proper knowledge; they haven't anything to begin with. Their treatment at times is often barbarous."

Dr. Philip S. Kirchbaum, of Montclair, treasurer of the association, remarked: "It's an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." The greater part of the morning and early afternoon session was taken up with the reading of technical papers and a discussion about them.

"Homeopathic Treatment in Surgery Cases," was the title of a paper read Thursday afternoon by Dr. W. L. Morgan, of Baltimore, who declared that surgery was a "get-rich-quick sort of a game." He told of a case where a man had been a cripple for a long time and had been obliged to use a crutch. A surgeon had said that the only hope of saving his life was to amputate a diseased leg. A Hahnemann homeopath was called in, prescribed, and in a short time the cripple was cured.

Mention was also made of cases where tumors had been removed by homeopathic remedies, and where appendicitis had been cured without the aid of the knife.

Another case concerned the loss of a man's nose by cancer. The speaker declared that a new nose had been grown in its place.

"You will go to a surgeon," said the speaker, "and he will perform an operation for which you are charged $500. Maybe you are cured and maybe you are not, but it is ten chances to one that there is some evidence of the disease remaining when the surgeon gets through with you. Another person will go to a 'true blue' homeopathic doctor and he will effect a cure for which his fee is less than $50. The person cured will say, 'Oh, it was a minor case, anyway!'"

The first genuine Russian ballet performance ever given on an English speaking continent is the summer attraction at the Winter Garden. Miss Gertrude Hoffmann announces the introduction to the English-speaking world of a Saison des Ballets Russes, a new cult in art, which has enraptured and enslaved the Parisians for the last two years, and which has made the recent aesthetic development in Russia the most sensational and novel phase of contemporaneous realism. These productions are not Russian dances as such dances have heretofore been known in America. They are poetic interpretations by Russian, Bohemian, Polish and French artists of the art of dancing in dramatic form, according to the new school of minodramatic terpsichorean revelation.

Miss Elsie Brown, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

SHOOT HIMSELF, THEN FIRES AT POLICEMAN.

Atlantic City, June 24.—Crazed over a quarrel with a young woman, William Wren, a baker, employed at a local hotel, fired a bullet in his brain just as he was about to be arrested for acting strangely in Pleasantville, Thursday. Then steadying himself against a tree, he shot at Policeman Harry McDermit, but his aim was poor and the bullet whistled over the bluecoat's head.

McDermit closed in on the wounded man and wrested the revolver from his grasp. An automobile driven by Dr. R. J. Eccles, a dentist, came up at this juncture, and Wren was rushed six miles to the City Hospital here. The bullet was imbedded in the brain and the man's condition is critical.

WELL-KNOWN LONDON DIVINE TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY.

Rev. E. H. Ellis, pastor of the Finchley Baptist church, London, Eng., who has been attending the World's Baptist convention at Philadelphia, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church, Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. Ellis is a preacher of great power and large congregations should be present at both services. When Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss was abroad last year, he was invited to preach at the Finchley Baptist church, but was unable to arrange his trip accordingly.

Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist, will sing at the morning service, by request, "With Verdure Clad."

Fails in Suicide Attempt.

Elizabeth, June 24.—Worry over family troubles is said to have caused John Scherr, forty years old, of 371 Primrose street, Brooklyn, to attempt suicide at 5:30 Thursday afternoon. He jumped from the ferryboat Arthur Kull, which plies between Staten Island and Elizabethport, when the vessel was in midstream. The crew of the tugboat Commander rescued the drowning man and brought him to the Jersey Central wharf at Elizabethport. A hurry call brought an ambulance from the Alexian Hospital and the victim was taken there.

Monsignor Connolly, of Phillipsburg, who has been visiting Father W. H. Miller, of St. Joseph's church, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts and children, of Kensington avenue, left yesterday for Tolland, Mass., where they wil occupy their summer home.

The Baker Telephones

"THAT'S a pretty big order but I guess I can fill it. If you had called up an hour later I couldn't have done it."

The baker frequently has an unusual demand upon the capacity of his plant.

If he happens to be short of material, he telephones to his wholesaler and saves valuable time.

His customer is in his own town, but he may have to use the long distance to reach the wholesaler. That's where the universal Bell Service counts.

GOLF.

"Foozle," is the latest golf mascot, rivaling "Billikens," in popularity. It is made of imitation ivory, mounted five inches on a base, guaranteed against hazards, warranted proof against bunkers, plays his own ball and all stymies, knows his own game, is always dormy, and in short is a panacea for all golfers' troubles, including cuts, sprains, bruises, bad lies and language. "Foozle" is aptly described as follows:

I'm an Elf or Gnome or Fairy,
Or whatever else you call me.
A little Imp who always gets the blame
Should you have a ball in Gorse,
Sliced in Heather, why of course
It's Foozle, Foozle, Foozling, my game.

When your eye is off the ball
You've topped, it's bound to fall
Just a yard or so beyond the driving Tee,
Again Foozle is to blame
For the one who spoiled your game.

Or, wrongly bend your back, your arm or knee,
There are other things you do
Which every golfer knows and rues.
To stop them of an easy way I'll plan.
Keep me shut up in your den!
And the odds are one to ten,
The game you'll play and play it well.
Amen!

UPLIFT OF DRAMA

rule, when not for the purpose of gratifying their own personal vanity, these rivals mainly consisted of a vast collection of showy scenery and property.

About nine or ten years ago Mr. Frohman brought the Ben Greet players to America to help to awaken interest in a better drama. The result proved that the American public desired better plays The desire spread like wild fire through the intellectual centers and now there is hardly a college in the country that has not its serious dramatic society. This led to an awakening in classical plays in their literary and art side by Southern, Marlowe, Coburn, and Ben Greet. These latter companies go from town to town giving Shakespearean plays. Their success is due to the fact that they are given out in the open air, as Shakespeare intended them to be given.

At present, Ben Greet is encouraging the erection of a Memorial Theatre to Shakespeare in New York, to stand somewhere in the streets where the simple people throng, and to be opened to them at a very low price which they can afford to pay. He wishes it to be constructed with stalls for the simple class and box seats for the more well-to-do, so that both classes may attend. In this way the people can receive an education in dramatic art, which is not obtainable in any other way.

We fall in comparison with other countries in letting down the bars to admit the spectacle and the musical and dancing diversions within sacred precincts where no such influence should be allowed to invade. All our standards are in danger of deterioration through the promiscuousness with which a theatrical offering is patronized and praised. There are practically no theatres in this country solely dedicated to drama, and in which the legitimate traditions of the stage are honestly and steadfastly cultivated with a view to their perpetuation. The stock company was for many years at once a school for actors and a center for inculcating the public with correct ideas about dramatic art. With the death of Augustine Daly, and the separation of his company, this system disappeared and the star system has come to reign triumphantly. The star system is a disadvantage to the public, also, for it allows the public to see only a few plays. Under it, the ambition of theatre is to give a single play a season. And this we must see this season or never; for it will never be heard of again.

What is the remedy? How is the generation growing up to have any proper appreciation of the drama as a form of art? How are good actors to be trained and developed? In short, how is public taste to be directed and standardized if the theatre is permitted to take what seems to be a national course, obedient to the hard laws of supply and demand? The obvious suggestion is a National Academy of Dramatic Art, or State-aided theatres, such as are found in France and in Germany. We ought to have a national theatre at Washington or New York, but then the people of New England, the South, the Mississippi Valley, and the Pacific Coast would profit little from such an isolated center. It might justly be complained that public money was being used for sectional purposes. The better policy would be to encourage the establishment of municipal theatres, as in Germany. It may be that we shall need to solve some of the unpleasant problems of city government before assuming new and somewhat aesthetic municipal functions, but in that direction there is at least a ray of hope and a promise of future light upon a situation at present enveloped in darkness.

What is to be the future of our stage one cannot pretend to know more than one knows what is to be the future of our literature, our sculpture, our journalism, our politics, or our society. That it will change is an unmistakable lesson of the past. That it will change to saner and plainer forms is likely, though by no means certain. But when we realize the intense interest in the theatre by all classes of prsons, and, especially those in the literary field, the outlook for the uplifting and regeneration of our stage is most encouraging.

Classmates it is now time to say farewell to our Alma Mater, which we have grown to love so dearly. During the four long years of our school life we have worked hard and earnestly to build strong foundations upon which our future lives may rest. Our success has largely been due to the earnest efforts of our Superintendent, our principal, and our faculty, and in behalf of the class of 1911, I give them our most heartfelt thanks for all they have done for our welfare.

Classmates, we also say farewell to each other, and even though this is the last time we shall be assembled as a class, let us always individually keep in mind our motto, "Vestigia nulla Retrorsum," and when the golden door of opportunity is opened, let us be ready to enter, and take our appropriate place in service to God and to our fellowmen.

The salutation by Miss Katherine Layton follows:

Members of the Board of Education, teachers, schoolmates and friends, in behalf of the class of 1911, I extend to you a hearty welcome. We are glad to see you here tonight for your presence bespeaks your interest in us and our school. For ourselves, we are both glad and sorry to be here; sorry because we are about to server the ties between classmates, companions and teachers, glad because we have accomplished what we started to do four years ago, glad because we are free from the sound of bells and the restraint of authority; glad to be free from school and sorry to leave it is our state of mind tonight.

When we began our course four years ago it seemed that the end of our high school course ended everything. Tonight we find that it is our commencement night. Commencement; did you every stop to think what the term means? Why should commencement come just as we finish our school days? It is the end of youth and poetry and romance and the commencement of manhood and womanhood with its duties and realities. It is the end of our high school education and the commencement of our education in the larger school of life. For many of us, tonight sees the end of our formal education, but it now becomes the work of every individual to train himself. As one grows he is unconsciously developed by circumstances, but he can control these circumstances and direct the course of his life by effort and thought.

the ones that we want in this country.

"There is too much superficiallity in the life of American people. There were not a thousand men who knew enough about the North Pole to offer a criticism of either Dr. Cook or Peary yet look at the number who expressed their opinions on this subject. And there are millions of citizens voting in the United tSates, who do so only under the influence of the tingling music of the band or the alluring offers of spell binders.

"Germany is teaching her students to think logically and unless the schools of this country can instill such a principle into its educational policies, the greatness of the United States will be wrested from us. The Puritan did things because he learned how to think for himself and how to be morally earnest in his crude little school. With our modern efficient schools, far superior to those of the colonial days, every pupil should be trained in these essential qualities."

Dr. Chapin then told the story of a man looking at the statue of the "Winged Victory" who exclaimed, "I'd like to see the fellow that got licked." "Despite the fact the figure in the statue had lost its arms and head," continued the speaker, "it still kept its wings, by means of which it could rise above the earthly plane into the realm of higher living. And so my advice to you graduates this evening may be summed up in three words, 'Keep Your Wings.'"

Those who were graduated last night are: Jacob Abrams, Percival James Bailey, Edward Francis Bodin, Harry Benjamin Jackson, Frank Malcolm Krewson, Arthur Warren Stewart, Andrew Henry Stiglitz, Herbert Alpheus Stine, John Percy Watson Raymond Brokaw Wyckoff, Elizabeth Marguerite Conroy, Agnes Loretta DeCamp, Louise May Demarest, Katherine May Layton, Lena Marie Rilling, Clara ellBe Runyon, Theresa Elizabeth Schmidt, Adelaide Iviene Stiglitz, Emma Frances Tetlow, Carrie Louise Williams.

A Railroad Trespasser.

Stanley Peterson, of Elizabethport, arrested yesterday by Detective Laveratt, of the Jersey Central force, for riding freight trains. He was arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning and allowed to go on suspended sentence, promising to keep off railroad property.

Children to Have a Picnic.

Returns From College.

Miss Stella Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi C. Kline, of Somerset street, returned home last night from Oberlin College, where she is a student, and she was accompanied by Miss Margaret Mosher, formerly physical director at the Y. W. C. A., who came here to visit Miss Amy Tapping, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Her coming was a surprise to Miss Tapping. Miss Mosher will remain here for awhile.

Open Air Service Tonight.

An open air service will be held at the corner of Madison avenue and West Front street at 8:15 tonight under the auspices of the religious work committee of the local Y. M. C. A. The speakers will be Rev. Edwin Shaw, of this city, and Rev. George McNeeley, of Newark. Whitney Frazee, cornetist, will play several solos. The service will last for half an hour.

Arrested for Burglary.

David Carpenter, sixteen years old, was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, yesterday at the instigation of the Rahway police. He is wanted by the latter on a burglary charge. Carpenter had been in this city for several days but was found at the home of John Giles, in Oak Tree. Detective Conger, of Rahway, took charge of the prisoner.

A Slight Fire.

No. 3 hose company responded to a still alarm at 1:25 this afternoon for a slight fire at Fourth street and Monroe avenue. The contents of a large tar pot, used in street work, got ablaze in some way. One chemical tank was used in putting out the flames.

FORTY YEARS in BASEBALL

A History of the Great National Game

By CAPT. A. C. ANSON

Former Manager of the Chicago National League Team

After I had once settled beyond recall that I would make this round-the-world junket I started in to make all my plans with direct reference to the enjoyment I intended to get out of the trip. As soon as I found that there were to be ladies in the party—Mr. Spalding decided to take his mother and Ned Williamson's better half vowed he shouldn't stir a step without her—I asked Mrs. Anson to accompany us. She didn't see how she could at first, but finally she said "All right," and we were ready at the appointed time.

On October 20 the Chicago and All-American teams played a farewell game on the league grounds in Chicago. It was a pleasant afternoon and a big crowd assembled to give us a proper send-off. It was a hot game, one of the very liveliest I ever took a hand in. Of course we didn't want to be beaten by the All-Americas on our own grounds just as we were starting off to show the world what a wonderful bunch we were, but it would have tickled the picked nine to death if they could have done the trick, and they tried it for all they were worth.

It didn't materialize. We won by a score of 11 to 6, and that very night we were off on the first trip around the world ever made by American ball players, a trip that was so full of adventure and so unique in its character that it will stand forever in the annals of the game as a thing to be remembered.

Nor did it interfere a little bit with my anticipation of a royal good time to have it suggested to me by some of my friends, and to realize it perfectly myself, that no matter how big a success it might turn out to be from a financial and professional standpoint it was going to be the most telling advertisement for a certain sporting goods business ever devised by human ingenuity.

The good-time feature of the scheme worked to a charm—and so did the advertising. As for the rest—well, my share of the losses incurred in working out that brilliant publicity dodge was $1,500. But, as I have already admitted, I had a tiptop time!

CHAPTER XVIII.

I Follow the Course of Empire.

"Westward the course of empire takes it way," and so did we on that fine evening of October 20, 1888. If there was ever a jollier company I was not a part of it. Every man of the two teams was like a big kid going off on a picnic, and altogether we were about as fine a specimen of the happy family racket as could be got together.

"Let's leave dull care behind!" sang out Tom Daly, our funny man, as our train pulled out of the Chicago Union depot, with the cheers and good wishes of the host of friends who had gathered to see us off still ringing in our ears.

"I hope none of the club folks heard that," I said solemnly. "Calling names is rather a dangerous business."

"Not if one has the last whack at it," Tom laughed.

It was impossible to be serious with Tom Daly, and I didn't try it. Instead, I headed the procession to the dining car provided especially for our party, and after that "dull care" had nothing to do with the case. We had a special sleeper for our use, but, as I remember it, there wasn't a great deal of sleeping done that first night out. The situation was too exciting and too new to admit of it. The ladies of the party may have made the attempt, but I don't see how they could have accomplished it. Early in the evening Mrs. Spalding, A. G.'s mother, a stately, white-haired woman, who is still living at the age of ninety-three, in behalf of the ladies of the company, accorded us permission to smoke, and by the time they were ready to retire the asmosphere was so charged with cigar mist that slumber must have been difficult. However, I can't speak from experience, as I didn't try it. I knew better. The rolling of the chips at the further end of the car would have made it impossible.

Next day we were in St. Paul, and although it was early Sunday morning a big crowd was on hand to welcome us. In those days St. Paul was a "wide-open" town, and Sunday was the one day of the week devoted especially to baseball. A game between our two teams had been scheduled for the afternoon, and although we would have preferred to pass the day quietly it would never have done to disappoint the 3,000 shivering fans that had assembled at the grounds to see us play.

"The frost was on the pumpkin" for a dead fact. A fur-lined overcoat would have been a big improvement over a baseball uniform, but there was no help for it. It is probable that a good many in the audience were there to see Mike Kelly, who had promised Mr. Spalding to join us at St. Paul and whose name was on the score card, but the "Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty" had backed out and Frank Flint—known as "Old Silver"—was sent in to catch for the All-Americas. Flint had been prevailed on to accompany us as far as Denver, for fear that Kelly would jump the track. The crowd soon tumbled to the fact that Mike and "Old Silver" were not identical, and the substitute was greeted with a round of left-handed compliments that had about as much effect on Flint as a mild shower bath on the back of a duck.

We had the game called at the end of the sixth inning, the score standing at 9 to 3 in favor of the Chicagos, so that we might play a game with the St. Pauls, then under the management of John S. Barnes On account of its local flavor this game was far more interesting to the fans than the other. When the game was called, at the close of the seventh inning, on account of darkness, with the score at 8 to 5 in St. Paul's favor, that crowd "went bug-house." Barnes was so elated over the good luck of his boys that he challenged me for another game with the Chicagos, to be played at Minneapolis the following day.

I accepted, and the next morning we were taken down in our special cars to the other Twin City, where we met with a reception that would have done honor to royalty. I don't remember the details, but I do recollect that we formed part of a parade through the principal streets and that we nearly froze, in spite of the fact that we were seated in a dozen fine carriages, drawn by horses with nodding gilt plumes and yellow blankets, and headed by a brass band led by a drum-major decked out in scarlet and gold. Another big crowd had assembled at the ball grounds, and it tried to keep in good humor and from freezing while we played our game with the All-Americas, but it was an uphill business. What that crowd wanted to see was our game with the St. Pauls, and the fact that All-Americas beat us 6 to 3 didn't interest those fans as much as it did us.

That game with the St. Paul's was one of the prettiest I ever had a hand in, I sent big Mark Baldwin in to pitch for us and he made a fine showing. Neither side scored for four innings and I don't mind telling you that excitement was keyed up considerable higher than concert pitch. In the fifth inning the St. Pauls were once more retired with a gooseegg and Pfeffer crossed the home plate with a winning run for the Chicagos. All considered, it was a great game for the St. Paul team, and Manager Barnes was so happy over the result that I couldn't do any better than jump right in and share it with him.

There wasn't much time for that, however, for that night we went on to Cedar Rapids, in my native state of Iowa, where we were scheduled to play an exhibition game. We got a great ovation there. Our cars, sidetracked near the Union depot, attracted as much attention as though they contained a circus. The attendance at the ball ground numbered 4,500, a crowd that deserved to see a good game, and that is what they got, if I do say it. The score was a tie in the fifth inning and again in the eighth, it then standing five each. In the ninth inning Ryan crossed the plate with the winning run for the Chicagos, and the crowd was satisfied it had got its money's worth.

(To be continued next Saturday).

Thirty Years for Slayer.

Jersey City, June 24.—Dominick Branda, who was convicted of murder in the second degree for the death of Salvatore Polizanno, in Hoboken, was sentenced to thirty years in State prison Thursday. It was alleged Branda shot Polizanno when the latter refused to give him $1,000. The killing occurred in February, 1910.

GUARD OFFICERS BEGIN STUDY UNDER REGULARS.

Sea Girt, June 24.—Inaugurating a plan entirely new to the National Guard of the State, 160 officers from the five infantry regiments are encamped here for a six days' "school of instruction." General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, commandant of the Second Brigade, is the commanding officer. He has but three officers, his adjutant Major Harry P. Moorhead, of Trenton, being the only regular member of his staff. Captain W. Kempton Browning, surgeon of the Second Regiment, and Captain David Hill, quartermaster of the same regiment, have been detailed to look after those two departments here.

Yesterday morning all of the officers were out for four hours on a "tactical walk," under the instruction of a regular army officer, the idea being to instruct them how to proceed with outposts when not in the presence of an enemy. For this afternoon the program only contains instruction for field officers, when they will have a practical talk, illustrating an action between infantry and cavalry, followed by a map maneuver.

The big event of the week will be the dinner, to be given tonight by the New Jersey National Guard Association which consists entirely of officers. The clubhouse will be the scene of the banquet, and Circuit Court Judge Nelson Y. Dungan, formerly colonel of the Second Regiment of Trenton, wil be toastmaster. Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur E. Steele, of the Fourth Regiment of Jersey City, is the chairman of the dinner committee.

JOIN TO HELP ARCANUM FUND.

With the two-fold purpose of celebrating the thirty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Royal Arcanum and to raise money for the New Jersey hospital bed fund, the twenty-three councils of Essex county and vicinity observed Arcanum Day at Olympic Park, Newark, yesterday.

The idea of holding the gathering originated in South Orange Council, and was subsequently taken up by all the other councils in the county and those of the West Hudson towns, under the leadership of Grand Orator Henry J. Bierman, of South Orange Council.

Arrangements were made with the park managers whereby the latter agreed to give a percentage of the gate receipts to the fund.

The committee in charge consisted of Mr. Bierman, chairman; D. Horace Stuits, of South Orange Council; Charles W. Crisp, of Seth Boyden Council, Belleville; William A. Theurer, of Corinthian Council, and James A. Snape, of General Runyon Council, Newark, and William D. Strong, of East Orange Council.

"You must be pretty strong with her, eh?"

"No, it was a put up job. Her hand was a bum one, yet she blamed me for losing the game."—Washington Herald.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVILL.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

"Let Up! Damn Yer! He Called Himself Jack Keith."

Two things combined to cause Keith to determine he would uncover this rascality—his desire to repay Hawley, and his interest in the girl rescued on the Salt Fork. This gossamer web of intrigue into which he had stumbled unwittingly was nothing to him personally; had it not involved both Hawley and Miss Hope, he would have left it unsolved without another thought. But under the circumstances it became his own battle. There was a crime here—hidden as yet, and probably not consummated—involving wrong, perhaps disgrace, to the young girl. He had rescued her once from out the clutches of this man, and he had no intention of deserting her now. Whatever her life might be, she was certainly an innocent victim in this case, deserving his protection. The memory came to him of her face upturned toward him in that little room of the Occidental, her eyes tear-dimmed, her lips asking him to come back to her again. He could not believe her a bad woman, and his lips compressed, his eyes darkened, with fixed determination. He would dig into this until he uncovered the truth; he would find out what dirty trick "Black Bart" was up to.

As he thought this out, not swiftly as recorded, but slowly, deliberately, piecing the bits together within his mind, blindly feeling his way to a final conclusion, the boy had sunk back upon the bed, overcome with liquor, and fallen asleep. Keith stepped over, and looked down upon him in the dim light. He could recognize something of her features in the upturned face, and his eyes softened. There was no use seeking again to arouse him; even had he been sober, he would not have talked freely. Keith lifted the dangling feet into a more comfortable position, turned the lamp lower, went out, and latched the door. Two men were tramping heavily up the stairs, and they turned into the hall at the very moment he disappeared within his own room. He still retained his grasp upon the latch, when a voice outside asked:

"What number did you say, Bill—39?"

Keith straightened up as though suddenly pricked by a knife; he could never forget that voice—it was Hawley's.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Glimpse at Conspiracy.

Leaning against the inside of his own door, startled by the rapid sequence of events, Keith was able, from different sounds reaching him, to mentally picture most of what occurred in the next room. He heard Bill sink down into the convenient chair, and drink from the bottle, while the gambler apparently advanced toward the bed, where he stood looking down on its unconscious occupant.

"The fool is dead drunk," he declared disgustedly. "We can't do anything with him tonight."

"I say—throw bucket water over him," hiccoughed the other genially, "allers sobers me off."

Hawley made no response, evidently finding a seat on one end of the washstand.

"Hardly worth while, Scott," he returned finally. "Perhaps I better have some understanding with Christie, anyhow, before I pump the boy any further. If we can once get her working with us, Willoughby won't have much hand in the play—we shan't need him. Thought I told you to keep sober?"

"Am sober," solemnly, "ain't had but six drinks; just nat'rly tired out."

"Oh, indeed; well, such a room as this would drive any man to drink. Did you get what I sent you here after?"

"I sure did, Bart," and Keith heard the fellow get to his feet unsteadily. "Here's the picture, an' some letters. I didn't take only what he had in the grip."

Hawley shuffled the letters over in his hands, apparently hastily reading them with some difficulty in the dim light.

"Nothing there to give us any help," he acknowledged reluctantly, "mostly advice as far as I can see. Damn the light; a glow worm would be better." There was a pause; then he slapped his leg. "However, it's clear they live in Springfield, Missouri, and this photograph is a peach. Just look here, Bill! What did I tell you? Ain't Christie a dead ringer for this girl?"

"You bet she is, Bart," admitted the other in maudlin admiration, "only, I reckon, maybe some older."

"Well, she ought to be accordin' to Willoughby's story, an' them papers bear him out all right, so I reckon he's told it straight—this Phyllis would be twenty-six now, and that's just about what Christie is. It wouldn't have fit better if we had made it on purpose. If the girl will only play up to the part we won't need any other evidence—her face would be enough."

Keith could hear the beating of his own heart in the silence that followed. Here was a new thought, a new understanding, a complete new turn to affairs. Christie Maclaire, then, was not Willoughby's sister Hope. The girl he rescued on the desert—the girl with the pleading brown eyes, and the soft blur of the South on her lips—was not the music hall singer. He could hardly grasp the truth at first, it antagonized so sharply with all he had previously believed. Yet, if this were true his own duty became clearer than ever; aye, and would be more willingly performed. But what did Hawley know? Did he already realize that the girl he had first met on the stage coach, and later inveigled into the desert, was Hope, and not the music hall artist? He, of course, fully believed her to be Christie Maclaire at that time, but something might have occurred since to change that belief. Anyhow, the man was not now seeking Hope, but the other. Apparently the latter was either already here in Sheridan or expected soon. And exactly what was it the gambler desired this Maclaire woman to do? This was the important matter, and for its solution Keith possessed merely a few hints, a few vague suggestions. She was expected to represent herself as Phyllis—Phyllis who? Some Phyllis surely whose physical resemblance to Hope must be sufficiently marked to be at once noticeable. Willoughby had evidently revealed to Hawley some hidden family secret, having money involved, no doubt, and in which the discovery of this mysterious Phyllis figured. She might, perhaps, be a sister, or half-sister, who had disappeared, and remained ignorant as to any inheritance. Hope's picture shown by the boy, and reminding Hawley at once of Christie Maclaire, had been the basis of the whole plot. Exactly what the details of that plot might be Keith could not figure out, but one thing was reasonably certain—it was proposed to defraud Hope. And who in the very truth was Hope? It suddenly occurred to him as a remarkably strange fact that he possessed not the slightest inkling as to the girl's name. Her brother had assumed to be called Willoughby when he enlisted in the army, and his companions continued to call him this. If he could interview the girl now for only five minutes he should be able probably to straighten out the whole intricate tangle. But where was she? Would she have remained until this time at Fort Larned with Kate Murphy?

There was a noise of movement in the next room. Apparently as Hawley arose carelessly from his edge of the washstand he had dislodged the glass, which fell shivering on the floor. Scott swore audibly at the loss.

"Shut up, Bill," snapped the gambler, irritated, "you've got the bottle left. I'm going; there's nothing for any of us to do now, until after I see Christie. You remain here! Do you understand?—remain here. Damn me, if that drunken fool isn't waking up."

There was a rattling of the rickety bed, and then the sound of Willoughby's voice, thick from liquor.

"Almighty glad to see you, Bart—am, indeed. Want money—Bill an' I both want money—can't drink without money—can't eat without money—shay, when you goin' stake us?"

"I'll see you again in the morning, Fred," returned the other briefly. "Go on back to sleep."

"Will when I git good an' ready—go sleep, stay wake, just as I please—don't care damn what yer do—got new frien' now."

"A new friend? Who?" Hawley spoke with aroused interest.

"Oh, he's all right—he's mighty fine fellow—come in wiseut in—invitation—called her Hope—you fool, Bart Hawley, think my sister Christie—Christie—damfino the name—my sister, Hope—don't want yer money—my—my new friend, he'll stake me—he knows my sister—Hope."

The gambler grasped the speaker, shaking him into some slight semblance of sobriety.

"Now, look here, Willoughby, I want the truth, and mean to have it," he insisted. "Has some one been in here while Scott was gone?"

"Sure—didn't I just tell yer?—friend o' Hope's."

"Who was he? Speak up! I want the name!"

There was a faint gurgling sound, as though the gambler's vice-like fingers were at the boy's throat; a slight struggle, and then the choked voice gasped out:

"Let up! damn yer! He called himself Jack Keith."

The dead silence which ensued was broken only by heavy breathing. Then Scott swore, bringing his fist down with a crash on the washstand.

"That rather stumps yer, don't it, Bart? Well, it don't me. I tell yer it's just as I said from the first. It was Keith an' that nigger what jumped ye in the cabin. They was hidin' there when we rode in. He just nat'rly pumped the gal, an' now he's up here trailin' you. Blame it all, it makes me laugh."

"I don't see what you see to laugh at. This Keith isn't an easy man to play with, let me tell you. He may have got on to our game."

"Oh, hell, Bart, don't lose your nerve. He can't do anything, because we've got the under holt. He's a fugitive; all we got to do is locate him, an' have him flung back inter jail—there's murder an' hoss-stealing agin him."

Hawley seemed to be thinking swiftly, while his companion took another drink.

"Well, pard, ain't that so?"

"No, that trick won't work, Scott. We could do it easily enough if we were down in Carson, where the boys would help us out. The trouble up here is that 'Wild Bill' Hickock is Marshal of Sheridan, and he and I never did hitch. Besides, Keith was one of his deputies down at Dodge two years ago—you remember when Dutch Charlie's place was cleaned out? Well, Hickock and Keith did that job all alone, and 'Wild Bill' isn't going back on that kind of a pal, is he? I tell you we've got to fight this affair alone, and on the quiet. Maybe the fellow don't know much yet, but he's sure on the trail, or else he wouldn't have been in here talking to Willoughby. We've got to get him, Scott, somehow. Lord, man, there's a clean million dollars waiting for us in this deal, and I'm ready to fight for it. But I'm damned sleepy, and I'm going to bed. You locate Keith tomorrow, and then, when you're sober, we'll figure out how we can get to him best; I've got to set Christie right. Good-night, Bill."

He went out into the hall and down the creaking stairs, the man he wanted so badly listening to his descending footsteps, half tempted to follow. Scott did not move, perhaps had already fallen drunkenly asleep on his chair, and finally Keith crossed his own room and lay down. The din outside continued unabated, but the man's intense weariness overcame it all, and he fell asleep, his last conscious thought a memory of Hope.

CHAPTER XX.

Hope Goes to Sheridan.

The discovery of the locket which had fallen from about Keith's neck made it impossible for Hope to remain quietly for long in the hotel at Fort Larned. The more carefully she thought over the story of that murder at the Cimmaron Crossing, and Keith's tale of how he had discovered and buried the mutilated bodies, the more assured she became that that was where this locket came from, and that the slain freighter must have been her own father. She never once questioned the truth of Keith's report; there was that about the man which would not permit of her doubting him. He had simply failed to mention what he removed from the bodies, supposing this would be of no special interest.

Mrs. Murphy, hoping thus to quiet the apprehensions of her charge, set herself diligently at work to discover the facts. As her house was filled with transients, including occasional visitors from Carson City, and was also lounging headquarters for many of the officers from the near-by fort, she experienced no difficulty in picking up all the floating rumors. Out of these, with Irish shrewdness, she soon managed to patch together a consistent fabric of fact.

"Shure, honey, it's not so bad the way they tell it now," she explained, consolingly. "Nobody belaves now it was yer father that got kilt. It was two fellers what stole his outfit, clothes an' all, an' was drivin' off wid 'em inter the sand hills. Divil a wan does know who kilt 'em, but there's some ugly stories travelin' about. Some says Injuns; some says the posse run 'em down; an' Black Bart an' his dirthy outfit, they swear it was Keith. Ol've got me own notion. Anyhow, there's 'bout three hundred dollars, some mules, an' a lot o' valyble papers missin'."

"But if it wasn't father, where is he now?"

"That's what Ol've been tryin' ter foind out. First off he went out to the Cimmaron Crossing, gyarded by a squad o' cavalry from the fort here. Tommy Caine wint along, an' told me all about it. They dug up the bodies, but niver a thing did they find on 'em—not a paper, nor a dollar. They'd bin robbed all roight. The owld Gineral swore loike a wild mon all the way back, Tommy said, an' the first thing he did at Carson City was to start huntin' for 'Black Bart.' He was two days gittin' on the trail av him; then he heard the feller was gone away trapsing after a singin' or dancin' gyurl called Christie Maclaire. She was supposed to be ayther at Topeky or Sheridan. A freighter told the owld man she was at Sheridan, an' so he started there overland, hopin' ter head off 'Black Bart.' Ol reckon we could a towld mor'n that."

"What do you mean?"

"Why shure, honey, what's the use tryin' ter decave me? Didn't Jack Keith, wid his own lips, tell me ye was Christie Maclaire?"

"But I'm not! I'm not, Mrs. Murphy. I don't even know the woman. It is such a strange thing; I cannot account for it—both those men mistook me for her, and—and I let them. I didn't care who the man Hawley supposed me to be, but I intended to have told Mr. Keith he was mistaken. I don't know why I didn't, only I supposed he finally understood. But I want you to believe, Mrs. Murphy—I am Hope Waite, and not Christie Maclaire."

"It's little the loss to ye not ter be her, an' Ol'm thinkin' loikely Jack Keith will be moighty well plazed ter know the truth. What's 'Black Bart' so ayger ter git hold av this Maclaire gyurl fer?"

"I do not in the least know. He must have induced me to go to that place in the desert believing me to be the other woman. Yet he said nothing of any purpose; indeed, he found no opportunity."

Mrs. Murphy shook her head disparagingly.

"It was shure some divilment," she asserted, stoutly. "He'll be up to some trick wid the poor gyurl; Ol know the loikes av him. Shure, the twe av yes must look as much alloike as two payes in a pod. Loikely now, it's a twin sister ye've got?"

Hope smiled, although her eyes were misty.

"Oh, no; Fred and I were the only children; but what shall I do? What ought I to do?"

The Irish mouth of Kate Murphy set firmly, her blue eyes burning.

"It's not sthrong Ol am on advisin'," she said, shortly, "but if it was me Ol'd be fer foindin' out what all this mix-up was about. There's somethin' moighty quare in it. It's my notion that Hawley's got hold av thim papers av yer father's. The owld gint thinks so, too, an' that's why he's so het afther catchin' him. May the divil admoire me av Ol know where this Maclaire gyurl comes in, but Ol'll bet the black divil has get her marked fer some part in the play. What would Ol do? Be goory, Ol'd go to Sheridan, an' foind the Gineral, an' till him all I knew. Maybe he could piece it together, and' guess what Hawley was up ter."

Hope was already upon her feet, her puzzled face brightening.

"Oh, that is what I wanted to do, but I was not sure it would be best. How can I get there from here?"

"Ye'd have ter take the stage back to Topeky; loikely they'd be runnin' thrains out from there on the new road. It'll be aisy fer me ter foind out from some av the lads down below."

The only equipment operating into Sheridan was a construction train, with an old battered passenger coach coupled to the rear. A squad of heavily armed infantry rode along, as protection against possible Indian raiders, but there was no crowd aboard on this special trip, as all construction work had been suspended on the line indefinitely, and most of the travel, therefore, had changed to the eastward. The coach used had a partition run through it, and, as soon as the busy trainmen discovered ladies on board, they unceremoniously drove the more bibulous passengers, protesting, into the forward compartment. This left Hope in comparative peace, her remaining neighbors quiet, taciturn men, whom she looked at through the folds of her veil during the long, slow, exasperating journey, mentally guessing at their various occupations. It was an exceedingly tedious, monotonous trip, the train slackening up, and jerking forward, apparently without slightest reason; then occasionally achieving a full stop, while men, always under guard, went ahead to fix up some bit of damaged track, across which the engineer dared not advance. At each bridge spanning the numerous small streams, trainmen examined the structure before venturing forward, and at each stop the wearied passengers grew more impatient and sarcastic, a perfect stream of fluent profanity being wafted back whenever the door between the two sections chanced to be left ajar.

Hope was not the only woman on board, yet a glance at the others was sufficient to decide their status, even had their freedom of manner and loud talking not made it equally obvious. Fearful lest she might be mistaken for one of the same class, she remained in silence, her veil merely lifted enough to enable her to peer out through the grimy window at the barren view slipping slowly past. This consisted of the bare prairie, brown and desolate, occasionally intersected by some small watercourse, the low hills rising and falling like waves to the far horizon. Few incidents broke the dead monotony; occasionally a herd of antelope appeared in the distance, silhouetted against the skyline, and once they fairly crept for an hour through a mass of buffalo, grazing so close that a fusillade of guns sounded from the front end of the train. A little farther along she caught a glimpse of a troop of wild horses dashing recklessly down into a sheltering ravine. Yet principally all that met her straining eyes was sterile desolation. Here and there a great ugly water tank reared its hideous shape beside the track, the engine always pausing for a fresh supply. Beside it was invariably a pile of coal, a few construction cars, a hut half buried under earth, loop-holed and barricaded, with several rough men loafing about, heavily armed and inquisitive. A few of these points had once been terminal, the surrounding scenery evidencing past glories by piles of tin cans, and all manner of debris, with occasionally a vacant shack, left deserted and forlorn.

Electric Power Saves Money

Last week we published a letter from the firm of Jacob Ringger & Co., sash, blinds, doors and moulding manufacturers, of West Hoboken.

It told how the firm was perfectly satisfied with a Central Station Power installation which had superseded its own steam plant.

It set forth that the service was reliable, the charges reasonable and that the change had resulted in a saving of at least 30 per cent. in power costs compared with the expense of the steam plant.

Jacob Ringger & Co. are ready to substantiate the foregoing statements, and so pleased is the firm with the service it is receiving, that in referring to its letter to Public Service, it wrote:

"You have our permission to publish the letter and you may refer prospective customers to us."

What better evidence of the efficiency and reliability of Central Station Electric Power is desired? Those who use it say it pays, because it saves money.

It would save money for you. Let our engineer show you why and how. A card or 'Phone message will bring him.

POLITICS.

I have never been troubled to be bothered about politics, especially the tics! But there is one matter that tics me and that I am like some of you. I do not know what I am talking about, for I have been too busy to follow up the papers. And that is the water question. If that is settled, it should not be, for that is a very very serious concoction. For our water may some day get low and there is not a river near enough to us to drink swill from. We should spend a million or two and hire a phrenologist to see if the company's heads are swelled or otherwise. In case the wells begin to go dry if their heads are wrong they will cut the water off from towns at the other end rather than this end, but if they are right they will cut it off at this end on the whole business. That will give you what you want (water in the wells) and provide them with paper to kindle their fires with, you chump you, You will never be able to get nervous prostration because your brains are in your feet. Wish our Banquet Board of Trade would go with me to Easton, and let the Board of Trade there, show you as they did me, their $601,000 guaranty fund to help chumps like me, and the only thing between us is their Delaware River water. If you have any Real Estate of any description come and see me. No charge for listing. Will make you an offer the first day you call.

NEED OF PRAYER

English Minister Admonishes Local Baptists to Commune With God.

DELIVERS FORCEFUL SERMONS.

Rev. E. H. Ellis's Discourses Heard by Two Large Congregations—He Resorts to No Sensationalism or 'Catch' Methods.

Rev. E. H. Ellis pastor of the Finchley Baptist church, London, England, and one of the best known ministers in that city, occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church yesterday preaching to large congregations both morning and evening. He is an imposing figure and he has a great command of the English language, which, together with his intense earnestness in preaching the gospel, combines to hold the close attention of his hearers.

At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Ellis emphasized the importance of all believers being in constant communion with God from whom all power is obtained, and he urged the necessity of continued earnest prayer, especially in the secret of one's own closet, where all thoughts of business, pleasure, etc., can be shut out and only the thought of God is possible. The preacher frequently mentioned the importance of Christians helping the unsaved and leading them to Christ.

The theme for the evening discourse was "David's Ideal Broken," in which he told the story of how David had planned to build a temple for God, but was not permitted to do so. Notwithstanding this fact, Mr. Ellis said that David got together all the materials for the house of worship that it might be easier for those who were to do that which he could not do. Mr. Ellis said that often in life one's ideals were shattered and miscarried, but one could help others to fulfill life's plans. Illustrating this thought he told of a man who was twenty-eight years of age, who applied for admission to a college in England, his purpose being to prepare for work in the mission field. He was refused because of his age, being told that he would be too old upon completion of his studies to enter the field. It was a great disappointment to him, but he had saved two hundred pounds to get an education, and this he sent to the college that some younger man might be educated and be sent to the mission field to do something he himself could not accomplish.

The simplicity of the preacher's style of address and his forceful way of presenting the gospel truth profoundly impressed his congregations. Rev. Mr. Ellis recently attended the World's Baptist Alliance in Philadelphia, and arrangements were made to have him preach here yesterday. He was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph.

More Crap Shooters.

Eugene Britton, colored, was the only one of a quartette of crap shooters caught in a raid yesterday afternoon by the city police. The men were shooting the bones in a vacant lot on Sycamore avenue near the brook. Owing to the absence from the city of Judge DeMeza and also Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Britton was remanded for trial until tomorrow morning. He is also wanted for assault on Lottie Jones last Wednesday and she will appear against him tomorrow morning.

Y. M. C. A. Open Air Meeting.

A large crowd attended the open air meeting under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. at the corner of West Front street and Madison avenue Saturday night. Rev. Edwin Shaw, of this city, and Rev. George McNeely, of Newark, gave ten minute talks. Next Saturday night the association will conduct another service at the same place, Rev. E. C. Conover, of this city, and Rev. George McNeely, of Newark, being the speakers.

Miss Harris Going South.

Miss Ruth Harris, soprano, soloist at the First Baptist church, will leave this week for her home in the south, where she will remain until September. Mrs. Robert Giddis, soprano, will do the solo work during her absence. At the morning service yesterday, Miss Harris sang, by request, as offertory, soprano solo, from the "Creation," "With Verdue Clad," Haydn, in a pleasing manner.

Best Man at Colleague's Wedding.

C. W. Bingaman, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., will act as best man at the wedding of his colleague, L. H. Stillman, which takes place at Stroudsburg, Pa., tonight. Mr. Stillman was a graduate of the Springfield Training School in Mr. Bingaman's class and is now in charge of the boys' work in the Passaic association. Mr. Bingaman will return to this city tomorrow.

COUNCIL TO TAKE UP WATER QUESTION

Albert C. Wall, a well known attorney of Jersey City, has been engaged by the special water commission, to handle the condemnation proceedings for the city in the matter of obtaining a municipal water supply. Mr. Wall, it is said, has had extensive experience in condemnation proceedings of this character. Mr. Wall will make a thorough investigation of local conditions and report to the commission.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Council tonight, when it is expected that steps will be taken to go ahead with the condemnation proceedings. The water commission is anxious to undertake the work as quickly as possible.

Among the other matters to be taken up tonight will be that of receiving bids for macadamizing streets about the city. The street department is behind in its work this year and if all the repairs that are necessary are attended to they will have to be taken up at once.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL OF HOPE CHAPEL PEOPLE.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel held a strawberry and ice cream festival Saturday afternoon and evening at the home of Rev. Frederic L. Greene, the pastor, at Fourth street and Lee place. There were about two hundred people in attendance afternoon and evening, and liberal patronage was accorded. The committees in charge of the various booths and tables follow:

Ice cream—Mrs. Donald MacInnes, chairman; Mrs. Charles Graves, Mrs. W. S. Terry, Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. A. A. Snyder, Mrs. Charles Leighs, Mrs George Wallace. Lemonade—Mrs. Thomas Hendry, chairman; Mrs. Samuel Cratsley, Mrs. N. A. Jones, Mrs. Mowinkle. Fruit—Mrs. Chas. Hughes, chairman; Mrs. David Gordon, Mrs. Robert Soden. Candy—Mrs. W. H. Cook, chairman; Mrs. James Heron, Mrs. Ora S. Eckert, Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mrs. Margaret Sweeny. Cake—Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, Mrs. Charles Vincent, Mrs. Harry Keen, Mrs. George Leighs. The decorations were in charge of the ways and means committee.

Italians in a Row.

For threatening three companions with a revolver at the Netherwood station yesterday afternoon, Frank Marrone, of New York, was locked up. The others also being arrested as material witnesses. The towerman on the Central Railroad noticed the commotion and telephoned police headquarters. All of the men had been drinking. When the police arrived Marrone threw his revolver in some nearby bushes, where it was found. The men gave the names of Peter Pasqueralla, Tony Wherry and Frank Alfonso. They will be given a hearing tomorrow morning.

Trolley and Auto Collide.

An auto, owned by William Debele, of Somerset street, collided with an Arlington-Somerset trolley car at Greenbrook road and Somerset street Saturday night. Mr. Debele, who was driving the machine, backed his car into Greenbrook road in order to turn around and started ahead as the trolley approached. The front wheel of the automobile was caught in the running board of the trolley car, which was immediately brought to a stop. None of the occupants of the machine was injured and about $50 damage was done to the automobile.

James E. Church Resigns.

The resignation of James E. Church, as superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, was received and accepted by the officers and teachers yesterday, following the session of the school. Mr. Church will be out of town for an indefinite time. Frank W. Jones, first assistant, will take his place, until fall when a permanent selection will be made.

Miss Ashwell Wins Women's Singles.

The final round in the women's championship singles was played at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday afternoon, Miss Madeline Ashwell winning the cup in a contest with Mrs. Francis Foster. The score of the final match was 6-3, 6-4, and it was finished in short order, few of the games going to deuce.

Miss Mosher at Y.W.C.A. This Week.

Miss Margaret Mosher, of Oberlin, Ohio, who was formerly in charge of the physical training work at the local Y. W. C. A., is acting as physical director at the Plainfield association for this week. The Tuesday evening gymnasium class will meet tomorrow night under her leadership.

Rode Bicycle on Sidewalk.

Clarence Snell, of Duer street, was arrested yesterday for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk near his home. He will be given a hearing before Recorder Dolliver tomorrow morning.

WALLER IN FORM

Plainfield Defeats Westfield Saturday by the Work of "The Red Twirler."

BOUND BROOK LOSES AGAIN.

Somerville in Second Place—High Bridge Defeats Scotch Plains—Plainfield in Frst. Place.

Plainfield's Pets took a firm grip on the top notch in the Central League race Saturday by winning their third straight game and thus maintaining an average of 1,000. Somerville moved up into second place by defeating Bound Brook on the latter's grounds, while High Bridge tied Westfield at .500.

The Somerville game was a one-sided shut out but the other two contests were close and exciting. High Bridge just managed to nose out Scotch Plains and creep into fourth place. All of the league teams had radical changes in their lineups, speedier players being employed.

The crowds at all the games were the largest of the season, the one at Westfield breaking all records.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

Saturday's Results.

Plainfield, 4; Westfield, 1.
Somerville, 7; Bound Brook, 0.
High Bridge, 6; Scotch Plains, 5.

Before the largest crowd that has attended a league game this season "Red" Waller, the veteran slab artist, again proved that he is pitcher par excellence at Westfield Saturday afternoon and as a result Doerflinger's and Driscoll's Darlings captured their third straight game in the Central League race. Plainfield fans were there in large numbers and altogether the multitude numbered eighteen hundreds souls, inspirted with plenty of baseball spirit. Waller was the whole noise and the rest of the players came in for simply little side shows for the sunburned haired twirler had everything including speed and marvelous control. He caused ten of Westfield's finest to groan as they vainly wafted the cool breezes and he never gave even the hope of a base on balls to a single batsman.

Skillman, who served time on the Princeton nine this season, started the box work for the Mt. Ararat bunch and held to it for seven innings, when the Plainfield sluggers banged his delivery for two runs. Steve White, a college team mate of Skillman, was then substituted on the slab. Amid a contortion of angular gestures, which would have well fitted Ruth St. Denis or Gertrude Hoffman, White attempted to stem the tide of victory for the local team. His attempts were futile, however, and one more run was added to the Plainfield score.

The Queen City aggregation started things rolling in the second round when, with one down, Eddie Stallings drew a free trip to the initial sack. While his brother Bill was striking out, Eddie had stolen second and third, coming home on a wild pitch by Skillman.

Westfield tied the score in the sixth when Harter made a bungle of Skillman's grounder. The Princeton twirler was enabled to reach second on Craig's neat sacrifice and crossed the pan on O'Rourke's single to center field. This made "Red" a little angry and the opposing batsmen were quickly disposed of after that.

The locals came back with the hard wallop in the seventh and clinched the game. Harter was given a gift to first and went to second on Eddie Stallings well placed sacrifice along the third base line. Billy Stallings was hit by the twirling horsehide and thus got a berth on first. The next thing in order was a most beautiful double steal by the two Plainfield players, which enabled Harter to score on Nelson's sacrifice fly to deep center. This clout looked good for a two sacker, but the gardener in that vicinity was expecting the swat and placed himself accordingly. Dillon brought Stallings home on a clean single to left, moving to second when Waller was presented with a base on balls. Cosgrove then sent a sizzler to right but Dillon was caught at the plate on a speedy return throw by Knego.

Westfield looked dangerous when they started off their eighth time at bat, for White reached first on Cosgrove's muff of his fly. Craig sent a Texas leaguer into short center and the Plainfield fans became excited. But Harter was the Desperate Desmond of the occasion and nabbed the fly with his bare lunchhook after a

LIGHTNING HITS HOUSE AGED WOMEN KILLED

Mrs. John Lynch, of Stirling, well known to many local people, met a tragic death last night when her home was struck by lightning and her body was completely incinerated. Only the bones of the corpse were found in the ruins of the house this morning.

The dead woman, who was nearly seventy years of age, lived alone in her house, and nobody else was near the place when the lightning struck. It is not known whether the woman was killed by the lightning or whether she was burned to death when the house caught fire. The supposition, however, is that she was severely injured if not killed by the bolt, for the house was not completely consumed for some time.

HIGH HONOR COMES TO E. R. ACKERMAN

Holding a warrant for such a purpose conferred in its charter granted by George the Third in 1768, the New York Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee to be known as the Official Arbitrators of the Chamber of Commerce. The powers of this committee, as delegated by the charter, comprises the adjustment and settlement of commercial disapreements. Among the membership in this coveted position is State Senator E. R. Ackerman, of this city, who received notice on Saturday of his appointment. The statutes of New York State make provision for the settlement of commercial disputes by arbitration and the chamber recently decided that such would be the most effective and simple plan without recourse to the courts and by by-law took advantage of the charter privilege.

MISS MABEL D. NEW MR. MARSTON'S BRIDE.

Miss Mabel D. New, daughter of Mrs. John Crawford Thom, formerly of North Plainfield, but more recently of East Seventh street, this city, and Wurtele Marston, of Delaware Water Gap, Pa., were quietly married at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the Holy Cross church. Rev. E. Vicars Etevenson, rector of Grace church, officiated.

The couple was accompanied by the bride's mother and the mother of the groom. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Marston left on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at Delaware Water Gap, where the groom is in business.

Suffering from Blood Poisoning.

Mrs. Mendil, mother of Milton Mendil, of "Holly Park," is under treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital for blood poisoning. While putting a skewer in a piece of meat a few days ago, the sharp point penetrated her thumb. Mrs. Mendil paid little attention to the injury at first, but later the thumb began to swell and blood poisoning developed. No serious consequences are anticipated by the physician in charge.

Will Hold a Birthday Social.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Temple Baptist church a birthday social will be held at the church, tomorrow night. Each person attending is expected to contribute a penny for each year of their age and a penny for each month since their last birthday. Those not wishing to disclose their age can overcome this by giving a dollar. There will be a special musical program.

Fishermans Luck.

A number of local fishermen went to Lake Hopatcong yesterday on the fisherman's special, which left here at 3 o'clock, but they came home without the anticipated mess of fish. The train was composed of three cars, all well filled, and the "luck" that favored the Plainfield contingent, also favored the others.

For Non-Support.

On a complaint charging desertion and non-support, made by his wife, Andrew Alonzo, of Arlington avenue, was arrested Saturday afternoin and held under $500 bonds by Judge W. G. DeMeza for trial in the Criminal Court of Newark, where the complaint was preferred. T. B. Kolb, of Arlington avenue, became bondsman.

Watchung Gun Club Shoot.

The Watchung Gun Club shoot Saturday afternoon was won by Messrs. Terry, Gunn and Lohf in the order named. Mr. Terry broke 21 clay birds out of a possible 25 while the other two men made 17 and 15 respectively.

NEW PLAYGROUND

C. B. Bostwick Announces That Parker Field Will be Ready July 10.

TRACK MEET ON OPENING DAY.

Baseball Diamond Will Be Completed Soon—Running Track Now Ready—Steel Apparatus to Be Erected.

Work on the new municipal playground at the Parker field is progressing rapidly and Charles R. Bostwick, the director of the playground, said, this afternoon, that he expects the field to be ready for use about July 10. The baseball diamond is now receiving its finishing touches, after which it will be the scene of many juvenile contests during the summer. Apparatus for the playground has arrived in the city and is ready to set up. This apparatus includes steel standards for swings, horizontal bars, parallel bars, side horses, and jumping standards.

Perhaps the feature of the new field will be the running track which is now completed. All that is needed to put the cinder path in condition is several applications of a heavy roller and a hard, beating rain. The track is a circular one, being one-fifth of a mile in length with a two hundred and twenty-yard straight-away. A complete set of hurdles will be purchased so that the development of every branch of running can be obtained.

The field events will be cared for with accommodations for the running broad jump, high jump, pole vault, hammer throw and shot put. Tennis courts are being built outside of the baseball field, which is within the running track.

Charles R. Bostwick, who has done efficient work as manual training instructor in the local public schools for several years, will have entire charge of the athletics at the grounds. Mr. Bostwick is a Yale graduate and while he was in college he had a mark of 10 2-5 seconds for the "100." He is also well up on the training for all the other athletic track events having been trained by the famous R. G. Clapp, one of Yale's greatest track athletes. Mr. Bostwick will be assisted by a corp of older boys from the city high school, which has volunteered its services during the summer.

It is the intention of the directors of the field to form a league of baseball teams made up of the younger generation of the city. This together with the proposed Sunday-school league will keep the Parker diamond busy for the summer months Mr. Bostwick has announced his intention of having a formal opening of the field on either Labor Day or some Saturday afternoon this summer. The feature of this opening will be a free-for-all open track meet, possibly a handicap event, with three classes so that every athlete in the community may have a chance for the bacon.

A shelter house is to be built at the field, the plans having been drawn for it and the contract for its construction having been awarded. This house will provide ample accommodations for all participating athletes, being equipped with shower baths and lockers. It is the intention of the playground commission to have the younger boys at the field in the mornings and the older ones in the afternoons.

Organ Recital at Trinity.

Under the auspices of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist, an organ recital will be given at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow night. William Edwin Ashmall, of Newark, the celebrated concert organist and composer will preside at the organ rendering several selections. He will be assisted by the quartet choir of the church in a fine program. There will be no charge of admission and the public is invited to enjoy the program.

Mrs. Margaret Blank.

Mrs. Margaret Blank, aged seventy-eight years, died yesterday at her home in Dunellen. The funeral will be held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Kirchner, Wednesday afternoon at half past two o'clock.

ANTICS OF LIVE WIRE HOLD UP THE TRAINS

The loose end of a broken trolley wire of the P. S. C. under the Watchung avenue bridge, gave two linemen a close call and put the block signal system of the Central Railroad out of commission a short time this morning. The men were repairing the break when one end of the live wire sprung out of their reach and grounded on the iron work of the bridge. Immediately the structure was lighted up with greenish blue flames and startled the neighborhood by the musketry-like noise accompanying the pyrotechnic display.

The men were on the repair wagon and the horses taking fright and running from under the bridge, probably saved the men from injury. The force of the current burst the compressed air pipe supplying the signal system and all trains were held up until it was shut off. A repair gang from Elizabeth was rushed to the scene and put in a new length of pipe.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The quartet choir of the First M. E. church at the evening service, yesterday, rendered a special program which edified a large congregation. One of the anthems "Lead Kindly Light,' the author of which was Cardinal John Henry Newman, furnished the text for a short address by the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, who gave a brief sketch of the author, telling of the conditions under which the words were written. The evening program follows:

Organ selection, anthem, "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace;" prayer; duet, "Crucifix," Faure, Aleck MacGowan and Raymond McGee; offertory, "Fear Not, O Israel," Spicker; sermon, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson; anthem, "Lead Kindly Light," Van-Lear. The music was in charge of Clifford A. Braider, organist, and the quartet is composed of Mrs. June Bilby, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Aleck MacGowan, tenor; Raymond McGee, bass.

Baby Parade Marshal's Power.

Asbury Park, June 26.—Captain Walter L. Auten, who has just been appointed grand marshal of the baby parade in August succeeding the late Walter H. Hubbard, has been empowered to select his aids. These, it is believed, will be taken from the membrs of Company H, of which he is commander. Captain Auten has been instructed to see that none but these wearing badges are admitted into the inner circle where the prize babies will be on exhibition.

Delegates to Meet.

The delegates from Union county to the Christian Endeavor Convention, at Atlantic City, July 6-12, will meet in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church, Westfield, tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock, when final arrangements will be made for the trip to Atlantic City. The singing at the session of the convention will be led by a chorus choir from Union, Essex and Hudson counties, and arrangements for that part of the program will be completed tomorrow night.

Thrown from Auto.

While being turned from South avenue into Berkeley avenue, yesterday afternoon, the automobile driven by Dr. R. J. M. Lewis, of Berkeley avenue, skidded and struck a telephone pole, swerved off and collided with a tree. Mr. Lewis' sister was riding with him and was thrown out, but as the automobile was going slowly at the time, she was not injured. The car was damaged.

Autoist Lost Watch.

A 'phone message from New Brunswick police headquarters yesterday to the local police stated that J. H. Logan, of Plainfield, had reported the loss of his gold watch in that city while automobling. Chief Kiely was asked to have Mr. Logan communicate with the New Brunswick police and he would be told where his watch is and how he can get it back.

Win Spring Championship.

In the final, mixed doubles, tennis tournament for the spring championship, at the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Nash and H. S. Eddy defeated Miss Helen C. Moodey and Charles B. Morse, 6-2,6-2. The match was a comparatively easy one for the winning pair, taking both sets by a good margin.

Held Successful Festival.

The Happy Workers' Club of the West End Tabernacle held a successful festival on the lawn at West Front street and Everett place, Saturday afternoon and evening. There are nine boys in the club, comprising one of the Sunday-school classes. The supply of good things was disposed of and a goodly sum realized.

WARNS GRADUATES

Father Livingston Tells St. Mary's Seniors They Must Live up to Christ's Teaching.

PRESENTED WITH DIPLOMAS.

Prizes Also Awarded by Father Bogan—Parochial School Graduates at St. Mary's Church Last Night.

The simplicity and lucidness characterizing the address to the graduates of the Commercial and Grammar grades of St. Mary's School by Rev. Father William Livingston, rector of St. Gabriel's church, New York, in St. Mary's church last night, was particularly suited to the age of his hearers and made a deep impression on them. The church was thronged with St. Mary's School alumni, relatives and friends of the graduates and members of the congregation. The closing exercises of the school were held Thursday afternoon, so that all that was done last night aside from the address was the awarding of the diplomas and prizes.

Seated around the sanctuary, which was almost hidden embanked with flowers and waving palms, the young women and young men took their appointed places. Preceeded by the cross-bearer and forty altar boys, who composed the chancel choir, came the celebrant of the solemn vesper service, the Rev. J. J. Smith, of Holy Rosary parish, Elizabeth, who was assisted by Rev. Daniel F. Hogan and Rev. Vincent Sciolo, as deason and sub-deacon, respectively. The congregation stood during the rendition of the hymn of exultation, "Jubliate dei," arranged for the quartette and chorus by Versalli.

In presenting the certificates and honors, Rev. Father B. M. Bogan spoke briefly regarding the distinction attained by the school this year, saying that it was preeminent among the schools of the diocese and that the pupils graduating were qualified to take the examination for the $3,000 prize scholarship offered by the diocesan schools.

Those winning prizes were Miss Catherine Newell, for general excellence; Miss Josephine Quinn, for stenography; Miss Mary Carty, for writing; Richard Lawton, for arithmetic; Miss Teresa Mahoney, for the best essay, and Miss Marion Greene, for the second best essay.

The Comercial graduates were Joseph Charles Diver, James Joseph Kyle, John Joseph McCarthy, Joseph John Greene, Josephine Rose Quinn, Margaret Mary McCarthy, Catherine Wilhelmina Nolan, Agnes Cecilia Heffren, Alicia Veronica O'Loughlin, Mary Anges Frawley, Mary Veronica Jaeger, Julia Agnes Welsh, Margaret Elizabeth Ryan, Catherine Agnes Newell.

The eighth grade graduates were Richard Patrick Lawton, James Joseph Traynor, Joseph James Smith, William Joseph Sutton, John Aloysius Kane, Mary Frances Wilson, Sarah Veronica Traynor, Elizabeth Mary Esther Schuck, Agnes Teresa Phillips, Margaret Loretta Keating, Julia Marie Regan, Elizabeth Agnes MacAlvanah, Ellen Elizabeth Regan, Mary Catherine Connolly, Margaret Jane Powers, Helen Agatha Mattox, Mary Virginia Sullivan, Marion Loretta Greene, Teresa Florence Mahoney.

Father Livingston's thought throughout his address was the necessity of conforming with Christ's teachings in order that the desired end in life be accomplished. If this compliance is not exercised, and if the teachings of Christ be ignored, he said, all work would be in vain. Drawing upon the lessons of Noah taught in the building of the Ark, and the indifference to this instruction in the erection of the tower of Babel, he said that when the graduates went out into the world they would find that everywhere are Babel towers being put up today because men become so absorbed in what they wish to accomplish that they ignore the great fundamental principle upon which all work must be done in order not to be in vain.

In closing the priest urged his hearers to remain as they are at present; the love of truth, honesty and purity dominating them and all of their work being done in the spirit of God.

Will Observe Anniversary.

Preparatory services will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church Friday evening, June 20, and the regular communion service will be held Sunday morning, July 2. In the evening of that day the second anniversary of the church will be observed in an appropriate manner.

Engagement Announced.

TITLES ARE WRONG

Court Says the Legislature Has Done Some Bad Work in One Respect.

That the New Jersey legislature may come back in special session to correct mistakes in statutes fifty years old and running up to this date was the opinion of lawyers at Trenton yesterday, when it was anounced that Justice Garrison, of the supreme court, had criticised in an opinion the method pursued by the legislature in amending and changing titles to acts. This he did in invalidating a decision in the case of Harry L. Sawter, administrator of the estate of Cyrus Scofield, of New York, against Surrogate Issac Schoenthal, of Essex county.

The importance of this little decision, innocent in itself, is gotten when it is known that errors of this character have crept into legislation for many years past and it may take a special session of the legislure to save some of the acts of the last session, as well as to validate other acts going back half a century.

The executors attacked a collateral inheritance tax levied against the estate under an act of April 20, 1909, amending the title of the inheritance law of 1894. The supreme court holds that the object of the amendatory act was not expressed in its title and the effect of the decision is to set aside as unconstitutional the act of 1909, avoiding of course, the levy of the transfer tax amounting to about $4,000.

The substance of the decision is that the legislative method of changing and amending titles to acts expresses only the result and not the object of the amendatory acts, and because the legislature for half a century or more has failed to observe the requirements of the constitution in amending titles to existing laws serious complications may arise that may have a sweeping effect. The State lawyers are at work now looking over such laws and the result may be a special session of the legislature.

Among the newly created acts falling under this decision is the newly created state board of health; the acts under which all of the armories of the state have been built, and the laws regulating embalmers and undertakers. These are only a few laws which come readily to mind. The lawyers will find more.

Justice Garrison reasons that if the legislative method pursued for the past fifty years in amending titles were longer pursued it would lead to an absurdity. He illustrates this point as follows:

"Laws by the score or the hundred might be enacted, marriage or divorce, estate or descent, crimes, the practice of law or what not, each under the title, 'an act concerning clams and oysters,' and afterwards an appropriate title be given to each under a title that read, 'an act to change and amend the title of an act entitled, "an act concerning clams and oysters."' So that the whole body of our statute law might be changed without a sylable of constitutional notice having been given to any one by the title of any of the acts by which such title was effacted."

The opinion will set everybody pouring over the statute books and such important things may be found as to necessitate a special session of the legislature at once.

HOMEOPATHS ELECT OFFICERS AT CONVENTION.

Asbury Park, June 26.—Just before adjournment Friday afternoon the International Hahnemannian Association, which has been in session at the Hotel Brunswick, elected the following officers: President, Dr. John Hutchinson, of New York; vice-president, Dr. Carolyn E. Putnam, of Kansas City; treasurer, Dr. William R. Powell, of Philadelphia, succeeding Dr. Philip E. Krichbaum, of Montclair; secretary, Dr. J. B. S. King, of Chicago; corresponding secretary, Dr. E. E. Case, of Hartford; board of censors, Dr. C. M. Boger, of Parkersburg, W. V.; Dr. R. F. Rabe of New York; Dr. Lee Norman, of Louisville; Dr. W. H. Freeman, of Brooklyn, and Dr. Maurice W. Turner, of Brookline, Mass.

The association went on record as indorsing the plan of the League of American Medical Freedom, which is opposed to the plan to create a national department of health.

The association also put its disapproval on the practice of the large life insurance companies which, in examining applicants for insurance, ask them to disclose too much of their personal affairs. The next meeting will be held in the vicinity of Boston.

SPECIAL ELECTION IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE

Attorney-General Edmund Wilson, in response to a request from former Judge J. Kearny Rice, of New Brunswick, has submitted an opinion as to whether the enactment of the Geran election law did not make it impossible to hold a special election at this time for the purpose of submitting to the people the provision of the Walsh commission government bill.

Judge Rice, a few days ago, held that the old election officers had been legislated out of office and, therefore, were without power to conduct an election. Attorney-General Wilson, however, takes a different view from that of Judge Rice. In holding that the old election officers had power to conduct a special election, and differing from Judge Rice, the attorney-general, in his opinion, says in part:

"Section 18 of the commission act declares 'that this act shall take effect immediately, but its provisions shall remain inoperative in any city of this State until assented to by a majority of the legal voters thereof, etc.' The commission act, by its terms, provides that its adoption may be immediately submitted to the legal voters of 'any city in this State.' There is nothing in the act which requires, either by terms or by inference, that this submission to the legal voters must of necessity be under the provisions of the Geran act, so-called.

Lydia Chapter, Ored Eastern Star Lodge, has celled off its meetings until fall.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will elect officers Friday night. Initiatory work has been given up until September.

EIGHT HOURS' SCALE BECOMES LAW JULY 4

The enforcement of the eight-hour day law, beginning on July 4, will cause several contractors who have contracted for municipal work, to lose about ten per cent. of their contract price, it is declared by city officials.

On and after July 4 all people employed by or for the city work but eight hours. This applies to the street department and all other departments and also to contractors doing work for the city. City employes who do manual labor now work ten hours.

This eight-hour act, one of the pet measures of Governor Wilson, seems to have crept through the legislative process very quietly. Many contractors, it is claimed, believing that Governor Wilson would not sign the bill, submitted estimates for work based on an estimate of ten hours' work for each man.

A GAS RANGE MEANS A COOL KITCHEN

Install a gas range in your home and do away with hot coal fires. You will be more than repaid in comfort alone.

Coal ranges mean building fires, waiting for them to get to the proper degree of heat, and after the meal is cooked, letting the fires die out.

Think what it means in wasted heat—which is worse than useless in summer—and wasted fuel besides.

There is no waste of heat or fuel with a gas range. And ranges can be bought at prices to suit any purse and on easy terms.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Mr. Scarr, the weather man, predicted a large rainfall for July and August.

Princess Clotilde, mother of Prince Victor Napoleon, died at her chateau near Turin.

It was said that Park Commissioner Stover, of New York, planned to rush the playground work.

T. A. Wise spoke at a complimentary dinner given for him by the Actors' Society, of New York.

Indications in Paris were that Joseph Caillaux, retiring Minister of Finance, would be asked to form a Cabinet.

The number of deaths resulting from the explosion on a river packet at Memphis, on Saturday, was swelled to seventeen.

It is said that the pawnbrokers welcomed the revival of the custom where the police furnish them a list of stolen articles.

A dispatch from Ithaca, N. Y., stated that Hiram Corson had bequeathed over a thousand volumes to the Cornell Library.

The bodies of a young club member and athlete and a vaudeville actress who disappeared several days ago, were found in the Ohio River, near Cincinnati.

The Hamburg, in from Naples, was held at Quarantine because a boy died at sea, perhaps from cholera; La Provence and Duca degil Abruzzi were released.

Three women fainted in the rush to the street from a Van Nest dance hall, in New York, which was burned, the fire starting while 150 couples were on the boor.

It was stated at Saco, Me., that the efforts to find the body of Charles I. Weymouth, supposed to have been killed and buried three years ago, have been in vain.

The New York Fire Department has started a crusade against garages that violate the fire laws, and a public hearing on new regulations will be held on July 17.

The Grand Prix de Paris was won by Marquis de Ganay's As d'Atout, Frank J. Gould's Combourg being second; the latter's jockey made an unavailing protest at being crowded.

It was learned at Frankfort, Ky., that United States Senator Thomas H. Paynter had withdrawn from the Senatorship race in that State, leaving the field open to Congressman Ollie M. James.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company would send its answer to the city's subway proposals on Tuesday or Wednesday, it is said, accepting them, but the Interborough's course remained in doubt.

The special envoys to King George's coronation were entered severally by the resident diplomatic representatives of their countries; John Hays Hammond, American envoy dining at Dorchester House.

Mrs. Singleton, it was said, escaped detectives who meant to search for letters or papers which might aid W. E. D. Stokes in the prosecution of her sister, Lillian Graham, by racing from the pier at which she landed, aided by a lawyer.

PROPOSALS FOR ADDITION TO THE HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting held Monday evening, June 19, 1911, the Board will meet on Thursday evening, July 6, 1911, at eight o'clock at the board room in the High School building, corner West Ninth street and Arlington avenue, to receive sealed proposals for the proposed addition to the High School. Plans and specifications which are now on file in the office of the architect, James Gamble Rogers, 11 East Twenty-fourth street, New York, and also on file in the Board of Education room, West Ninth street and Arlington avenue, in the City of Plainfield.

All proposals to be endorsed, "Proposals for the addition to the High School Building," and adressed to the secretary of the Board.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Secretary will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding, or their agents, provided such parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also to make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Board. No bids will be received previous to the hour designated, and none will be received thereafter. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Stuart Freeman, of South avenue, the former pitcher on the Plainfield High School nine in the days of '06, received his bumps from the Harvard batsmen yesterday in Cambridge and Yale lost the second game of the series, 4-1. The local box artist was touched for four safeties in the six innings he was in the box and struck out five men. He also clouted out a single.

Robert Potter, of Philadelphia, was elected captain of the Harvard team for next year after the game yesterday while Richard Merritt, of Nyack, N. Y., was chosen to lead the Yale nine for 1912.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will elect officers Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Farland, of East Second street, are entertaining Mrs. Farland's mother, from Pittsburg.

Mrs. Tennant and her daughter, the Misses Tennant, of Kensington avenue, left town yesterday for Lake Bomoseem, Vermont, where they have a summer home. After a short stay at the lake, they will join friends in an art colony in Massachusetts, where they are planning to spend most of the summer.

NEW BRUNSWICK MASS MEETING FOR COMMISSION.

New Brunswick, June 26.—"If the machines get all the votes they control and commission government gets al the votes the machines do not control, the machines will be beaten here next Tuesday four to one," declared Rabbi Michelson, of Trenton, Friday night, at the opera house at an enthusiastic rally of 700 citizens for commission government.

"Of course, the people will make mistakes when thep first attempt to govern themselvec, instead of letting the bosses govern them," said Martin Devlin, the Trenton labor man. "But the people always have to pay for the mistakes, no matter who makes them and they might just as well have the privilege of making them themselves."

"After twenty-two years as Mayor of Passaic," asserted Bird W. Spencer, "I am convinced that the presnt form of government is not adapted to our cities, and the commission form of government is the best thing that has yet been offered, and I am in favor of it."

These were the three speakers at the massmeeting. Others had been announced, but there was not time to hear them. Mayor John J. Morrison presided. A parade preceded the meeting.

GRADUATION EXERCISES OF TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS.

Dr. J. J. Savitz, superintendent of the Union county schools, spoke on "Good Citizenship," at the commencement exercises of the Springfield Township Schools, in the assembly hall of the High School, that place, Friday night. President Theodore D. Sickley, of Springfield Board of Education, presented the high, grammar and primary school graduates with diplomas and certificates.

From the High School there are graduated five girls and one boy. They are Jessie Mildred Bohl, Lillian Brill Stiles, Helen Denman Terry, Ruth Edith Wegle, Elizsbeth Renwick Wetzel and Erwin Lawrence Meisel.

RUSH FOR PETITIONS BY COMMISSION ASPIRANTS.

Trenton, June 26.—Applicants for petitions to enter the race for the five commission government commissionerships have been so numerous since Wednesday that the city clerk's office has been besieged, and City Clerk Salter early Friday morning sent a hurry call for the rush order of blank petitions that he had filed with the printer.

Friday faternoon the printer sent to the office 3,000 blanks, and when the door of the city clerk's office swung to for the day one-third of the first installment of blanks had found their way into the hands of those who have gone into prelimintary training for the contest.

HERE AND THERE.

Andrew Carney, of North Plainfield, while visiting at Martinsvile a few days ago, had his attention called to a relic of unusual interest. It was a trunk of a tree which had been made into a tub, being 34½ inches in diameter and 28 inches deep. According to the inscription on the tub, it was made in 1710. It was in the Oakley family for 78 years, and for 94 years was in the Wilcox family and the balance of the time until recently was in the Spencer family. It is now owned by Christopher Blume, of Martinsville, and it is considered a great curiosity by all who have seen it. Despite its age, the wood has been wonderfully preserved.

EXCISE SLEUTHS BUSY ABOUT ASBURY PARK.

Asbury Park, June 26.—Detectives are here looking for violations of the excise law, and it is said that there are a number of places under suspicion. Whether the big hotels will be molested seems to be a mooted question. Sometimes they are raided and again they are undisturbed.

That two of the six detectives in the place are women is openly declared, but the police will not say anything on the subject. A year or two ago a private detective agency sent its men to Asbury Park and evidences of the law's violation was easily found. Arrests were made over the heads of the local authorities and the cases taken before the grand jury.

FORMER WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT BURIED HERE.

Edgar Morris Ayers, who was a resident of this city forty years ago, died at his home in Jersey City, Friday. He was a retired photographer. Some of Plainfield's oldest residents will remember Mr. Ayers as being the brother of Louis Ayers and a son of John Ayers, who, during the early part of the '40s, kept a hotel at Cherry and Front streets, where J. J. Kenney's shoe store now is, and later Mr. Ayers conducted a wholesale liquor store on Cherry street, opposite Estil's store, where John Casey's undertaking place is located.

The funeral services were held at the late residence in Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, and the body was brought here today for burial in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

TO ENTERTAIN GOVERNORS.

Spring Lake, June 26.—To discuss plans for the entertainment of the Governors of the States of the Union, who will come to Spring Lake for their annual conference in Septmber of this year, the citizens' committee that has been named to attend to this part of the conference, held its first meeting at the New Monmouth Hotel here Saturday. Former Governor Fort is chairman of the committee, but as he will not be here until early in August, Charles Lathrop Park, of Lakewood, is acting as chairman.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Park said that while the committee had a very good idea of what it expected to do in the way of entertainment, he did not care to make anything public until the return of former Governor Fort.

JOURNALISTS CHANGE.

Trenton, June 26.—John H. Sines, one of Trenton's best known newspaper men has become a part owner of the Trenton Evening Times, with which he has been connected since 1897. Starting as a correspondent of the paper while he was a carpenter at Yardley, Pa., Mr. Sines has advanced from the lowest to the highest position in the news department.

He will succeed Walter Fox Allen as news editor. Mr. Allen resigns to take up literary work.

After taking a long rest Mr. Allen will complete some writing that he has in hand for some time, and then, with Mrs. Allen, he will make an extensive tour of Europe. Mr. Sines has purchased Mr. Allen's stock in the company.

THE BEAR.

Some people seem to think that some animals were not made right. for instance: They muzzle The Bear, they de-horn the cow, they cut the tail of the horse short, (changing the subject exclusively) some women wear hobble skirts.

What is the differencs, excuse me, this is a conundrum, between a horse and a bear? To be continued in our next. Bear me in mind of it, please.

UP-TO-DATE (LAKEWOOD).

I will commence selling lots at Uptodate in a few days; have almost completed what the last law requires as to lot selling, and I want you to know about the lots that I am about to deceive you with. For that reason I want all of you to use my ballot below and send me the name of someone who you want to tell you about them, and who will receive two lots for his trouble. The three who receives the most number of votes will go. I want them to tell you that you are getting more than a $100 lot for $25, and that I will not keep it up long. And I want as many of you who will pay their own expenses to go as well. I can not afford to take you. Let me know when you want to go, and I will tell you how to take a shorter walk from Uptodate depot to the lots than I walk from home to the Plainfield Depot. This contest will last two weeks from the date I commence to sell lots and any one buying before will receive their money back if they receive an adverse decision. The first two people who buy from this date, (July 26th) will receive four lots for two. Send your names at once, and you can pick your lots from maps.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETS TONIGHT.

Representatives of the proposed Sunday-school Baseball League will hold a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, when further steps will be taken to complete the organization. There are several schools yet to be heard from and it is expected that they will be represented at tonight's meeting. A trophy valued at $25 has been offered as a prize to the winning team.

The first game will be played next Saturday between the teams representing the First and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-schools and it is likely that at tonight's meeting a schedule of games will be adopted and officers elected to guide the destiny of the league. There is plenty of good material in the various Sunday-schools and it is the opinion that the league will be the means of developing it and producing some star players.

Will Demonstrate Typewriter.

Parker C. Woodson, under the management of Howard Hammitt, of the Remington Typewriter Company, will give public demonstrations of rapid writing on a Remington typewriter in this city, tomorrow. A demonstration will be given at 10 o'clock at the Drake Business College, another at 11:15 at the Plainfield Business College and Mr. Woodson will be at the Queen City Hotel from 1:30 to 3 o'clock, where business men and in fact anyone interested will be welcome to see him operate the typewriter.

BAPTIST TO VISIT CZAR AND POPE

New York,—June 26.—Because of his election as president of the Baptist World Alliance, the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, announced to his congregation yesterday that it will be necessary for him to be much absent from his church (Calvary) Fifty-seventh street near Seventh avenue. He will go soon to Russia to see the Czar and to Rome to see the Pope.

The pastor of Calvary church was unanimously elected to be head of the World Alliance of Baptists for the next five years at the closing session of the Alliance Convention in Philadelphia last Friday. He announced at his morning service yesterday that next Wednesday evening in Calvary church thirty to forty Russian Baptist ministers will be presented and several of them are here under bail, only to be rearrested and imprisoned the moment they return to Russia. One of them was suspended by his thumbs and flogged. His wife was treated in the same way and when cut down his wife dropped dead while the man fainted.

At the White House in Washington today these Russians are to be presented to President Taft. Dr. MacArthur says that the United States government is being urged to use its influence with the Czar of Russia to mitigate the punishment of these Baptists as much as he can. To induce him to do so and if possible, to see the authorities of the Russian church is the purpose of the visit of the new president of the Alliance to Russia. He is to be accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Drs. F. B. Meyer and John Clifford, of London.

TRINITY CHURCH SOCIETY HELD LAWN FESTIVAL.

A strawberry and ice cream festival was held on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Edward Cooley, Watchung avenue and Sixth street, Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church. The lawn, which was appropriately decorated, presented an attractive scene. About $30 was realized for the work of the society.

The affair was in charge of the President, Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle, and the following presided at the various tables: Miss Minnie Williams and Mrs. Leanord VanCamp, candy; Mrs. T. R. VanZandt, Mrs. Peter Emmons, Mrs. Winfield Schomp, and Mrs. Frank Templin, cake; Mrs. Edward Cooley, Mrs. W. H. Kirch, Mrs. Jacob Beekman, Mrs. Elmer P. Wheeler and Mrs. Virginia Chickering, ice cream. During the afternoon visitors were taken on automobile rides by T. R. VanZandt.

Delivery Wagon Overturned.

A delivery wagon, belonging to J. A. Smith & Brother, was overturned in the alley adjoining his grocery, on West Front street this morning and was badly damaged by the kicks of the horse, which was hitched to it. The frightened steed was thrown to the ground when the wagon tipped over by turning too shortly but was prevented from running away by several men, who immediately sat on his head.

Herder—Minnick.

Miss Nellie M. Herder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Herder, of Westfield, and Frank R. Minnick, formerly of Allentown, Pa., but now of Westfield, were married by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church at his home on Central avenue, last night. The couple were unaccompanied. After a trip they will reside at Westfield.

Funeral of Robert Morley.

Funeral of Robert Morley was held at the home of his son Robert Morley, Jr., on Pond place, Saturday afternoon. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and many floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Broek's Mother Better.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who was called to Grand Rapids, Mich., on account of the condition of his mother, writes that he found his mother in better condition that he anticipated and that she is delighted with his presence at home.

Rev. Dr. Cobb Preaches.

Rev. Dr. Henry C. Cobb, pastor of the Collegiate church, of New York city, preached at the morning and evening services in the Crescent Avenue church yesterday. In the morning, Dr. Cobb discussed the way to enjoy work.

PERSONAL.

Dr. A. W. Anderson, formerly of this city but now of Port Chester, N. Y., spent yesterday in town visiting relatives.

John Bardon, of the Bronx, spent a pleasant Sunday with his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Washburne, of 34 Duer street.

Paul R. Collier, Sidney Rockwell, Samuel Bogart and Augustus Nash, all of this city, toured the Jersey coast yesterday in Nr. Nash's speedy automobile.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher, of East Seventh street, will leave on Wednesday for Old Orchard, Me., where they will remain for two months.

Miles Roberts, of Kensington avenue, has returned from Tolland, Mass., where he has been spending a few days. Later he will plan to spend the month of August at Tolland.

Outbid.

"My lad," said a clergyman of a small boy, "who is that gentleman you attend church with?"

"Grandpa," was the reply.

"Well," said the clergyman, "if you will only keep him awake during my sermon I'll give you a penny each week."

The boy fell in with the arrangement, and for the next two weeks the old gentleman listened attentively to the resmon. The third week, however, found him soundly asleep.

The clergyman called the boy to him and said:

"I am surprised at you. Your grandpa was asleep again today. Didn't I promise you a penny a week to keep him awake?"

"Yes," replied the boy, "but grandpa now gave me two pence not to disturb him."—Spare Moments.

Stopped Their Cackling.

Hans von Bulow was a master of the art of rebuke. On one occasion while rehearsing a choruh, he was much annoyed by the talking of his sopranos and altos. They were called to order several times, but paid no attention. Finally Von Bulow rapped impatiently on his desk and called out, "Ladies, Rome does not have to be saved tonight." Me wasn't bothered any more that evening.—Exchange.

Medical Ethics.

FRIENDS PLENTY IN YOUTH

But Love and Trust, Often Betrayed, Are Not So Easy for One Who Has Reached Manhood.

In youth our friends are many. Each child, thank God, is born into the world with one friend ready made, complete and perfect; his own mother. For the mother there may be regrets and insights, doubts and hesitations, but at any rate there is never a lack of understanding, for she, of all, knows the very stuff of which we are made—our strength and our weakness, our endurance and our failures. This, at least, is one of the heartening facts of life—that the child need never forego some friendships. It makes slight claims. It asks only some one to share its activities and its interests; its love of sliding and of skating, hay-raking and paddling. Provided another revel in the same things as we do, behold! Here for childhood is a friend ready made! And for a moment the solitude of the pilgrim's soul upon its long way is disguised.

Youth, too, forms ties lightly from out the very exuberance of its living. It loves as readily as it breathes; it idealizes and finds it difficult to recognize any bleak fact in human nature. If the friends seem for the moment to fail, youth has an unexhausted fund of hope that remembers this one as the only failure, or remembers that back of the failure lies all the material of future success.

But manhood is more difficult. Love and trust, often betrayed, are not easy for one full grown and far along the path of life. That friendship is best which is old and which, like wine, has stood the test of time. Friendships born in obscurity and misfortune are hardier and more lasting than those born in ease. Like human characters they grow strong on the very obstacles that test them; they are firmer, more strongly welded, as they overcome and still endure.—Harper's Weekly.

WAS LAW UNTO HIS PATIENTS

Paris Doctor Won Strange Sets Through Their Obedience to His Extraordinary Prescriptions.

One of the most successful physicians, at least in his hold on his patients, was David Gruby, who died in Paris in 1898. He was a Hungarian by birth, but had lived many years in the French capital.

His methods of treatment, while entirely logical in principle, were often highly original, not to say fantastic, in the form they took, yet it was to them in a great measure that he owed his remarkable vogue among the most intelligent classes of Paris.

His influence over his patients was such, says a writer in the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, that he was able as the result of a wager to induce some of the best known Parisians to walk up and down the Avenue des Champs-Elysees during a whole forenoon.

In accordance with his prescription each of these patients—lawyers, engineers, writers, dramatists, gentlemen of leisure—was to swallow a prune every ten meters while walking along the avenue and this was carried out to the letter and with the utmost seriousness, to the amazement of the fellow practitioners whom Gruby had invited to witness this singular therapeutic procedure.

One of his most distinguished patients, Alexandre Dumas, was said to have obtained great benefit from a green apple which he was instructed to eat every day under the Arc-de-Triomphe de l'Etoile after a walk of a given length.

The Spider Cure.

The request for a "nut to put a spider in to cure a baby's whooping cough" which has just startled a Somerset (Eng.) shopkeeper recalls the spider "cures" of the past. There was, and indeed is, for instance, that Irish belief in the web as a remedy for cuts, warts and bruises and that superstition of the eastern counties which credited it with power to cure fevers. The weaver of the web, too, was looked upon as a doctor of medicine.

A note from an ancient Notes and Queries gives the illustration: "One of my parishioners suffering from ague," wrote a Somerset vicar, "was advised to catch a large spider and shut him up in a box. As he pines away the disease is supposed to wear itself out." A similar belief prevailed in the south of Ireland, but there treacle had to be substituted for the box as coffin for the ague healer.

Story That Got Near-Sighted Man.

"While I think I am rather inclined to give, yet I try to be discriminating, not to give to every beggar with an idle and obviously untrue tale; but," said the near-sighted man, "I fell impulsively for a story new to me this morning.

"'Boss,' said this man as he looked at me, 'I've lost my spectacles and I'm trying to get together money enough to buy another pair.'

"You know if I should lose my spectacles I should be lost myself, and on that story I gave up without another thought."

The Finish.

"Isn't your new gown finished yet?"

"Oh, gracious, no! the dressmaker's work on it was only completed last Saturday."

"But if the dressmaker's through, isn't that all?"

"Of course not! All my friends have to criticize it yet."

HOPS FOR PILLOW FILLING

Austrian Peasant Woman Recommends Them for Their Efficiency as Sleep Inducer and Beautifier.

A man who suffered from sleeplessness picked up in Austria recently what seemed to him to be the best remedy he had ever found. It was nothing more or less than a pillow stuffed with hops. An Austrian peasant woman recommended it not alone as a sleep producer but as a beautifier as well.

Returning to this country the man bought some New York hops, famous for their beer making qualities, but to his surprise they did not work as well as the hops he had tried abroad. He found out by experiment that hops that made good beer didn't necessarily produce good sleep.

After he had sampled a lot of different kinds of hops he found that by mixing hops grown in Bohemia with hops grown in California and Oregon he got a combination which seemed to answer all purposes in the sleep producing line.

He decided that he had hit it right when he took a couple of pillows he had stuffed with this combination in his office downtown home with him on the elevated. He got in at Rector street carrying the pillow and sat in one of the double seats. Two men and a messenger boy sat with him.

At Fifty-ninth street all three were in profound slumber. Several other persons who had been reading newspapers near him were in evident distress in their efforts to keep awake.

Inquiry at different drug stores seemed to indicate that the hop pillow idea was a new one, though hops have long been known to have sleep inducing qualities, as shown particularly in the case of beer. According to those who have tried hop pillows, you get all the soporific qualities of the hops in this way without breaking any temperance pledges or suffering any harmful effects.

LADY MACBETH LOVES CHOPS

Butcher Attributes Genius of Artist and Actress to Fact They Eat His Meat.

It is not altogether easy to imagine a Lady Macbeth eating chops. Yet her greatest impersonator got her inspiration from them, if one may rely on an altogether delightful authority. On a certain occasion, writes Mr. E. V. Lucas in his recent book, "The Second Post," the painter Haydon paid his butcher, who reciprocated by expressing great admiration for the artist's painting of "Alexander."

"Quite alive, sir!" said the butcher. "I am glad you think so," said the artist.

"Yes, sir; but as I have often said to my sister, you could not have painted that picture, sir, if you had not eat my meat, sir."

"Very true, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, I have a fancy for gen'us, sir."

"Have you, Mr. Sowerby?"

"Yes, sir. Mrs. Siddons, sir, has eat my meat, sir. Never was such a woman for chops, sir! Ah, sir, she was a wonderful crayture!"

"She was, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, when she used to act that there character—but Lord, such a head, as I say to my sister—that there woman, sir, that murders a king between 'em."

"Oh, Lady Macbeth."

"Ah, sir, that's it—Lady Macbeth. I used to get up with the butler behind her carriage when she acted, and I used to see her looking quite wild, and all the people quite frightened. 'Aha, my lady,' says I, 'if it wasn't for my meat, though, you wouldn't be able to do that!'"—Youth's Companion.

Water-Elephants.

The existence of a hitherto unknown beast, the water-elephant, has recently been discovered. No specimen of this animal has as yet been brought to Europe, nor has its skeleton come into the hands of scientists, and not so much as a photograph of it is known to exist. M. Le Petit, an explorer, came across five on the banks of a lake in the Upper Congo. As soon as he approached they dived into the water and swam off, leaving only their trunks above the water. They are, he says, about six and a half feet high, with long necks, short ears, and short trunks. Judging from their tracks, their feet differ considerably from those of the ordinary elephant.

His Bones Easily Broken.

Known as the "glass-bone boy," James Loertsch of Caldwell, N. J., kept up his record when he fell on the sidewalk in front of his home a few days ago and broke his arm. This is James' eighth bone-breaking feat in the eight years of his life and his third within the last five months. In September he broke his right leg in kicking a football. In November, when he was standing in a wagon, the horse moved unexpectedly and jolted him to the wagon bed. The jolt did not roll him from the wagon, but broke his left arm.

Ruins in Yucatan.

There is in Yucatan a chain of ruins 300 miles long, where once stood buildings richly decorated and erected with a vast amount of architectural knowledge. The buildings belonged to the stone age, when the remarkable figures in stone were carved with pieces of flint. The people of this age had not the use of either bronze or iron.

The Burdens of Friendship

When you leave your trusted friend your executor or Trustee, this well intentioned act may prove a greater burden on his shoulders than he would have selected if he had had his way about it.

In assuming such duties, the private individual undertakes a great responsibility—sometimes this lasts many years after the closing of the trust, for years afterward it would be discovered that his administration of the estate was not in exact conformity with the law and he has laid himself open to damages, and ignorance of the law is not a valid excuse.

Annual Vacation Sale Trunks, Bags and Suit Cases

It's the sixteenth annual event of this kind, and in keeping with progress it will transcend in magnitude of stocks and in point of value-giving any of its forerunners. Lack of space will not permit us to enumerate all the wonderful values embraced in this space, but suffice it to say the choice is by far the greatest we have ever offered. No matter where your vacation may take you—you will require luggage—so then, here's your opportunity to purchase the very best makes of Trunks, Bags and Suit Cases at in many instances really extraordinary economies.

Goods selected during this sale will be entered free until August 1st upon payment of small deposit, or put on August bills, of charge customers if bought before July 1.

If requested at time of purchase letter initials and addresses painted on baggage without extra charge.

STREAM CHANGED ITS COURSE

North River in One Night Moved Its Mouth Three Miles to the Northward.

There is a stream in this state called the North river. It starts in a pond near Hanson and runs to the sea at Scituate. It is ten miles by air line from Hanson to Scituate and the river is 40 miles long.

This river is probably the most remarkable body of water, barring the Dead sea, on this footstool and has stood more abuse and bad language than the Chicago river. When the tide is coming in the river runs upstream and not only that, but the upper part of it, which is fresh water, also runs up, and the spectacle of a fresh water river beating it up hill is alone enough to call attention to itself. But there is much more to it than that.

This North river is noted for being the scene of the last Indian raid on the coast settlements. It is notable for having given birth to the ship Columbia, whose captain discovered and named the Columbia river and was the first American vessel to circumnavigate the world. It is notorious for having suddenly changed its mind on its course on the night of November 27, 1898, when it moved its mouth three miles to the northward, presented the town of Marshfield with a deep harbor, killed three men and converted about 200,000 acres of prime meadow land into a salt marsh.

But the chief thing about this river is its crookedness. This river is so crooked that it double crosses itself. If you don't believe it go and see. There is one place in Hanover where by making three loops the river moves toward the sea for a distance of almost fifty feet and meanders about for 15 miles in doing it.—Boston Transcript.

BANDITS' SCHEME IN CHINA

Robbers Themselves Conduct the Business and Collect Premium at the Insurance Bureau.

The bandits of Manchuria and Mongolia have adopted a new way of acquiring at least a portion of the goods of the traveler. These mounted highwaymen in bands not only constantly attack the peaceful native population but even rob travelers in broad daylight.

As a provision against this danger, says the Oriental Economic Review, an insurance bureau where one buys a banner, at a cost of about 1-500 of the value of the property to be insured, is established there.

This banner carried by a traveler will save him from the bandit's attack; for curiously enough they themselves conduct this insurance business. But it has its limitations.

"We paid our premium at the insurance bureau," says a Japanese traveler, "secured a red banner, and our party then started from Harbin, using several sturdy ponies for ourselves and the carrying of our luggage. After traveling about ten miles we reached a small town called Takiu, where we put up at an inn for the night in order to do business with our customers there.

"Several of these customers came to see us in the evening and warned us that there were many mounted bandits in the neighborhood. When we told them there was no cause for anxiety on their account because of the insurance, they informed us that by it our safety was guaranteed only on the highways, but that the bandit bureau was not responsible for what might happen inside of any building."

Goose as a Pet.

During a recent visit to Bridlington, writes a correspondent of Country Life, I was much amused to come across a large goose that had been adopted as the pet of a small home in the older part of the town. It frequently followed its master on the pier and in the streets and might often be seen waddling after him with slow, measured steps along the country lanes, sometimes walking eight and ten miles at a stretch.

Two years ago the live goose was sent in November for the Christmas day dinner, a destiny which was never fulfilled, as before a week had passed it had become the pet of the family, walking in and out of the house at its leisure. It now often takes its food from the children's hands at the dinner table and constantly perches on the man's shoulder as he sits and reads. The old bird is a popular favorite in Bridlington, where it is well known by the name of John Willie.

Absent-Minded After His Trial.

"Do you take this woman to be your lawfully-wedded wife?" begins the minister, when the bridegroom, Mr. Cheetin Stox, the eminent financier, interrupts with:

"I don't remember."

Then, seeing the looks of amazement on the faces of all, he realizes where he is, and exclaims:

"I beg your pardon! For the moment I was thinking about my trial last week. Certainly I take her."—Life.

A Flyer's Joke.

Hubert Latham, the Antoinette flyer, was talking, at a tea in Los Angeles, to a pretty California girl.

"Mr. Latham," said the girl, as she took her nineteenth walnut and lettuce sandwich, "tell me, does flying require any particular application?"

"Well, no, none in particular," Mr. Latham answered. "Arnica or horse liniment—one's as good as another."

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVILL.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

Wearied and heartsick, Hope turned away from this outside dreariness to contemplate more closely her neighbors on board, but found them scarcely more interesting. Several were playing cards, others moodily staring out of the windows, while a few were laughing and talking with the girls, their conversation inane and punctuated with profanity. One man was figuring on a scratch pad, and Hope decided he must be an engineer employed on the line; others she classed as small merchants, saloon-keepers, and frontier riff-raff. They would glance curiously at her as they marched up and down the narrow aisle, but her veil, and averted face, prevented even the boldest from speaking. Once she addressed the conductor, and the man who was figuring turned and looked back at her, evidently attracted by the soft note of her voice. But he made no effort at advances, returning immediately to his pad, oblivious to all else.

It was growing dark, the outside world, now consisting of level plains, fading into darkness, with a few great stars burning overhead. Trainmen lit the few smoking oil lamps screwed against the sides of the car, and its occupants became little more than dim shadows. All by this time were fatigued into silence, and several were asleep, finding such small comfort as was possible on the cramped seats. Hope glanced toward the heretofore noisy group at the rear—the girl nearest her rested with unconscious head pillowed upon the shoulder of her man friend, and both were sleeping. How haggard and ghastly the woman's powdered face looked, with the light just above it, and all semblance of joy gone. It was as though a mask had been taken off. Out in the darkness the engine whistled sharply and then came to a bumping stop at some desert station. Through the black window a few lanterns could be seen flickering about, and there arose the sound of gruff voices speaking. The sleepers inside, aroused by the sharp stop, rolled over and swore, seeking easier postures. Then the front door opened, and slammed shut, and a new passenger entered. He came down the aisle, glancing carelessly at the upturned faces, and finally sank into the seat directly opposite Hope. He was a broad shouldered man, his coat buttoned to the throat, with strong face showing clearly beneath the broad hat brim and lighted up with a pair of shrewd, kindly eyes. The conductor came through, nodded at him, and passed on. Hope thought he must be some official of the road, and ventured to break the prolonged silence with a question:

"Could you tell me how long it will be before we reach Sheridan?"

She had partially pushed aside her veil in order to speak more clearly, and the man, turning at sound of her voice, took off his hat, his searching eyes quizzical.

"Well, no, I can't, madam," the words coming with a jerk. "For I'm not at all sure we'll keep the track. Ought to make it in an hour, however, if everything goes right. Live in Sheridan?"

She shook her head, uncertain how frankly to answer.

"No loss to you—worst place to live in on earth—no exceptions—I know—been there myself three months—got friends there likely?"

"I hardly know," she acknowledged doubtfully. "I think so, but I shall have to hunt some place in which to stay tonight. Can you tell me of some—some respectable hotel, or boarding house?"

The man wheeled about, until he could look at her more clearly.

"That's a pretty hard commission,

Don't Be Nervous—I'll See You Make the Hotel All Right."

Miss," he returned uneasily. "There may be such a place in Sheridan, but I have never found it. Old Mother Shattuck keeps roomers, but she won't have a woman in the house. I reckon you'll have to try it at the hotel—I'll get you in there if I have to mesmerize the clerk—you'll find a bit noisy though."

"Oh, I thank you so much. I don't mind the noise, so it is respectable."

He laughed, good humoredly.

"Well, I don't propose to vouch for that—the proprietor ain't out there for his health—but, I reckon, you won't have no serious trouble—the boys mostly know a good woman when they see one—which isn't often—anyhow, they're liable to be decent enough as long as I vouch for you."

"But you know nothing of me."

"Don't need to—your face is enough—I'll get you the room all right."

She hesitated, then asked:

"Are you—are you connected with the railroad?"

"In a way, yes—I'm the contract surgeon—had to dig a bullet out of a water-tank tender back yonder—fellow howled as though I was killing him—no nerve—mighty poor stuff most of the riff-raff out here—ball wasn't in much below the skin—Indian must have plugged him from the top of the bluff—blame good shot too—ragged looking slug—like to see it?"

She shook her head energetically.

"Don't blame you—nothing very uncommon—get a dozen cases like it a day sometimes—stay in Sheridan, show you something worth while—very pretty surgical operation to-morrow—come round and get you if you care to see it—got to open the stomach—don't know what I'll find—like to go?"

"Oh, no! I'm sure you mean it all kindly, but—but I would rather not."

"Hardly supposed you would—only knew one woman who cared for that sort of thing much—she was nursing for me during the war—had a hair lip and an eye like a dagger—good nurse though—rather have your kind round me—ever nurse any? Could get you a dozen jobs in Sheridan—new prospects every night—fifty dollars a week—what do you say?"

"But I'm not seeking work, Doctor," smiling in spite of her bewilderment "I have money enough with me."

"Well, I didn't know—thought maybe you wanted a job, and didn't like to ask for it—have known 'em like that—no harm done—if you ever do want anything like that, just come to me—my name's Fairbain—everybody knows me here—operated on most of 'em—rest expect to be— Damn that engineer! don't believe he knows whether he's going ahead or backing up." He peered out of the window, pressing his face hard against the glass. "I reckon that's Sheridan he's whistling for now—don't be nervous—I'll see you make the hotel all right."

CHAPTER XXI.

The Marshal of Sheridan.

It was called a depot merely through courtesy, consisting of a layer of cinders, scattered promiscuously so as to partially conceal the underlying mud, and a dismantled box car, in which presided ticket agent and telegrapher. A hundred yards below was the big shack where the railroad officials lodged. Across the tracks blazed invitingly the "First Chance" saloon. All intervening space was crowded with men, surging aimlessly about in the glare of a locomotive head light, and greeting the alighting passengers with free and easy badinage. Stranger or acquaintance made no difference, the welcome to Sheridan was noisily extended, while rough play and hoarse laughter characterized the mass.

Hope paused on the step, even as Dr. Fairbain grasped her hand, dinned by the medley of discordant sounds, and confused by the vociferous jam of humanity. A band came tooting down the street in a hack, a fellow, with a voice like a fog horn, howling on the front seat. The fellows at the side of the car surged aside to get a glimpse of this new attraction, and Fairbain, taking quick advantage of the opportunity thus presented, swung his charge to the cinders below. Bending before her, and butting his great shoulders into the surging crowd, he succeeded in pushing a passage through, thus finally bringing her forth to the edge of the street.

"Hey, there," he said shortly, grabbing a shirt-sleeved individual by the arm. "Where's Charlie?"

The fellow looked at him wonderingly.

"Charlie? Oh, you mean the 'Kid'? Well, he ain't here ter-night; had a weddin', an' is totin' the bridal couple 'round."

Fairbain swore discreetly under his breath, and cast an uncertain glance at the slender figure shrinking beside him. The streets of Sheridan were not over pleasant at night.

"Only hack in town is somewhere else, Miss," he explained briefly. "I reckon you and I will have to hoof it."

He felt the grip of her fingers on his sleeve.

"The boys are a little noisy, but it's just their way—don't mean anything—you hang on to me, an' keep the veil down—we'll be there in the shake of a dog's tail."

He helped her over the muddy crossing, and as they reached a stretch of board walk, began expatiating on the various places lining the way.

"That's the 'Mammoth' over there—dance hall back of it—biggest thing west of the Missouri—three men killed there last week—what for? Oh, they got too fresh—that's the 'Casino,' and the one beyond is 'Pony Joe's Place'—cut his leg off since I've been here—fight over a girl. Ain't there any stores?—sure; they're farther back—you see the saloons got in first—that's 'Sheeny Mike's' gambling joint you're looking at—like to go over and see 'em play? All right, just thought I'd ask you—it's early anyhow, and things wouldn't be goin' very lively yet. Say, there, you red head, what are you trying to do?"

The fellow had lurched out of the crowd in such a manner as to brush partially aside the girl's veil, permitting the glare of "Sheeny Mike's" lights to fall full upon her revealed face. It was accomplished so openly as to appear planned, but before he could reel away again, Fairbain struck out, and the man went down. With an oath he was on his feet, and Hope cowered back against her protector. Each man had weapons drawn, the crowd scurrying madly to keep out of the line of fire, when, with a stride, a new figure stepped quietly in between them. Straight as an arrow, broad shouldered, yet small waisted as a woman, his hair hanging low over his coat-collar, his face smooth shaven except for a long moustache, and emotionless, the revolvers in his belt untouched, he simply looked at the two, and then struck the revolver out of the drunken man's hand. It fell harmless to the ground.

"And don't you pick it up until I tell you, Scott," he said quietly. "If you do you've got to fight me."

Without apparently giving the fellow another thought, he wheeled and faced the others.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Doctor? The drunken fool won't make any more trouble. Where were you taking the lady?"

"To the hotel, Bill."

"I'll walk along with you. I reckon the boys will give us plenty of room." He glanced over the crowd, and then more directly at Scott.

"Pick up your gun!" the brief words snapping out. "This is the second time I've caught you hunting trouble. The next time you are going to find it. I saw you run into this lady—what did you do it for?"

"I only wanted to see who she was, Bill."

"You needn't call me Bill. I don't trot in your class. My name is Hickock to you. Was it any of your affair who she was?"

"I reckoned I know'd her, and I did."

The marshal turned his eyes toward Hope, and then back upon Scott, evidently slightly interested.

"So? Recognized an old friend, I suppose?"

The slight sneer in "Wild Bill's" soft voice caused Scott to flame up in sudden passion.

"No, I didn't! but I called the turn just the same—she's Christie Maclaire."

The marshal smiled.

"All right, little boy," he said soberly. "Now you trot straight along to bed. Don't let me catch you on the street again to-night, and I'd advise you not to pull another gun—you're too slow on the trigger for this town. Come along, Doctor, and we'll get Miss Maclaire to her hotel."

He shouldered his way through the collected crowd, the other following. Hope endeavored to speak, to explain to Fairbain who she actually was, realizing then, for the first time, that she had not previously given him her name. Amidst the incessant noise and confusion, the blaring of brass, and the jangle of voices, she found it impossible to make the man comprehend. She pressed closer to him, holding more tightly to his arm, stunned and confused by the fierce uproar. The stranger steadily pushing ahead of them, and opening a path for their passage, fascinated her, and her eyes watched him curiously. His name was an oddly familiar one, associated in vague memory with some of the most desperate deeds ever witnessed in the West, yet always found on the side of law and order; it was difficult to conceive that this quiet-spoken, mild-eyed, gently smiling man could indeed be the most famous gun fighter on the border, hated, feared, yet thoroughly respected, by every desperado between the Platte and the Canadian. Beyond the glare and glitter of the Metropolitan Dance Hall the noisy crowd thinned away somewhat, and the marshal ventured to drop back beside Fairbain, yet vigilantly watched every approaching face.

"Town appears unusually lively tonight, Bill," observed the latter gravely, "and the boys have got an early start."

"West end graders just paid off," was the reply. "They have been whoopin' it up ever since noon, and are beginning to get ugly. Now the rest of the outfit are showing up, and there will probably be something interesting happening before morning. Wouldn't mind it so much if I had a single deputy worth his salt."

"What's the matter with Bain?"

"Nothing, while he was on the job, but 'Red' Haggerty got him in 'Pony Joe's' shebang two hours ago; shot him in the back across the bar. Ned never even pulled his gun."

"I'm sorry to hear that; what became of Haggerty?"

The marshal let his eyes rest questioningly on the doctor's face for an instant.

"Well, I happened to be just behind Ned when he went," he said gently, "and 'Red' will be buried on 'Boots Hill' to-morrow. I'm afraid I don't give you much chance to show your skill, Doc," with a smile.

"If they all shot like you do, my profession would be useless. What's the matter with your other deputies?"

"Lack of nerve, principally, I reckon; ain't one of 'em worth the powder to blow him up. I'd give something just now for a fellow I had down at Dodge—he was a man. Never had to tell him when to go in; good judgment too; wasn't out hunting for trouble, but always ready enough to take his share. Old soldier in our army, Captain, I heard, though he never talked much about himself; maybe you knew him—Jack Keith."

"Well, I reckon," in quick surprise, "and what's more to the point, he's here—slept in my room last night."

"Keith here? In Sheridan? And hasn't even hunted me up yet? That's like him, all right, but I honestly want to see the boy. Here's your hotel; than you need me any longer?"

"Better step in with us, Bill," the doctor advised, "your moral influence might aid in procuring the lady a decent room."

"I reckon it might."

They passed together up the three rickety steps leading into the front hall, which latter opened directly into the cramped office; to the left was the wide-open bar-room, clamorous and throbbing with life. A narrow bench stood against the wall, with a couple of half drunken men lounging upon it. The marshal routed them out with a single, expressive gesture.

"Wait here with the lady, Fairbain," he said shortly, "and I'll arrange for the room."

They watched him glance in at the bar, vigilant and cautious, and then move directly across to the desk.

"Tommy," he said genially to the clerk. "I've just escorted a lady here

"Any Other Room You Could Conveniently Assign Mr.—ah—Montgomery to Tommy?"

from the train—Miss Maclaire—and want you to give her the best room in your old shebang."

The other looked at him doubtfully.

"Hell, Bill, I don't know how I'm going to do that," he acknowledged. "She wrote in here to the boss for a room; said she'd be along yesterday. Well, she didn't show up, an' so tonight we let a fellow have it. He's up there now."

"Well, he'll have to vamose—who is he?"

"Englishman—'Walter Spotteswood Montgomery,'" consulting his book. "Hell of a pompous duck; the boys call him 'Juke Montgomery.'"

"All right; send some one up to rout his lordship out lively."

Tommy shuffled his feet, and looked again at the marshal; he had received positive orders about that room, and was fully convinced that Montgomery would not take kindly to eviction. But Hickock's quiet gray eyes were insistent.

"Here, 'Red,'" he finally called to the burley porter, "hustle up to '15,' an' tell that fellow Montgomery he's got to get out; tell him we want the room for a lady."

Hickock watched the man disappear up the stairs, helped himself carefully to a cigar out of the stand, tossing a coin to the clerk and then deliberately lighting up.

"Think Montgomery will be pleased?" he asked shortly.

"No; he'll probably throw 'Red' down stairs."

The marshal smiled, his glance turning expectantly in that direction.

"Then perhaps I had better remain, Tommy." And he strolled nonchalantly over to the open window, and stood there looking quietly out, a spiral of blue smoke rising from his cigar.

They could distinctly hear the pounding on the door above, and occasionally the sound of the porter's voice, but the straight, erect figure at the window remained motionless. Finally "Red" came down, nursing his knuckles.

"Says he'll be damned if he will—says he's gone to bed, an' that there ain't a cussed female in this blasted country he'd git up for," he reported circumstantially to the clerk. "He told me to tell you to go plumb to hell, an' that if any one else come poundin' 'round ther to-night, he'll take a pot shot at 'em through the door. 'Fifteen' seemed a bit peevish, sir, an' I reckoned if he was riled up much more, he might git rambunctious; his language was sure fierce."

"Wild Bill" turned slowly around, still calmly smoking, his eyes exhibiting mild amusement.

"Did you clearly inform Mr.—ah—Montgomery that we desired the room for the use of a lady?" he questioned gently, apparently both pained and shocked.

"I did, sir."

"It surprises me to find one in our city with so little regard for the ordinary courtesies of life, Tommy. Perhaps I can persuade the gentleman."

He disappeared up the stairs, taking them deliberately step by step, the cigar still smoking between his lips. "Red" called after him.

"Keep away from in front of the door, Bill; he'll shoot sure, for he cocked his gun when I was up there."

Hickock glanced back, waved his hand.

"Don't worry—the room occupied by Mr.—ah—Montgomery was '15,' I believe you said?"

(THE MOST UP-TO-DATE GARAGE IN NEW JERSEY)

noon in the first meeting of these teams in the Central New Jersey pennant race. The score was 7 to 0 and tells the story of a game fraught with neat and ragged fielding, invincible pitching and pitching that in the last innings of the game was as easy of solution as the first examples in the primer. This latter feature naturally was conductive of heavy hitting by the visitors as it was the local's pitcher who ascended.

He was touched for a home run in the first and then allowed but one bingle up to the sixth. That however, was another home run. From the first to the sixth he made ten take the swing route. He was hit at will after the sixth as the result of a ruse by the management of the visitors that got his goat.

Weaver is the name under which he was working, but as a matter of fact he is a member of the American League forces and the Somerville manager caused the news to spread that word of his pitching for Bound Brook had been conveyed to his manager. After the game the ruse was explained.

Clinton, pitching for Somerville, was steady as a clock and his support was at all times nothing but class. In addition to slugging the ball for a home circuit in the first, Wolff repeated his performance in the sixth, the ball each time falling within a few feet of the same spot.

The score:

The fast High Bridge team defeated Scotch Plains at the former place, Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 5, in one of the best games of the league season. So close was the contest that it was not decided until the last man was retired in the ninth inning. High Bridge started scoring in the first inning, putting a run over the plate on a couple of hits and errors.

Scotch Plains found Blackwell in its half of the third and succeeded in getting two runs, scoring a single in the fourth and two more in the fifth, but that ended the run-getting for the 'Plains, although they had several good chances to pass their opponents. Both McLaughlin and Slocum pitched good ball for the 'Plains, allowing but a total of seven hits. The 'Plains had to be satisfied with six hits off Blackwell, who was in fine form. A feature of the game was a squeeze play in which Flannery and Albert crossed the plate with Gray at the bat. The score:

Preached Two Strong Sermons.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church yesterday, morning and evening, preaching to a large congregation at the morning service. Both sermons were strong gospel discourses and were enjoyed. In the evening, Mr. Fletcher's theme was, "Limitations of Life," which he applied to every day conditions in a practical manner.

DUNELLEN LOST 10 INNING GAME

The Dunellen team went down to defeat in a hotly contested ten inning game at Dunellen Saturday afternoon at the hands of the Roseville nine. Frederickson, who pitched a steady game throughout, had luck against him and lost out. Only four hits were gleaned from his delivery and only three balls went outside of the infield.

In the sixth inning with a Roseville man on base, a clean hit which would have been good for only a single, was lost in the tall grass and went for a fluke home run. Barnes made two costly errors on first in the tenth inning when the game was lost. The Roseville bunch backed up its pitcher in big league style, capturing six drives which were labeled for hits.

PARK GOLF CLUB TIES COLONIA COUNTRY CLUB

Teams from the Park Golf Club and the Colonia Country Club engaged in a close and exciting match on Saturday, the final result being a tie, 6 and 6. An interesting feature of the contest was that R. V. Carpenter in winning his match with Morris, of Colonia, made the score a tie. The individual match was decided by the last put of Mr. Carpenter on the last green. The two teams will play a return match on July 15. The summary:

Parks—E. A. Smith, 2; Dr. E. Rundquist, 1; A. E. Morrel, 0; J. V. Beekman, 0; R. V. Carpenter, 3; total, 6.

Colonia—Hart, 0; McCormick, 0; Perry, 3; Maurice, 3; Morris, 0; total, 6.

These cards were returned in the weekly competition for the President's and golf club cups:

ANOTHER CANDIDATE FOR THE SHRIEVALTY

Joseph H. Neill.
Elizabeth, N. J.

Although the primary election date is several months distant, Joseph H. Neill, of Elizabeth, has enlivened the contest for the shrivality nomination on the Republican ticket in Union county, by announcing himself a candidate. His entrance make three in the field at present, the others being William Wright, of Rahway and George J. Stewart, of Elizabeth.

Mr. Neill claims to have a large following in his home city and is well known throughout the county. He is a son of the late Police Justice George Neill, of Elizabeth, and has lived there more than forty-five years or practically all his life. By trade he is a painter and has done much towards bettering labor conditions. He is president of the State Painters' Association; vice-president of the Twelfth Ward Republican Club; a former officer of the volunteer fire department, of Elizabeth; a member of the Knights of Pythias and has never held any political office.

"I have entered the contest after much consideration," said Mr. Neill, when seen by a Daily Press reporter, "and at the solicitation of many friends. If I did not think my chances for the nomination were good, I should not allow myself to become a candidate. I am fairly well familiar with political conditions in the city and county and am well pleased with the present outlook."

SEMI-FINAL ROUND FOR JUNE TROPHY

The semifinal round for the June trophy was the chief event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday. All the matches were closely contested and unusual interest is being manifested in the forthcoming contests in the final round next Saturday in both classes. The course was thronged with players all day, although there was a limited number of cards returned in the different events, which included an 18-holes, medal play handicap for Classes A and B. A large number of members and guests had luncheon at the clubhouse in the afternoon and about seventy-five enjoyed the dinner in the evening and the dance which followed.

These cards were returned in the semi-final for the June trophy:

Class A—R. S. Rowland defeated E. T. Wilson, 4 up and 2 to play; H. D. Hibbard defeated C. C. Riggs, 6 up and 4 to play.

Class B—L. H. Gates defeated C. M. Church, 6 up and 5 to play; C. W. King defeated L. H. VanBuren, 1 up.

These scores were returned in the 18-holes, medal play, handicap:

Class A—W. H. Rogers, 83, 12-71; L. F. Church, 85, 13-72; O. W. Gott, 87, 12-75; R. G. Morse, 90, 13-77.

Class B—A. W. Kleinecke, 97, 25-72; L. H. Gates, 100, 25-75; C. M. Church, 98, 20-78; L. L. Tweedy, 103, 16-87.

Stole from Father to Aid Sister

Trenton, June 26.—Mercer Court had before it Friday a case which touched the hearts of all in the courtroom in the arraignment of Margaret J. Ehret, of White Horse, for stealing two bushels of asparagus from her father, Charles Ehret. The girl declared that she sold the produce and gave the money to her sister that she might buy food while in school in Trenton. The court allowed her to go on her own recognizance. Meanwhile the prosecutor will make an investigation.

run backwards. O'Rourke was then retired on strikes and the agony was over.

White weakened in the final innings and Plainfield scored the fourth run. With two down, Nelson walked, going to second on a wild pitch. White passed Dillon, who had twice hit safely, and took a chance on Waller. But "Red" fooled 'em and pasted the ball into right, scoring Nelson. Dillon was caught between second and third.

Two two-baggers gave the batting honors of the game to Streaser, the speedy Westfielder (west in this sense meaning left). Erxleben put up a great game at first making eleven put outs without an error.

The Plainfield lineup wa changed considerably by the addition of four new players. Dillon, of New York, did the back-stop work while Nelson covered the right garden. Hartman, at short, proved a tower of strength and the Stallings brothers displayed Mercuric speed.

A dispute arose in the seventh when Dillon was called out at the plate. Driscoll told Dalley what he thought of him in language not used in polite society and the "ump" immediately started to retaliate with his fists. Hartman separated them before any damage was done. The decision, upon which the Plainfield first baseman kicked, was perfectly fair.

As the scorer found it:

Somerville shut out Bound Brook at the latter place Saturday afternoon in the first meeting of these teams in the Central New Jersey pennant race. The score was 7 to 0 and tells the story of a game fraught with neat and ragged fielding, invincible pitching and pitching that in the last innings of the game was as easy of solution as the first examples in the primer. This latter feature naturally was conductive of heavy hitting by the visitors as it was the local's pitcher who ascended.

He was touched for a home run in the first and then allowed but one bingle up to the sixth. That however, was another home run. From the first to the sixth he made ten take the swing route. He was hit at will after the sixth as the result of a ruse by the management of the visitors that got his goat.

Weaver is the name under which he was working, but as a matter of fact he is a member of the American League forces and the Somerville manager caused the news to spread that word of his pitching for Bound Brook had been conveyed to his manager. After the game the ruse was explained.

Clinton, pitching for Somerville, was steady as a clock and his support was at all times nothing but class. In addition to slugging the ball for a home circuit in the first, Wolff repeated his performance in the sixth, the ball each time falling within a few feet of the same spot.

The fast High Bridge team defeated Scotch Plains at the former place, Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 5, in one of the best games of the league season. So close was the contest that it was not decided until the last man was retired in the ninth inning. High Bridge started scoring in the first inning, putting a run over the plate on a couple of hits and errors.

Scotch Plains found Blackwell in its half of the third and succeeded in getting two runs, scoring a single in the fourth and two more in the fifth, but that ended the run-getting for the 'Plains, although they had several good chances to pass their opponents. Both McLaughlin and Slocum pitched good ball for the 'Plains, allowing but a total of seven hits. The 'Plains had to be satisfied with six hits off Blackwell, who was in fine form. A feature of the game was a squeeze play in which Flannery and Albert crossed the plate with Gray at the bat. The score:

Preached Two Strong Sermons.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church yesterday, morning and evening, preaching to a large congregation at the morning service. Both sermons were strong gospel discourses and were enjoyed. In the evening, Mr. Fletcher's theme was, "Limitations of Life," which he applied to every day conditions in a practical manner.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Temple Baptist church will hold a meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, 927 Central avenue, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This will be the last meeing of the season.

The vesper service at the Temple Baptist church last evening was held in the church instead of on the lawn, owing to the weather. Rev. Evarts C. Conover, the pastor, gave an interesting talk on the second of Christ's words from the Cross.

The Probasco Bible class will have charge of the mid-week prayer-meeting at the First Baptist church Wednesday night, and the class quartet will sing. The meeting will be held in the main auditorium and the ordinance of baptism will follow the service.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will hold its last meeting of the season in Vincent chapel, Friday evening, at which time there will be several short addresses appropriate to Independence Day, instead of a business session. All the men of the church are invited to attend.

Miss Florence Dickerson, of East Second street, has returned from a week's visit with friends at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

CITY RETAINS WALL

Engaged to Represent Municipality in Water Condemnation Proceedings.

TO PRINT BUILDING CODE.

Resolutions Adopted for Care of Fire Alarm System, for Street Repair Work and Purchases—Much Routine Work.

Albert C. Wall, an attorney of Jersey City, has been engaged as associate counsel by the city to conduct the condemnation proceedings in the matter of securing a municipal water supply. This action was taken at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council through a resolution offered by Councilman F. E. Mygatt, which was adopted. According to the resolution Mr. Wall is to render bills quarterly and the relation may terminate upon due notice. A certificate copy of the resolution appointing Mr. Wall as associate counsel was ordered sent to him in Jersey City.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, authorized the finance committee to expend $250 or as much of that amount as may be necessary to have the building code printed. Mr. Holt questioned the fact that the finance committee was to have charge of this work, believing that the fire committee should attend to it. Mr. Mygatt and Mr. Buxton both said that the fire committee could look after the work, but Mr. Taylor stated that it had always been customary for the finance committee to handle such matters and he favored a continuance of the custom. Mr. Holt voted in the negative on the resolution.

Several petitions were received and referred to the proper committees. On of these was from the residents of Lenox avenue and Laramie road asking that those thoroughfares be macadamized and sewers installed. H. P. Greenwood, of 1206 Cameron avenue, asked for permission to connect with a sewer at his own expense, and the matter will be considered by the sewer committee.

Judge Gilbert Collins informed the Common Council that the Kensington avenue extension matter, now in the courts, had gone over for the term. The report from the Board of Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room was referred to the finance committee and later ordered filed.

Residents of Leland avenue complained about the condition of that thoroughfare, and Mr. Gloak explained that work had been started on the avenue yesterday. Permission was given to a resident of St. Mary's avenue to connect with the sewer on Hill street at his own expense.

Through a resolution offered by Mr. Taylor and adopted, Allen B. Laing was awarded the contract to take care of the entire fire alarm system in the city, including the schools and hospital, for one year for the sum of $1,400 in twelve monthly payments. Mr. Laing's offer covering all the essential points was read and ordered filed. The Public Service Corporation informed the Common Council that it had insta'led eleven electric lights in various parts of the city as directed by previous resolutions.

Resolutions authorizing Mobus & Burke to repair West Front street between Grant and Plainfield avenues, were adopted. This work is now underway, is being necessary to start the work prior to the meeting of the Common Council. A resolution offered by Mr. Taylor and adopted, authorized the fire committee to purchase a bale of sponges for the use of the fire department at an expense not to exceed $2.90 a pound.

Ensign and Mrs. Hopkins Coming.

Ensign and Mrs. Hopkins, formerly in charge of the local branch of the Salvation Army, but now of Boston, will visit in this city on July 1, 2, 3, and 4 and will conduct a special series of meetings at the army's building on East Second street. During their stay here the ensign and his wife had a large circle of friends and their coming visit is looked forward to with much anticipation. Further announcements about the meetings will be made later.

Visiting Schoolmates.

Rev. William Chalmers, a graduate of Peddie Institute, but until recently pastor of a large Baptist church in Chicago, has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, schoolmates at Peddie. Mr. Chalmers was recently elected secretary for young people's work at the World's Baptist Alliance meetings in Philadelphia and he will devote his time in the future to that work.

SQUIRE HUGHES WARNS SEVEN YOUNG BATHERS

Seven young men from the North Plainfield High School were arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Hughes at Watchung last night for undressing in the open prior to taking a swim in the Watchung lake several days ago. The defendants were reminded of the fact that they could go swimming provided they made their preparations behind a screen. The case was then dismissed.

Many of Watchung's residents gathered at the court, which was held in a barn and a score of N. P. H. S. boys accompanied their school friends. After the decision of the judge was announced, William L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough, told the people of Watchung that he would give $25 toward the erection of a float for a swimming hole provided these young men were made members of the Township Improvement Society.

MRS. PHOEBE MARSH DIES IN 91ST YEAR

Mrs. Phoebe S. Marsh, one of the oldest residents of the borough, died last night at the home of her son-in-law, former Borough Councilman James K. Arnold, of Manning avenue, in her ninety-first year. She had been in ill health for the past four years and since last October had been confined to her bed.

Mrs. Marsh was well known to a large number of people in this city and in the borough, having lived in Plainfield and North Plainfield nearly all her life. For the last forty-two years she has made her home with her daughter and son-in-law at whose residence she passe daway.

Mrs. Marsh was born in this city on Front street, May 11, 1821, being the daughter of John and Charity Van Vliet, a well known family in this vicinity. She married Augustus Marsh in New Brunswick and the couple came to this city to live. Mr. Marsh died nearly fifty years ago.

Surviving Mrs. Marsh are Mrs. James K. Arnold, who was an only child, and three grandchildren, Mrs. Minnie Varian, Miss Nellie Arnold and James K. Arnold, Jr.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 from the home of James K. Arnold, 21 Manning avenue.

DID NOT ADVERTISE FOR SUPPLIES' BIDS

Several local coal dealers are disturbed over an apparent infraction of the law on the part of the Borough Board of Education in not advertising for bids for the coming year's supply of coal for the borough schools. The matter came up at a meeting of the Plainfield Coal Dealers' Credit Association, last night, and some of the individual dealers decided to investigate and learn whether the law had been complied with in this respect.

It was stated last night that only five or six dealers had been invited to submit bids, and that the whole thing was conducted with more or less secrecy. The dealers claim that according to law bids must be publicly advertised for and that the contract be awarded the lowest bidder.

A reporter for The Daily Press in conversation with Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the Board of Education, today, was informed that the matter of securing the supply of coal was left to the supply committee of the board of which Edmund Rushmore is chairman. He understood that the committee had sent out notices to the dealers who submitted bids last year, inviting them to bid again this year. Dr. Cooley was not sure that the law compelled the board to publicly advertise for bids, but he was under the impression that the law does not require this, that the board can secure bids in any way that is deemed best. Beyond that Dr. Cooley said that he could not discuss the matter.

"Last year," said Dr. Cooley, "I understand that all local dealers were invited to bid, but a number made no reply and this year the committee, I understand, decided to request figures from those who bid last year." The contract for next year's supply of coal was awarded to the Dunellen Coal & Supply Company.

The law requires that for all supplies in excess of $250 public advertisement must be made for bids, and in the case of repairs to school buildings such advertisement is compulsory for all amounts above $500. The city Board of Education had always inserted public advertisements in the newspapers inviting bids for coal.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Sovereign, of Somerset street, observed their fourth wedding anniversary last night by entertaining several of their friends at their home. Cards were played during the evening, Mrs. Arthur McVoy and Edward Laing winning the prizes while Mrs. William Tier and Albert Banks received the booby awards. After the card games refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Sovereign received several appropriate gifts in commemoration of the anniversary of their wedding.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laing, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Poinier, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Apgar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Mr. and Mrs. William Tier, Miss Jessie Garthewaite, and Albert Banks.

WON'T RECKON TIME BY A FIRE WHISTLE

Plainfield's town clock, in the steeple of the First M. E. church narrowly escaped destruction at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, when Councilman George S. Clay sought to put the timepiece out of running. The question came up when Councilman Buxton offered a resolution appropriating $30 to L. Moraller & Son, the Park avenue jewelers, to keep the clock going and in repair for one year, it being simply a renewal of the contract.

Mr. Clay said that he thought such an appropriation to be an unnecessary expense, and inasmuch as there is a fire whistle which blows at noon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, there was no apparent need of the town clock.

"This is the day of fads and fancies," said Mr. Clay, " and I believe that we should support the fire whistle and give up the town clock. I shall not vote for the resolution."

President Tolls, who comes from Connecticut, where a town clock is considered a most necessary part of the municipal government, was loyal to the local timepiece, saying that the striking of the clock was like music to his ears, and he strongly favored the continuance of the contract. Other members rallied to the support of Mr. Tolles and the clock and the resolution was finaly adopted. Mr. Clay alone voting in the negative.

During the discussion regarding the renewal of the contract, all sorts of questions were asked, such as how often is the clock wound up, how long will it run without winding if it will run a week with winding, does the clock belong to the city or the Methodist church, etc., all of which provoked a great deal of laughter on the part of the council.

SIMON ROTH FINED $10 AND SCORED BY COURT

Simon Roth was fined $10 in the city court this mcrning by Judge DeMeza, half the amount being the penalty for being an hour late in appearing in court and the other half for blocking the sidewalk at Lee place and West Third street, where he is building a house. The complaint was made by Street Commissioner Gavett, who was in court to press the charge. This is not the first time Roth has given the street department trouble of the same kind, Mr. Gavett said, but he had left the court before Roth's arrival.

Judge DeMeza, in no unmistakable language, defined the court's attitude to Mr. Roth.

P. C. C. to Celebrate.

The Plainfield Country Club is planning to have the usual celebration of July 4 at the club. There will be a band concert in the afternoon, and in the evening there will also be music by the band together with a fine display of fireworks. There will be dancing in the evening at the clubhouse and Superintendent John Hilton is planning for an unusually large numbers of members and guests for luncheon and dinner in the evening.

Value of Press Advs.

The book entitled "One of My Sons," which was advertised as lost in The Daily Press this week, was found by Baggagemaster William A Wilson, of the New Jersey Central, who saw the advertisement in The Daily Press and returned the book to the owner.

From Police Blotter.

Eugene Britton, the colored youth, caught in a raid on a crap game Sunday, was released on his own recognizance this morning by Judge W. G. DeMeza to appear for trial Saturday morning. By that time it is expected his companions will have been apprehended.

AFTER INJUNCTION

Argument in Action of Middlesex Water Co. to Prevent Boating on Lake.

SOUTH PLAINFIELDERS DEFTS.

Vice Chancellor Howell Reserves Decision in Suit Against W. E. and Philip Smith, Who Rent Boats on South Plainfield Pond.

Vice-Chancellor James E. Howell, in the Court of Chancery at Newark yesterday, reserved decision in the injunction proceedings brought by the Middlesex Water Company against William E. Smith and Phillip Smith, of South Plainfield, for conducting a boat business on the South Plainfield pond. William A. Coddington appeared as counsel for the defendants, while Frank Bergen was the lawyer for the water company. Two weeks ago the case was called up in the same court but Mr. Coddington obtained an adjournment until yesterday.

The action is the result of a disagreement several weeks ago when the water company attempted to prevent the Smiths from renting out their canoes and rowboats on the pond. In order to accomplish its purpose the water company employed several Italians to watch the lake, and the Smiths immediately gathered a crowd of the property owners and armed with guns, they drove the Italians from the shores of the beautiful body of water.

Frank Bergen, in arguing for a restraining order, claimed that the water company owned three-fourths of the land surrounding the pond and thus had the control of the water. He also declared that a long established custom did not give the right to the public to use the pond for pleasure purposes; that a charter to the company gave it the prior right to use the water for pumping to other towns; that by statute the company had a controlling right to the water and that polluting any stream, whose water was used for domestic purposes was contrary to law.

Mr. Coddington argued that the company did not own three fourths of the surrounding property for over 1,800 feet of the shore frontage belong to A. S. Manning and others. The counsel for the defendant also claimed that the company had not shown its right to divert the waters for private gain and that its rights were only those in common with the other property owners. He asserted that boating, fishing and cutting ice does not pollute a stream and that the company had failed to produce affidavits showing that the defendants had been guilty of contaminating the water. It was also stated by the counsel for the Smiths that since the boating business had been carried on under a license signed by all the property owners in the vicinity of the pond with the exception of the water company the defendants assumed their authority on right of prescription and loss of grant. It was shown by the deposition of William E. Smith and several others that the pond had been used for boating for the past sixty years, that the right to use this water had never been questioned and the property owners exercised the privilege to use the water for pleasure purposes without permission.

Mr. Coddington stated this morning that should an injunction be granted the case would be appealed.

DON'T WANT FIREMEN TO DO OTHERS' WORK

The Building Trades' Council in a communication to the Common Council last night entered a protest against the city allowing firemen at department headquarters to do work that, they assert, should be given to the mechanics of Plainfield. The basis for the complaint is that firemen have been varnishing the woodwork at headquarters, to save the city the expense of employing regular painters.

The Building Trades' Council has on other occasions called the attention of the Common Council to this question in an effort to have all city work performed by local mechanics. The communication was referred to the fire and building committee.

Held for Grand Jury.

Frank Marrone, the Italian arrested for threatening his companions with a revolver Sunday near the Netherwood station, was held under $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury, by Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. A disorderly charge lodged against Tony Wherry, Frank Alfenso and Frank Pasqueralla, the men threatened, was disposed of with suspended sentence.

LAWYER MUST SERVE TIME IN STATE PRISON

Unless the Court of Pardons intercedes in his behalf, Horace Codington, the Somerset county lawyer, who was found guilty of misappropriating the funds of Warren township, will have to serve the sentence orignially imposed that of eighteen months in States Prison. The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday at Trenton, sustained the Supreme Court in affirming the conviction of Codington.

Codington obtained the money through his brother Joel Codington, who was treasurer of the township and who has already served a term as the outcome of the same transaction. Codington has now exhausted every oppeal in the State courts except the Court of Pardons, and it is quite likely that he will appeal to that body.

SAVED A PLAYMATE FROM WATERY GRAVE

Although lauded as a hero by his playmates since he had pulled Gilbert Reid, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reid, of Washington avenue out of Stony brook this morning, Eustis Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus T. Small, of Rockview avenue, was scolded not because his clothing was drenched and bespattered with mud, nor was it due to the fact that he had saved Gilbert, who was considerably larger and unable to swim, from possible drowning, but because he had disobeyed in going to the brook to play.

Eustis and Gilbert with Eustis' sister, Florence, were on a raft about five feet square. They had constructed it out of the drift wood along the banks and were propelling it with poles. The ride down stream was a delight until Eustis' pole went into a hole causing him to lose his balance and pitch head foremost into the water, which owing to the recent rains and that particular spot is below the boys' depth.

The lurching of the craft caused by Eustis losing his balance caused Gilbert to topple over backwards into the water. Florence, with difficulty kept her footing. Eustis struck out and was near the bank. Looking over his shoulder he saw Gilbert struggling in the water and turning, he swam to his assistance. Fortunately the distance to the bank was not far and after a struggle both boys' feet touched bottom.

When Gilbert fell off the raft it was shoved toward the bank and Florence was able to make the shore safely. The boys are none the worse for their ducking but will remember the lesson they learned.

L. T. L. Annual Picnic.

The Loyal Temperance Legion held its annual picnic yesterday and through the kindness of Mrs. Percy Ohl, the children as well as members of the W. C. T. U., were permited to spend the day on her farm at the end of Central avenue. The party was given every courtesy, and at noon a fine luncheon was enjoyed. There were thirty-four children and grown-ups in the party and in the afternoon all kinds of games, horse back riding, rowing on the lake, etc.,were enjoyed The picnic was arranged by Mrs. Henry Thomas, superintendent of the Loyal Temperance Legion.

H. C. Zaiser Elected.

The Warren township committee at a special meeting last night vacated the office of the collector formerly held by John D. Bornmann, and elected Harry C. Zaiser to fill the position. The release was signed relieving Mr. Bornmann of his duties as custodian of township school funds, and this has been turned over to the township counsel, Codington & Swackhamer.

Arrest a Fugitive.

William Hurling, colored, was arrested in Somerville last night. The complaint is made by Mrs. William Green, colored, of West Second street mother of Clara Green, a seven year old girl. He will be brought to this city and arraigned for a hearing tomorrow morning.

YOUNGSTER GOT BEER AT POLISH RECEPTION

Decision was reserved by Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning on the complaint against Stanley Stokes and John Hensey,officers of the John III. Sobriesky Society, charged by Joseph Manhattan, president of the society, with having sold beer to his nine-year-old son, Stanley, on June 3.

A number of witnesses were heard on both sides explaining the custom of the society when a reception and entertainment are being held at which refreshments are served. A check system is used by the members, the checks being bought and exchanged for drinks. Mr. Manhattan gave his son some of these checks, it was alleged, and the lad after getting the beer took it to his father who was seated at a nearby table.

F. J. Blatz, counsel for the defendants, will submit a brief to the court before decision is rendered.

MOBUS & BURKE GET STREET WORK CONTRAT

Following the special meeting of the Common Council last night called to pass a particular ordinance, the regular adjourned session was held. Under a suspended order of business bids for macadamizing a number of streets in the city were received. Ten bids in all were received. Mobus & Burke, of this city, were the lowest bidders, Daniel Donovan, of Bayonne, was second and Osborn & Marcello Company, of Morristown, were third lowest. These bids will be considered by the street committee Thursday night and the contract to the successful bidder will be awarded at the regular July meeting. The bidders were as follows:

C. W. Traynor, Meriden, Conn.; Willard S. Konover, Trenton; Atkinson Construction Company, New York; Daniel Donovan, Bayonne; Mobus & Burke, Plainfield; John McNabb, Bound Brook; Charles H. Peckwith, New York city; Osborn & Marcello Company, Morristown; Little & Pfeifer, Perth Amboy; W. B Spencer for the Continental Public Work Company, New York.

These streets are to be macadamized: West Fifth and Sixth streets; East Sixth street, Webster place, Berckman street, Central street, Columbia avenue, Leland avenue, Essex street, Irving place, Central avenue and East Seventh street.

MAKE PAY PROMPT

Common Council Passes Ordinance Putting Time Limit on Mayor's Action.

ONLY ONE NEGATIVE VOTE.

City Fathers Plan to Prevent Mayor from Holding Up Payment of Claims and Makes His Attitude of No Consequence.

The ordinance providing for another method of paying city bills, that is, by authorizing the president of the Council, city clerk and city treasurer to sign all claims and not requiring the mayor's signature was passed on third reading at a special meeting of the Council last night after Councilman F. L. Holt entered a protest.

Under the new order of things the Mayor cannot hold bills or claims longer than ten days. Within that time he must return them to the clerk, but still vested with the power of approving or disapproving them within the time limit. The Council has full power, then, to pass or reject such bills and this action is final.

In protesting against the procedure, Mr. Holt said that he understood the reason for the ordinance was that the Mayor is withholding certain bills. In reply to a question Mr. Buxton asserted that he did not know of any other reason for adopting the ordinance. Explaining his opposition to changing the established procedure Holt declared that as the Mayor is the recognized head of the city it was not right, in his opinion, to take his power away. At the same time he frankly stated he did not approve of the Mayor's method of holding up bills.

Mr. Mygatt said that the ordinance was not intended to cover bills now held up, but rather future bills. Under the old method, he explained, there was no way of getting the bills back from the Mayor if he wanted to hold them, but under the provisions of the new ordinance they must be returned in ten days. He invited suggestions as to any other plan whereby the present difficulty could be overcome.

Asserting that he did not believe the Mayor to be so unreasonable as not to be open to argument, Mr. Holt suggested that the matter be taken up with him. Mr. Buxton stated that the Council had been very patient with the Mayor in this and other matters and it had been decided that the new ordinance is a necessity.

Claims aggregating possibly $500 were returned earlier in the evening by Mayor Moy, but they were neither approved or disapproved, although he signed the warrants. By doing this he put it up to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold as to wether the claims be paid or not. As Mr. Arnold was not willing to assume the responsibility he communicated with the Council. It is the intention of the finance committee now to ascertain whether the city can pay these bills and Judge Gilbert Collins will be consulted. There are bills aggregating about $3,000 which have been held up since the first of the year. A question arose after the meeting last night as to whether the finance committee knew of the return of the claims by Mayor Moy before passing the ordinance changing the method of paying the bills.

Among the bills returned last night were those of Judge Gilbert Collins for legal advice, aggregating $430; one of $50 from Judge William Newcorn, one from Judge W. A. Coddington for $122.75, another one of $750 for a team of horses from L. F. Hersh & Bro., one of $162.50 in settlement for one horse purchased from Fiss, Doer & Carroll and a number of minor bills. All of these claims were presented and then referred back to the finance committee. In answer to a question Mr. Buxton said that these were only part of the bills held up. Some of them were for very small amounts. On the vote to pass the ordinance on this reading all the members, except Mr. Holt voted in the affirmative. He voted against the ordinance.

Practises in U. S. Courts.

John H. VanWinkle, Jr., of the law firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son, of this city, was on Monday of this week admitted to practice in the United States Circuit and District Courts. The motion for his admission was made by Hon. John B. Vreeland, United States District Attorney, before Hon. John Relistab, Judge of the United States District Court.

Complaints Dismissed.

The charge of disorderly conduct against Nina Irby and John Becker preferred by Charles Irby was dismissed in the city court this morning by Judge W. G. DeMeza as the complainant was not in court. The case had been adjourned from time to time to give him a chance to appear.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Tomorrow at noon, Miss Janie Churchill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Churchill, of Washington avenue, will become the bride of John Pelham Faber, who has been living in Dunellen for the past year. The ceremony, which is to be performed by Rev. Ernest Brown, will take place at the home of the bride's parents.

The work of Mrs. E. L. Field, in the role of "Roxy" in "The Country Minister," which was presented by the Dunellen Dramatic Club last Thursday and Friday, is still the talk of the town. Mrs. Fields displayed remarkable dramatic talent, taking the part of the child at the fresh air home in a realistic manner.

The crowd, which attended "The Country Minister," in the Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall last Thursday and Friday evenings was the largest gathering that has ever been assembled in this auditorium. Every seat and every available bit of standing room was occupied both nights.

Thursday morning the Sunday-schools of the Dunellen Presbyterian and the New Market First and Seventh-Day Baptist churches will leave the borough on the first excursion of the season to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

The funeral services of Mrs. Margaret Blank, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Kirchner, Front street and Lincoln avenue.

At the Presbyterian church Sunday, Rev. Ernest Brown preached in the morning and Rev. Reed, of Somerville, was the speaker at the evening service.

George Huff, of North avenue, spent yesterday in Elizabeth on business.

SOMERVILLE.

A large number of Somerville people attended the wedding at 6 o'clock last evening of Miss Angeline S. Kuhl, daughter of Commander and Mrs. George Kline,, at their summer home, "The Moorings," at South Bound Brook, to Charles S. Southard, of Greeley, Col. Miss Kuhl is well known in Somerville, having lived here all her life. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Harry A. Smith, of Altamont place, and her bridemaid was Miss Elizabeth Anderson, of East Cliff street, Somerville. Among the guests were Mrs. Angeline Tunison, of South street, grandmother of the bride.

Cornelius Flynn, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Flynn, has succeeded in passing the final examination for admission to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and expects to enter that institution next month.

Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl returned from Budd Lake, where he was camping with his boys' club, to preach in his pulpit at the Second Reformed church. He returned to Budd Lake yesterday.

Miss Rose Winters nas been awarded the $5 gold piece given by General Frelinghuysen Chapter, D. A. R., for excellence in United States history at the parochial school in Raritan.

Miss Margaret Anderson, who was graduated this year from Mt. Holyoke College, has been appointed as one of the teachers in the Rahway public schools.

Judge Clarence C. Case, of West Cliff street, sailed Saturday on the White Star Line for Europe, where he expects to travel for two months.

Elwyn B. Quick, of Peddie Institute, is spending his summer vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Quick, on West Cliff street.

Miss Mary Demond, daughter of Surrogate William H. Demond, is home from St. Mary's College, where she was graduated on Friday.

Louis P. Gaston, of West Cliff street, has rented a house at Avon for the summer months and will leave with his family in a few days.

Miss Mary Griggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Griggs, of Division street, is spending several days at Silver Bay, Lake George.

Harry Haines and family have rented a cottage near Keyport for the summer months. They left a few days ago for three months.

Leo Godown returned to his home in Phillipsburg, Sunday, after spending a week with his cousin, Mrs. B. J. McNally.

Mrs. Clarence Lane and family, of Jersey City, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mundy, on South street.

Horace Vanderbeek, who was graduated Thursday from Cornell College, has returned to his home in Somerville.

Miss Grace Voorhees, of West Cliff street, has gone to Woodbridge to spend her summer vacation.

Mrs. Mary Lowell has gone to Lake George, where she expects to spend the next three months.

Miss Elizabeth Bagg left yesterday for Brattleboro, Vt., where she expects to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. David T. Lane are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Gulick, at New Germantown.

Mrs. John Brokaw, of Millstone, is visiting Mrs. Edward Wright, at Hackensack.

Miss Maud MacAfee, of East Somerville, is spending some time at Blackwood.

Miss Carrie Hibbler, of West High street, will spend two months in Morristown.

Mrs. D. N. Nevius has gone to Europe, where she will spend two months.

Mrs. Mary Wright has returned from Asbury Park, where she spent a week.

Miss Marie Undritz, of Raritan, is visiting relatives at Ithaca, N. Y.

WESTFIELD.

The managers of the Children's Country Home at Mountainside have taken for temporary keeping the child found at Embree Crescent last week. It was at first feared that the child would have pneumonia as a result of the exposure it had had, but it escaped that and is all right. Overseer of the Poor A. C. Fitch is looking for some one who will adopt it rather than place it in a home. In response to an appeal for clothing for the child, Mr. Fitch had been deluged with infants' clothing until now the youngster has enough clothing to last it for a year or more. One donor sent a pair of overalls with the suggestion that if they did not fit now, keep them until they did or sell them.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Edwards, of Embree Crescent, Westfield, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine T. Edwards and Thomas O. Young. The date of the wedding has not been announced.

WILL ORGANIZE EXEMPT FIREMEN

Passaic, June 27.—John Kennell, the recently elected president of the New Jersey Association of Exempt Firemen, will shortly start on a tour of the southern part of the State for the purpose of starting new exempt bodies. Mr. Kennell, who will probably be accompanied by Edward H. Smith, secretary of the Passaic association of Exempt Firemen, and one of the president's chief supporters in the recent campaign, will go all the way down to Cape May, and expects to start at least a score of exempt associations in the smaller towns.

Since his election, little more than a month ago, Mr. Kennell has been instrumental in organizing fifteen new associations in Northern Jersey. The last of these is the Wallington association, the formation of which was completed last week.

The election of Mr. Kennell as head of the State association was not the result of a campaign over night, but followed nearly a score years' work by him in the interest of the volunteer fighters.

Mr. Kennell for many years was a leading spirit in the old volunteer department of this city. He held all the offices in his company, Rescue Truck, and was assistant chief of the department. He organized the Association of Exempt Firemen, and for three or four years kept it alive, almost single-handed. Practically alone, he contended that the Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association here was not organized so as to entitle it to the volunteer firemen's fund for widows and orphans. He said it did not legally hold the money, and contended that the State Department of Banking and Insurance might step in at any minute and take the funds. The Association of Exempt Firemen was organized legally, he contended, and was the only local association which could legaly hold the firemen's savings.

There was no particular personal benefit for Mr. Kennell in his fight to have the association of Exempt Firemen recognized here—he was arguing for the welfare of the great body of exempt volunteers in the city. His contentions were at last recognized, when the volunteer department here was about to be turned over into a paid organization, and now the Association of Exempt Firemen has the funds of the old volunteers and is in flourishing condition.

As vice president of the Sixth congressional district, of the State Association of Exempt Firmen, for two years, Mr. Kennell did a good work, a fact which State volunteers recognize. His tireless energy will doubtless make his record one of the best among residents of the organization he leads.

DEMOCRATS RILED IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Somerville, June 27.—When Samuel S. Swackhamer threw down the gauntlet last week in the race for Senator in Somerset county, it caused a stir in Democratic circles. Up to that time George M. La Monte, the present Assemblyman, had his campaign well oiled. At a recent meeting of the Democratic county committee Mr. La Monte obtained official indorsement and his friends thought this would ensure his nomination. On the contrary, it proved a boomerang which is likely to result in disaster.

Mr. La Monte's first appearance in Somerset politics was last fall, when the Wilson wing of the party was casting around for a candidate. The usual custom in this county is to give a man two terms in the Assembly. It was expected that Mr. La Monte would be a candidate for re-election, and he would doubtless receive the unanimous support of his party in that event. Ever since his election, however, so many Democrats say, he has had a weather eye on the nomination for Senator this year. He had Michael W. Scully, chairman of the county committee, appointed on the county Tax Board and when Scully called the committee together to present his resignation it gave Mr. La Monte the opportunity he sought. He invited the committee to a dinner after its business session at the Somerset Hotel, and while they were in a mellow mood, Mr. Scully suddenly sprung the indorsement of La Monte. It went through like clockwork and at once got wide publication.

Many of the rank and file of the party, however, took offense at what they declared was a concerted effort to influence the primaries. They said it was useless to have direct primaries if the county committee was going to interfere in this way. Mr. La Monte has been an active participant in church suppers and other social functions, but the opposition to his candidacy has increased.

Mr. Swackhamer was a candidate for the Assembly nomination last fall, but was not successful. He took an active part in the Wilson campaign, and after the election was desirious of getting a judicial appointment. He did not get the Circuit Court judgeship, which went to Nelson Y. Dungan.

Mr. Swackhamer's entrance into the Senatorial fight is a serious menace to La Monte's candidacy. He is a good campaigner and is personally popular. He is regarded as more democratic in his methods than La Monte, who is a wealthy resident of Bound Brook.

Besides this, Swackhamer comes from North Plainfield, which casts a large vote and is a pivotal point in all county elections.

As La Monte and Swackhamer both belong to the Wilson wing of the party, it is possible that a third candidate will appear before the primaries in September.

The Republicans will come up to the primaries with a united front, according to the present outlook. Former Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of oBund Brook, is the only candidate mentioned up to the present time. Senator Frelinghuysen has not made any public announcement of his intention to withdraw from the Senate, but it is generally understood that he will not be a candidate for re-election. He is chairman of the county committee and is the recognized leader of the party in the county. Mr. Smalley was three times elected to the Assembly by increasing majorities and is very popular in all parts of the county. Governor Wilson expressed his high regard for Mr. Smalley last winter by appointing him as a member of the State Forest Commission.

PRODIGY'S FATHER ON TEACHING OF CHILDREN.

Boston, June 27.—How to raise a race of child prodigies ready for college at eleven is explained by Professor Boris Sidis, of Harvard College, in an essay he has just written. Professor Sidis' son, now thirteen, has just completed his second year at Harvard.

"As long as the home is dominated by commercial ideals, the school will turn out mediocre tradesmen," says Professor Sidis. "What wonder that the children of ten and eleven can hardly read and write, are little brutes and waste away their precious life in the close, dusty, overheated rooms of the early grades of some elementary school?

"There is a period in the child's life, between the ages of five and ten, when he is very inquisitive. Everything should be open to the child's searching interest. The spirit of inquiry, the genius of man is more sacred than any abstract belief, goma and creed. I appeal to you, fathers and mothers, and to you, liberal minded readers, asking you to turn your attention to the education of your children to the training of the younger generation of future citizens. I do not appeal to our official educators, to the clerks of our teaching shops, for they are beyond all hope.

"The present school system squanders the resources of the country and wastes the energies and lives of our children. The school system should be abolished and with it should go the present psychologizing educator, the schoolmaster and the school 'marm.

"Being in a barbaric stage, we are afraid of thought. We are under the erroneous nervousness and mental disorders. We do not take care to develope a love of knowledge in our children's early life for fear of brain injury, and then when it is too late to acquire the interest we force them to study and we cram them and feed them and stuff them like geese. What you often get is fatty degeneration of the mental liver."

SOLONS BITTER OVER COLLEAGUES' ARREST.

Atlantic City, June 27.—Their ire aroused because of the arrest of two of their colleagues, Joel Mason and Albert Sachise, the Ventnor Council has decided to meet in special session this evening to take drastic action toward bringing about the removal of every pipe line operated by the Hess Dredging Company.

It was this company that caused the arrest of Mason and Sachise, after they had led in an onslaught on the company's plant, which continued in operation in face of notice to stop for the summer because of the odors arising from the sand pumped from the ocean to fill in land owned by the Ventnor syndicate.

Councilmen Mason and Sachise will be given a hearing this morning before Magistrate Jagmetty, who issued the warrants, charging them with malicious mischief.

FORMER NEW JERSEYMAN ENTHUSED OVER WILSON.

Los Angeles, June 27.—Nearly 1,000 sons and daughters of the State of New Jersey gathered in Eastlake Park Saturday for a real old-fashioned picnic and to talk over bygone days.

President Judge Belmont Perry aroused immense enthusiasm by telling of the prominent part played in the early history of California by New Jersey men. Also—and this won the loudest cheers of all—he read a letter from Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, who he declared, was destined to be the next President of the United States.

A deep-throated New Jersey cheer followed his prediction.

WEDDING BELLS NOT TO RING.

Trenton, June 27.—Although Miss Mary Watson, daughter of James Watson, of Wilmington, Del., told Karl Ludwick Herrimann, of Detroit, Mich., at least three weeks prior to her journey to this city, where she is being entertained at the home of her sister, Mrs. Alvin N. Bugbee, of Rutherford avenue, that she had decided not to become his wife, that young man journeyed to this city and endeavored to persuade the young woman to change her mind.

Miss Watson declared that the condition of her health at present had caused her to alter her plans, and even though the young man remained here for three days, he was unsuccessful in his endeavors to have carried out the wedding plans, which had nearly been perfected.

TO UNVEIL MEMORIAL WINDOW.

Asbury Park, June 27.—The stained glass window in the First Baptist church, erected in honor of Founder James A. Bradley, will be unveiled next Sunday afternoon. An address will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Marshall V. McDuffie, in which he will tell of the work of Mr. Bradley in developing Asbury Park.

Dr. Aaron Ballard, president of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association, will represent Ocean Grove, and Mayor T. Frank Appleby will speak for Asbury Park. The window was paid for by subscriptions from the church members and others.

ECONOMY JARS WILL KEEP YOUR FRUIT PERFECT

When your fruits are "Economy Preserved" you can be absolutely certain that they will keep perfectly until you want to use them. They cannot spoil as the sanitary composition in the cap seals them to stay sealed.

Come in and let us show you how simple and how easy it is to preserve in the "Economy Way."

Here's the recipe:

Cook your fruit YOUR OWN WAY. Then while hot pour into Economy Jars and place caps on, using spring which comes with them to hold cap in place.

When cool there is about fifteen pounds suction holding the cap on to stay.

Order a dozen Economy Jars at once.

Price per dozen—1-qt. size, $1.20; 2-qt. size, $1.40.

Warren Picnic August 24.

Washington, N. J., June 27.—The Warren County Farmers' Picnic Association decided Saturday to hold the picnic in the county park, Belvidere, Thursday, August 24. Governor Woodrow Wilson will be the principal speaker. It had been the custom of recent years to hold the picnic on a Wednesday, owing to that day being observed as a half holiday by the stores of Easton and Phillipsburg. August 24, however, was the only date the Governor had open, and the picnic date was changed accordingly. Several other towns were bidders for the big gathering this year, but the conveniences of the county park overcame the objections to the inconveniences in reaching Belvidere, and the committee decided to continue the custom of meeting at the present county seat.

TROLLEY CAR CRASHES INTO A WAGON OF "BOOZE."

A main line troley bound from Elizabeth ran into one of the Plainfield Transportation Company's wagons on Richmond street, yesterday afternoon and the driver, Alex. Zega, of East Sixth street, was badly cut and bruised . He was removed to his home and is under the care of a physician. The team was knocked down and cut and the contents of the wagon, mostly bottled goods being delivered for Mrs. Lena Hoerster, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, were almost a total loss.

Dogs in Chicken House.

J. B. Cottrell, of West Sixth street was aroused late last night by a commotion in his chicken coop and 'phoned to the police. Patrolman Nolan found that the cause of the disturbance was two tramp dogs that had gained entrance to the coop and were chasing the chickens about. One prize-winning rooster had been killed. The dogs were caught and tied up. If not claimed they will be killed.

Plainfield Lodge Elects.

TRAMP HELD AS TRAIN WRECKER

Jersey City, June 27.—On a charge of having wrecked a Lehigh Valley Railroad freight train in the Greenville yard at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Henry Brittner, twenty-five years old, no home, was held for examination in the First Criminal Court, by Judge Farmer.

It is believed that Brittner is of unsound mind, or, if he is not that, he is feigning insanity to escape the consequences of his crime. The lives of several men were imperiled. Brittner will not tell anything concerning himself and refuses to give his reasons for wrecking the train.

The railroad men at first talked of lynching him. As it was he was badly manhandled before being turned over to the local police.

When the wreck occurred the yard engines were busy drilling freight trains. Hundreds of men were at work in various parts of the freight terminal. Bittner had been seen earlier in the night sneaking around the yard and had been driven away by the railroad police. He was routed out of a box car in which he was sleeping and was threatened with arrest if he was found in the yard again.

Engineer Joseph Armstrong was cutting out half a dozen cars from a long line of freight cars. He coupled up with the train and received the signal that the track was clear. Backing the train down he was startled by a cry of alarm from the fireman. William Ryer, and by a grinding and crunching of splintering wood and buckling iron. Luckily his engine was not going at a high speed and he shut off the power quickly.

Ryer jumped from the engine in time to hear a man shout, with an oath, "That will fix you!" and to see a shadow disappear across adjoining tracks. Three of the freight cars had been thrown from the tracks and one was smashed to bits. Two other tracks were put out of business by the wreck.

The fireman called to Armstrong, who blew an alarm whistle which aroused every man in the yard. Armstrong joined in the chase with the others. The fugitive ducked in and out of the cars and led the pursuers a chase before he was finally captured by Special Officer Joseph Donohue.

Fifty railroad men crowded around Donohue and his prisoner and tried to seize Brittner. Several succeeded in striking him, while Donohue, who saw that the fellow acted queerly, begged the enraged men to desist.

"Boys; he's nutty," said Donohue. "Let him alone."

Donohue finally took Brittner to the Ocean Avenue Police Station. The officials of the railroad company have asked that the man be examined as to his sanity.

It took over two hours to clear the tracks of the wreckage of the three cars.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Grand Regent Joseph M. Arnold, of Princeton, was a visitor at the meeting of Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, last night, as was also a large delegation from Fireside Council, of Westfield, the occasion being the thirty-fourth anniversary of the local council, which was fittingly observed.

The visit of the Grand Regent was not of an official nature but merely a friendly one promised previous to his being elevated. He made an appropriate address during the business meeting which was followed by light refreshments.

Will Hold Annual Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Primary Graded Union wil be held on Thursday. The members wil take the trolley leaving the Watchung avenue stand at 10 o'clock in the morning, the destination being the mountains near the home of Mayor N. B. Smalley. If it rains the picnic wil be held on Friday.

Clan Mackenzie Active.

At the meeting of Clan Mackenzie, No. 204, Order of Scottish Clans, held last night several candidates were received and instructed in the mysteries known to the Clansmen. Other business of importance to the clan was transacted.

It's a Girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Giles are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a daughter.

REAR ADMIRAL NORTON DEAD

Westfield, June 27.—Rear-Admiral Charles Stuart Norton, U. S. N., retired, is dead. He succumbed to heart disease at his home, 524 Lawrence avenue, here Saturday. He had been in poor health for a long time. His last thoughts were of duty and in his dying moments he repeatedly referred to the "running up of the colors at daylight."

The funeral services were held last evening. Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans, of the Presbyterian church here, officiated. The body will be shipped to Washington today for interment in Arlington cemetery.

Rear-Admiral Norton was born in Buffalo, N. Y., August 10, 1836. He entered Annapolis Academy in 1851 and was one of the only two surviving men of the fourteen men of his class. He became master of the Seminole shortly before the Civil War. He served under Admiral Dupont and under Admiral Farragut on the Hartford in the battle of Mobile Bay.

The veteran's last sea service was when he was in command of the Southern Pacific Squadron in 1898, and his flagship was the Newark. He returned unaccompanied by other ships of the squadron. As the Newark came down New York Bay she was accorded a big reception in the harbor, the commander of the White Squadron recognizing the Newark and lowered his colors in respect to the senior officer.

After his Southern voyage Admiral Norton was placed in command of the Washington Navy Yard, and served there throughout the Spanish-American War. In 1900 he went to Brooklyn to live and later moved to Cranford.

Five years ago he moved to this place. He was the last but one of the male members of his family, all of whom served their country. His only brother, F. L. Norton, resides at 315 Union avenue, Cranford, and is a special agent of the Treasury Department. Admiral Norton was twice married. He is survived by a widow and an adopted daughter, Miss Frances Norton, of this town.

SHORE POSTAL SAVINGS BANK GETS GOOD START.

Long Branch, June 27.—Before noon yesterday nearly a dozen accounts had been opened at the new Postal Savings Bank that began business here at the opening of the Long Branch Postoffice.

Harry C. Siebel, clerk in charge, reports an active business for the opening. "I am more than pleased with the interest manifested," said he.

Accounts are being opened by children and numerous applications are being made for dime savings cards. The accounts were opened by laboring people, who began making inquiries soon after Long Branch was designated as the first resort to have a postal savings bank.

Asbury to Hear Bankers.

Asbury Park, June 27.—Group 1 of the New Jersey Bankers' Association, which is made up of banks in Middlesex County, will meet at the Hotel Bristol tonight. Addresses will be made by Judge Adrain Lyon, of Perth Amboy; H. H. Pond, of Plainfield, president of the New Jersey Bankers' Association; Harry Conard, of Perth Amboy; Mayor T. Frank Appleby, and the presidents of the local banks, Henry C. Winsor, James M. Ralston and W. J. Couse.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW AS TOLD TO Hugh S. Fullerton

By OTTO KNABE.

Second Baseman Philadelphia Nationals, and One of the Highest Ranking and Cleverest Infielders in the Country.

I had a hard time trying to decide what I really believe was the greatest play I ever saw. There are four or five that I remember vividly—but then one forgets many of them after a number of years in the business. When I settled down to think which was the best I found I had overlooked the one, or rather it had slipped my memory, as it happened four years ago. I don't recall that anyone ever spoke of it, except the following day or two, and I've forgotten what team it was made against.

Mike Doolan and Magee made the play in a rather unimportant game. I remember we were down in the race, that it was rather late in the season, and that we were playing against some team that was further down than we were. If the play had been made in some decisive contest it would have been historic. Anyhow, we had a run or two to the good, and opposing team had the bases full and no one out, and it was near the end of the game.

The batter hit one of those short dropping flies that are so hard for either the short stop or the left fielder to reach when they are aimd at the right spot. Doolan is a wonderful man at running out with his back straight to the plate and catching that kind of fly ball. This day Magee was playing deep, so far out that he hadn't a chance to reach the ball, and it was dropping over so far out that it didn't seem possible for Mike to reach it. In fact if the base runners hadn't known so well that Doolan caught that kind very often they would all have been running, at least two would have scored if it fell safe, and we would have had a triple play if Doolan caught the ball. But they knew Doolan too well. The runner on third stood on the base ready to start and the others came up only a short distance. Doolan was tearing outward just as fast as he could go straight toward left, and Magee was coming in to grab the ball on the bound if it fell safe. Doolan reached the ball while stretching to the full limit and stuck to it. The moment he caught it the runner on third took a jump and started homeward. There wasn't a chance on earth for Doolan to stop, turn and throw his man out at the plate, and it seemed certain that the run would count, and that if he tried a throw home the other runners would advance an extra base and that a base hit would beat us.

Doolan knew he couldn't throw—and he didn't try. He yelled at Magee and like a flash fired the ball to him, and Magee, grabbing the throw while still coming in, made a perfect shot to the plate and nailed the runner by at least five feet.

I remember Charlie Dooin, now our manager, was catching, and the ball came a little inside the plate, so far that he couldn't stay in the line and catch it and block the runner at the same time, so to complete the remarkable play, he stepped in, grabbed the ball and dived back into the runner head first and tagged him out.

For quick thinking and acting I believe it was the most wonderful play I ever saw.

Wanted—A Name for Britain.

However, big things get along without a name sometimes. Nobody has ever invented the right word for this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland (with a mention of the Isle of Man and the channel islands). But Washington has the same difficulty as London, and is only one among the "United States" of North America. And we can hardly hope that the puzzle-solver will make a reputable name out of our initials, which are E. S. I. W. M. C., England, Scotland, and so on to the channel islands. You might try your hand to arrange them for your address, but avoid "Swimce."—London Chronicle.

A Rude Thanksgiving.

Cynic—In view of the Supreme court decision about trusts, it is a good thing that women are not yet in judicial positions.

Club Woman—Why not, sir?

Cynic—Just imagine a court of women trying to decide anything by the rule of reason.

HEALTH SOCIETY BARS KISSES

Consumption, Smallpox and Other Contagious Diseases Sure to Spread in This Manner.

"Kiss not," is the motto of the World's Health organization, of which Mrs. Imogene Rechtin of Cincinnati is president. Mrs. Rechtin explains that the object of the movement is to lessen the spread of consumption and insists that the "Kiss not" pledges should be taken and kept by every school teacher in the country.

"Teachers and pupils both will benefit by it," declares Mrs. Rechtin. "A sweet-faced kindergarten teacher kissed her pupils good-by, saying, 'I will take a good rest this summer. In the fall I will give you more games; they tire me now.' She died of consumption in the middle of August. Were the children exposed to consumption? Had the disease been diphtheria or smallpox would they have been exposed to it?

"Since you cannot quarantine against consumption, nor vaccinate against consumption, how will we control it?

"It takes whole families to the grave. We get it into our system through our noses and mouths. As far as possible we safeguard our noses by avoiding dust. We have no way of protecting our mouths. Quarantine them, if I may be allowed to use the word in this way. Teach the little ones to quarantine their mouths. With a land teeming with consumption we should always love our relatives and friends. Teachers and others will always love the little folks, but should love them too well to kiss them.

"Our health officer says 'Kiss only your enemies.'

"We have a very pretty club button bearing our motto, 'Kiss Not,' in red letters on a white background. A prominent physician said: 'If one of those buttons could be put upon the bib of every new-born baby and worn till the child is eighty years old there would be more old people than there are today.'"

PERIOD OF FEATHER GROWING

There Is Considerable Variation in the Time Required for Individual Fowls to Complete Molting.

It is variously asserted that the time required for the growth of a body feather on a healthy fowl is approximately 42 days, while the time needed to develop the tail is somewhat longer. This refers to plucked feathers. The usual molting period of a hen cannot, however, be accurately calculated from this estimate. In the experiment under consideration the average time of complete molting in the six flocks, containing at the end of the molting season, 215 hens, was 95 days. The average time required to complete the molt of the three-year-olds was nearly 104 days; of the two-year-olds, about 101 days, and of the one-year-olds, 82 days. The starved one-year-olds averaged to molt more quickly by 33 days than did the fed; the starved two-year-olds were little affected, while the starved three-year-olds average 20 days longer in molting than did the fed birds. The average time required to complete the molt of the three starved flocks was 93.3 days; of the three fed flocks, 97.4 days.

All this would indicate that the molting process continues much longer than is usually supposed, and that there is considerable variation in the time of beginning the molt between different individuals and between flocks of different ages, also a wide variation in the length of time it requires individuals to complete the molt. One is further impressed with the fact that, so far as this experiment is concerned, the method of feeding did not materially alter the normal conditions of molting, except with the one-year-old fowls.

Old Firearms in Historic House.

Much excitement prevailed the other morning when the historic old residence owned by C. E. Burd was destroyed by fire. Within the walls of the structure were hidden a small arsenal of firearms, rifles and pistols, all loaded, and when the heat of the building reached them a regular Fourth of July bombardment began.

The house was one of the old landmarks of the town, having been built before the Civil war. D. Offett, a southern soldier, had recently written to the owner of the property that the Confederates had stored guns and ammunition in the walls of the old structure during the war, but Mr. Burd was unable to get at the relics owing to the fact that the building had been remodeled and strong walls had been built around the old ones.

The much prized relics, consisting of ante bellum firearms of the crudest make, were hidden in the walls of the old structure in order to get them at the end of the struggle.—Enterprise Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Birds Killed by Golf Balls.

Not long ago one of the players in a golf tournament at Melrose while making an approach shot killed a seagull and another player on coming on from his drive found that he had annihilated a weasel. Such incidents are not uncommon.

A player on the Kirkdale links driving from the tee struck with his ball a bird at a distance of about forty yards. The ball traveled on with scarcely abated speed. The bird fell to the ground and when picked up was found not only to be dead, that was expected, but neatly decapitated. —Countryside Monthly.

WHERE TUBS PRECEDE BOOKS

Denmark School Children Must Bathe Before They File In for Prayers and Recitations.

Denmark is one of the cleanest countries imaginable. In a Copenhagen public school one may see an interesting sight. Mounting the spotless stone staircase to the first flight every morning you may see at eight o'clock the children assemble and answer to their names and then march to a dressing room. Here they undress, and each child neatly folds its clothes and puts the tidy bundle on the floor. Then the children go into a small square room with shelves all around and on these shelves are innumerable wooden tubs, such as we use in America for washing, with two iron bands around them. Everything is in immaculate order. The teacher gives each child a tub and he or she takes it to an immense and well lighted washroom.

Of course the boys and girls are washed separately, and they perform this ablution by grade, the tiniest ones coming first. The floor of the wash room is of cement and in the center is a latticed wooden floor. Around the top of the walls runs a nickel shower pipe, the water of which is regulated by the teacher. Under these showers at the height where the small figures can reach, are nickel stands with soap and the stiffest hog bristle brushes which make one shiver. Nearby is a faucet.

Each child puts his or her tub under the faucet and pours the necessary amount of water into it and proceeds to scrub—not himself or herself—but the child in front. When all are clean the teacher turns on the showers and they are all thoroughly rinsed with first hot and then cold water. Each child is obliged to empty its own tub, then the clean, rosy little bodies dry themselves with rough towels, standing on the wooden latticed floor. Each tub has to be carefully put away, the children dress themselves and they file in for prayers and the business of recitation begins.—Youth's Companion.

WILL BUILD RUSSIAN CANAL

Minimum Depth of Proposed Canal Between Black and Baltic Seas to Be Fourteen Feet.

A committee has been formed at St. Petersburg to prepare for the construction of a canal between the Black Sea and the Baltic. The engineering project, which has been prepared by M. Rugetschel, is to build a canal with a minimum depth of 14 feet. The original project was to have a canal 21 feet deep, so as to allow the passage of large warships, but the government rejected this on the ground that sufficient water could not be found to feed such a canal.

The total length of the canal from Riga to Kherson is 2010 versts, a verst measuring 3,501 feet. Of this 485 versts would follow the bed of the West Dwina from Riga to the village of Breshenkovichi. From there the canal would follow a new route for 95 versts, joining the Dnieper at the town of Koplus. For the remaining 1,520 versts the Dnieper would be utilized, except at the rapids, where a new canal would have to be excavated.

The Dnieper would require dredging at many points. The Dwina would have to be made into a canal for its entire length and would require 15 locks. The water would be drawn from the Beresina by a canal 125 versts long.

The cost of the canal is estimated at $150,000,000. The plan is to raise money by bonds on the foreign market, but to exclude foreigners from holding any of the share capital. The government is to be asked for a guarantee, and only Russian labor, material and machinery are to be used. The promoters rely on a gross annual revenue of $16,950,000.—London Correspondence New York Sun.

He Sailed on the Constitution.

John Lowe, who once was a member of the crew of the historic frigate Constitution, has died at his home in Portsmouth, N. H., after a short illness. He was born in New York January 9, 1824. When he was seventeen years old both of his parents died. After a limited amount of schooling he learned the trade of a stone mason, but in 1853 he enlisted in the Marine Corps at Brooklyn navy yard and after a short stay at the yard barracks was assigned to the Constitution, then commanded by Commodore Isaac Mayo. The ship soon left New York for Gibraltar and a cruise in the Mediterranean and returned to this country in 1855. On the expiration of his enlistment Mr. Lowe, re-enlisted in 1856 and went to the Portsmouth naval station in the vessel when she was sent there to be rebuilt. He was transferred to the marine barracks at the navy yard and served out his second term of enlistment.

Great in More Ways Than One.

"One peculiarity of automobiles that I don't remember to have heard mentioned," said a man who had just sent a suit of clothes to the cleaner, "is found in their great bility as mud and slush splashers.

"An ordinary narrow rimmed wheel cuts into mud and slush and doesn't scatter either so much, but the broad, round faced tire of an automobile moving rapidly throws wide sheets and sprays far out from its wheels. When you see an automobile coming swiftly along a muddy or slushy street you want to stand back—'way back. This I have learned by experience."

Whatever occurred above, it was over with very shortly. Those listening at the foot of the stairs heard the first gentle rap on the door, an outburst of profanity, followed almost instantly by a sharp snap, as if a lock had given way, then brief scuffling mingled with the loud creaking of a bed. Scarcely a minute later the marshal appeared on the landing above, one hand firmly gripped in the neck-band of an undershirt, thus securely holding the writhing, helpless figure of a man, who swore violently every time he could catch his breath.

"Any other room you could conveniently assign Mr.—ah—Montgomery to, Tommy?" he asked pleasantly. "If he doesn't like it in the morning, he could be changed, you know."

"Give—give him '47.'"

"All right. I'm the bell-boy temporarily, Montgomery; easy now, my man, easy, or I'll be compelled to use both hands. 'Red,' carry the gentleman's luggage to '47'—he has kindly consented to give up his old room to a lady—come along, Montgomery."

It was possibly five minutes later when he came down, still smoking, his face not even flushed.

"Montgomery is feeling so badly we were obliged to lock him in," he reported to the clerk. "Seems to be of a somewhat nervous disposition. Well, good-night, Doctor," he lifted his hat. "And to you, Miss, pleasant dreams."

Hope watched him as he stepped outside, pausing a moment in the shadows to glance keenly up and down the long street before venturing down the steps. This quiet man had enemies, hundreds of them, desperate and reckless; ceaseless vigilance alone protected him. Yet her eyes only, and not her thoughts, were riveted on the disappearing marshal. She turned to Fairbain, who had risen to his feet.

"I wish I might see, him, also," she said, as though continuing an interrupted conversation.

"See him? Who?"

"Mr. Keith. I—I knew him once, and—and, Doctor, won't you tell him I should like to have him come and see me just—just as soon as he can."

CHAPTER XXII.

An Interrupted Interview.

Miss Christie Maclaire, attired in a soft lounging robe, her luxuriant hair wound simply about her head, forming a decidedly attractive picture, gazed with manifest dissatisfaction on the bare walls of her room, and then out through the open window into the comparative quiet street below. The bar-tender at the "Palace," directly opposite, business being slack, was leaning negligently in the doorway. His roving eyes caught the fair face framed in the window, and he waved his hand encouragingly. Miss Christie's brown eyes stared across at him in silent disgust, and then wandered again about the room, her foot tapping nervously on the rag carpet.

"It's my very last trip to this town," she said decisively, her red lips pressed tightly together.

Miss Maclaire had indeed ample reason to feel aggrieved over her reception. She had written to have the best apartment in the house reserved for her, and then, merely because she had later been invited out to Fort Hays, and was consequently a day behind in arrival, had discovered that another woman—a base imposter, actually masquerading under her name—had been duly installed in the coveted apartment. Driving in from the fort that morning, accompanied by two of the more susceptible junior officers, conscious that she had performed most artistic work the evening before in the spacious mess-hall, and feeling confident of comfortable quarters awaiting her, it had been something of a shock to be informed by the perturbed clerk that "15" was already occupied by another. "A lady what come in last night, and I naturally supposed it was you."

In vain Miss Maclaire protested, ably backed by the wrathful officers who still gallantly attended her; the management was obdurate. Then she would go up herself, and throw the hussy out. Indeed, too angry for bantering further words, Christie had actually started for the stairs, intending to execute her threat, when the perspiring Tommy succeeded in stopping her, by plainly blurting out the exact truth.

"Don't you ever do it," he insisted. "The marshal brought her in here, and fired a fellow out o' the room so as to give it to her. He'd clean out this house if we ran in a cold deck on a friend o' his."

"What do I care for what your marshal does?"

"But he's Bill Hickock, Miss, 'Wild Bill.'"

Miss Maclaire leaned back against the stair-rail, her eyes turning from Tommy to her speechless supporters. Slowly the truth seemed to penetrate her brain.

"Oh," she gasped at last. "Then—then what else can you give me?"

The officers had long since departed, promising, however, to remain over in town and hear her again that night at the Trocadero, with hints as to a late supper; she had received a call from the manager of that most popular resort, and had rendered his life miserable by numerous demands; had passed half an hour practicing with the leader of the orchestra; but now was at last alone, tired, decidedly irritable, and still tempted to invade "15," and give that other woman a piece of her mind. Then some one rapped on the door. There was a decided accent of vexation in the voice which bade the one outside enter, but the lady's mood changed swiftly as her brown eyes perceived standing in the doorway the erect form of Keith, the light from the window revealing clearly his strong face. The man stood hat in hand, bowing slightly, unable to comprehend why he should have been sent for, yet marvelling again at the remarkable resemblance between this woman and that other whom he had left at Fort Larned. As Miss Maclaire stood with back toward the window, she presented the same youthful appearance, the same slenderness of figure, the same contour of face.

"Miss Christie Maclaire?" he asked, as though in doubt.

"Yes," graciously, won instantly by the man's appearance and manner, "you wished to see me? Will you be seated?"

He crossed the narrow room to the stiff-backed chair indicated, and the lady sank negligently down into her own, resting her head against a pillow, and regarding him expectantly. He could view her now much more distinctly, observing the slight difference in age, the fuller lips, the darker shade of the hair, and the varied expression of the eyes. It was as if a different soul had looked forth from the same face. He had never before realized how little, apparently trifling, details marked the human countenance, and, embarrassed by her own scrutiny, his glance swept about the room. Misunderstanding this shifting of eyes, Miss Christie sought to place the man more at ease.

"The room is a perfect fright," she observed briskly, "but what can one expect in these mushroom towns. Really I had never been here before, or I shouldn't have come. They pay good money though for talent, and we all have to live, you know. Are—are you in professional work?"

He shook his head, smiling, somewhat perplexed at his reception.

"Really I didn't suppose you were," she went on, "you don't look it. But there are so many who come to me to help them that I have grown suspicious of every stranger. May I ask why you desired to see me?"

Another suspicion had taken possession of her mind, for the men of that section were never backward in exhibiting admiration, yet somehow this man did not seem exactly of that kind.

"I came merely because I was sent for, Miss Maclaire," he replied, his gray eyes once again upon her face. "Doctor Fairbain gave me your message; I am Jack Keith."

She looked the complete astonishment she felt, sitting up in the chair, her eyes filled with questioning doubt.

"Doctor Fairbain! My message! Surely you are mistaken? I know no one of that name, and have sent no message."

"You did not express a desire to see me?"

She laughed, exhibiting a row of white teeth.

"Certainly not; not until this moment was I even aware of the existence of Mr. Jack Keith."

His own eyes smiled in response to challenge of hers.

"I can assure you the surprise was mine also," he hastened to inform her, now more at ease, as he grasped the situation. "I could not understand how I had become known to you, yet I pledge you my word the message was actually brought. Of course you may suspicion otherwise, for I have seen you on the stage, and being a normal man, have wished that I could devise some excuse for meeting you."

"Indeed!" her eye-brows slightly uplifted.

"Yes, I make that confession frankly, yet this call comes from no such desire. I had no question when I came, but what I had been sent for—you will believe this?"

"I suppose I must, yet it seems very peculiar," she replied, feeling convinced that he was a gentleman, and troubled as to what she had best do. "Yet now that you have discovered your mistake—"

"I hope to take advantage of the opportunity," he broke in firmly, leaning slightly forward. "May I ask you a question?"

"I could hardly prevent it, and really I do not know that I have anything to conceal."

"Then I will risk the effort—do you know a man named Hawley?—Bartlett Hawley?"

Her eyes did not falter, although a red spot shot into her cheeks, and her lips pressed together.

"No; that is I have never met him," she acknowledged, tust a little confused. "But I have received two letters signed by that name, and rather expected the gentleman would call upon me here in Sheridan during my engagement. Is that your mission? Were you sent by him? or are you Mr. Hawley?"

"I disclaim all relation, Miss Maclaire, even friendship. You, of course, know who this individual is?"

"No," the short monosyllable was not encouraging. "His messages were of a business character."

"So I presumed, yet one likes to know something even of the person he does business with. I have been acquainted with Hawley for several years, and have never been aware of engaged in. He is a professional gambler, known on the frontier as 'Black Bart;' last night he was running a faro game across there in the 'Palace.' I cannot help wondering what kind of business such a fellow could possibly have with you, Miss Maclaire."

The woman's eyes flashed, hardening in their brown depths.

"What right have you to ask?" she began indignantly. "I am capable of deciding my own affairs. As I have told you I have never met Mr. Hawley, but I am not to be influenced against him merely by the denunciation of an avowed enemy. He has written me of something he has discovered which is of deep personal interest to me, and has promised to tell me the details, as well as place within my hands certain necessary papers."

"I appreciate your feelings," he said gently, as she paused, "but would you mind telling me the nature of these papers?"

There was something in Keith's face which told of honesty, and inspired confidence. Miss Maclaire's worldly experience had given her deep insight into the character of men, and somehow, as she looked into the clear gray eyes, she felt impelled to answer, a vague doubt of the unknown Hawley in her mind.

"They—they were papers to establish identity. He had discovered them by accident; they have to do with an inheritance. Really that is all I know, for he wrote very briefly, stating it would be safer to confer with me personally—only I imagine there is a large sum involved."

"From whose estate?"

"My grandfather's."

"And his name was?"

"Why—why, Mr. Keith, actually I do not know. It may seem strange, but—but I cannot even tell the names of my parents; I cannot remember either my father or mother. Oh, I do not know why I should tell you all this! Who are you, really? Why do you ask me such questions?"

He leaned forward, touched by the woman's emotion.

"Miss Maclaire," he said gravely. "I am not prying into your life needlessly, but am endeavoring to serve you as well as others. Hawley may indeed possess papers of great value, but if so they were not found by accident, but stolen from the body of a murdered man. These papers may possibly refer to you, but if so Hawley himself does not believe it—he has simply chosen you to impersonate the right party because of your physical resemblance."

"Resemblance to whom?"

"To a young woman, a Miss Hope."

"But how do you know this? Why should you be interested? Are you a detective?"

"No, I am not a detective, but I cannot explain to you my interest. I am trying to serve you, to keep you from being drawn into a plot—"

"Rather to keep me from learning the truth, Mr. Jack Keith," she burst forth, rising to her feet indignantly. "You are here trying to prejudice me against Mr. Hawley. He is your enemy, and you have come to me stabbing him in the back for revenge. That is your interest. Well, I am going to see the man, and consider what he has to say. I don't care half so much about the money as I do to find out who I am. If he can throw any light on my early life, on my parentage, I shall be the happiest woman in the world. I am sorry I told you anything—but I am going to see him just the same. Perhaps he might tell me something about you."

They were both standing, the woman's eyes flashing angrily, defiantly, her hands clinched. Keith, realising the false position into which he had drifted, hesitated to answer. He meant to tell her the whole story, and urge her to co-operate with him in learning the gambler's purpose. The woman impressed him as honest at heart, in spite of her life and environment; she was not one whom a swindler could easily dupe into becoming a tool.

"Miss Maclaire," he began, determined on his course, "listen to me for just a moment. I am—"

There was a rap at the door. The eyes of both turned that way, and then Keith backed slowly into the darkened corner beyond the window, his right hand thrust into the pocket of his coat. Miss Maclaire observed the movement, her lips smiling, a red flush on either cheek. Then she stepped across the room, and opened the door. Framed against the black background of the hall, his dark, rather handsome face clearly revealed as he fronted the window, his black, audacious eyes fixed appreciatingly upon the lady, stood "Black Bart" Hawley. He saw no one but her, realised no other presence, had no thought except to make a good impression. He was facing a beautiful woman, whom he sought to use, and he bowed low, hat in hand.

"Miss Maclaire," he said, pleasantly, "I trust you will pardon all that has occurred between us, and permit me to explain."

"I—I do not understand," she replied, puzzled by these unexpected words. "There has nothing occurred between us, I am sure, which requires explanation. Have we met before?"

The man smiled. Seeing the woman's face in the shadows he was still convinced she was the same he had last parted with on the Salt Fork. However, if she preferred to ignore all that, and begin their relations anew, it was greatly to his liking. It gave him insight into her character, and fresh confidence that he could gain her assistance. Anyhow, he was ready enough to play her game.

"Let us assume not," just the slightest trace of mockery in the tone, "and begin anew. At least, you will confess the receipt of my letters—I am Bartlett Hawley."

She cast a half-frightened glance toward Keith, and the man, following the direction of her eyes, perceived the presence of the other. His right leg went backward, his hand dropping to the belt, his form stiffening erect. Keith's voice, low but clear in the silence, seemed to cut the air.

"Not a motion, Hawley! I have you covered."

"Oh, gentlemen, please don't!"

"Have no fear, Miss Maclaire; this man and I will settle our difference elsewhere, and not in your presence." He stepped forth into the middle of the room, revolver drawn, but held low at the hip, his watchful eyes never deserting the gambler's face.

"Back up against the wall, Hawley," he commanded. "I hardly need to tell you how I shoot, for we, at least, have met before. Now, I'm going out, and leave you to your interview with Miss Maclaire, and I wish you happiness and success."

He moved across to the opening, keeping his face toward his adversary; then backed out slowly, closed the door with a snap, and sprang aside to avoid any possibility of a bullet crashing after him. No sound of movement from within reached his ears, however, and he walked silently to the head of the stairs.

CHAPTER XXIII.

An Unexpected Meeting.

Keith paused at the landing, looking down into the deserted office, almost tempted to return and force Hawley into a confession of his purpose. It was easy for him to conceive what would be the final result of this interview between the artistic gambler and Miss Maclaire. In spite of the vague suspicion of evil which the plainsman had implanted within the woman's mind, the other possessed the advantage, and would certainly improve it. All conditions were decidedly in his favor. He merely needed to convince the girl that she was actually the party sought, and she would go forward, playing the game he desired, believing herself right, totally unconscious of any fraud. The very simplicity of it rendered the plot the more dangerous, the more difficult to expose. Hawley had surely been favored by fortune in discovering this singer who chanced to resemble Hope so remarkably, and who, at the same time, was in such ignorance as to her own parentage. She would be ready to grasp at a straw, and, once persuaded as to her identity and legal rights, could henceforth be trusted implicitly as an ally.

Realizing all this, and comprehending also how easily Hawley would win her confidence and overcome his warning by denouncing him as a fugitive from justice charged with murder, the temptation to return and fight it out then and there became almost overpowering. He had no fear of Hawley; indeed, physical fear had scarcely a place in his composition, but he was not as yet sufficiently fortified with facts for the seeking of such an encounter. He could merely guess at the truth, unable to produce any proof with which to meet the gambler's certain denial.

A man came in through the office, and began climbing the stairs. He was almost at the landing before Keith recognised him or the other glanced up.

"Ah—seen her, I suppose?"

"Yes," returned Keith, not thinking it worth while to mention the lady's denial of having sent for him. "I have just come from there."

"Hum—thought you'd be through by this time—fine looking girl, ain't she? —believe I'll run in and chat with her myself."

"I would advise you to select some other time, Doctor," said the younger, drily, "as the lady has a visitor at present."

"A visitor?" his face rosy, his shrewd eyes darkening. "Ah, indeed! Of the male sex?"

"I judge so—'Black Bart' Hawley."

"Good Lord!" so startled his voice broke. "Did he see you?"

"Rather; I backed him up against the wall with a gun while I made my adieu."

"But what brought him there? Are they acquainted?"

"Don't ask conundrums, Doctor. He may be your rival with the fair lady for all I know. If he is, my sympathies are all with you. Only I wouldn't try to see Miss Christie just now; I'd wait for a clearer field. Hawley is probably not in the best of humor."

Fairbain stared into the face of the speaker, uncertain whether or not he was being laughed at.

BASEBALL.

The management of the New York National League Club expects to have the Polo Grounds ready for the first game tomorrow. The Giants are scheduled to play the Beaneaters, and while the stands are far from complete, a record attendance is expected.

When Rogers, of the Westfield team, fell down with expressions of agony on his face in the fourth inning of the game with the local nine Saturday, it was generally supposed that an undertakers wagon would be the next thing on the program. The Mt. Arrarat center fielder got in the way of one of Red's speedy out shoots and the ball apparently hit his head and bounced off. Rogers went down limp and several players immediately rushed toward him. The umpire gave him his base and then Rogers jumped up and trotted to the initial sack as spry as a two year old. The ball had not struck his head although there was a sound as though wood had been hit.

And don't forget that the Yankees aren't playing some ball these days. Four straight victories from the Senators isn't a bad record at all.

Nelson, who was given a tryout by the Boston Nationals, will not wear a Beaneater uniform this year. Since Johnny Kling has been signed to this team, there is no longer any need for catchers. "Big Six" will undoubtedly be with the Plainfield team for the remainder of the season. He played right field in Saturday's game since Dillon had been engaged with the expectation of Nelson's being with the National League club.

"Red" Waller made a hit with the fans Saturday when he imitated that spring like motion of Steve White.

Even if White had not had a game arm, it is extremely doubtful whether he could have held down the Plainfield sluggers Saturday afternoon. The Princeton twirler was all right in the eighth but in the final round the locals went after his delivery with a will. Two bases on balls, a wild pitch and a single certainly go to show that Driscoll's Darlings had his goat.

Dave Driscoll and Umpire Dalley almost came to blows at Westfield Saturday. While the Plainfield player should not have kicked on the decision, let alone expressing his thoughts as he did, it was the place of the umpire to have kept his head for if the decision giver goes up in the air, what can be expected of the players?

Weaver could have woven Somerville to a standstill at Bound Brook Saturday had his team given him even the indication of support. As it was, the famous pitcher from New York fanned fourteen without giving a base.

"Warry" MacLaughlin had his eye on the ball Saturday and clouted out two safeties. The veteran southpaw is still in the game and don't forget that for a minute.

STATE CONVENTION OF A. O. H. AT PERTH AMBOY.

Perth Amboy, June 27.—Eleven districts comprising the jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of New Jersey are represented in the annual convention of the order here yesterday. Nearly 150 delegates are present. Mayor Albert Bollschweiller welcomed the visitors at the opening of the morning session. He followed Rev. P. B. Corr, pastor of St. Mary's catholic church. Father Corr spoke upon the benefits of such an organization as that before him.

State President Thomas C. Gaynor, of Newark, named the committees on credentials, rules and bylaws and the fixed business of the morning session was practically complete. National President J. J. O'Leary, of Elizabeth, delivered an address, praising the delegates from the New Jersey district upon the standing of the order throughout the eleven districts. J. J. Tracy, of Philadelphia, is national secretary. He was also one of the speakers at the morning session

Philadelphia is in the jurisdiction of New Jersey, Pennsylvania having no State organization. There are over 1,000 members in Philadelphia and a large delegation, headed by M. F. Hannigan, accompanied National Secretary Tracy to this city.

Branch No. 1, of this city, which is known as independent because it has no district affiliation, is entertaining the visitors today. The meetings are being held in the Knights of Columbus hall on Smith street, and in the afternoon the entire convention was entertained at dinner at the Packer House. The local committee of arrangements is L. C. Dalton, chairman; J. J. Desmond, E. J. Dalton and George R. Murray. Mr. Desmond is president of the local branch.

SEASON'S SCHEDULE OF THE S.S. LEAGUE

Delegates from the Park Avenue Baptist, First Baptist, Trinity Reformed and Monroe Avenue M. E. church Sunday-schools met at the Y. M. C. A. building last night to discuss plans for the Sunday-schools' Baseball League. It was decided to form such an organization for the summer and four teams joined.

A committee composed of one delegate from each Sunday-school was chosen to look after the affairs. This committee will have the power to make rules, arrange the schedule and decide any question of dispute. The members of this governing body are Sidney Mackey, of the First Baptist; Harold W. Schenck, of Trinity Reformed; Harry Cummings, of Park Avenue Baptist, and Richard Smith, of Monroe Avenue M. E.

The rules of the Plainfield Sunday School Athletic League will be followed regarding the eligibility of players, who must be enrolled in the school and maintain a satisfactory attendance for each month during the season. A trophy will be awarded to the winning team by the league.

Three games will be played by each team, making twelve game schedule. The first part of the schedule was arranged last night, the remainder of it being left to the supervising committee to do at its next meeting which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. July 6.

The schedule so far is as follows: July 1, Park Avenue vs. First Baptist; July 8, First Baptist vs. Monroe Avenue; Trinity Reformed vs. Park Avenue Baptist.

It is expected that all the nines will be about evenly matched and that there wil be some fast games played. The First Baptist church will be represented on the diamond by a team from Dr. Norman Probasco's Bible class, while a nine from William N. Runyon's class will uphold the honors for the Park Avenue Baptist. The teams from the other schools will be picked at large. In each of the schools there are many veterans of the diamond on the membership lists and it will be the endeavor of the league to get all these players into action.

QUIET TIME FOR GOVERNOR.

Spring Lake, June 27.—Aside from stating that, in order to conform with the resolution passed at the last meeting of the House of Governors held at Louisville, Ky., last October, there would be but little social entertaining during the conference of Chief Executives to be held here in September, the committee having the local end of the matter in charge had nothing to make public late Saturday afternoon, when they adjourned.

It was the first gathering of the body and was presided over by Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood. Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., of Trenton, was elected secretary of the committee, and Samuel Hellner, of Philadelphia, a local summer resident, was made treasurer.

The only entertainment which has been definitely settled on will be a reception by Governor and Mrs. Wilson at the Executive cottage at Sea Girt. It is also probable that there will be a reception of some kind for the women of the party at one of the show places owned by local cottagers.

THE BEAR.

Some people seem to think that some animals were not made right, for instance: They muzzle The Bear, they de-horn the cow, they cut the tail of the horse short, (changing the subject exclusively) some women wear hobble skirts.

What is the differencs, excuse me, this is a conundrum, between a horse and a bear? To be continued in our next. Bear me in mind of it, please.

STOP HOWLING

and grunt a little. Your howls amount to nothing anyway. I sold 500 lots at Highland Park and be glad to sell more, and my two sick room houses before they are completed with you howling about something you know nothing about and without you. Now will be up-to-date?

UP-TO-DATE (LAKEWOOD).

I will commence selling lots at Uptodate in a few days; have almost completed what the last law requires as to lot selling, and I want you to know about the lots that I am about to deceive you with. For that reason I want all of you to use my ballot below and send me the name of someone who you want to tell you about them, and who will receive two lots for his trouble. The three who receives the most number of votes will go. I want them to tell you that you are getting more than a $100 lot for $25, and that I will not keep it up long. And I want as many of you who will pay their own expenses to go as well. I can not afford to take you. Let me know when you want to go, and I will tell you how to take a shorter walk from Uptodate depot to the lots than I walk from home to the Plainfield Depot. This contest will last two weeks from the date I commence to sell lots and any one buying before will receive their money back if they receive an adverse decision. The first two people who buy from this date, (July 26th) will receive four lots for two. Send your names at once, and you can pick your lots from maps.

Carlton B. Pierce Says State Holds Banner For Progressive Legislation.

HE MAKES SOME COMPARISONS.

Facts Presented by Former Assemblyman Puts New Jersey in an Enviable Position—All Accomplished in Five Years.

Former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, has issued a statement giving the relative standing of the various States in the matter of progressive legislation.

Mr. Pierce puts New Jersey first on the list. The statement follows:

1. It is an interesting fact, not generally realized, that New Jersey is the most advanced State in the Union in the matter of progressive legislation.

Counting such legislation as including civil service, public utilities, direct expression for President and Vice-President, and the initiative and referendum,—the standing of the States is as follows:

Civil Service—counting state service only—New Jersey, Colorado, Illinois, Massachusetts, New York and Wisconsin.

Public Utilities—New Jersey, Kansas, Ohio, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York South Carolina, Vermont, Washington and Wisconsin.

Direct Primaries — Mandatory—New Jersey California, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin, Arizona Territory.

Optional — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia.

Partial—Indiana, Massachusetts.

The list given above is the situation as it stood a year ago, except that New Jersey has been moved from the partial to the complete class. Doubtless other changes have occurred during the present year.

Direct expression for U. S. Senator—New Jersey, California, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, Ohio Oregon.

Direct expression for President and Vice-President—New Jersey, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon, Wisconsin.

Initiative and Referendum—adopted as a constitutional amendment—Arkansas, Colorado, Maine, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota.

Amendment pending not yet acted on by the people—California, Florida, Idaho, Nebraska, North Dakota, Washington, Wyoming.

New Jersey has the initiative and referendum as applied to citizens only, and permissively only, in cities adopting it as part of the Commission plan of government.

In listing New Jersey as the most advanced of the progressive States—regard is had both to the field covered and the character of the legislation. In the latter respect—notably in her election law, corrupt practic act, and employers' liability law, her position is extreme, reaching the furthest limit of existing progressive thought. No other state, for instance, has her provisions for a civil service examination for election officers.

2. An interesting question remains, as to the relative attitude of the two political parties, toward the legislation enacted.

We find, first, that all that has been done, has been done within the past five years, commencing with 1907.

In that year, Governor and Senate were Republican and the Assembly Democratic. The next three years,

'BOBBY' LEACH GOES OVER NIAGARA FALLS

"Bobby" Leach made his second successful trip through the whirlpool rapids of Niagara Falls yesterday in the steel barrel which rested for some months on the porch of the old Iroquois Hotel, when Mr. Leach was proprietor of a wagon lunch room on an adjacent lot, on Second street here.

Starting from the Old Maid of the Mist landing at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, Leach was dragged from the rush of the pool three hours later bleeding from a number of wounds which may prove fatal. At times the barrel was shot clear of the water in the rush of the pool. It was swept into the middle at one time and disappeared, remaining under so long that the watchers began to despair Spinning like a top the barrel finally appeared and swung near enough to the shore for the watchers to secure it.

Leach was helped to the top of the cliff and to his home in Niagara Falls, Ont. The barrel was sent down the river to Queenstown where it was landed.

CONSISTORY'S TOKEN OF ITS APPRECIATION

During a special meeting of Trinity Reformed church's Consistory last night, a handsomely sketched and bound set of resolutions expressing the heartfelt appreciation of that body for the memorial pipe organ given by him, was presented to Elder Albert L. Force. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, the chair was occupied by Elder F. E. Smith and the presentation speech was made by Deacon Edgar F. Sheppard. Mr. Force was so moved by the touching tribute that it was hard for him to respond but in a few words he told how deeply appreciative he was. The resolutions, which explain themselves, follow:

At a meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield, N. J., held on the eleventh day of May, 1911, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Elder Albert Lewis Force and his daughter Miss Lillian Augusta Force, have presented in memory of Clara M. Force, their beloved wife and mother, to Trinity Reformed church, our beautiful, sweet-toned, melodious, memorial organ, adopted especially to religious worship, the dedication of which was made at the divine service on Sunday morning, March 12, 1911;

Therefore, be it Resolved, That we, the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield, New Jersey, formally accept this organ, gratefully acknowledge our thanks to the donors, appreciate the appropriateness and inspiration of having this memorial placed within the walls of our church to be enriched and embellished by this eloquent tribute of love to the memory of one who for so many years worshipped and served God in this sanctuary.

And be it Further Resolved, That we bear testimony to the fragrancy of her memory amongst us, that her prayers, her labors, her gifts have been builded in the extension and establishment of this church and of Christ's kingdom on earth; that she was deeply interested and loved the work and cause of this church; that she was a faithful attendant of the services and served as President of the Ladies' Christian Work Society; that her life was precious to her family, her wide circle of friends, her own beloved church, but especially to her Master, whom she loved and served. And be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes and a further copy, suitably engrossed, be sent to the bereaved family. Done in Consistory this eleventh day of May, 1911.

John Y. Broek, pastor, Elders Geo. L. an Emburgh, Robert Clark, Jr., Frederick E. Smith, Horace J. Martin, H. E. Gayle and Deacons Wm. F. Oliver, A. K. Willett, M. F. Gano, C. M. Dolliver, Wm. R. Kriney and Edgar F. Sheppard. Cornelius Schenck, pastor emeritus.

Funeral of Mrs. Margaret Marsh.

Funeral service for Mrs. Margaret Marsh, who died Monday night, were held this afternoon from the residence of her son-in-law, James K. Arnold, on Manning avenue. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, which Mrs. Marsh attended, officiated, speaking briefly upon the long, faithful life which the dead woman had lived. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

GOVERNOR'S TALK

Wilson Says Object of Reform Legislation is For People Not For Parties.

HE TOUCHES ON ORGANIZATION.

Addresses Woodrow Wilson League of Essex County Which Starts a Campaign Hears the State Executive.

It was a day and a night of hot and trying weather in Newark yesterday, but that did not keep 670 men and 400 women from attending the dinner to Governor Wilson in the Krueger Auditorium, which was given in the evening by the Woodrow Wilson League of Essex County. It opened the campaign which the league will conduct throughout the summer for good government and clean candidates at the September primaries and the November election.

When Governor Wilson entered the hall he was given a hearty welcome, which lasted all the time he was being escorted up an aisle to his seat at the right side of Mr. Gifford, who presided. Those at the tables stood up, and there was cheer after cheer and cries of "The Next President of the United States," to all of which the Governor at that time merely smiled and bowed his acknowledgements.

Later in the evening, when he began to address the gathering, he was given a similar tribute and after he was brought forward for the brief introduction by Mr. Masson it was several minutes before he could actually begin to speak.

Governor Wilson devoted his attention chiefly to the political conditions in New Jersey and in the country at large, and spoke, in part, as follows:

"There has in recent months been a great clearing of the field in politics, and nowhere has this been more apparent than in New Jersey. Great measures of reform, upon which opinion was quite made up long before the last session of the Legislature, have now been put upon the statute books.

"Some men put a false interpretation upon this. There is a certain unreasonable fear in the air, as if the process we have been going through was, in some degree, vindictive—as if there had been bitter feeling in it, and the intention to discredit those who opposed it. Men have spoken of party splits and divisions and factions, and have talked as if it were warfare among persons rather than among ideas. For my own part I regard this as an entirely false interpretation. There need be no fear connected with these things except the fear that those most immediately concerned will not understand. The crash of organizations has been only the crash of those that did not comprehend, but resisted when there was no right reason for resisting, and forget that their very reason for being was that they might serve opinion and the movements of the people's will. If any 'systems' of political practice have collapsed, only those have collapsed which were unsuitable to the objects which they professed to serve.

"It would be a great detriment to the effective political life of the country if personal feeling and petty antagonisms should obscure the real character of what has taken place. My own hope is that the men who have withstood these reforms will not be crushed but converted, that they will see that they are fighting against their own interests in fighting against the interests of the public, which has once again intrusted them with its confidence. Remedies are debatable. No honest man can feel that his own judgments are always unquestionably right. They ought to be willing to put everything in the crucible of debate, and there are many public questions which need to have thrown upon them the light and the long experience of men who have been leaders in practical affairs of politics as well as of business. The only thing that ought not to be considered debatable is the object. The object is not to serve any particular organization or party, but to serve the communities which have chosen us as their representatives. I should like to see this league become the rallying centre of men of every sort and connection who profess this common object. It will be most vital when it becomes the forum of searching debate where measures are threshed out and no man is attacked. All right thinking is generous thinking; all right action is catholic in its sympathies. Politics ought not to be upset by developments of opinion and men ought everywhere to recognize the fact that in the measures we are debating, both in the field of State politics and in the field of national politics, we are seeking to debate the real welfare of communities."

SEVEN SCRAPPERS TO APPEAR IN COURT

A general mixup after an evening of conviviality caused seven young men to face Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. Several others were wanted, so the hearing was put over until this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The young men were in a pool room on North aevnue and an argument started. The proprietor ordered them out. Patrolman Vanderweg turned from Park avenue into North just at the time the fray was going and at sight of him the scrappers fled, meeting again on Watchung avenue and renewing hostilities. Roundsman Higgins and the patrolman recognized the seven and arrested them. They gave their names as Max A. Barrera, William Schillinger, Joseph Hubbard, Michael Comiski, John Kregar, Thomas Mullen and John Hogan.

TWO BURGLARIES IN BUSINESS SECTION

A job bearing amateur ear marks was pulled off last night when the stores of Putnam & DeGraw and the New York Clothing Company, both on West Front street, were entered through a rear window. From each shop wearing apparel was taken, the loot being carried away in two dress suit cases stolen from the clothing store.

The New York clothing store is the heavier loser, according to the hasty inventory made by the proprietor. Besides the two suit cases, eleven suits, four pair of trousers, four coats, an overcoat belonging to Judge William Newcorn, a suit belonging to David Mack, a shirt and a silk tie, were taken. Putnam & DeGraw fared much better, but lost a number of shirts, ties, socks and a quantity of jewelry. The burglaries were not discovered until this morning when the stores were opened for business.

From an investigation made by Roundsman Higgins, it was learned that the rear windows had been left open when the stores were closed. The windows have heavy iron bars on the outside which gave the proprietors a feeling of security. These bars were bent apart far enough to allow the passage of a small man or boy. Exit was made in the same manner as entrance. The police have a clue which they are working on and arrests are expected.

CITY STREET COMMITTEE CONSIDERING NEW WORK.

The Councilmanic street committee met last night and discussed street matters in a general way, also taking up the bids received on Monday night for macadamizing a number of streets. There was also a discussion of the condition of Rose street, where the residents are bothered a great deal with bad surface drainage. The committee is planning to remedy this trouble in the near future.

As stated in The Daily Press of Tuesday, Mobus & Burke, of this city were the lowest bidders for the macadam work, and that firm will be awarded the contract at the July meeting of the Common Council on Monday night.

Mr. Stone Explains.

P. Frank Stone, the photographer, has in his emplay C.E.Vickery taking orders for photographs in accordance with a special arrangement. These coupons which are sold by Mr. Stone's agent, bear the latter's name written in his own hand writing. Two strangers have been canvassing the town trying to get orders for enlargments of pictures and using Mr. Stone's name, and it was concerning them that Mr. Stone complained to the police.

Contract for New Rectory.

The contract for the erection of the ne wrectory for Rev. C. H. Mallery, the rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, has been awarded to Michael Rimmer. and he will start work within a short time. The rectory will be built on Clinton avenue, near the church, and will be completed by the time Mr. Mallery returns from his two months' sojourn in Bermuda.

Campers Left This Morning.

BAR BIG LEAGUERS

No More National or American Players For Central Jersey League.

OFFICIALS MAKE NEW RULE.

Hiring Big Stars Spelled Ruin for the Association—Umpires are Appointed for Saturday's Contests.

An important measure for the betterment of the Central New Jerey Baseball League was adopted at the meeting of the "magnates" in the Hotel Berkeley, at Bound Brook last night, when it was decided that no team could employ players active in either National or American League. It was also agreed that no club could use the players of any other team unless these men had been officially released by their own club.

The adoption of the rule prohibiting the hiring of big league players is believed to be a necessary one for the continuation of the Central League. The rivalry in this organization has become great and the interest manifested by the fans in the championship race has led the team managers to hire speedier players for each game. This custom was brought to a climax last Saturday when Bound Brook put its regular twirler on the bench and hired a famous box artist from the New York Yankees in his place. Should the unrestricted use of such men be continued there would be no limit to the amount of money spent toward winning the pennant. The gate receipts in any of the towns will not warrant such extravagance and the new rule will prevent some of the clubs from going into bankruptcy.

This rule will not effect the local club since none of the regular players have been taken from any of the big league teams. It is believed that the measure adopted last night wil put a stop to the many disputes between the fans of the different league towns and put the league on a firmer basis.

It was on account of unlimited hiring of players that several semi-professional leaguesin this country have been obliged to disband. Regardless of the fact that the individual playing in the Central organization will not be as speedy as it would without any limits, the magnates considered that altogether the restriction of the players would make a better championship race.

Umpires were appointed for the games Saturday as follows: Frank Cox, at Westfield, R. H. B. Dalley at Somerville, John Degnan at Plainfield. For July 4, the appointments were: Mr. Dalley at Scotch Plains both morning and afternoon, Cox at Somerville in the morning and at Bound Brook in the afternoon, and Degnan at High Bridge in the afternoon.

Another meeting of the league officials will be held next Wednesday night at the Hotel Berkeley, when the complete schedule for umpires will be arranged and a set of governing rules will be adopted.

MIANTONOMO TRIBE HOLDS ITS ELECTION.

At the annual election of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., last night these officers were chosen: Prophet, Frank Schoffer; sachem, Chas. Holstein, Jr.; junior sagamore, David Mundy. The senior sagamore's office was left unfilled until the next meeting at which time those elected last night wil be installed.

The braves completed arrangements to parade at Westfield on the morning of July Fourth. They will be in full uniform and will leave this city on the 8 o'clock car from the trolley station.

Court Examination Continued.

The examination in the matter of the Crescent Embossing Company is being continued today before Alfred DeCosta, referee in bankruptcy, at Newark, and it is the belief that an order will be given today authorizing the sale of the business in this city. F. C. Lounsbury, who was formerly connected with the company, was examined yesterday, together with several other interested parties.

Bible Class Led Meeting.

The prayer meeting of the First Baptist church last night was in charge of Dr. Norman Probasco's Bible Class, Dr. Probasco being the leader of the meeting. After the service, the ordinance of baptism was administered by the pastor, Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, to eight candidates.

Mrs. Babbitt's Funeral.

The funeral service of Mrs. James Babbitt will be held at her late home, 200 West Second street tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. F. D. Tilden, pastor of Bethel chapel, will conduct the service and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

FAREWELL DINNER FOR THOMAS G. WHITAKER

A farewell reception and dinner was given for Thomas Gordon Whittaker, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A. for the past year, by the business men's gymnasium class in the association parlors last night. Eleven members of the class gathered around the festive board and then listened to several informal speeches.

Dr. R. S. Stephens, who was chairman of the committee on arrangements, acted as toastmaster and gave a fitting speech. Mr. Whitaker, who leaves the local association Saturday to become instructor in swimming at the University of Pennsylvania, responded to a toast. D. J. Carney speaking for the class, presented the departing physical director with an handsome watch charm as a farewell gift.

The supper, which was served by Mrs. Augusta Johnson, was enjoyed by the following: Dr. R. S. Stephens, Harry C. Runyon, T. G. Whitaker, John H. Doane, Dr. O. B. Whitford, Rev. Edwin Shaw, David J. Carney, Dr. George T. Moore, George C. M. Smith, George M. Clarke, Herbert E. Parker and Henry Welle.

B.C. FIRSTBROOK DIED SUDDENLY YESTERDAY

Bertram Collins Firstbrook, aged twenty-eight years, son of Mrs. Mary E. Firstbrook, of East Second street, died suddenly at his home on Liberty street, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, of kidney trouble. He was taken ill last Saturday. Yesterday morning he was feeling greatly improved and was about the house as usual. His condition was so much improved that he spent a part of the morning preparing his friend, Thomas M. Muir for a trip to Lake Hopatcong. About noon there was a sudden change for the worse and he passed away a few hours later.

Mr. Firstbrook was one of a family of eight children, one girl and seven boys. He was born at Wharton this State and came to Plainfield when an infant and lived here the rest of his life. He was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. Mr. Firstbrook possessed a genial disposition and had a host of friends. He frequently appeared with much success in local amateur ministrel performances, chiefly at Hope chapel, generally being selected as one of the end men. He had considerable talent in this direction and he was always well received He was employed by his brother F. H. Firstbrook, in the grocery business.

Four years ago, Mr. Firstbrook married Miss Gertrude Geier, of this city. She survives together with his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Firstbrook, one sister, Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of East Second street and six brothers, George E. Firstbrook, of Westfield; Fred H., William J., Walter I., Clinton F., and C. Howard Firstbrook, all of this city. This is the first death among the children of the family.

The funeral service will be held at the home of Mr. Firstbrook's mother on East Second street, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of Jersey City, formerly of this city, who married Mr. and Mrs. Firstbrook.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. MINNIE RANDALL.

The funeral service of Mrs. Minnie E. Randall was held at the late home on Grove street at 7 o'clock last evening, being conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The remains were taken this morning to Phillipsburg, where at 1 o'clock this afternoon another service was held in the M. E. church. The burial was at Phillipsburg.

Mrs. Randall was the daughter of Mrs. Sara A. and the late Abram A. Clickener. Her death, which occurred on Monday, was due to an attack of erysipelas, following the infection of a burn on the arm.

MR. HALL MARRIES

Prominent Plainfielder Takes Mrs. Jean Bertram Hallock as His Bride.

AT GRACE CHURCH CHANTRY.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson Officiates—Groom a Hospital Governor—Bride a Popular Society Woman.

Mrs. Jean Bertram Hallock, daughter of Mrs. Eric N. Erickson, of West Eighth street, and Henry Leslie Hall, also of this city, were married this afternoon in Grace Church chantry, New York. Rev. E.

Henry L. Hall.

Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, this city, officiated. The affair was a quiet one, only the members of the immediate families being present. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. On their return from a honeymoon trip the couple will reside at 978 Woodland avenue.

The bride is well known in local society and is a member of the Plainfield Country Club. Her father was an honored member of the Common Council for many years and always had an especial interest in civic affairs.

Mr. Hall has been a resident of this city eighteen years, during which time he has always been interested in civic affairs and in the progress of Muhlenberg Hospital. He is vice-president of the board of governors of that institution and a member of the Engineers' Club, of New York. He is a graduate of the Columbia University School of Mines. At present Mr. Hall is the president and manager of a New York manufacturing concern.

Among the gifts received by the bride is a fine mahogany desk, an exact duplicate of the one used by General Washington, which is now at Washington headquarters at Arlington.

HOUSE PARTY.

James Cuzens' Relatives Leave After Month's Visit.

Frank Cuzen, of South America, who with his brother, Allen Cuzen, of South Africa, and his sister, Miss Jean Cuzen, of Coatesbridge, Scotland, have been spending a month with Mr. and Mrs. James Cuzen, of West Front street, left today for Kansas, where he will remain for a year on a farm. Allen Cuzen returned yesterday from a trip through the west and enroute he stopped at Niagara Falls, where he saw an exhibition of a flying machine.

Mr. Cuzen and Miss Jean Cuzen will leave Saturday on the Furnessia, for their respective homes, the former going back to Francistown, South Africa, where he holds a position under the English government, and Miss Cuzen returning to her position as assistant matron in the Coatesbridge Hospital.

Sales and Rentals Reported.

These sales and rentals have been made during the present week by Mulford's real estate agency on North avenue: David W. Holman, of New York, has purchased the Stelle lot at Stelle and Central avenues. W. R. Causebrook has bought a lot on Netherwood avenue, north of Front street and Mr. Johnson has become the owner of a lot on Netherwood avenue, north of Front street. Stanley Gunnison, of New York, has rented the property of 1121 East Seventh street and took possession today.

Warren's Annual Festival.

The Christian Endeavor and other societies of Warren chapel are making great preparations for the annual festival to be held on the chapel lawn this afternoon and evening. The lawn has been attractively decorated for the occasion and the public is invited. There will be no admission charged. This evening Whitney Frazee's brass band will give a concert on the lawn, as an added feature.

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit

Tired, Aching, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use T I Z. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after T I Z than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. To-day there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam. A. Hoover, Progress, N. C.

Just use T I Z. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. T I Z cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. T I Z is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago. Ill

DOCTORS AND LAYMEN VIEW PHTHISIS HOSPITAL.

All that modern equipment and methods of treatment can do in the care of tuberculosis patients was brought to public attention Tuesday at the County Isolation Hospital at Soho when the new group of buildings erected for the treatment of phthisis was opened to public inspection.

Visitors were received at the institution from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon and many medical men and laymen availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect the new buildings. The inspection continued yesterday.

The buildings, which were erected at a cost of about $100,000, will accommodate 94 persons. The department will be under the general charge of Dr. Henry E. Ricketts, superintendent of the Isolation Hospital, with Dr. William J. Douglas in immediate charge. Miss Mary McCue will be supervisor of the nurses.

JAILED FOR NOT FLYING.

Marion, Ind., June 29.—When an aviation meet is arranged for in this town aviators have to aviate or go to jail. Rene Smith, Rene Barrier and Captain Frisbie, of the Moisant International Aviators' Company, were yesterday released from custody after all persons who had purchased tickets to witness flights Tuesday had called at a local bank and received their money back.

The aviators first planned to fly Monday, but a high wind made aerial navigation dangerous. Conditions were worse yesterday but a crowd threatened to destroy the earoplanes unless the men flew, and, to top it off, the aviators were arrested.

Mrs. S. W. Merrihew, of South avenue, who is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Marks, of Wilmington, gave a bridge whist party at her home, Tuesday evening in her honor.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Faber, who were married yesterday at noon at the home of the bride's father, George W. Churchill, have gone to Montreal, where they will take a steamer for Europe. The newly married couple expect to be on the continent for eight weeks, taking in all the points of interest from Scotland to the Mediterranean. The return trip will be made by the southern route, starting from Naples.

The Presbyterian and New Market Baptist Sunday-schools left this morning on the first excursion of the year to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. The borough schools went in company with several churches in Plainfield and altogether a large crowd was taken to the shore. The return trip will be made this evening, leaving the Asbury Park station at 7 o'clock.

William Schenck, of Front street, has started work with the bridge gang of the New Jersey Central Railroad, being under J. C. Gardner, of this borough. The gang is now at work near Norright.

Charles W. Wyhuskey, who has been a marshal on the borough police force, moved to Cranford yesterday, to live with his son. The moving was done by Smith's express of this borough.

Roy Smith, alias "Ding Bat," has resigned his position with Clarence Voorhees, of North avenue, and John Rinehart, Jr., has been enmployed in his place.

Oscar Harrison, of Front street, has decided to get rid of his automobile and in order to do so he has been issuing chances in a raffle for the machine.

Miss Pearl Schively, of Bloomsbury, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Schively, of Whittier avenue.

Harry Bell and family, of North avenue, have been visiting Mrs. Bell's mother, at Neshanic.

SOMERVILLE.

Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, pastor of the Second Reformed church, will leave Saturday morning for a two months' trip to Europe. He will go first to Norway and Sweden. During his absence the pulpit will be supplied by ministers from out of town.

The Knights of King Arthur, an organization of boys of the First Baptist church, accompanied by their pastor, Rev. F. J. Soule, are camping along the Millstone River for a week.

Mrs. J. H. Kenney and sons, of Haddonfield, are spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Van Nortwick, in West Cliff street.

Miss Dilworth, who has been teaching for several years in the high school, left yesterday morning for the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. William Banner, of East Somerville, is in Asbury, Warren county, where she expects to spend the summer.

Miss Blanche Bascom left Tuesday for Columbus, O., where she expects to spend the summer with her mother.

Walter Packer, of Cranford, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Louise Durham, in South street, this week.

Mrs. Charles Dilts has returned from Stroudsburg, Pa., where she spent a week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Winters have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Watt.

Miss Lena Rulskie has been a guest this week of Roycefield relatives.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Laura Bernmann entertained the Ladies' Circle, of the Baptist church at an all-day sewing bee at her home on Westfield road, yesterday. The day was spent in sewing for the needy. At midday a collation was served under the shade of the trees on the lawn.

The young people of St. Mary's parish, Stony Hill, are arranging to hold a picnic and dance during the early part of July.

The Lend-a-Hand Society of the Baptist church is holding an afternoon picnic today at the home of the Misses Hayes.

Albert Walpole, who has been spending several weeks with relatives at Bristol, Conn., has returned home.

The rains of late have spread the oil on Park avenue and Front street so that it extends from gutter to gutter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Sykes are entertaining Mrs. Sykes' parents, from the west.

Fred Saunders, of Washington Valley, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

The Primary Graded Union is holding its annual picnic on the mountains today.

WOMEN IN BED LET THIEF RANSACK HOUSE

Afraid to get up or make an outcry, Mrs. William Remshard and her two daughters, of 9 Colonial terrace, Belleville, lay in bed early Tuesday morning and listened to a burglar ransacking their home. The thief entered every room but the two the mother and daughters were occupying, but did not take anything of value.

It is believed that the burglar is the same who entered seven houses in Nutley last Friday night. The methods of work, the police say, is the same. At Nutley very little booty was obtained.

The visitors to the Belleville house took Mr. Remshard's pants from the latter's bedside on the third floor. The garments were found later on the first floor, with the pockets turned inside out. Mr. Remshard intended going away yesterday morning, and he changed money from his old trousers to new ones before retiring Monday night. It was the old ones the burglar got, the new pants being hung in a closet. Before leaving the house the visitor took two eggs from the refrigerator and, after sucking them, left the shells on the dining-room table.

It was about 3:30 o'clock that Mrs. Remshard and her daughters heard footsteps downstairs. The mother and one daughter were in one room, while the other daughter was in another. They thought at first that the noise was made by Mr. Remshard, but they were soon convinced that a thief was in the house. The visitor was heard to come upstairs and try the doors of the women's bedrooms, both of which were locked. He made no attempt to force them open. They also heard him go to the third floor and come back again. It is said the visitor made a lot of noise and that his footstep indicted that he was heavy.

After Mrs. Remshard was sure that the burglar had left she got up and aroused her husband, who until that time knew nothing of the visit. Police Chief Michael Flynn whose home is a short distance away, was aroused and he started an investigation.

It was found that bureau drawers had been ransacked and the contents scattered about the floors. Insurance policies and other documents of value to no one but the family were found in all parts of the hallway on the first floor, they having been taken from a drawer on the second floor.

The house was entered through a rear kitchen window, a screen on which was cut and and the latch forced. Exit was made the same way.

Defer R. R. Detective's Case.

Elizabeth, June 29.—The trial of Detective Patrick J. Doody, of the Central Railroad, who was indicted by the grand jury for atrocious assault on Patrick Driscoll, Edward McBride and Michael Soraman, three young men of Elizabethport, which was to have been begun yesterday in Union County Court, was postponed until October. There were eighteen witnesses on hand to testify in the cases.

GOVERNOR WILSON WILL MEETS WARREN FARMERS.

The Farmers' Picnic to be held at Belvidere, Wednesday, August 16, will be attended by Governor Wilson. Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren county, called upon the Governor Tuesday afternoon and secured the latter's promise that he would give a short talk to the farmers upon that occasion.

Assemblyman Leon R. Taylor, of Monmouth, invited the Governor to address a Democratic assembly at a dinner to be given Tuesday, July 18, at Neptune Heights. The Governor accepted subject to his being able to adjust his schedule so as not to interfere with an address he is to make the same day before the Monmouth County Dental Society at the Hotel Brunswick, Asbury Park.

The Governor's schedule for next week includes an address at the dedication of the Stone Harbor bridge on Monday and another at Ocean Grove during the Fourth of July celebration Tuesday.

PORTRAIT GIFT TO FIREMEN.

Elizabeth, June 29.—A large panel portrait of Colonel Chauncey Harris, twenty years postmaster of Elizabeth, and five years chief engineer of the Elizabeth Volunteer Fire Department, who died in March, was formally presented Tuesday night to the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association of Elizabeth. The presentation address was made by Edward K. Drake.

The gift was accepted by former Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz, president of the association. Long before his death Colonel Harris had informed Mr. Drake that the photograph was to be given to the association, to which he had previously given his chief engineer hat and also a silver trumpet presented to him in 1854, when he was first elected chief engineer.

Alleged Repeaters Held.

Jersey City, June 29.—Two alleged repeaters, Abbott Monroe and Charles Manning, who were arrested Tuesday in the special election on commission government plan in Hoboken, were again brought before Judge Carey yesterday. Monroe's bail was fixed at $5,000 and Manning's at $3,000. Neither prisoner was able to furnish the bail.

Woodbury Talks Commission Rule.

Woodbury, June 29.—This city is talking commission government. A majority of the present councilmen are out of the city during the day, and the chairmen of most of the important committees are among them. Under commission rule the men would be at home at all times.

Take No Action on Court Decision.

Asbury Park, June 29.—The council here has not decided as yet whether it will appeal the suit of Longstreet vs. Asbury Park. City Solicitor Carton read the opinion rendered in the case by the Supreme Court at a meeting of the council last night

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will elect officers at its meeting tonight.

Miss Estelle Jones, of Jersey City, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

CARRY YOUR OWN CUP AFTER JULY FOURTH

The State Board of Health passed resolutions at Trenton Tuesday designating the places where public drinking cups are to be prohibited after July 4, under the provisions of an act passed by the last Legislature. The Board is acting in conformity with an opinion from the Attorney General.

The resolutions provide that public drinking cups shall not be allowed in any place to which the public has access at all times, with or without compensation, whether such places be maintained by public or private authority.

Cups will be barred from all parks, streets, highways, hotels, schools, halls, theatres and other places of amusements, public libraries, all municipal penal, philanthropic and other institutions, all railroad and trolley cars and stations, boats and waiting rooms and all vehicles used for carrying passengers for a consideration.

Under the resolution people will have to carry their own drinking cups in public places, or go thirsty, excepting where individual cups are kept for sale.

MAN THROWN FROM TRAIN PLATFORM, RECOVERING.

Perth Amboy, June. 29.—Milton A. Edgar, of Macon, Ga., who was hurled from an express train Sunday afternoon and injured, is improving.

Mr. Edgar was passing to the smoker from the coach in which he, Mrs. Edgar and his brother, Charles Edgar, of Metuchen, were riding, when he was thrown by a lurch of the train. After a time he was missed, and at the next station Charles Edgar secured a special train and made a search for his brother.

The injured man was found near Sandersville, unconscious. He was taken to Rawlins, where he is now in a sanitarium. Mr. Edgar is sixty years old.

STEAMER FOOD BURNED BY CHOLERA FIGHTERS.

Philadelphia, June 29.—Carrying out an order from Washington, officials of the United States Marine Hospital service station in this city boarded the Hamburg-American Line steamer Graf Waldersee, from Hamburg, and seized all the foodstuff that could be found in the baggage of the 500 passengers. This was done in connection with the precautions being taken by the health authorities to prevent cholera from being brought into this country.

The food, which consists mainly of fruit, cheese and crackers, was burned in the ship's furnaces.

Newark Y. M. C. A. Takes Title.

Newton, June 29.—Title passed yesterday for the lands near Quick Pond, in Stillwater Township, purchased by the Newark branch of the Y. M. C. A., which has its "Kamp Kiamesha," close by. The property comprises 286 acres, and the purchase price was $7,000. Benari and Miller were the owners. Ivan T. Flood, of the Y. M. C. A. carried on the negotiations for that body. The Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark, guaranteed the title.

Westfield Doesn't Want Comptroller.

Westfield will not elect a comptroller this year. While there was but a trivial vote at the referendum election held Tuesday, the sentiment expressed by those who did vote was decidedly against the town electing a comptroller under the provisions of a law passed last winter. The registered vote of the town is over fourteen hundred. Only 215 votes were cast. Of these 174 were against having a comptroller. The heaviest vote was in the Fourth Ward, where 61 votes were cast against having a comptroller for the town and 4 in favor of the office.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. SPEEDING AUTOIST IS FINED $50 AT MILLBURN.

Running his automobile in Millburn Tuesday regardless to speed laws resulted in William M. Nash, of 257 West Thirty-eighth street, New York, chauffeur for Russell G. Colt, of 30 West Fourty-fourth street, Manhattan, being fined $50. Nash was driving along Millburn avenue, Millburn, at the rate of about sixty miles an hour, it is said, when he was arrested by Policeman Thomas Hurley, who chased the autoist for almost half a mile on the township's motorcycle.

Hurley took Nash to the office of Justice of the Peace William A. Hackleton, in Main street, where the chauffeur admitted he had greatly exceeded the speed limit. He declared he was on his way to the Baltusrol Golf Club to meet his employer and that he was in a hurry. Mr. Colt was reached at the club by telephone and told of his chauffeur being arrested. The owner of the car went to the squire's office and paid the fine.

It was the first arrest for speeding in Millburn in some time.

Bernardsville Storm Swept.

Bernardsvile, June 29.—During a severe thunder storm that passed over this section Tuesday night, lightning struck the house of Michael Angelo. The chimney was demolished and a few shingles were torn from the roof. The lightning kept on after hitting the roof of the house and struck a large tree in line with the structure, splitting it and tearing up the ground. Several wires were put out of commission and the telephone service was cut off entirely from the Mountain colony, the street lights were blown out and the town was in total darkness all night.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Rushmore Explains.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

Respecting the article which appeared in Tuesday's local papers concerning coal bids of the North Plainfield borough schools, I wish to make the following reply:

As chairman of the supply committee, I hereby desire to state that the custom of the Board has been before I became chairman, to place the order for coal with Ten Eyck & Harris, of South Plainfield.

Last year was the first I had charge of the purchase of supplies as chairman and believing there should be open competition, I sent a notice to all the local coal dealers requesting bids for one year's supply.

I received answers from only a small proportion. One of the leading coal dealers personally stated he refused to bid.

On the strength of this competition my committee and the full Board who always approves, placed the order at a saving of $158 over the previous year.

We were justified in assuming that the dealers who refused to bid last year would not care to submit a bid for this year's supplies and we therefore suggested to the Board that notices be sent to the dealers who furnished bids last year, which suggestion the board approved.

It will be seen that the price of $3.99 for Pea coal and $5.49 for Stove coal per ton is extremely low and it is with great pleasure that I submit all of the stimates so that the public may know how much we have saved on coal supplies this year. There are no coal dealers in our borough and I state without fear of contradiction that there is no other dealer outside of the borough who would have furnished a lower bid than $3.99 for pea coal and $5.49 for stove coal.

The law, as we understand it, does not require advertisements for bids for supplies in boroughs and the statement that it is necessary to advertise publicly was probably made under the impression that section 52 of the Session Laws of 1903, which section provides for advertisements in school districts in cities, applied to boroughs.

The following letter was sent to coal dealers who bid last year and the following bids received:

Bids for coal supply for North Plainfield schools are hereby asked for. Sealed bids will be received by Mr. Edmund Rushmore, chairman of Supply Committee, 212 Park avenue, Plainfield, N. J., up to 12 p. m. July 14th. No bids will be published.

We reserve the right to have any or all coal weighed on public scales.

Bids will be based on supplying clean coal in the bins of the respective buildings in quantities, and at such times as needed; bids to cover 300 tons pea coal Lehigh, 75 tons stove coal Lehigh.

EDMUND RUSHMORE,
Chairman Supply Committee.

Bids received from the following:

	300 tons pea coal	75 tons stove coal
Wadley & Goodenough	$4.25	$6.00
TenEyck & Harris	4.75	6.00
Consumers Coal Co.	4.00	5.50
Geo. O. Stevens	4.10	5.90
Plainfield Ice & Supply Co.	4.25	5.75
TenEyck & Kelly	4.50	5.90

SNATCHED FROM PATH OF TRAIN

His suspicions aroused by the odd actions of a man along the Lackawanna tracks at Millburn, yesterday morning, Harry Poplet, towerman, left his signal place in time to reach the side of Walter Wally, colored, of Main street, that town, and prevent suicide.

Wally had thrown himself in the path of a train, but a hundred feet away when Poplet grabbed him. Both got out of danger just as the train which stops at Millburn Station at 6:26 swept by.

The tower chief turned Wally over to former Chief of Police Robert S. Oliver, who took the man to the Millburn jail, where he is being held pending an examination as to his sanity.

From his tower Poplet saw the colored man, who is a character about Millburn, walking along the tracks, wildly waving his arms. Then he saw him take from his pockets and throw away several articles.

When the 6:26 train was about due at the Millburn Station, Poplet said Wally stood alongside of the track. The towerman started to walk slowly toward the man and reached his side just as he jumped in front of the locomotive.

The articles which the would-be suicide discarded were a gold watch and chain, silver matchbox and pearl handle pocketknife. They were found by Oliver.

Leases Gov't Property.

Charles H. Hand, of Watchung avenue, has leased of the Federal Government the Force property, corner Watchung avenue and East Second street and will have charge of the property until the Government gets ready to erect a Federal building thereon. Mr. Hand is under contract to remove in sixty days the buildings and clear the tract ready for locating the Government building.

—Thoughtful housekeepers will not miss the opportunity to make a selection from the choice assortment of strawberries, raspberries, cherries, pears and muskmelons which will be offered by Neuman Bros. for tomorrow's trade.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO BE INVITED TO SHORE

It is altogether likely that Governor Woodrow Wilson will be urged to tender President William Howard Taft an invitation to attend the convention of the Governors of the States of the Union, which is to be held at the New Monmouth Hotel, Spring Lake, in September. It is felt that the chief executive of the nation should be asked to attend the conclave, and it is customary under the circumstances for the governor of the State in which the session is held to tender the invitation. This move will doubtless be strongly urged by former Governor Fort, chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, and Senator Oliver H. Brown, mayor of Spring Lake, and also a member of the committee.

That the entertainment of the Governors at the resort will mean the expenditure of large amounts is evidenced in the declarations of the members of the committee to themselves contribute amounts ranging from $500 to $1,000 each toward the fund. Besides these donations, the borough will be asked to assist and other money solicited.

Given a Reception.

Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, after a service of twenty-three years, was given a reception in the parlors of the church at Elizabeth, last evening. The reception followed the regular covenant meeting, and was largely attended. A number of short speeches were made by officers and leading members; also Rev. Dr. Thomas B. Thames. During the evening Dr. Tomlinson was presented with a bronze statue of a Roman soldier, standing over six feet. Dr. Tomlinson is well-known here where he has preached many times.

Commission Rule Discussed.

Newton, June 29.—Little progress was made at the special meeting of the Board of Trade on Monday evening, to change the form of government of Newton. About twenty-five prominent citizens attended and there was an informal discussion regarding the different systems of government for small towns. A meeting may be held in the near future at which men of experience in town government will speak.

Rector Going to Bermuda.

Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will leave Saturday for Paget, Bermuda, where for the next two months he will have charge of the Episcopal church there, of which Rev. Edward I. Lough is the rector. The latter will enjoy his vacation in the States. During his absence W. T. Greer, a local lay reader will have charge of the services at the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Francis, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Kaine, ran a rusty nail in his foot while playing at the new house Mr. Kaine is erecting on Church street. Dr. F. J. Hughes, of Plainfield, was summoned and he gave anti-toxin treatment.

Philip Smith has purchased a large motor boat which can be secured for moonlight parties on Spring Lake. He also has a number of canoes and row boats for hire.

John Kane, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton.

Mrs. Robert Horn has returned from a visit with friends in Meauchen.

L. A. Hummer, of New Brunswck, has been visiting friends here.

HERE AND THERE.

John VanNest, of Martinsville, a wholesale butcher, is not to be outdone by Theodore Leurrsen, of Watchung, who brought a freak chicken into The Daily Press office a few days ago. Mr. Leurrsen's exhibit had three eyes, two mouths, two tongues and a perfectly formed body. Now Mr. VanNest comes along today with the hoof of a five weeks' old calf. The hoof had three prongs. The calf, which he purchased from Charles Femley, of Fleettown a few days ago weighed 175 pounds.

STOPS RUNAWAY.

Louis N. Robinson's Daring Deed Attracts a Crowd.

Spirited horses attached to the heavy business wagon of R. W. Gibson & Co., dealers in hides, skins, etc., ran at top speed through Park avenue into West Front street, this afternoon, and notwithstanding the fact that the street was filled with horses and wagons, there was no damage worth speaking of. Just as the horses turned from Park avenue into Front street, Louis N. Robinson, who stood on the corner, at the risk of his life, jumped into the wagon, grabbed the reins and stopped the team near Somerset street. The brave act was witnessed by a number of bystanders, who lost no time in complimenting Robinson.

The team was left standing on Park avenue near Fourth street, and being frightened at something started to run away. The horses in their flight dodged in and around the other wagons, luckily escaping them all. Before reaching Front street several attempts were made to stop the horses but they all failed.

ALTAR RAIL MEMORIAL TO REV. E. E. ROBERSON.

The First M. E. church, of Passaic, was re-opened last Sunday after a thorough renovation. Among the many new additions was a solid mahogany altar rail, which was dedicated to the late Rev. E. E. Roberson. The services were very impressive. Mr. Roberson was formerly pastor of the Passaic church, in 1908-09. He passed away on Christmas eve of 1909.

Before going to Passaic, Mr. Roberson was pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, this city, where he performed a good work which resulted in increasing the membership to a large extent. Mr. Roberson was well-known here.

Candidates Examined.

Peter Dooley, Patrick Tarpey, Geo. W. Muir, George Loerch and John E. Tibbetts, candidates for the police force all of whom were examined physically last week by City Physician C. B. Lufburrow, were given the mental examinations by the Councilmanic police Board last night. City Stenographer George B. Wean was in charge. The papers were sealed and will be gone over by the board.

Barney To Swear Off.

Barney Tracey was given one more chance by Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning to mend his ways. Tracey was arrested yesterday in a helpless condition from drink. He promised to bring a pledge to court tomorrow morning and sign it for a year. Sentence was suspended.

Held for Grand Jury.

William Hurling, colored, sixty-five years old, was held in $1,000 bail for the action of the Union county grand jury yesterday afternoon by Judge W. G. DeMeza. The complaint was made by Mrs. William Greene, also colored, mother of Clara Greene, seven years old. Hurling was a boarder at the Greene home on West Third street.

DANIEL DEAN HAS BECOME A BENEDICT

Miss Elizabeth VanNest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert VanNest, of Whitewood avenue, became the bride of Daniel Dean, of Morristown, at the home of the bride's parents last night. One hundred and fifty friends of the couple attended the ceremony, the guests coming from all sections of the state. Rev. E. C. Conover, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, officiated. Miss Mabel Vanderhoef, of this city, was maid-of-honor and Harry Holmes, of Long Branch, and formerly of this city, was the best man. The ring was carried by Miss Sylvia Smith while her sister, Miss Laura Smith, was flower girl.

The house was appropriately decorated with daisies and potted plants, the color scheme being green and white. A daisy chain formed an attractive aisle for the bridal party. The bride was gowned in white silk with white tulle veil and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid-of-honor wore a dress of white messaline satin, carrying a bouquet of white carnations tied with yellow chiffon. After the marriage ceremony a wedding supper was served and a reception held. The bridal couple received a large number of gifts from their many friends.

The bride is a member of the King's Daughters and several church organizations as well as various social clubs in the city and borough. Mr. Dean has been in the employ of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company for several years having gone to Morristown a few months ago to take charge of the store in that city. He was formerly a clerk in the local branch of that concern.

The bridal couple left last night for a trip up the Hudson valley. Upon returning from their honeymoon they will live in Morristown.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church will meet in the chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will hold a social in the chapel of the church Thursday evening.

Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, who has been detained at his home on account of illness in his family, will again occupy his pulpit on Sunday morning. In the evening a sacred concert will be given at the chapel, when the Plainfield Lyceum will hold its closing exercises for the summer. A silver offering will be taken.

A Runaway.

A horse belonging to John Brick, of South avenue, took fright when near the Netherwood station yesterday afternoon and ran away. Daniel Kiely jumped in the wagon as the frightened animal dashed past his home on East Fifth street, but as the lines were dragging he was helpless and was in danger of being injured. Morris Powers and Dr. Herbert saw the boy's plight and through their combined efforts the horse was captured and taken to police headquarters. Arthur Brick, Mr. Brick's son, called for it later. No damage was done.

William A. Wilson Resigns.

William A. Wilson, formerly night baggagemaster at the North Avenue Station, and baggagemaster since the retirement of Jeremiah F. Garretson, who recently died, resigned his position yesterday, being unable to stand the hard work. He has been succeeded by Frank Springer, who was in the Jersey City baggage office of the New Jersey Central for sixteen years. His assistant is Charles Schwartz. W. J. Beekman, formerly of Dunellen, has been made night baggagemaster.

Reserves Decision.

Decision was reserved by Judge William Newcorn in the city District Court this morning on the case of Miss Hazel Smalley, of Dunellen, against the Crescent Embossing Company the action being for $500 damages. Miss Smalley is a former employe of the Crescent Embossing Company and received injuries to her hand some months ago by getting it caught in the machine she was running. She is represented by Fred L. Pope, of Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Manning, of East Sixth street, are at Glens Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, of East Ninth street, is spending the summer at Moscow, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller, of East Ninth street, are at Old Forge, N. Y., for the summer.

KREWSON WORRIED SO POLICE BELIEVE

Since the borough authorities have begun to enforce the ordinance requiring every dog owner to procure a license for his or her pet canine, the residents of that peaceful stretch of land across the brook, which is known in local geographical parlance to the people of Plainfield as "Canada," have been thrown into what James E. Martine calls chaos. After five of the dog lovers, who did not have enough affection for their household pets to purchase the necessary brass tag to keep them from the clutches of George Weiss and his worthy band, had been arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court yesterday morning and had received a severe reprimand for their negligence at the hands of the judge, it was generally believed that all trouble due to tardy licensees had passed.

But not so—for Chief Weiss continued to keep his ears open for all dogs which did not have the brass sound to their steady tread. Yesterday afternoon an untagged canine happened to pass under the windows of the police station and Chief Weiss immediately started to investigate. The guilty dog was a fox terrier of the vintage of 1890 or thereabouts and had the record of being the oldest inhabitant of dogdom in the borough. This dog belonged to William V. Krewson, of Manning avenue, who its proud master.

Mr. Krewson was sought out by Chief Weiss and told to appear before Recorder Dolliver this morning. As is the custom of the judge in such cases, the offending parties are usually reprimanded and told to procure a license, which costs $2, immediately under penalty of being fined in case of further neglect.

It is not known whether Mr. Krewson thought that he had committed a serious offense or whether he believed that he was in danger of losing his beloved fox terrier but at any rate he suddenly became frightened at the thoughts of being brought to justice. None of the borough authorities this morning knew of his whereabouts or what had become of the faithful dog "Tray," which had caused all the trouble and worriment for its master, but it is expected that upon its return, the old canine will be chloroformed.

DEMSEY—HOWARD.

Colored Couple's Wedding Took Place Last Nnight.

Miss Isabel Howard, daughter of James Howard, of Danville, Va., became the bride of Samuel Dempsey, son of Mrs. Flora Dempsey, of Ocala, Florida, at the home of his brother, William Dempsey, of West Third street last night at 7 o'clock. Rev. M. W. Vaughn, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church performed the ceremony. The bride, who wore a grey traveling costume, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Annie Stone, of New York city. The best man was Ortie Brown, of this city.

The ceremony took place under a floral bower in the parlor, the decorative scheme being pink and white. Following the wedding the guests, numbering 150 held an informal reception and a collation was served on the lawn. Friends were present from Ocala, Florida, Danville, Va., New York, Newark, Dunellen and this city. Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey received a handsome array of beautiful and useful gifts from relatives and friends. The bride and groom left immediately for Pittsburg, Pa., which will be their future home.

Will Stay Another Week.

Elder F. E. Smith, of Trinity Reformed church, today received a night-letter telegram from Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor, stating that he has decided to remain at the home of his mother in Grand Rapids, Mich., for another week, taking that much time off his vacation in August. Rev. T. L. Gardiner, of Mountain avenue, will occupy Mr. Broek's pulpit on Sunday morning, July 2, and in the evening there will be a union service with the First Baptist, First Presbyterian, Trinity Reformed and First M. E. churches, at the First Baptist church, Rev. C. E. Herring, Ph. D., preaching.

Will Hold Union Service.

The Christian Endeavor Societies of the First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches, the Epworth League of the First M. E. church and the Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will hold a union service at 6:45 o'clock Sunday evening at the First Baptist church. The topic of the meeting will be "Ways of Serving Our Nation," Esther 4 1:17.

MILTON'S HOME GOES

Historic Residence of Great Poet Is Doomed.

Bartholomew Close, Most Interesting Section of Old London, Is to Be Demolished—Benjamin Franklin Once Lived There.

London.—Bit by bit each year what little is left of old London disappears. Before long a whole neighborhood known as Bartholomew Close—nearly the most interesting relic of Old London, for it includes houses where Milton and Benjamin Franklin lived—will have to go.

The Smithfield meat market adjoins Bartholomew Close and traffic has grown so heavy around the market of late years that it has been found necessary to construct some new roads there. The best part of the old district covers the space wanted for the new roads, so sentiment must bow before expediency and the Close will be seen no more.

A close is literally the precincts of an abbey or a cathedral and this old district is so called because it partly is and once wholly was the precincts of the Priory Church of St. Bartholomew. At the present time what is known as the Close is just a network of rambling little streets and squares with quaint little courts branching out here and there; the church itself only occupies one corner of the place.

Milton lived for some time in this spot when he was in retirement about 1660. He took up his abode at a small tavern known as the "Little Wonder." The house is in a good state of preservation and is occupied at present by a plumber, who is very proud of his work-shop and gives all the information he can to visitors.

The house where Benjamin Franklin

Where Milton Lived.

lived is no longer in existence. As the old verger of St. Bartholomew said, "It's been completely metamorphosed into something quite different." Comparatively recently a lady chapel was added to St. Batholomew's and to make room for it a famous old fringe factory had to be pulled down; part of the walls of the factory are still to be seen. In this building was Palmer's printing office where Franklin was employed as a journeyman printer while at the same time he was acting as America's ambassador.

Although Londoners will be glad to see the Bartholomew Close go on account of the slums it contains, still they will be sorry to see it demolished on account of its great antiquity and venerable associations.

OLDEST HOUSE IN COUNTRY

Adobe House Erected at St. Augustine During Spanish Occupation of Florida.

St. Augustine, Fla.—The old 'dobe house, shown in the illustration, in St. Augustine is said to be the oldest in the United States, although there are rival claimants for this honor. It is believed to have been erected during the Spanish occupation of Florida in 1516 and the builder was Don de Toledo, according to tradition.

Calf Born Tailless.

Leechburg, Pa.—D. W. Croyle, a farmer of Tarr Town, is endeavoring to devise some way of furnishing a calf which has just been born with means for fighting flies in the summer time. The baby cow is normal in all respects, except that it has not even a hint of a tail.

Ely to Be Aviation Instructor.

San Francisco.—The coast artillery corps, National Guard of California, has completed arrangements for Eugene Ely, the aviator, to act as instructor for the aviation squad. This is said to be the first aviation squad organized by a militia corps.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 2, 1911.

Topic.—Ways of serving our nation.—Est. iv, 1-17. (A patriotic consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

One hundred and thirty-five years ago today a resolution declaring that the American colonies are and of a right ought to be free and independent states was adopted by the Continental congress. Two days later, or on July 4, 1776, the formal Declaration of Independence was adopted by a unanimous vote. John Adams believed that July 2 would be observed as the anniversary of the declaration of American independence, but instead July 4 has become our great national holiday. It is the birthday of the nation and should ever inspire us with the true spirit of patriotism.

The true patriot will always be willing to serve his country. Where the love of country exists there will always be a desire to advance the best interests of the country at whatever risk or cost. The founders of our nation counted the cost, but so great was their patriotic devotion that they were willing to pay it, if necessary, to establish here a free and independent nation. The demand upon the beautiful Queen Esther that she risk her life in behalf of her people must have been a severe test of her love for them. Life could not but have been dear to her. She had everything to make it precious and worth keeping if she could honorably do so. She gave the matter serious consideration and finally decided to lose sight of self in the interest of her kindred and race. And, having come to this conclusion, she acted upon it. She risked her own life to save the life of her nation and thereby saved both. In this act we have an example of ideal patriotism. It is undoubtedly such a love of country that will lead us to sacrifice personal interest for the good of the nation. Selfishness has no place in true patriotism.

As suggestive of ways of serving our nation let us consider:

1. Piety and patriotism. To serve our nation we must exalt religion and do all in our power by example and precept to make morality and righteousness parts of our national life. Piety and patriotism must always go hand in hand. Love to God is the best and truest inspiration to love to our fellow men. National morality is as necessary as individual morality. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." In our land we face many serious problems that can only be solved by the application of the principles of religion. The questions of political corruption, of the liquor traffic, of Sabbath desecration and many others of equal importance will never be solved satisfactorily until they are settled as God would have them settled. Everything that tends to apply the principles of religion to our national life will prove a blessing to the nation. In exalting religion therefore we will serve the nation.

2. Prayer and patriotism. God is the God of nations as well as of individuals. He raiseth up one nation and bringeth down another. In His hands are the destinies of all people. The name of God is not contained in the book of Esther, but His providential care of His people is written upon every page. The people fasted and prayed in their great desire for national deliverance, and God heard them. We should daily commend our nation to God in prayer. In no other way can we better serve the nation than by interceding for God's favor upon our rulers, our institutions, our churches and our people. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ezra vi, 8-10; Neh. viii, 1-5; Ps. xxxiii, 12; li, 18; cxlvii, 20; Prov. xiv, 34; Jer. xxix, 7; Matt. xvii, 24-27; xxii, 15-21; Mark xii, 17; I Tim. ii, 1-3; Heb. xi, 8-16.

Trained by Christian Endeavor.

He was a very shy, bashful youth when he joined the Christian Endeavor society in the village where he lived. The first meeting in which he spoke he will never forget, for his knees shook, his teeth chattered, his voice trembled, but he spoke just the same, although but a few words. And in subsequent meetings he kept on speaking, getting more and more accustomed to hearing his voice and having more confidence in what he had to say.

He left the village for one of the largest cities in the United States, where he kept up his Christian Endeavor interest and his Christian Endeavor talking. In the city he was the local representative for a large manufacturing concern. He was still a young man, under thirty, when a large trade convention was held in his city. Buyers from several states were gathered in this convention to discuss questions pertaining to their business interests and welfare.

The firm that our young Christian Endeavorer represented was called upon.

He was introduced as the youngest representative in the convention. He made an excellent fifteen minute talk, bright and right to the point, which was appreciated by the audience in a thunderous round of applause and was afterward highly commended by the firm he represented.

But whenever you mention the matter to him he always replies, "My training in the Christian Endeavor society is entirely responsible and deserves all the credit."—Alfred S. Day in Christian Endeavor World.

ECONOMY JARS WILL KEEP YOUR FRUIT PERFECT
When your fruits are "Economy Preserved" you can be absolutely certain that they will keep perfectly until you want to use them. They cannot spoil as the sanitary composition in the cap seals them to stay sealed.
Come in and let us show you how simple and how easy it is to preserve in the "Economy Way."
Here's the recipe:
Cook your fruit YOUR OWN WAY. Then while hot pour into Economy Jars and place caps on, using spring which comes with them to hold cap in place.
When cool there is about fifteen pounds suction holding the cap on to stay.
Order a dozen Economy Jars at once.
Price per dozen—1-qt. size, $1.20; 2-qt. size, $1.40.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Every good deed, every act of kindness, is a good seed sown in other lives to reproduce its kind.—Dr. Gladden, Congregationalist, Chicago.

Reforms.

God calls a few men to carry on great reforms. He calls all men to carry on a reform within their own lives.—Rev. F. F. Shannon, Methodist, Brooklyn.

Contentment.

Contentment is a nest egg virtue. It attracts other virtues, and they come and take up their abode with it.—Rev. L. L. Overman, Presbyterian, Philadelphia.

Our Needs.

We think we need many things which we do not really need at all. Much of all our lives is spent in praying for and in seeking those things which we do not need.—Rev. E. A. Hanley, Baptist, Cleveland, O.

Moral Barometer.

Your tongue, by its speech, notes your exact moral and spiritual condition. Frivolous, giddy, tart, bitter, sweet or good—that tongue of yours marks your condition. The tongue is a moral barometer. In praise to God we reach its highest glory and honor.—Rev. D. R. Babbitt, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Faith—the Way of Life.

There is one way of life—it is faith in God and his moral law; faith in Jesus Christ and the practical religion he preached; faith in immortality and the harvests that forever come from the seed we sow. It is loyalty to things highest and best, the good old way of holiness and of love.—Rev. Rush Shippen, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

Hypocrisy and Godlessness.

If religion lack reverence toward God and sincerity in worship, better have the temple doors closed. Better have no fire on God's altars, no sacrifice offered, than this hideous sham. Insincerity in religion is more than no religion at all. Hypocrisy is more than godlessness.—Rev. H. T. Lyman-Wheaton, Episcopalian, Ridgefield, N. J.

True Domestic Commonwealths.

Oh, for the home of the Bible, the family altar, the blessing at the meal, the sacred song, the home that is joined hard to the church. Such homes are the true domestic commonwealths. From such republics have come the men and women into the larger republic, winning honor in every sphere of life, devoting time, strength and money to the service of God and their fellow men.—Rev. William C. Stimson, Reformed, New York.

Reality.

What Paul affirms and what the gospel affirms over and over again is that it is not speech, that it is not doing, but being, that God regards. Being is finer than doing, finer than saying, finer than any expression which it is possible for it to make of itself. So it is not speech, but reality, that God looks for, and the church waits for it and the world is hungry for it in you and in me.—Rev. Dr. Donald D. McLaurin, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Secret of Social Reform.

In better home life lies the chief secret of social and moral reform. To this source we must primarily look for transforming the rising generation with better habits, sentiments and principles. Among the best charities of our time is that of supplanting the wretched hovels in the slums of our great cities with better homes, also sending children into the country for summer vacation or for free career amid pure air and healthy surroundings. Amid the swift currents of evil and good it is for each one to do our best toward creating the ideal home, mighty in blessing. Build it on rocky foundations of enduring integrity, four square in culture and liberality, with nothing false to hide, all transparent and pure as clearest crystal. So shall come the holy city, coming down out of heaven as a city of God.—Rev. Rush R. Shippen, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

True Christian Unity.

Christians are divided into many folds, even as it is the divine will that they should be, they are grouped into diverse communions, but this certainly is the Lord's will. It does an Episcopalian church good to have a Methodist church not far away, and it helps a Methodist church to have an Episcopalian church in the same town. Every Catholic priest is helped if he has around him a circle of Protestant preachers, and every city is all the better if it has in it the great Roman Catholic church, with its emphasis upon obedience and reverence and loyalty to the traditions of the past. Let us then cultivate kindly, generous, sympathetic feeling toward all the followers of the Lord. I know people who never refer to the Baptists except to bring in something concerning water, as though the great Baptist communion had never done anything for the world but dip men and women under water. There are Christians who never refer to the Methodists without some sarcastic fling about their shouting, as though the great Methodist church had never done anything in this land of ours but shout. There are those who never speak of the Episcopalians without a sneer at their formality, as though formality were the only product that Episcopalianism has as yet brought forth. All the great communions of the church of God have labored and sacrificed and wrought victories and added to the imperishable spiritual wealth of the world. All honor to them all and love for them all, and let us thank God that it is true today, as it has been true from the beginning and as it will be true to the end, that there is but one body and one spirit and one hope, one Lord, one faith and one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all.—Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, Congregationalist, New York.

LARGEST VALVE IN WORLD

Automobile Driven Through Opening of Monster Device at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—One of the largest valves in the world has just been installed in a power plant on the Canadian side of Niagara Falls. This monster affair weighs nine tons and was made for controlling one of three 12,000 horsepower turbines. The valve is thirty feet high and has a nine-foot opening through which, as seen in our illustration, an automobile was driven

HOW FIREWATER GOT NAME

Test by Which Indians Learned to Distinguish Whisky That Was Diluted.

New York.—When the Hudson Bay Trading company commenced trading among the Indians it was found that by selling the Indians liquor they could more easily be induced to trade their peltries. The first whisky was brought to this country in large barrels, but in transporting it overland, it was found more convenient to divide it into small kegs.

The white traders soon became aware, according to the American Wine Press, that by diluting the whisky with water, more furs could be obtained. This was practiced for some time, but the Indians learned that good whisky poured on a fire would cause it to flame up, whereas, had the whisky been diluted, the fire would be quenched.

It was by this simple experiment that the term "firewater" became a common word among Indians. A chief who had experienced the bad effects of whisky among his people said it was most certainly distilled from the hearts of wildcats and the tongues of women from the effects it produced.

SERVANTS RUN A NEWSPAPER

Viennese Mistresses Dismayed When It Prints Names of Undesirables and Alleged Wrongs.

Vienna.—A new spirit of independence observable of late among Viennese servants, both maids and men, is widely attributed to a new weekly journal called the Servants' Review. Viennese mistresses express dismay at its appearance.

The new journal calls upon all domestics to organize themselves and thus obtain a weapon by which wages can be raised and conditions of work improved. All ill-treated and oppressed servants are invited to pour their woes into the ears of the editor, who offers them the consolation of printing the names and addresses of hard-hearted masters and mistresses.

Subscribers to the journal are allowed to advertise for situations free of charge, and notices of footmen's balls and concerts for maids of all work are features of the publication.

Inks Fish to Sell Them.

South Norwalk, Conn.—A youthful genius of this town has sold several hundred pounds of frost fish to housekeepers as trout. The frost fish had been decorated with red ink to make them look like trout. As frost fish they were worth less than 3 cents a pound, but as trout they sold for 25 to 35 cents a pound.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVILL.

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

Sheridan was seemingly dead, the long street silent, gloomy, black, except for those streams of saloon light shining across pools of water. He stumbled over the irregular ground, occasionally striking patches of wooden sidewalk or a strip of cinders. Here and there a tent flapped in the wind, which drove the drizzle into his face; somewhere ahead a swinging sign moaned as if in agony. A few wanderers ploughed through the muck, dim uncertain shapes appearing and vanishing in the gloom. He had gone a block and over, the struggle against the elements leaving him forgetful of all else, when a man reeled out of some dimly lit shack to his right, and staggered drunkenly forward a few feet in advance. He could barely distinguish the fellow's outlines, giving little thought to the occurrence, for the way was unusually black along there, the saloon opposite having shades drawn. Suddenly a flash of red fire spurted into the night, with a sharp report. It was so close at hand it blinded him, and he flung up one arm over his eyes, and yet, in that single instant, he perceived the whole picture as revealed by the red flame. He saw the man in front go down in a heap, the projection of the building from behind which the shot came, the end of a wagon sticking forth into the street which had concealed the assassin. The blinding flash, the shock of that sudden discharge, for a moment held him motionless; then he leaped forward, revolver in hand, sprang around the end of the wagon, and rushed down the dark alley between two buildings. He could see nothing, but some one was running recklessly ahead of him, and he fired in the direction of the sound, the leaping spurt of flame yielding a dim outline of the fugutive. Three times he pressed the trigger; then there was nothing to shoot at—the fellow had faded away into the black void of prairie. Keith stood there baffled, staring about into the gloom, the smoking revolver in his hand. The sound of men's voices behind was all that reached him, and feeling the uselessness of further pursuit, he retraced his way back through the narrow passage.

A group was gathered about the body in the rain, a single lantern glimmering. Two or three men had started down the passageway, and Keith met them, revolvers drawn and suspicious.

"Who are you?" snapped one sharply. "Were you doing all that shooting yonder?"

Keith recognized the voice, thankful that he did so.

"I fired at the fellow, but he got away onto the prairie. I reckon you couldn't have done any better, Bill."

"Jack Keith!" and Hickock's voice had a new tone, his hand dropping on the other's shoulder. "Never was gladder to meet a fellow in my life. Boys, this is an old deputy of mine down in Dodge. When he gives up chasin' a murderer there isn't much use our tryin'. Let's go back, and find out how bad the fellow is hurt. While we're feelin' our way, Jack, you might tell us what you know about this affair."

"It was just the flash of a gun, and the man dropped," Keith explained, briefly. "I was ten or a dozen feet behind, and the fellow fired from under the wagon there. He must have been laying for some one—I reckon, maybe, it was me."

"You? Then it's likely you have some notion who he was?"

"Well, if I have, Bill," and Keith's lips were set tight, "I'm not liable to tell you. If it's the lad I think likely, I'll attend to the case myself. You understand—this is my personal affair."

Hickock nodded, his hand again pressing the other's shoulder.

"Sure, Jack, if you feel that way. There's enough doing here in Sheridan to keep a marshal reasonably busy, without dippin' into private matters. I rather reckon you can take care of yourself, but if you need me, old boy, I'm always right here on the job. You know that."

"I do, Bill, and appreciate it."

The group about the motionless body fell away, and made room for the marshal, the last man to rise saying soberly:

"He's dead all right, Hickock. I guess he never knew what hit him. Good shootin', too, dark as it is here."

"Had the range fixed, likely," returned the marshal. "That's what makes it look like it was arranged for."

He bent down, striving to distinguish the dead man's features turned up to the drizzle, but the night revealed only the faintest outline.

"Anybody know him?" There was no response, only a shuffling of feet in the mud. "Here, you man with the lantern, hold it over where I can see. There, that is better. Now, you fellows take a look, and see if some of you can't name the poor devil."

They glanced down, one after the other, over Bill's shoulder, shading their eyes from the rain so as to see clearer. The light of the flickering lantern streamed full on the ghastly face, but each man shook his head, and passed on. Keith hung back, hoping some one would identify the body, and not make it necessary for him to take part in the grewsome task. It was not likely to be any one he knew, and besides, he felt the man had died in his stead, and he dreaded to look upon the stricken face. When the last of the group had drifted back out of the radius of light, Hickock looked up and saw him.

"Here, Jack," he said, gravely, "you better try—you might know him."

Keith bent over and looked down. As he did so his heart seemed to rise choking into his throat, and a blur obscured his sight. He swept a hand over his eyes and dropped on his knees into the mud beside the body, staring speechless into the white face, the sightless eyes. Hickock watching him closely and gripped his arm.

"What is it? Do you know him?"

"My God, yes; Fred Willoughby!"

CHAPTER XXV.

A Reappearance of the General.

Keith did not inform Hope of her brother's death until the following morning, but had the body properly prepared for burial, and devoted the remainder of the night to searching for General Waite, and, incidentally, for both Hawley and Scott. Both Hickock and Fairbain assisted in this effort to learn the whereabouts of the dead boy's father, but without the slightest result, nor did Keith's investigations reveal the gambler at any of his accustomed resorts, while Scott had apparently made a complete getaway. These disappearances merely served to convince him as to the truth of his first suspicions; Scott might have departed for good, but Hawley would certainly reappear just as soon as assured his name had not been mentioned in connection with the tragedy. To Neb alone did the plainsman candidly confide his belief in the guilt of these two, and when other duties called him elsewhere, he left the negro scouring the town for any possible reappearance of either.

Heavy-eyed from lack of sleep, heavy-hearted with his message, yet fully decided as to what advice he should offer, Keith returned to the hotel, and requested an interview with Hope. Although still comparatively early, some premonition of evil had awakened the girl, and in a very few moments she was prepared to receive her visitor. A questioning glance into his face was sufficient to assure her of unpleasant news, but, with one quick breath, she grasped his arm as though his very presence afforded her strength.

"How tired you look! Something has occurred to keep you out all night—and—and I know you have brought me bad news. Don't be afraid to tell me; I can bear anything better than suspense. Is it about father?"

"No, Hope," and he took her hand, and led her to a chair. Bending above her he gave her the whole story of the night, and she scarcely interrupted with a question, sitting there dry-eyed, with only an occasional sob shaking her slender form. As he ended, she looked up into his face, and now he could see a mist of unshed tears in her eyes.

"What shall I do, Captain Keith? I am all alone with this, except for you."

"I have considered that, Hope," he answered, gravely, "and it seems to me your present duty is more to the living than the dead. You should remain here until we learn something definite regarding your father, and discover the truth of this conspiracy formed against him. If Fred could know the trouble his chance words have caused, he would wish you to do this. With him gone, we are going to find the unravelling harder than ever. It is my judgment, Hope, your brother should be buried here."

She shuddered, her hands pressed to her eyes.

"Oh, on that horrible 'Boots Hill?'"

"Only temporarily, little girl," his voice full of deepest sympathy. "In a few weeks, perhaps, it could be removed East."

She was silent for what seemed to him a long while; then she looked up into his face, clinging to his arm.

"Yes," she said, "that will be best."

That same afternoon, the sun low in the west, they placed the dead boy in his shallow grave on "Boots Hill." It was a strange funeral, in a strange environment—all about the barren, deserted plains; far away to the east and west, the darker line marking the railroad grade, and just below, nestled close in against the foot of the hill, the squalid town of tents and shacks. There were not many to stand beside the open grave, for few in Sheridan knew the lad, and funerals were not uncommon—some cronies, half-drunk and maudlin, awed somewhat by the presence of the marshal, Doctor Fairbain, Keith and Hope. That was all excepting the post chaplain from Fort Hays, who, inspiried by a glimpse of the girl's unveiled face, spoke simple words of comfort. It was all over with quickly, and with the red sun still lingering on the horizon, the little party slowly wended their way back, down the steep trail into the one long street of Sheridan.

At the hotel Neb was waiting, the whites of his eyes shining with excitement, his patomime indicating important news. As soon as he could leave Hope, Keith hurrried down to interview his dusky satellite, who appeared about to burst with restrained information. As soon as uncorked that individual began to flow volubly:

"I sho' done seed 'em, Massa Jack; I done seed 'em both."

"Both? Both who?"

"Massa Waite, sah, an' dat black debble dat we was huntin' for'. It was a mos' surprisin' circumstance, sah—a mos' surprisin' circumstance."

"Well, go on; where did you see them? Do you mean they were together?"

The negro took a long breath, evidently overcome by the importance of his message, and unable to conjure up words wholly satisfactory to his ideas.

"It sho' am de strangest t'ing, Massa Jack, ebber I prognosticated. I was jest comin' roun' de corner ob Sheeny Joe's shebang, back dar by de blacksmith shop, when—de Lawd save me!—yere come ol' Massa Waite, a ridin' 'long on a cream colo'd pinto just as much alibe as ebber he was.

"Som't'ing 'Bout a Gal, Massa Jack—an' a Law Suit.

Yas, sah; he's whiskers was blowin' round, an' I could eben yeah him cussin' he hoss, when he done shy at a man what got up sudden like from a cart-wheel he was settin' on. I done took one look at dat secon' fellar, and seed it was dat black debble from down Carson way. Den I ducked into de blacksmith shop out 'er sight. I sho' didn't want Mister Hawley to git no chance at dis nigger—I sho' didn't."

"Did they speak to one another?" Keith asked, anxiously. "Did you hear what was said?"

"She' dey talked, Massa Jack. I sorter reckon dey was dar for dat special purpose. Sutt'nly, sah, dey went right at talkin' like dey had som't'ing on dey minds. Ol' Massa Waite was a sittin' straight up on de hoss, an' dat black debble was a standin' dar in front ob him. Ol' Massa Waite he was mad from de first jump off, an' I could heah most eberyt'ing he said, but Mr. Hawley he grin de same way he do when he deal faro, an' speaks kinder low. De ol' man he swear fine at him, he call him eberyt'ing—a damn liar, a damn scoundrel—but Mr. Hawley he jest grin, and say ober de same ting."

"What was that, Neb?"

"Som't'ing 'bout a gal, Massa Jack—an' a law suit—an' how de ol' man better settle up widout no fightin'. I jest didn't git de whole ob it, he talked so low like."

"What did Waite say?"

"Well, mostly he jest cussed. He sho' told dat black debble 'bout what he thought ob him, but he didn't nebber call him Hawley—no, sah, not once; he done call him Bartlett, or somet'ing or odder like dat. But he sutt'nly read dat man's pedigree from way back to de time of de flood, I reck'n. An' he done swore he'd fight for whatebber it was, papers or no papers. Den Hawley, he got plumb tired ob de ol' man swearin' at him, an' he grabbed a picter out ob he's pocket, an' says, 'Damn you; look at dat! What kind ob a fight can yo' make against dat face?' De ol' man stared at it a while, sorter chokin' up; den he say softer like: 'It's Hope; where did yo' ebber get dat?' and de black debble he laughed, an' shoved de picter back into he's pocket. 'Hope, hell!' he say, 'it's Phyllis, an' I'll put her before any jury yo're mind to get—oh, I've got yo' nailed, Waite, dis time.'"

"Was that all?"

"De ol' gin'ral he didn't seem ter know what ter say; he done set dar lookin' off ober de prairie like he was clar flumegasted. He sho' did look like dat black debble hed hit him mighty hard. Den he says slow like, turnin' his hoss 'round: 'Bartlett, yo' am puttin' up a good bluff, but, by Gawd, I'm goin' ter call yo'. Yo' don't get a cent ob dat money 'less yo' put up de proof. I'll meet yo' whar yo' say, but ef I can git hol' ob some papers dat's missin' I'll take dat grin off yo' face.' De odder one laughed, an' de ol' gin'ral started fo' ter ride away, den he pull up he's hoss, an' look back. 'Yo' sorter herd wid dat kind ob cattle, Bartlett,' he say, 'sharp like, 'maybe yo' know a gambler roun' yere called Hawley?' De black debble nebber eben lose he's grin. 'Do yo' mean Black Bart Hawley?' 'Dat's the man, where is he?' 'Dealin' faro fo' Mike Kenna in Topeka a week ago—friend ob yours?' 'Dat's none ob yo' damned business,' snorted de ol' gin'ral, givin' his hoss de spur. Sho', Massa Jack, he nebber knowed he was talkin' ter dat same Hawley, an' dat black debble jest laughed as he rode off."

"When was all this, Neb?"

"'Bout de time yo' all went up on de hill, I reck'n. I done come right yere, and waited."

Keith walked across the room, selected a cigar, and came back, his mind busy with the problem. Hawley had in some manner, then, got into communication with Waite, and was threatening him. But Waite evidently knew the man under another name—his given name—and the gambler had sent him off on a false trail. The lost papers apparently contained the solution to all this mystery. Waite believed Hawley possessed them, but did not suspect that Bartlett and Hawley were the same person. What would he most naturally do now? Seek Hawley in Topeka probably; seize the first opportunity of getting there. Keith turned impatiently to the clerk.

"Any train running east?"

"Well, they generally start one out every day," with a glance toward the clock, "'long 'bout this time. Maybe it's gone, and maybe it hasn't."

It was already nearly dark outside as the two men hastened toward the depot. They arrived there barely in time to see the red lights on the last car disappear. No inquiries made of those lounging about brought results—they had been interested in a lot of drunken graders loaded on the flat cars by force, and sent out under guard—and not one could tell whether any man answering Waite's description was in the single passenger coach. Convinced, however, that the General would waste no time in prosecuting his search, Keith believed him already on his way east, and after dismissing Neb, with instructions to watch out closely for Hawley, he made his own way back to the hotel.

It seemed strange enough how completely he was blocked each time, just as he thought the whole baffling mystery was about to be made clear. Hawley was playing in rare luck, all the cards running easily to his hand, thus, at least, gaining time, and strengthening his position. There could no longer be any doubt that the gambler possessed some knowledge which made him a formidable adversary. From Waite's statement it was the less of the papers which left him helpless to openly resist the claim being made upon him on behalf of the mysterious Phyllis. His only hope, therefore, lay in recovering these; but, with time limited, he had been sent back on a wild goose chase, while Keith alone knew, with any degree of positiveness, where those documents really were. Hawley certainly had them in his possession the day before, for he had taken them to Miss Maclaire to thus convince her as to the truth of his statements. And Hawley was still in Sheridan. However, it was not likely the man would risk carrying documents of such value, and documents connecting him so closely with that murder on the Santa Fe Trail, about upon his person. At best, life was cheap in that community, and Black Bart must possess enemies in plenty. Yet if not on his person—where? Scott was only a tool, a mere ignorant desperado, not to be trusted to such a degree—yet apparently he was the only one working with the gambler in this deal, the only one cognizant as to his plans. Christie—Keith came to a stop in the street at the recurrence of the woman's name. Why not? If she had been convinced, if she really believed that these papers proved her right to both property and parentage, then she would guard them as a tigress does her young. And Hawley would know that, and must realize they would be far safer in her hands than in his pocket. She could not use them without his aid and guidance, and yet, whatever happened to him they would still be safely beyond reach. True, this might not have been done; the gambler might not yet have felt that he had sufficient hold upon the woman to trust her thus far, but it was, at least, a possibility to be considered, and acted upon.

Still wrestling with the intricate problem, Keith entered the dining-room, and weaved his way, as usual, through the miscellaneous crowd, toward the more exclusive tables at the rear. A woman sat alone at one of these, her back toward the door. His first thought was that it must be Hope, and he advanced toward her, his heart throbbing. She glanced up, a slight frown wrinkling her forehead, and he bowed, recognizing Christie Maclaire.

Odd Plea for Divorce.

Asserting that he married Miss Sarah Rhein simply to keep her from being sent to the State Home for Girls at Trenton, and that he had never lived with her since their marriage at Wilmington, Del., last November, John O'Brien, of Riverside, has filed a petition in the Court of Chancery for divorce. Both are under nineteen years of age.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church has planned a fine program for its meeting in Vincent chapel, tomorrow night, and there will be several addresses on Independence Day worth hearing. During a social hour refreshments will be served.

all branches of the state government were Republican. Last year, Governor and Assembly were Democratic, and the Senate Republican. Counting the Governor as the determining factor, in years when the legislature was divided, it is a fair general statement that the credit and responsibility for the legislation of last winter is Democratic, and that of prior years Republican.

Turning to the legislation, we find the progressive laws distributed indiscriminately through the whole period, the bulk naturally lying during the longer Republican period, and the political distinction, if any, resting in the fact that the legislation of last winter is the more radical in form and substance.

Appended is a chronological statement of the legislation

1907—Direct expression for U. S. Senator, direct primaries for county officers, utilities, installation of R .R. Commission.

1980—Civil Service.

1909—Extension direct primaries to county committeemen, extension powers of R. R. Commission, employers' liability act, following the New York act, railroad revaluation.

1910—Utilities law, railroad revadulation extended.

1911—New utilities law, new employers' liability law, Geran election law, corrupt practice act, commission form of government.

VETERAN BREWMASTER QUITS.

Marking his retirement as brewmaster of the ale brewery of P. Ballintine & Sons, after forty-two years' service, J. Grove Porter was feasted by the company at the Washington, in Newark, Tuesday night.

In a few days Mr. Porter will sail with his family for Europe. After a prolonged tour he will return to Newark, which he will continue to make his home. His position will be filled by his son, Ernest G. Porter, making the third generation of the family in the employ of the company. William Porter, who died several years ago was general superintendent. He was the father of the retiring brewmaster.

Gilbert R. Potts, secretary and general manager of the brewery, presided at the banquet.

Wouldn't Accept Lawyer's Service.

Paterson, June 29.—Sued for damages by his chauffeur, who had been injured in an accident, Joseph P. Martin admitted liability to the amount of $400 and asked the local district court yesterday to render a verdict in that sum in favor of the chauffeur, John Herman. Richard P. Jones, attorney for the Maryland Causalty Company, in which Mr. Martin carried a policy against such accidents, appeared in court, but Mr. Martin declared he did not know Jones and did not care to have Jones take part in the case. Mr. Jones explained that the policy provided that the company should defend suits for policyholders, but Judge Klinert ruled that the attorney had no standing in the case. Judgment was rendered for Herman in the sum of $400.

ORDERS ISSUED FOR 2ND REGIMENT CAMP

In preparation for the annual encampment of the Second Regiment, National Guard, orders are being sent out from military headquarters, and the resignation of Colonel Dungan and the subsequent promotion of Colonel Reading have caused a change about in the positions of the battalions. The Trenton battalion, which was the Third Battalion is moved up to second place. The battalions now will stand as follows: First Battalion, Companies E, C, M, I; Major William B. Martin, commanding; Second Battalion, Companies, A, B, D, E; Major John H. McCullough, commanding; Third Battalion, Companies H, G, L; Major Conrad Hall, commanding.

The following appointments have been made: To be regimental sergeant-major, Sergeant Harry Haynes, Company E; to be battalion sergeant-major, Private Fred T. Dugan, Company E; to be principal musician, Sergeant Martin Mayer; band; to be sergeant, Corporal Frank H. Sherbaum, band; to be corporal, Private Walter Groves, band.

Pursuant to general orders the Second Regiment will participate in a camp of instruction at Sea Girt, N. J., July 22d to 29th, 1911, inclusive.

Pay will be allowed from July 24 to 29, inclusive.

No enlisted man will be taken to the encampment unless enlisted before the thirty-first day of March of this year, unless such enlisted man shall have served at least six months in the army, marine corps, national guard or militia of this or any other State, or has received equivalent military instruction at an educational institution.

The minimum strength of each organization attending annual camps should be not less than four full squads of 32 men, 28 privates and four corporals, and six sergeants. No company will be considered as warranting the expenditure and pay that has a strength less than that indicated.

The quartermaster will make requisition for transportation, and also make the necessary train arrangements for the movement of the organizations from their home stations to Sea Girt on July 22d and for the return movement July 29th.

Hookworm Victim at Paterson.

Paterson, June 29.—A case of hookworm disease has been discovered here, the diagnosis being made in the case of David Shaumer, an Assyrian, now a patient at the General Hospital. He is thirty-eight years old is thought to have contracted the disease in the South. Treated at first for intestinal trouble, he has returned several times to the hospital. Then neurasthenia was thought of and finally hookworm was suspected. Microscopic tests found the correctness of this. The patient's recovery is expected.

BASEBALL.

High Bridge is coming here Saturday afternoon with a padded team, but they will have to go some to beat Driscoll's Darlings at the rate the local boys are playing now.

Interest in the city Sunday school baseball league is running high and the game Saturday between the First and Park Avenue Baptist teams will dra wa large crowd. The contest will start at 3:00 at the Cricket field on Willow avenue.

The report today is that Steve White, who pitched Princeton to victory over Yale this year and who attempted to win two games in the Central New Jersey League, has signed with the Boston Americans and not with the New York Giants. The motioned twirler appeared at Washington Park with the Giants Tuesday afternoon in a New York uniform and warmed up before the game. Now the question is—is it Boston or New York for White?

Johnny Kling holds a baseball class of Boston Nationals every morning, but from the playing exhibited by these ball tossers they apparently never study their lessons or else go to sleep at the switch.

Several business men of Cincinnati have subscribed $50 and wired it to Umpire Klem in order to pay that man's fine for hitting Roger Bresnahan the other day. Seems as though Bresnahan wasn't liked very much in Cincinnati.

The First Baptist crew of ball tossers is out for the trophy in the Sunday school league with all sails set and tossing hard. Carlton Smith, the old N. P. H. S. mainstay on the mound, will undoubtedly be on the twirling end for the Baptist boys with Pierson Bailey behind the bat.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL EXCURSION TAKES 2,500 TO SHORE.

'Neath azure skies, 2,500 happy excursionists left this morning in twenty-nine couches on the Jersey Central for Asbury Park, where the waves laughed them a welcome. It was the first excursion from this city this season and established a mark that will be hard to reach by the churches following. The churches conducting the one this morning were Crescent Avenue, Grace Episcopal, St. Stephens, Holy Cross, Heavenly Rest, Seventh Day Baptist of this city and the the Dunellen Presbyterian.

The committee in charge was composed of A. D. Beers Monroe Long, Louis Hansen and E. M. Daniel, all members of the Dr. B. VanD. Hedges Sunday-school class of the Crescent Avenue church.

Against Sewering in Ocean.

Monmouth Beach, June 29.—Sewer agitation has reached an acute stage here. Mayor Jesse P. Manahan gave notice yesterday morning that he would veto the resolution adopting the Potts system of sewage disposal. The Council, by a vote of 4 to 1 Monday night, favored the Potts system with an outlet into the ocean. Mayor Manahan is against sewering in the ocean, claiming that such a move would bring on law suits by the score from ocean-front cottagers, besides being a detriment to the bathing industry. The cottagers are largely opposed to sewering in the ocean. The cost of the installation of the Potts system, it is said, would be between $60,000 and $100,000. It is proposed to introduce the ordinance for the installation of the system at the next meeting of the Council. The Council controls enough votes to override the Mayor's veto.

Priest on Smoke Nuisance.

Jersey City, June 29.—A hearing in the prosecution of the Erie Railroad Company for maintaining a soft coal nuisance was in progress yesterday before Judge Blair. A large number of witnesses under subpoena was on hand. Monsignor Shephard was the first witness. He told of the effects of the black smoke blown into the church, and exhibited an envelope covered with soot taken from the church. In the winter time, the priest said, the soot was noticeable on the snow about the edifice.

Had a Narrow Escape.

Perth Amboy, June 29.—S. M. Jacobson, manager of the local Scheuer store, missed his step as he attempted to board a train for Newark yesterday afternoon and narrowly escaped injury. He fell to the ground under the step and had presence of mind sufficient to roll away from the train, which by that time was moving rapidly. Beyond few bruises, Jacobson was unhurt.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW AS TOLD TO Hugh S. Fullerton

BY MIKE MITCHELL.

Premier Outfielder and Base Runner of the Cincinnati Reds, and Who Is One of the Greatest Batters in the Business.

I believe Dode Paskert made the greatest play I ever saw in my life, and it was a play that impressed me wonderfully. The play was a living testimonial to the honesty of baseball and of baseball players. It was made in a game in Cincinnati late in the fall of 1908 against the Chicago Cubs and came near robbing Chance's team of the pennant.

Perhaps the reason I was so much impressed by the play was that only a few days before we had been playing the New York Giants. The Giants were fighting and using every means in their power to beat Chicago out of the pennant. They came to our town, and the way they went after

MIKE MITCHELL.

Paskert angered him. They said things to him that hurt, and he was bitter. He had it in for the whole New York crowd, especially McGraw, and wanted revenge. He wanted the Cubs or Pittsburg to beat the Giants out. He declared that if it came down to him to win a game for Cincinnati against the Cubs he wouldn't win it. You know a fellow can get mad and say things like that, which he doesn't mean. There never was a chance that Paskert would lose a game purposely, but he and several others of us were sore enough to want to do it just at that time.

I think it was the eighth inning of that game. Paskert was pulling as hard as he could for Chicago to beat us. They had us beat, as a matter of fact, but in that eighth inning they had two men on bases and two out when Hofman hit the ball a mile to center field. It looked a three-base hit, perhaps a home run. Paskert didn't seem to have a chance to catch it. You know on the Cincinnati park there is a hill under the fence all around left and center fields, perhaps ten feet above the level of the playing ground. The ball looked as if it would hit the fence four or five feet above the hill. Paskert was racing along at top speed, and cursing as he ran. He went up that hill like an antelope, leaped, stuck up one hand, grabbed the ball, banged into the fence, turned over and rolled down the hill holding up the ball with one hand.

We thought he was hurt, but when we reached him he was sitting up swearing like a pirate because he had caught the ball.

"I didn't want to catch it, and I hoped I'd miss it," he said to one of the Chicago boys. "But you fellows understand I couldn't muff it on purpose."

And after we had beaten them out by one run in the ninth inning, sore as they were, two or three of the Cubs shook hands with Paskert and told him he was game and honest. Catching that ball did more to make them like him than anything he could have done.

About the Methodists.

Southey, in his life of Wesley, relates the following whimsical incident. He states that some of the opponents of these religionists, in the excess of zeal against enthusiasm, took up a whole wagon load of Methodists and carried them before a justice. When they were asked what these persons had done, there was an awkward silence; at last, one of the accusers said: "Why, they pretend to be better than other people; and besides, they pray from morning till night."

The magistrate asked if they had done nothing else. "Yes, sir!" an old man said, "an't please your worship, they have converted my wife. Till she went among them she had such a tongue! and now she is as quiet as a lamb!" "Carry them back! carry them back!" the magistrate said, "and let them convert all the scolds in the town!"

A Recommendation.

Giant to Wed Giantess.

Lockport, N. Y., June 29.—Mary Ellen Powers, for many years Barnum's tallest woman is to be married this week to Maurice T. Stapleton, of the town of Lockport, one of the tallest men in this vicinity. Miss Powers is seven feet in height. Stapleton is over six feet, and a giant in every way. About three years ago Miss Powers and Mr. Stapleton were to be married, but the event was called off on the morning set for the ceremony. No reason was given out.

THE BEAR.

Some people seem to think that some animals were not made right. for instance: They muzzle The Bear, they de-horn the cow, they cut the tail of the horse short, (changing the subject exclusively) some women wear hobble skirts.

What is the differencs, excuse me, this is a conundrum, between a horse and a bear? To be continued in our next. Bear me in mind of it, please.

STOP HOWLING

and grunt a little. Your howls amount to nothing anyway. I sold 500 lots at Highland Park and be glad to sell more, and my two sick room houses before they are completed with you howling about something you know nothing about and without you. Now will be up-to-date?

UP-TO-DATE (LAKEWOOD).

I will commence selling lots at Uptodate in a few days; have almost completed what the last law requires as to lot selling, and I want you to know about the lots that I am about to deceive you with. For that reason I want all of you to use my ballot below and send me the name of someone who you want to tell you about them, and who will receive two lots for his trouble. The three who receives the most number of votes will go. I want them to tell you that you are getting more than a $100 lot for $25, and that I will not keep it up long. And I want as many of you who will pay their own expenses to go as well. I can not afford to take you. Let me know when you want to go, and I will tell you how to take a shorter walk from Uptodate depot to the lots than I walk from home to the Plainfield Depot. This contest will last two weeks from the date I commence to sell lots and any one buying before will receive their money back if they receive an adverse decision. The first two people who buy from this date, (July 26th) will receive four lots for two. Send your names at once, and you can pick your lots from maps.

CONTEST ON NOTE

National Mining and Leasing Co. Transaction Aired in District Court.

THE DEFENSE ALLEGES FRAUD.

Evidence of Indebtedness Passes Into Hands of Third Party and Suit to Recover Follows—Decision is Reserved.

The first of a series of suits brought to recover on notes issued by various parties in connection with the business of the National Mining and Leasing Company, of which the late Ellsworth D. Middlekauff, of this city, was vice-president and chief promoter, was tried before Judge Dixon in the District court, Trenton, yesterday. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the local District court, through his counsel Francis J. Blatz, to whom one note for about $300 was assigned by The State Trust Company, sought to recover from the maker of the note, Dr. George V. VanNeste, of Hopewell, who was represented by Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city. Decision was reserved.

Dr. VanNeste testified that he had personally investigated the affairs of the National Mining and Leasing Company and he had found that no dividends had been paid to stockholders since the death of Mr. Middlekauff, and it was the contention of his counsel that the note made by him was obtained by fraud. It was further contended by his testimony, it is said, that the books of the company give no evidence of any earnings by the company, with the exception of an item or two which indicate certain receipts.

These various suits on notes have been started, it is reliably reported, because the several makers have refused payment on grounds similar to those taken by Dr. VanNeste. It is alleged that one note for $750 given for stock was afterward sold for $600, after an offer of $500 was received.

Another suit similar to that of yesterday will be tried in the District court before Judge Newcorn next Thursday, when William H. Abbott will seek to recover on a note given by Andrew Wyckoff, and still another suit in which Jasper Cadmus who is an officer of the National Mining and Leasing Company, is one of the intreseted parties.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO HOPE CHAPELITES.

A business meeting was held last night by the Boy's Club of Hope chapel and was followed by a social time under the leadership of William Doig. Refreshments were served at the close.

Plans for an increased membership were discussed at a meeting of the officers and visitors of the Home Department of the chapel Sunday school last night.

The monthly business meeting and social of the Y. P. S. C. E. was held last night. There was a large attendance and plans for a dime social to be held Tuesday evening, July 11, were completed. The business meeting was followed by a social time which was much enjoyed.

Members of the choir held a social last night under the chaperonage of Rev. and Mrs. F. L. Greene. The games and other amusements were followed by refreshments.

Proctor's Good Bill.

Hale Norcross & Co., in the farcical comedy sketch, "Mrs. Jones-Smith-Carey," at Proctor's theatre, tells a very funny story of a woman who has been married three times and finally takes a fourth, who does not know of the other marriages and amusing situations follow. The Five Armstrongs, Scotch dancers and pipers, make a hit. The act is novel. Muriel Window, a cute singing comedienne, is clever and the Alvarez, Euproean novelty equilibrists, perform difficult feats of daring on the rings.

Sentence Suspended.

Tony Masturgio, Masquallo Mastragersepe, Joseph Benardo and Giovano Teroolio were a quartette of train ride stealers brought before Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning on complaint of Special officer Taverette, of the Central Railroad. The young men said that they had been looking for work and had boarded a greight train to go to their homes on Richmond street, when arrested. Sentence in each case was suspended with a warning to keep off trains in the future.

RAN IN FRONT OF AUTO BOY IS ONLY BRUISED

While going to the store on an errand for his mother last night Howard Dentz, ten year old son of Mrs. Josephine Dentz, of Summit avenue, was struck by a large automobile at the corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue. He was thrown aside by the machine, which was travelling at a moderate rate of speed. The autoist picked up the unconscious victim and rushed him with all speed to his mother's home. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was summoned and after a thorough examination found that no bones had been broken although the boy was badly bruised and shaken up.

No arrest was made by the borough police as the accident was an unavoidable one on the part of the chauffeur of the car. The boy ran out in front of the machine before the driver could possibly turn or stop the car. A settlement for damages was made by the owner of the auto, who left for Englewood, where he resides, after learning that the lad had not received serious injuries.

The condition of young Dentz was much improved this morning and it it believed that he will be confined to his bed for only a week or ten days.

COUNTRY CLUB NINE LINEUP TOMORROW.

J. Hartley Mellick, manager of the Plainfield Country Club baseball team, has arranged a game for tomorrow with the regular Plainfield High School nine, although the latter will have a strong lineup. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on the club's new diamond just below the tennis courts. Morris J. Dumont who is the captain of the country club team announces the following lineup:

Ford Johnson, lf; Wylie Brown, ss; Harry Eaton, 2b; W. T. Glenney, c; Morris J. Dumont, 3b; J. Hartley Mellick, 1b; Arthur Wills, cf; William Bours, rf; William Rushmore, p. The P. H. S. lineup will be just the same as during the early part of the season.

Plan Patriotic Service.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will hold its last meeting of the season in Vincent chapel tonight. After a short business session, there will be patriotic exercises, including a few short addresses by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, S. S. Swackhamer and others, and in addition several boys home from college will sing college songs. During a social hour, refreshments will be served. All the men of the church and congregation are invited.

Women in a Quarrel.

A fine if $20 and a sentence of thirty days in the Union county jail were suspended on Mrs. Helen Schneiderbeck, of Plainfield avenue in the city court by Judge W. G. DeMeza this morning on the complaint made against her by Mrs. Mary Ellick, a neighbor. The complaint was the result of a quarrel the two women had in which Mrs. Ellick, who is much the older of the two, was severely beaten.

Ruth E. Wheeler Entertains.

Ruth Eleanor Wheeler, the three-year-old daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler, of Stone street, was given a birthday party on Tuesday, when she entertained about twenty-five friends of her own age. The little folks had a jolly time playing games, and later all were served with ice cream and cake. Little Miss Wheeler received many handsome gifts.

WESTFIELD'S BIG TIME BEGINS TOMORROW

Westfield's civic celebration begins tomorrow with a program of athletic games and a baseball game between Westfield and Bound Brook at Recreation Park. A band concert will be held in the evening. The town is gayly decorated in red, white and blue for the occasion and the holiday air prevails. Hundreds of visitors have already arrived for the four days' celebration and thousands are expected to visit the town during the four days.

Monday will he Hospitality Day, when the officials of nearby towns will be given a reception at the new firehouse, followed by auto rides around the town. A big open air massmeeting at 2 p. m. on the Presbyterian church lawn, with an address by the Rev. Dr.Meade, of Baltimore, will be the feature for Sunday. On July 4, there will be a monster street parade in the morning and a money meet at Fair Acres track at 2 p. m. Band concerts will be held each evening in Washington School Park.

SOMERVILLE YOUTH DROWNED IN RIVER

Howard Burnett, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burnett, accompanied by James Cawley and Albert and Harold Coyne, the former two of Somerville and the last two of Raritan, left their homes early yesterday for an all-day canoe trip up the canal. When they reached the headgate they carried their canoes across to the Delaware River and paddled on up to South Branch, where they ate their lunch-one. After luncheon the boys went for a swim across the river. Burnett and Cawley, both good swimmers, were for out in the middle when Burnett was seized with cramps.

Cawley at once went to his aid and made a frantic effort to tow him to tho opposite shore. At first he was successful, but in another instant Burnett got a grip around Cawley's neck, and then in the struggle that ensued Cawley finally was forced to fight off Burnett to save his own life.

The shouts of the frightened boys soon brought a crowd of villagers and between sobs Cawley told the fate of his companion. D. W. Bowman and Ridgeway Hoagland ran for grappling hooks and nets and after two hours' work Burnett's body was recovered. Burnett was a member of the Somerville High Cchool junior class.

HIGH SCHOOL 'FRAT' HAS SECOND REUNION

The second reunion of the Sigma Delta Phi fraternity, which was organized in the Plainfield High School in 1908, was held last night at the home of Charles E. Prior, Jr., of Hillside avenue. Despite the fact that the members are now scattered all over the country, all but two were present last night. Following the usual custom a banquet was served by a local caterer.

Those who were present last night were Charles E. Prior, Jr., of Colorado School of Mines, Egbert Bogardus, Guion H. Fountain, of Yale, William V. Rafferty, of Georgetown University, Augustus Nash, of the Newark Law School, Gustav Stanley Robins, of Rutgers College, F. Clyde Doane, of Williams College, David Smalley, of Phillips Exeter Academy, Charles E. Loizeaux, Paul R. Collier, John Sebring Riffert, Aruthr Bingaman, of Yale University, Russell P. Morris, and three visitors, William Douglas, of Colorado School of Mines, Howard Joel, of Norwood, Ohio, and William Anderson, of Wesleyan.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight, Saturday fair; warmer in interior.

Maximum, 87; minimum, 60.

Dog Days.

A valuable brindle bull dog is being held at the borough police station as a result of Chief Marshal George Weiss' campaign against unlicensed canines. The bull dog was arrested yesterday afternoon while he was engaged in a fight with another bow-wow on Somerset street. He was taken to the jail to await the coming of his master.

GO TO SILVER BAY

Plainfield's Y. W. C. A. to be Represented at the Lake George Conference.

TEN IN THE DELEGATION.

Local Party to Occupy a Bungalow and to Appear at Festival Dressed as Nurses—Conference to End July 11.

Ten members of the local Y. W. C A. left this morning for Silver Bay, Lake George, where they will attend the conference of the city associations. Delegates will be present from all States east of the Ohio and many notable speakers have promised to give addresses during the conference. The mornings will be spent in conference work, Bible study and lectures while the delegates will have the afternoons for recreation.

The Plainfield delegation will have rooms in the bungalow, which is on a knoll above the hotel. At the festival, which is to be held next week, the local girls will appear in novel costumes, those of trained nurses, since they have been studying first aid to the injured work during the winter. Last year they represented mosquitoes and attracted much attention.

Those who will comprise the local delegation this year are the Misses Margaret W. McCutchen, Amy P. Tapping, Hidth Hanaford, Jennie Archer, Laura Dent, Mertie Feddermann, Clara Hallard, Margaret Hawkins, Mildred McAuliffe and Carrie Quipp.

The conference continues until Tuesday, July 11, the Plainfield representatives remaining the entire time. During the absence of Miss Tapping, Miss Margaret Mosher, for some time physical director of the local association, will have charge of the work here.

EMBOSSING CO. PLANT ORDERED TO BE SOLD

Another chapter in the matter of the Crescent Embossing Company, a bankrupt, was concluded before Atwood L. DeCoster, referee in bankruptcy, at Newark, yesterday, when the trustee in the matter filed a petition stating that it would be for the benefit of the estate to sell the personal property at public auction, consisting of plant for certain classes of printing and embossing, including machinery, stock, etc.

That petition was considered yesterday and an order was given authorizing the sale. Today the interested parties received notices to appear in the same court on July 10, at 10 o'clock in the morning, in the matter of the Crescent Embossing Company, on an order to show cause, obtained on the petition of the Photo Chromotype Engraving Company and others, who claim to constitute a majority in interest and amount of the provable claims against the company entitled to vote in the election of a trustee.

The engraving company claims that through accident and mistake of its attorney it was unable to present at the first meeting of the creditors in order to participate in the election of said trustee, and it further appearing that said petitioners did through their said attorney apply for an adjournment of the first meeting until such time as they should be enabled to be represented, and said petitioners now applying for a re-election for a new trustee or for two additional trustees. It is the belief that the business of the company will finally be sold at auction.

MIDDLESEX BANKERS; INTEREST ON DEPOSITS.

Declarling that all national banks should pay interest to their depositors, but not a rate of interest that would weaken them, H. H. Pond, secretary and treasurer of the Plainfield Trust Company and president of the New Jrsey Bankers' Association, addressed the Middlesex Bankers' Association at the Hotel Bristol, Asbury Park. Mr. Pond said that a great deal of money was now hoarded, and if it was put in circulation greater industrial development would naturally follow.

Mayor T. Frank Appleby made the opening address. He said that he did not believe in an excessive high interest rate, for it had been found that where such a rate was paid the institution was more or less weakened.

George J. Cubberley, of New York, and his brother, Walter Cubberley, of this city will go camping on the Raritan river. They will be absent several weeks.

FINE STREET FIGHTERS $2. EACH IN COURT

The hearing of the street brawl which began on North avenue and was continued on Watchung avenue Wednesday night occupied much time of Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, and resulted in a fine of $2 being imposed on each of the participants except one, Tommy Mullen, who the evidence had shown had acted well the part of peacemaker.

The fight was occasioned by the dislike felt for Max Barrera, of Watchung avenue by the rest of the young men, six in number. They began to pummel him on North avenue and followed him to Watchung avenue after he had broken away. While the one-sided battle was going on Tommy came along and went to the Cuban's aid, lossing his shirt for his trouble. Patrolman Vanderweg and Roundsman Higgins arrived soon after and arrested all participants. The boys were William Shillinger, Joseph Hubbard, Michael Camiskey, John Kregar, John Hogan, Dominic Rosso and Angelo Desianto.

HIRSCH SENT BACK TO REFORM SCHOOL

Gustav Hirsch, the Watchung youth, who was arrested several weeks ago for stealing a handbag from Mrs. George Hauser, of Warrenville, while she was driving in a runabout to this city, was sentenced by Judge Edward S. Atwater, who sat in the Somerset County Court at Somerville today in place of Judge Clarence Case, who has gone to Europe, to a term in the state reform school at Jamesburg. Young Hirsch was released from that place only last Christmas, having been sentenced to a term there by Judge Atwater in the Unoin County court.

The scene in the court room at Somerville this morning was a pitiful one when Mrs. Hirsch came to plead for her son and to ask the court to give him another chance to make good. The best thing that the Judge said he could do for the boy was to send him to the reform school to think over his bad ways and to try to learn to be good.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL AT WARREN CHAPEL

The annual ice cream festival held on the law of Warren chapel, last night, under the auspices of the Christain Endeavor and other societies of the chapel was a success. The grounds were filled with patrons of the affair and everything was disposed of at an early hour. The lawn was illuminated with electric lights, while here and there was a booth, attractively decorated. A feature was the concert by the Crescent Brass Band in the evening, which under the management of E. E. Townley rendered a popular program of music.

In addition to ice cream and cake, there was sold lemonade, home-made candy, etc. Small tables were scattered about the lawn and here ice cream and cake were served.

Theodore J. Martin was the general chairman of the affair, and the other chairmen were as follows: Candy—Miss Dolly Bolsterle; cake—Mrs. John Schenck; lemonade—Alfred Everett, while Miss May Bennett was the cashier. The complete committees were as follows:

Candy—Miss Dolly Bolsterle, Miss Adele Kirby, Miss Edith Wheeler, Miss Bertha Hoagland, Miss Ade laide Stiglitz, Miss Louise Demarest. Lemonade—Alfred Everett, Charles Holstein, Miss Florence Newmiller, Miss Mattie Smith. Cake—Mrs. John Schenck, Miss Harriet Squier, Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Mrs. Gibson Smith, Mrs. William Newmiller, Mrs. John Green Mrs. Alfred Giddis, Mrs. Theodore J. Martin, Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey.

The watiresses were as follows: Mrs. Alexander Dresselt, Mrs. Dayton, Mrs. Caldwell, the Misses Dolly Bolsterle, Gertrude Mair, Helen Mair, Wheeler, Windham, Kohler, King. Florence King, Christofferson Kinney, Berry, Higgins, Snyder, Moore, Wilson, Taynor, Joseph Randall and Charles Bryan.

Back to Work Again.

Mr. R. Morris Adkins, the masseur, who has been kept from his work for some days on account of a severe sprain, is able to get about and attend his patients again. He reports a very encouraging business for the month of June in spite of his injury. Mr. Adkins works only under the direction of regular physicians and is being used and recommended by them to an extent that shows their appreciation of his work.

SHOOTS A BURGLAR AND THEN SURRENDERS

Shot while attempting to escape from the residence of Daniel Smith at Raritan, a burglar who gives his name as William McGowan, and who says him home is in Iowa, is in a precarious condition in the Somerset hospital at Somerville. He was shot by Roy Anderson, Smith's stepson.

Mrs. Smith was aroused by the noise made by the man prowling about her room. She called to her husband and son and the burglar rushed down stairs and jumped through a dining-room window by which he had gained entrance. Young Anderson dashed after him through the window as the man was making for the front gate, the bullet entering his back and lodging in the abdominal region.

After the wounded man had been examined at the hospital and the extent of his injuries ascertained, Anderson surrendered himself to Prosecutor Pope who accepted bail to await the result of an operation which was performed on McGowan this afternoon.

ACCIDENT VICTIM LAY ON ROADSIDE 3 HOURS

While driving a heavily laden wagon from North Plainfield to his employer's farm at Warrenville, John Gifford was jounced off the vehicle near that place yesterday afternoon. The wagon ran over his right leg, causing a compound fracture and the victim was also bruised about the body. The team ran away, only stopping after upsetting the wagon some distance down the road. Gifford was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital where is it thought amputation will not be necessary.

Considerable delay was experienced in getting the ambulance and the injured man lay on blankets under a tree by the roadside from 3 o'clock, the time the accident occurred, until 6 o'clock, when the ambulance arrived. It was an hour later before he was received at the hospital. As soon as the accident occurred a boy on bicycle was sent to the nearest 'phone. Several other messages were also sent without bringing either the ambulance or a doctor.

Assemblyman LaMonte, of Somerset county, happened along in his automobile at 5 o'clock and came to this city with John Cooper to ascertain the cause of the delay. In reply to his inquiries at the cab company stables, he was informed that the order had not been received until 5:30.

MISS MARY COMPTON CHAS CLAUSON'S BRIDE.

Miss Mary Compton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Compton, of Grove street, near Metuchen, and Charles Clausen, son of Andrew Clauson, also of that place, were married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier chapel. There were a large number of guests present from this city.

Miss Beulah Boylan, of the borough, cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid and the best man was Oliver Compton, brother of the bride was best man. Miss Fannie Ayers, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march. Nieces and nephews of the bride, dressed as waiters, served refreshments. After a trip the ccuple will reside at Metuchen.

DUNELLEN MUST PLAY FAST BALL TOMORROW.

The Dunellen nine will be seen at its best tomorrow afternoon at Dunellen when it lines up against the strong team from the New Jersey Central Railroad. Harry Giddes, who formerly played short stop for the Dunellen team, will cover the third sack for the railroad magnates.

Dunellen's lineup will be:

Nonamaker, 3b; Evans, 2b; Hand, c; Barnes, 1b; Coyle, ss; Schott, lf; Elliott, rf; Frederickson, p; Dodwell, cf.

WHITAKER A HERO

Y. M. C. A. Physical Director Saves Man From Drowning at Asbury Park.

CHEERED BY EXCURSIONISTS.

Plainfielders Spending Day at Resort Witness Another Accident—Complaints of Race Prejudice.

Thomas G. Whitaker, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., was the hero of Asbury Park and incidently the two thousand excursionists from this city yesterday when he rescued a man from a watery grave in the surf near the fishing pier at that resort. The bather, who would not give his name, was swimming near the end of the pier when he suddenly put up his hands and began to sink.

Several bathers in the vicinity of the pier yelled to the life guards for help, but they were stationed at a considerable distance from this spot and Mr. Whitaker at the time happened to be sitting on the sand not for from the fishing pier drying his bathing suit. When he heard the cries of distress he plunged into the foaming surf.

The local physical director if a famous swimmer, having competed with some of the crack aquatic athletes of the world, and a speedy crawl stroke soon brought him to the drowning man. When the rescuer arrived, the man, who had evidently been seized with cramps was going down for his last time. Mr. Whitaker dove beneath the surface, grabbed the disabled swimmer, who was too far gone to offer any resistance and held him until the tender of the fishing schooner came up and took the two men to shore.

Mr. Whitaker applied first aid measures of relief and soon had the man's lungs emptied of water. Within an half hour the rescued man was able to go to his home. Local people as well as a large crowd of natives and summer viistors on the beach gave the brave Plainfield swimmer a hearty round of applause.

The Plainfield excursionists, also witnessed another near-drowning accident beyond the fishing pier when Frank Williams, of New York city, was just saved through the efforts of two of his friends, Abraham Hahn and John Rose, to keep him afloat. The drowning man's wife was on the beach at the time and became hysterical while watching the struggles of her husband. The three men were taken to shore in a motor boat.

Yesterday's excursion, which was the first one of the season, proved to be a most successful affair, there being over two thousand people on the two trains, made up of fifteen cars each. The weather at the shore was ideal throughout the entire day and the ocean, although a little rough, was warm, thus inducing many Plainfielders to take a dip in the rolling waves.

Several of the colored people, who went on the excursion, were complaining this morning of the ill treatment which they received at the hands of the Asbury Park bathing companies. They said that they were not allowed to use the bath houses and that they were obliged to pay twenty-five cents for a glass of drinking water.

The Sunday schools which made up the excursion were: Crescent Avenue, St. Stephen's, Grace Episcopal, Heavenly Rest, Seventh-Day Baptist, Dunellen Presbyterian, Bethel chapel and New Market Baptist.

MISSES QUINN PUPILS HEARD AT A RECITAL.

The more advanced pupils of the Misses Alice and Katherine Quinn gave a piano and violin musical in the Knights of Columbus Hall last night before a large audience of friends and parents. The latter were justly proud of the progress and efficiency their children had made under the tutoring of these capable young women. Next week the younger pupils, ranging in ages from five to twelve, will give a recital at the same place. Fifteen is the average age of the pupils giving last night's entertainment.

Those taking part were the Misses Elizabeth Mara, Rose Kregar, Mary Weirenga, I. Harkins, Eleanor McNally, B. McCue, M. Wahl, E. Parent, Mamie Lappin, Elizabeth Schuch, Charlotte McIntyre and Messrs, D. Kregar and E. MsKeon.

Mrs. Babbitt's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. James Babbitt was held this afternoon from 200 West Second street and was attended by a number of relatives and friends. Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, conducted the services and interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

NEWPORT Coal and Gas Range

—a modern kitchen convenience that housewives will be quick to appreciate.

Embraces every good feature of the regular single oven "Newport," with the added capacity of the gas attachment.

This is one of the greatest improvements ever brought out by the

BOYNTON FURNACE CO.

It nearly doubles the cooking capacity of the range, as both coal and gas may be used at the same time if desired. Besides, this handy range gives, in compact form, both a winter necessity and a summer convenience. It solves the "cook stove" problem. Ask your dealer to show you this best of all combination ranges—the "Newport."

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and firm in New York yesterday.

Russia's first Dreadnaught, the Sevastopol, was launched at St. Petersburg.

Vedrine was the first contestant in the European circuit aviation race to reach Calais from Roubaix, France.

Fruit growers in the South have brought suit against the Pennsylvania and other railroads, alleging discrimination in rates.

Congress.—Senate: Mr. Cummins continued his speech against the reciprocity agreement. The House transacted no business.

The American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid gave a dinner at Dorchester House, London, in honor of the Duke of Connaught.

The Senate at Albany, under an emergency message from the Governor passed the Levy election laws bill, greatly desired by Tammany.

King George and Queen Mary made another progress through London to St. Paul's, where they attended coronation thanksgiving services.

Immigrants testified to alleged abuses in the hearing on the charges preferred against Dr. A. H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port of New York.

A dispatch from Lisbon stated that the status quo prior to the adoption of the separation law would be maintained with regard to foreign Catholic communities in Portugal.

Upon representations of the American Embassy at St. Petersburg the Russian government issued orders that Jews who are buyers be admitted to the fur fair at Tyumen.

The Assembly, also under an emergency message from Governor Dix, passed the conservation bill of Senator Wagner; the vote was 105 to 9; later the Murtaugh highway bill was passed.

Edward Hines, of Chicago, testified before the Lorimer investigating committee, and his contradictions of previous witnesses led Senator Kenyon to suggest prosecutions for perjury.

A federal grand jury indicted nine steel wire combinations and eighty-three men connected with them, charging them under the Sherman law with conspiracy to restrain trade and fix prices.

Another step was taken at Albany to secure the extradition of Alfred George Curphey and Captain T. K. Kirkbridge, of London, wanted in connection with the Mellon divorce case in Pittsburg.

The Eucharistic Congress at Madrid closed with a brilliant procession through the streets lined with troops, because of rumors that there might be clashes between the paraders and the Republicans.

The conference committee on subways decided to give the Interborough another opportunity, but will probably adopt a report this morning that includes recommendations that mean an early solution of the transit problem in New York.

Counsel for George W. Glover, of Lead, S. D., in the action against Henry M. Baker and others to test the validity of the will of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, filed two amendments to their bill in the Superior Court at Concord, N. H.

Allan Robinson replied to the criticisms made by R. V. Ingersoll, and declared that the immediate effect of passing the Sullivan-Shortt bill would be to reduce New York city's borrowing capacity and to force people to call in their mortgages.

CONTRACTOR WINS HIS ROCK EXCAVATION SUIT.

Testifying in the suit of Michael Garafano against Robert J. Murphy, the latter representing a local realty company, before Justice of the Peace Benjamin P. Holmes at Summit Tuesday, for the recovery of $80.50 on contract, Assistant City Engineer Alexander Blair admitted that he issued to Garafano a certificate calling for payment by the realty company for twenty yards of rock excavation, although neither he (Blair) nor any employe of the engineering department had measured the rock. Blair later, when Mr. Murphy protested against the charge, revised the estimate reducing the number of yards of rock excavation to seven, he testified. Judgment for the amount sued for was awarded Garafano. The realty company will take an appeal from Justice Holmes' decision.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The local team will lineup against the strong nine from the Central Railroad of New Jersey on the Dunellen grounds tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that Otto Frederickson, who has shown such remarkable form in the box this season, will be on the mound for the locals and Hand will undoubtedly do the backstop work.

The first excursion of the season to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove took nearly 500 Dunellenites yesterday. The weather at the shore was ideal although the sun was rather warm and as a result there are many cases of sunburn about the town today.

On account of the tickets still being out on the dramatic entertainment, given by Washington Camp, No. 98, P. O. S. of A., there has not been any definite estimate of the amount cleared on the performance.

The new house, which is being built for Paul Reusch, on Washington avenue, by H. B. Eckert, is well toward completion. The foundations have been laid for some time.

J. R. Weber, who was recently married, has moved into his new home on Park avenue. This was formerly the house owned by W. W. Wilcox.

Herman Imschweiler and family, formerly residents of Dunellen, are now living at Hudson Heights.

John Barnes and Edward Hannon have taken positions with Weber's plumbing establishment.

Paul Ratti has purchased a new piano player for his ice cream parlor.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The home team plays Somerville tomorrow afternoon at Somerville. Manager Alberts will use his straight lineup, with MacLaughlin or Foley in the box. A number of the fans will accompany the team.

Miss Harriet M. Squiers, teacher at school No. 1, is spending part of her vacation at her home in Rahway.

Mrs. William D. Johnston and family are at Ocean Grove for the balance of the summer.

The Misses Southard have been entertaining friends from Bayonne for a few days.

Mrs. Frederick K. Clark has returned from a visit with relatives at Lincoln.

James Walsh is spending the week end with relatives in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The play entitled, "The Sweet Family," was given last night at the Baptist church and was well produced. There were phonograph selections and recitations. Fred N. Pullin, of Newark, had charge of the affair.

Miss Nellie Manning has returned from a visit with her brother, Fred N. Manning, of Newark.

Miss Loretta Thornton has returned from a visit with friends in Jersey City.

Miss Jennie Bohl is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bohl, of Newark.

James Dolan, of Jersey City, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. William Thornton.

Mrs. William Richards, is entertaining her sister from Bound Brook.

SOMERVILLE.

Professor William V. N. Garritson, a teacher in the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, is visiting his family in South street.

Isadore Dow, who spent a month with his sister, Mrs. Alvah Amerman, on Nevins street, has returned to his home at Piano, Ill.

Frank McAlevy, son of Hugh J. McAlevy, left on Monday for a two weeks' visit to relatives at Hampton Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Davis, of East Somerville, are guests of her father, John V. A. Van Cleef, at Millstone.

John Torpey and children have returned from a week's visit to his father, at South Bethelem.

Charles Turman, of Perth Amboy, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Truman, at Rocky Hill.

Miss Elnora Everett, of Clinton, is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Morgan Lewis, at Rocky Hill.

Miss Lenora C. Dolphin, of Raritan, has gone to Kane, Pa., for the summer months.

Mrs. P. G. Meyers, of Lakewood, is a guest of Mrs. E. Meyers, on Somerset street.

Miss Bessie Hoffman, of Brooklyn, is visiting Mrs. Leibig, on Loomis street.

Bogart Conkling, of South street, is spending a week at Cranberry Lake.

Miss Emily K. Stutenroth, of Raritan, is at Shippensburg, Pa.

BOONTON'S POSTAL BANK TOOK $200 FIRST DAY.

Boonton, June 30.—The postal savings department in the Boonton Postoffice opened for business on Tuesday. The first day's receipts amounted to $200.20. The Boonton National Bank has been designated by the government as the depository for postal funds here.

Communion service with reception of members will be held at the First M. E. church on Sunday morning.

Miss Margaret Harrison, soprano soloist of the Old South Presbyterian church, New York, will take Mrs. June Bilby's place at the First M. E. church for the rest of the summer.

ASBURY AFTER G.O.P. NATIONAL CONVENTION

An effort is being made on the part of the Asbury Park officials to induce the National Executive Committee of the Republican party to decide on that city for the convention in 1912. The matter will be taken up to the county committee by Harold E. Denegar, and from there to the State committee. Former Governor Franklin Murphy, who is one of the national committeemen, will be talked to on the subject.

The officials are of the belief that Asbury Park will be an ideal spot for the big convention. It is their opinion that the business of the convention can be combined with a little pleasure. These conventions are usually held in June, and if in an inland city the delegates suffer great discomfort because of the weather. It is believed that the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association will give the Auditorium for the use of the convention. The seating capacity of this great hall is 10,000. In 1908 the convention was held in Chicago, in the Coloseum. That place holds but 8,000.

If the local men are successful Asbury Park may be truly called a convention city. As it is, there are a number of conventions held there every year for the simple reason that it affords the delegates an opportunity of getting the desired recreation after a hot summer day's work.

The choir of the First Baptist church will have its vacation during the month of August, as usual.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, on Central avenue, this afternoon. This will be the last meeting for the summer.

CHERRY CROP SPOILED BY RECENT DOWNPOUR.

Because of the recent wet weather thousands of bushels of cherries will be wasted this year. Cherry trees in the western section of Essex county and in Morris county have borne abundantly, but in many cases the fruit is rotting on the trees. In most cases the cherries ripened in the latter part of last week, but the storms prevented farmers from picking them. When they began to pluck the fruit yesterday it was found that about every fourth cherry was already touched with rot and the others were so over-ripe and soft as to make their transportation to market almost impossible.

The result was that the mass of the fruit which otherwise would have been sold had to be retained at home. On some farms yesterday the women folks spent the entire day canning, with the result that they have enough cherries put up to insure cherry pie for their families at least three times a week for the next year.

NEW PICNIC DATE FOR THE WARREN FARMERS.

Washington, N. J., June 30.—Change has been made in the date of the Warren County Farmers' Picnic Association's big gathering. It was first decided ta have the picnic on Wednesday, August 16, but owing to the fact that it was thought Thursday, August 24, would suit Governor Woodrow Wilson better, a change was made to the later date. After a conference with the Governor, Senator Johnston Cornish informed the committee yesterday that the original date of August 16 would be preferable and would be agreeable to the Governor. The big picnic will, therefore, be held at Belivdere on Wednesday, August 16, as first planned, and Governor Wilson will be the chief speaker.

THE BEAR.

Some people seem to think that some animals were not made right. for instance: They muzzle The Bear, they de-horn the cow, they cut the tail of the horse short, (changing the subject exclusively) some women wear hobble skirts.

What is the differencs, excuse me, this is a conundrum, between a horse and a bear? To be continued in our next. Bear me in mind of it, please.

STOP HOWLING

and grunt a little. Your howls amount to nothing anyway. I sold 500 lots at Highland Park and be glad to sell more, and my two sick room houses before they are completed with you howling about something you know nothing about and without you. Now will be up-to-date?

UP-TO-DATE (LAKEWOOD).

I will commence selling lots at Uptodate in a few days; have almost completed what the last law requires as to lot selling, and I want you to know about the lots that I am about to deceive you with. For that reason I want all of you to use my ballot below and send me the name of someone who you want to tell you about them, and who will receive two lots for his trouble. The three who receives the most number of votes will go. I want them to tell you that you are getting more than a $100 lot for $25, and that I will not keep it up long. And I want as many of you who will pay their own expenses to go as well. I can not afford to take you. Let me know when you want to go, and I will tell you how to take a shorter walk from Uptodate depot to the lots than I walk from home to the Plainfield Depot. This contest will last two weeks from the date I commence to sell lots and any one buying before will receive their money back if they receive an adverse decision. The first two people who buy from this date, (July 26th) will receive four lots for two. Send your names at once, and you can pick your lots from maps.

DIVE PARALYZES SWIMMER.

Morristown, June 30.—As a result of his head striking a rock when he dove from a dock into Pocahontas Lake Wednesday afternoon, Henry Hudson, a carpenter, lies at the home of J. W. Lepine, in Lakeside place, with his head cut and his lower limbs partially paralyzed from the shock.

Hudson, in company with Edward Nally and C. M. Floyd, went to the lake Wednesday afternoon for a swim. When Hudson dove from the dock and did not rise to the surface Nally and Floyd jumped in after him and brought him to the shore. He was attended by Dr. George H. Lathrop.

Fake R. R. Collision for Taft.

Washington, June 30.—President Taft left Washington late this afternoon for Beverly, where he will establish his family in their cottage for the summer. After a day's rest the President will leave Sunday evening for Indianapolis, where he will spend July 4. Especial importance is attached to his visit to Indianapolis as the President has signified his intention of stating his position an tariff matters now pending in Congress. While in Indianapolis he will witness a railroad collision arranged for his benefit. He will leave on the evening of July 4 for Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of Putnam avenue, have returned from a visit at Easton, Pa.

THE FORUM.

Editor The Daily Press:—

Kindly grant me space in your valuable paper to reply to the open letter by Mr. Garet Garrett, dated Bound Brook, N. J., June 28, 1911.

Why did Mr. Garrett see fit to write such a letter? Surely his gray matter must have reached the senile stage, else he would not have gone on record in such an unfavorable light. He implies that Mr. Buttfield is coarse, mean and low, and then convicts himself of these very things.

Mr. Garrett advises the borough to force her sewer beds upon the township. What does he care about his neighbor as long as he gets some imaginary gain, even though the gain is only a little notoriety and self-adulation! He began his letter with "I" and tried to be witty. Contemptible, is it not?

Mr. Garrett gave a liberal translation of the facts and made some incriminating statements.

Outside of the borough limits there is but one site available, and that is on the Zvolneck farm. The people of the Greenbrook section have opposed North Plainfield successfully only because they were absolutely in the right. We appealed to the Bound Brook Board of Trade for help, but they refused even their moral support. Without exception the fairminded people of North Plainfield have expressed indignation at the proposed injustice to us. Every possible means has been brought to bear upon the matter. As I have been in touch with the whole affair from the beginning, I feel pretty well informed.

The law of 1907 was passed to force the sewer beds upon us. We consulted with eminent counsel and were told that the constitutionality of such a law was questionable. But even were it to stand the test, we were informed that no court of justice would permit North Plainfield to make use of this law as long as they have a suitable site within their boundary, regardless of what the State Board of Health might say. This board has been overruled where the case was not so strong as our own. Counsel has been instructed to act to protect our interests. Mr. Buttfield knows that were he to try to force the beds upon us, it would involve the borough in litigation, add largely to the expenses, and probably bring failure in the end. Even were he to succeed there would follow heavy suits for damages which no jury would fail to recognize. With the extra increase of taxes, and the facts which such a trial would bring out, Mr. Buttfield knows that the people would repudiate the course taken.

Bound Brook refused to support us and the nervous strain was great, so I advised that we pick out the least objectionable site and grant them permission to locate there provided they would settle all just claims out of court. The site chosen is far less injurious to Bound Brook than to us on account of the prevailing summer winds.

I have been informed, though it may not be true, that the commercial element of Bound Brook took up the matter for the same reason which is imputed to Mr. Buttfield.

The State Board of Health could find no cause for complaint save the water company, and which Mr. Garrett points to with much pride. In the next breath, he says go ahead and place the beds above the water plant instead of below, thus making sure of pollution. How can any one respect such advice?

Any other site in the township would place Dunellen in a worse position than were the troops at "The Charge of the Light Brigade," substituting sewer beds for canon. It would mean Dunellen's sure death.

What right has the State Board of Health to give assurance of their support without first hearing both sides? I had heard of this before and wrote to Mr. Herbert. He replied that I must be mistaken. Mr. Garrett does not hesitate to betray a confidence which has an ugly look in print.

As to Senate Bill No. 301, I think that probably I took as active a part at the hearing as any one. Between North Plainfield and Bound Brook, the former had the beeter of the argument had they not orev-reached themselves. Governor Wilson is a broadminded, honest man who is appealing more and more to the people through his sense of justice. I think that no one will deny that it was largely through me that he consulted the Attorney General. The borough representative made a bad impression when he antagonized me and the Governor was quick to note the fact, thus helping me to gain my point.

As far as any site in North Plainfield township is concerned, Mr. Buttfield has taken every step that could be taken. He knows that his only chance is at the Zvolneck farm. Aside from the ego, Mr. Garrett's purpose seems to be to discredit Mr. Buttfield in hopes that some one less informed will try to force the sewer beds upon us. Such a letter is extremely superficial and shows up the man.

Neither side has given us credit for any commonsense, though our interests are the most vital. Both have been inconsiderate of us, and, to serve their selfish purposes, would make a dumping ground for filth. Because we wish to protect our homes we are considered unreasonable.

I shall refrain from going into pages of detail, but will advise that a straight forward, manly course will best solve the question as it might have been long ago. Sordid nature should be set aside. Little half truths and insinuations, petty intrigue and willful deception, all tend to demoralize the force, leaving a void in the human makeup which no regrets can ever fill.

Very Truly yours,
SEYMOUR L. SMITH.

Editor,The Daily Press:—

Now that so many householders are planning to close their homes for the summer,it is well to remind them of their duty, that is have their domestic animals cared for while they are away. So many heartless people are in the habit of turning these helpless creatures out to starve or be abused while they are enjoying themselves, thereby forgetting that there is a law against every kind of cruelty to animals.

CITY SEALER RAIDS STORES IN ELIZABETH

City Sealer William J. Bender, of Elizabeth, on Wednesday made a quiet raid on storekeepers on Court, Bond and the lower end of First street, in Elizabeth, and gathered in a large number of short weights and measures and doctored scales. The confiscated articles made quite a pile in Mr. Bender's office, among them being several ingenuious methods of fleecing the public by short weights and measures.

The weights corraled were anywhere from one-half to two ounces shy, and the measures ranged from one pint to a quart below the legal standard. Several of the scales taken were manufactured with the express purpose of weighing light, according to just where the weight was placed during the operation of the scales. If the weights were placed directly in the centre of the scale pans the scales would balance true; if, however, the weights were placed on one side of the scale pans the scales would register short. Needless to say that the exact mathematical centre of the scale pans were seldom if ever used. Other scales were true enough originally, but the iron washers and bits of lead had been openly tied to the balance beams, which of course served to operate the scales in favor of the storekeepers.

Mr. Bender stated that the result of his raid yesterday was highly satisfactory, and that he hoped to break up the practice of giving short weight and measure by the same methods as he has been pursuing for some time.

Chatty Lodger (to Landlord)—You seem a good deal. What are you?

Landlord—Well, sir, I were a lion tamer, and I'd be there now if I 'adn't a-married. But you see, my wife were a knife-thrower in the same show, and she got to practicing her turn on me, Well, thinks I, life ain't too long to run no risks, so I took on a safe job and become a steeplejack.—Punch.

The Misses Anna and Velma VanCourt will both undergo operations next week for an affection of the tonsils.

Mrs. M. A. Campbell, who has been quite ill, is much improved.

NETHERWOOD CLUB'S MEET IS CONCLUDED

The Netherwood Athletic Club concluded its two day athletic meet yesterday at Asbury Park with aquatic events in the Empire pool. The track events were run off in the Netherwood section Wednesday, these being with handicaps while all the aquatic races were from scratch. A large number of entrants participated in the meet and good times were made considering the slowness of the track.

Kenneth Platt, of East Seventh street, won the individual honors, taking first place in three events and thir in one. The swimming races were captured by Pelham Wilmerding, while his brother Hamilton Wilmerding won the diving contest for form.

George H. Parker started all the races and Matthew C. Stewart acted as judge of the course.

The results follow:

50 yard dash—junior—first, Owen Horan, (3 yards); second Pelham Wilmerding, (scratch); third, Kenneth Platt (scratch).

100 yard dash—junior—first Kenneth Platt (scratch); second Owen Horan (7 yards); third Clement Moore (2 yards).

220 yards dassh—junior—first Clement Moore(10 yards); second Kenneth Platt (scratch); third Donald Crosset (15 yards).

100 yards dash—senior—first Kenneth Platt (5 yards); second Pelham Wilmerding (7 yards); third F. Letson (scratch).

Hop, step and jump—junior—first Kenneth Platt; second Philip VanDeventer; third Owen Horan.

25 yards swim—first Pelham Wilmerding; second Donald Grosset; third Clement Moore.

50 yards swim—first Pelham Wilmerding; second Donald Grosset; third Clement Moore.

Diving for form—first Hamilton Wilmerding; second Pelham Wilmerding; third Clement Moor.

Arrangments are being made by the boys to hold another meet in September on the Parker field, it being expected that a valuable set of prizes will be offered.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Communion services will be held at Hope chapel, Sunday evening, Rev. Frederic L. Greene, the pastor, being in charge.

Rev. Dr. Henry H. Stebbins, of Rochester, N. Y., will preach at the Crescent Avenue church next Sunday morning; also on July 9, 16 and 23. There will be no evening service for the rest of the summer.

FIVE OF 82 WEST POINT GRADUATES, JERSEYMEN.

Out of a class of eighty-two cadets graduates of the United States Military Academy at West Point, appointed as second lieutenants in the army, five are from New Jersey. The New Jersey boys, who all made creditable showings in the examinations for appointment, are William E. Larned, of the Second District and William H. H. Morris, Jr., of the Third District, who were appointed to the infantry arm of the army; Herbert A.Garrague, of the Fifth District Robert L. Gray, of the Ninth District and Hubert G. Stanton, cadet-at-large, named by former Senator John Kean, who were appointed to the Coast Artillery Corps. The rank of second lieutenant for these cadets went into effect from June 13.

Baptists vs. Baptists.

The Probasco Bible class baseball team of the First Baptist church will play the William N. Runyon class baseball nine from the Park Avenue Baptist church, on the Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. This will be the first game in the Sunday School Baseball League, recently organized

STATE SCHOOL BOARD GOES OUT OF OFFICE

Charles J. Baxter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the whole New Jersey State Board of Education, composed of two members from each of the ten congressional districts, went out of office at midnight, and this day opens without there being a State Board of Education or a State superintendent of public instruction, due to the governor not having acted in naming a new board.

It is understood that he will name the new board of eight members today, and they will immediately go into office, one-half of one political party and the other half of another one. He may not name the State Commissioner of Education, corresponding to the place laid down by Mr. Baxter, excepting that the man is to have twice the salary, or $10,000 a year. When a reporter asked Governor Wilson if he had made up his mind as to this man, he replied in the negative, and it is concluded that in the announcement of the new board today there will be missing the name of the man for this position.

When 4 o'clock came yesterday the doors of the State Board of Education closed. They will be opened this morning, but no one will be in charge and no work can be done, excepting the veriest routine, until the governor acts.

This is the busy season of the department, too, but little inconvenience will result from the failure of the governor to name the new board.

TO AID ITALIAN AND HEBREW SOIL TILLERS.

The State Board of Agriculture is arranging a series of summer meetings expressly for the benefit of Italian and Hebrew farmers. A number of speakers of those races from New York will be engaged for these occasions. Dr. Jacob G .Lipman, the acting superintendent of the experiment station, said yesterday that the meetings were being arranged to reach farmers who could not be reached in any other way.

Under the direction of Dr. Julius Nelson, the biologist at the station, observation stations are to be established along the coast for the purpose of making a study of oyster culture in this State.

Dr. J. B. Smith, State entomologist, gave a demonstration Thursday afternoon on the Newark Meadows regarding mosquito extermination.

The E. B. Voorhees Agriculture Club is carrying on a series of cooperative experiments on the improvement of meadows by top dressing and fertilizer, on spraying and pruning of fruit trees, and the cost of raising calves.

APPOINTS JOHN STORY MILLBURN POLICE CHIEF.

As successor to Thomas Hurley, who was last week desposed as chief of the Millburn Township Police Department of that place Wednesday named John Story, who has been patrolman in the Short Hills section for the past fifteen months. Chief Story assumed his new duties yesterday and Hurley will cover the Short Hills post, beginning tonight.

The committee named Story as chief for two months, with the understanding that should he fill the office satisfactorily his appointment will be made premanent. He will receive $75 a month. Chief Story was made a policeman in March of last year and was assigned to the Short Hills section. He is popular with his fellow-officers.

Endeavorers' Social.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church held a social last night at the church for the benefit of the boys' camp. A considerable amount was realized.

His Only Hope.

The doctor stood by the bedside and looked gravely down at the sick man.

"I cannot hide from you the fact that you are very ill," he said, "Is there any one you would like to see?"

"Yes," said the sufferer faintly.

"Who is it?"

"Another doctor."—Judge.

A Sure Return.

"Out to luncheon—back in five minutes," read the sign on the door.

"Are you sure he will be back that soon?" asked the anxious caller.

"Yes'm," said the wise office boy. "He ain't got the price of a ten-minute lunch in his clothes."—Toledo Blade.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will elect officers tonight.

HIGH BRIDGE TEAM IS HERE TOMORROW

The games tomorrow in the Central League will be as follows:

High Bridge at Plainfield.
Bound Brook at Westfield.
Scotch Plains at Somerville.

The local team will not be padded at all. Martin will be on second again with Harter in center field, Dalton or Bill Stallings on third, Hartman covering short, and Nelson and Waller on the firing line.

It is reported that George Linderman, a famous pitcher in this vicinity, will do the twirling for the High Bridge boys. Don't forget that the game begins at 3:30, the place Crescent Oval, and your voice is needed to bring another victory to the local team.

TO RAISE $442,500 FOR COUNTY PURPOSES

The Union County Board of Freeholders at its session in Elizabeth has certified to the various assessors throughout the county that the total amount needed for county purposes to be raised by taxation this year is $442,500, as against $369,000 raised last year, making an increase of $73,000. It is estimated that this will mean an increase of about four points for county purposes in the local tax budget on a basis of the same valuation as last year when the county rate was 28 points.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Tilney and family, of Central avenue, left today for Wolfboro, N. H., for the summer.

Charles A. Doeringer and W. H. I. Cubberley, of the borough, leave tomorrow for the Catskill Mountains.

Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Mallery, of Clinton avenue, leave tomorrow on the Steamship Oceana for Bermuda. They secured passage through the agency of Mulford Estil, of Park avenue.

The Misses Ellen Bix and Ella Briggs, of this city, left today on the Baltic of the White Star Line, for England. They secured passage through the agency of Mulford Estil, of Park avenue.

Miss Miriam Hodge, of Somerville, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Hodge, of Plainfield avenue. Miss Hodge was one of the honor pupils in the Somerville High School, this year, winning many prizes.

AGRICULTURE BOARD TO HAVE A BIG FIELD DAY.

The State Board of Agriculture and the Experiment Station of Rutgers College will hold its annual field day in New Brunswick August 2. The program has not as yet been published, but it is about completed.

The opening address will be made by State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the State board, and addresses will be made by men of prominence in agricultural work in other States, but who have not as yet been engaged for the occasion. Then will follow addresses by the heads of departments, explaining the character of the work done at the station. At the close an inspection of the field and equipment of the College Farm will be made.

Rutgers College is arranging to give a poultry course next term in connection with the short course in agriculture. This has been made possible by an appropriation made by the Legislature this year, and the fact that the college possesses an equipment suitable for the work. Regarding floriculture at the farm, Acting Director J. G. Lipman says that results already secured in rose production promises to revolutionize the methods of soil treatment in floriculture.

Dr. Lipman, who is professor of soil fertility at Rutgers, is filling the office of director of the Experiment Station which was made vacant by the death of Dr. Edward B. Voorhees. He will remain there until Dr. Voorhees' successor is chosen.

20 PERSONS HURT IN PHILA. TUBE WRECK.

Philadelphia, June 30.—A score of persons were injured, two perhaps fataly, when the Chestnut Hill express on the Philadelpia and Reading Railroad carrying more that three hundred passengers, crashed into the rear of a shifting engine in the tunnel at Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue soon after six o'clock Wednesday evening.

The second car caught fire immediately following the collision and only prompt work on the part of workmen from the Baldwin Locomotive Works saved many persons from death.

Lost Two Fine Horses.

George O. Stevens, the West Front street coal dealer, suffered a heavy loss yesterday when two of his fine draugh horses died from flatulent colis. The attack was acute and the horses died suddenly.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND IN FUR

Tiger Skins Go Begging in London—Less Siberian Sable Offered on Market.

At the recent London sales tiger skins were neglected, of the 82 skins offered only three being sold.

Japanese skins met with almost no favor, marten and fox skins remained unsold and only 1,500 mink skins out of 13,491 found buyers.

Only 3,260 real and bastard chinchilla skins were offered; the supply is steadily decreasing, the demand was good, and October, 1910, prices were realized.

Only 61 Falkland Island seal skins were offered; they sold readily. Lobos island fur seal skins, 2,997, the first offered in a little over two years, brought high prices.

About 10,000 sable skins are marketed each winter in Nicolaevsk, Siberia, at $15 to $50 each. The number, however, is decreasing, but it is difficult to say whether from the animals being exterminated or from the failure of the hunters to slay them. The hunting of sables is entirely by natives.

During a good season about 1,000 red fox skins at an average of $4 to $5 each are sold in the same city of Siberia. The black fox is scarce, about ten skins being obtained annually, bringing $100 to $250 each. Bear skins are plentiful, but owing to the religion of the natives the heads and claws are always removed, and consequently the hides are of little value, selling at $7.50 to $10 each.

QUEER BRUSHES AND COMBS

Different Methods Employed by Various Animals in Making Their Toilet.

The cat carries her clothes brush in her mouth, for with her rough tongue she cleans her glossy coat as a boy brushes off his clothes. She licks one of her front paws and rubs it over her face, and she is ready for her breakfast.

Foxes, dogs and wolves do not use their mouths when they need to wash and brush, but scratch themselves vigorously with their hind paws and are as fresh as ever.

The cow, with her long, rough tongue, combs her coat of hair until it is clean and curly. The horse, more than any other animal, depends on his owner to keep his coat in proper condition, but often he will roll on the green grass or rub himself against a tree or fence.

Field mice comb their hair with their hind legs, and the fur seal in a similar manner spends as much time as a woman in making herself look smart.

Although the elephant appears to be thick skinned and callous, he takes great care of his skin. He often gives himself a shower bath by drawing water into his long trunk and blowing it on the different parts of his body. After the bath he sometimes rolls himself in a toilet preparation of dust to keep off the flies.—Our Dumb Animals.

Platform Sarcasm.

Ex-Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado was once sent into a southern state to advocate Republicanism. At one place he was politely informed that not since 1883 had any Republican been permitted to finish a speech there. He was introduced by the chairman's first pointing at the audience and then at the speaker. The audience was in two parts; the white below and the colored in the gallery. For about five minutes Wolcott progressed all right, but giving away to his Republicanism, he made a pointed thrust at the opposing party. Whereupon a body of young men downstairs shouted: "Rats!" Wolcott paused a moment and then, waving his hand at the gallery, said: "Waiter, come down and take the Chinamen's orders!"

Russia Likes Fancy Sewing Machines.

Russians demand highly decorated sewing machines, and the more lacquered work in flowers and fantastic embellishments the better the article pleases. Only by close study of the wants of the people and by adapting the appearance of the machines to their peculiar tastes, such as bright colors, gaudy decorations, lacquering, nickeling and engraving, will American manufacturers succeed. While the solid golden oak tables and drawers of light color are suitable to the American taste and western Europe, they do not appeal to the Russians, who require that the woodwork be of dark colors, such as mahogany or cherry, even though it is veneer.

China's Religions.

To the ranging eye the fruits brought forth by the religions of China appear to be numberless temples, dingy and neglected; countless dusty idols portraying hideous deities in violent attitudes expressive of the worst passions; an army of ignorant priests, as sceptical as Roman augurs, engaged in divining, exercising and furnishing funeral ceremonies for gain, and a laity, superstitious and irreverent, given to perfunctory kotowing and prayer prompted by the most practical motives.—Century.

He Really Doesn't Mean It.

An enterprising cobbler in a small suburb has a sign outside his small shop which destroys the legend that everything is cheaper in the country, for he announces that he is the only one in the locality who does "mending at city prices."

ANTIQUITY OF BEER AND ALE

Beverage Was In Common Use In Germany In the Time of Tacitus.

Beer is a liquor made from any farinacious grain, but generally from barley, which is malted and ground, and its fermentable substance extracted by hot water. This extract or infusion is evaporated by boiling in caldrons and hops or some other plant of agreeable bitterness added. The liquor is then suffered to ferment in vats. Ale is a liquor made from an infusion of malt by fermentation. It chiefly differs from beer in having a smaller proportion of hops; both are intoxicating liquors.

The manufacture of beer and its use as an intoxicating drink are of very high antiquity. Herodotus tells us that owing to the want of wine the Egyptians drank a liquor fermented from barley. Ale or beer was in common use in Germany in the time of Tacitus.

"All the nations," says Pliny, "who inhabit the west of Europe have a liquor with which they intoxicate themselves, of corn and water."

The manufacture of ale was early introduced into England. It is mentioned in the laws of Ina, king of Wessex, and is particularly specified among the liquors provided for a royal banquet in the reign of Edward the Confessor.

WOMEN OF SOUTHERN AFRICA

Generally Very Highly Domesticated and Capable of Handling Household Affairs Cleverly.

The South African woman is generally very highly domesticated; she is not only capable of managing her native servants very cleverly, but she is able to cook well, make jam and pickles, look after poultry, attend to the garden and make her own dresses and those of her children.

The social life in all South African towns is a strong feature, dancing is a favorite amusement and holiday picnics on river banks are general. Women play tennis, croquet and golf and do a good deal of cycling. Life in South Africa ranges from old established culture and luxury, with every surrounding convenience and taste, to the loneliness of the veldt farm, and to this life and her husband's interests, the English born girl soon adapts herself if she is at all adaptable. She can be healthy, happy and free and usually fairly prosperous, with more money to spend than she would have in a similar position at home.—Empire Magazine.

Samson and Delilah Up to Date.

Life's modern version of Samson and Delilah is rather amusing. A slender young woman with but a normal head of hair is gazing coquettishly at a very hirsute hero, whose heavy mane falls abundantly over his shoulders.

In the second scene he sits on the sofa feeling the horror stricken countenance for the vanished glories of his capillary attraction. The lady stands with a hand mirror surveying the intricate chignon with which she has crowned her own head, and which bulges out behind and before in the approved style, while yet another mass of hair before her on the table proclaims that she has not yet done her worst.—Christian Science Monitor.

A Useless Accomplishment.

The absent-minded girl sighed woefully. "I wish somebody would tell me," she said, "why forgetting seems to be the easiest thing in the world to do. If I could write letters as easily as I can forget, or if I could even write novels or trim hats or play leading parts on the stage or make gowns or deliver suffragette speeches or—or—or do any useful thing with the facility I manifest in forgetting almost everything I ought to do, I should be rich—or at least I should be at the top of some heap. No, I'm not crazy in my talk; I just wonder why forgetting has been made the very easiest thing we can do, instead of having attainment the easy thing and forgetting quite impossible."

A 70 Mile Fox Chase.

"I notice a good deal of comment on a sixty mile two day fox hunt in Pennsylvania," remarked a fox hunter, "which reminds me that we covered more than seventy miles here recently in a single day, and what is more, we got the fox.

"First of all we rode not less than fifteen miles and back thirty miles. In the workout we covered not less than twelve miles, and in the four hour chase, red hot every minute, surely thirty miles more, a total of not less than seventy-two miles.

"Personally I believe it to be one of the most remarkable runs on record."—Pinehurst correspondence Raleigh Times.

It Depends on the Dog.

Two Broadway business men met before a bar. They were good friends.

"I'm worried a little," said one. "My chauffeur ran over a dog today and killed it."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about a little thing like that," said the other. "The dog probably got in the way. These dogs are a pest."

"But it was your dog."

"What!" came from the second. "My dog? I'm sorry, but that will cost you $100. That chauffeur of yours is too careless. I insist on the hundred, understand?"—New York Morning Telegraph.

HE SAW ALL THE REAL SIGHTS

Wonderful Things Uncle Timrod Witnessed in the City Did Not Include Museums.

"Well, Uncle Timrod," says the nephew after breakfast, "I wish I could take you around to see the sights of the city today, but I've got a lot of important business on hand; so I'll have to let you run around by yourself. Here's a list of the museums, city hall, public buildings, parks and things like that, with directions how to get to each one."

That evening Uncle Timrod comes home weary, but satisfied.

"Well," asked the nephew, "did you have any trouble finding your way around?"

"No; I got on fine," says Uncle Timrod, contentedly.

'And did you think the public buildings and museums and parks were as fine as you expected?"

"Well, Jimmy, I tell you. I got so interested in seein' sights that I never got to one o' them places. I seen a machine in a window that pulls taffy, an' a whole lot o' fancy knifes in another, an' one place I seen a clock that tells th' time anywhere on earth, an' I seen a whole window full o' canary birds an' pups, an' I looked into a barber shop that had wimmen barbers, an' I seen the fire engines run an' the patrol wagon comes an' takes a feller to jail, an' a street car run into a automobile, an' a 'lectric train whizzin' round an' round in another window, an' nigh onto 50 barrels o' apples in front of a store, an' a compass in a window, an' a place whur they cut oysters open fer ye—an I et a dozen right there, an' a feller paintin' picters in a window an' sellin' 'em frames an' all fer a dollar an' two bits apiece, an'—Oh, laws! I can't begin to tell ye all th' sights I seen. I'm clean tuckered out, an' my neck hurts because I watched two fellers washin' windows 'way up 19 floors f'om th' ground. I counted it three times. Twicet I made it 19 an' oncet 20, so I guess I'm on th' safe side. Yep. I certainly have been seein' th' sights, Jimmy."—Judge.

BOOKS LOVED BY THE BLIND

Taste of the Sightless Is for Pages That Glow With Color and Action.

Literary favorites of the blind might by some be thought to be limited chiefly to works of a contemplative, introspective character, treating of that inner life with which the sightless are perforce so familiar. What, one might ask, have they to do with light and color, with visible shapes and outlines, with stir and movement, as noted by the sense of seeing?

And yet the blind, even those born blind, habitually use the vocabulary of their more fortunate neighbors, and the verb "to see" is by no means excluded from their phraseology.

Thus it results that their taste in books is rather for the objective, the pages that glow with color and are alive with action, than for the intensely subjective.

The works circulated among the blind of New York state by the state library at Albany form an instructive list in this regard. From the current report we learn that Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" is the best-read book of the lot; Mrs. Wiggin's "Rebecca" stories are almost equally popular; Owen Wister's "The Virginian" is a prime favorite; and so is Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford," as might not have been expected.

The very last on the list of 21 is "David Copperfield," which is far outdistanced by certain works of the nonfiction class.

In the list of periodicals printed for the blind it is to be noted with regret that no fewer than four styles of typography are used—New York point, American Braille, English Braille and Moon—while a fifth, line letter, is used in many of their books.

Not In Chicago.

A Chicago man was dilating to a party of eastern drummers on "the western spirit" plus Chicago as essentials to success. To illustrate he delved into his own early history, which had been rather turbulent.

"Why, at one time I was out of work for six months at a stretch," he said, "but I never lost my nerve, and I got there."

"Six months at a stretch," repeated a skeptical listener. "What on earth did you ever do for sustenance?"

"Sustenance! Great Scott, we never had any of that in those days," replied the advocate of the Windy City. "Why, I used to feel satisfied if I got enough to eat."

Sturdy Iceland Horses.

The use of Iceland horses is spreading in Denmark, especialy in Jutland; they are excellent farm horses, being hardy and resistant to fatigue. The Iceland horse is small, stoutly built and strong. They are bred without selection and live in an almost wild state. There are about 45,000 of these horses in Iceland; from 3,000 to 4,000 are exported yearly, to Denmark and to England and Scotland.

Noted Woman Sculptor.

Mlle. Jane Poupelet is one of the three women sculptors who have been awarded a bourse de voyage or traveling scholarship by the French government. She was awarded a bronze medal at the Paris exposition in 1900 and her work is beginning to be well known in France, where it appears regularly in the Salon.

A Word for the U. S. A.

On Decoration Day, in one residential block in Newark, the writer observed fifteen American flags in the breeze. It was a beautiful sight.

And yet this represented only one flag to every four families in that block. Just imagine how a residential block would look with a flag flying from every home—with the red, white and blue mingled with the green of the trees and the lawns.

Just imagine how any business street would look with a flag flying from every building.

And there should be a flag floating from every house in the city, be it a business place, factory or private residence.

It is not expense that stands in the way of anybody putting out the Stars and Stripes, for the amount of money that the average family has heretofore spent on those relics of hpathenism—fireworks—will more than pay for a beautiful good-sized bunting flag that will last easily for ten years.

A 3x5 ft. flag costs only $1.85.
A 4x6 ft. flag costs only $2.75.
A 6x10 ft. flag, a mighty good size for residences, may be had for $5.

Let us see if we cannot bedeck Newark with flags from one end to the other, on every street and avenue on the 4th of July.

Let us do it as a mark of appreciation of the good work of the Father of the Country who made the Stars and Stripes possible,

ODD WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT

How William Cullen Bryant Informed His Mother That He Had Been Married.

The following letter from William Cullent Bryant to his mother indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" and the immortal lines "To a Waterfowl" could enjoy his joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother: I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me.

"Early on the evening of the 11th day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another.

At last came a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered.

We went in and took our seats; the little elderly gentleman with the hooked nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished, most of us sat down.

The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember; but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady by the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side, and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world.—Prof. Chubb, in "Stories of Authors."

WHERE THERE IS NO BREAD

This Staple Food Is Never Seen in a Village Not Far From Vienna.

There are regions wherein the poorer classes of peasantry eat little or no bread. Baked loaves of bread are practically unknown in many parts of southern Austria and Italy and throughout the agricultural district of Rumania.

It is said that in the village of the Obersteiermark, not far from Vienna, bread is never seen, the staple food being sterz, a kind of porridge made from ground beech nuts, taken at breakfast with fresh or curled milk, at dinner with broth or fried lard, and with milk again for supper. This dish is also known as heiden and takes the place of bread not only in the Austrian district named, but in Carinthia and in many parts of the Tyrol.

In northern Italy the peasants affect a substitute for bread called polenta, a porridge made of boiled grain. Polenta is not, however, allowed to "granulate" like Scotch porridge or like the Austrian sterz, but is boiled into a solid pudding, which is cut up and portioned out with a string. It is eaten cold as often as it is hot, and is in every sense the Italian's daily bread.

A variation of polenta, called mamaliga, is said to be the favorite food of the poorer classes of Rumania. Mamaliga is like polenta, in that it is made of boiled grain, but it is unlike the latter in one important respect—the grains are not allowed to settle into a solid mass, but are kept distinct, after the fashion of oatmeal porridge.—Tit-Bits.

Coke.

The production of coke in beehive ovens and retorts in the United States in 1909 was 39,315,065 short tons, worth $89,965,482, against 26,033,518 tons, worth $62,483,983 in 1908. The increase was 51.02 per cent. in quantity and 43.92 per cent. in value. Notwithstanding this increase the output was still 1,463,499 short tons and $21,573,643 below the high record made in 1907, which was 40,779,564 short tons, valued at $111,539,126. The 1909 increase over 1908 was mainly made in the last half of that year.

The average price a ton was $2.40 in 1908, against $2.29 in 1909, while in 1907 the average price was $2.74 a ton. Coke made in the by-product ovens is the more profitable. At the close of 1909 there were 949 of them under construction. Their product in 1909 averaged in price $3.27 a ton, against $2.10 for the output of the beehive ovens.

Will Train Servants.

Mrs. Mary Gray of Newark and other New Jersey women are interested in a state-wide movement to solve the servant question. The plan proposed is to provide better servants by providing cooking and training schools, and these will be started in the cities where girls may learn every branch of housework. Girls who are educated simply by going the rounds of the homes in any community, can not be expected to be property educated. Servants will be classified under the new plan and when proficient will be given diplomas.

Resents the Criticism.

Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, in commenting upon the statement of Lady Sarah Wilson that American women do not take an interest in politics, said that she had seen only the crust of society while visiting here, and that she could not judge American women from those she had met. She said that American women do take a healthy, normal interest in politics, as do their English sisters.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A Chance Conversation.

The opportunity thus so unexpectedly afforded was not one to be wasted, and Keith accepted it with swift determination. The expression in the woman's face was scarcely one of welcome, yet his purpose was sufficiently serious to cause him to ignore this with easy confidence in himself.

"I am, indeed, most fortunate to discover you alone, Miss Maclaire," he said, avoiding her eyes by a swift glance over the table, "and evidently at a time when you are only beginning your meal. May I join you?"

She hesitated for an instant, debating with herself, and as quickly deciding on disagreeable tactics.

"I presume this is a public table, and I consequently have little choice in the matter, if you insist," she replied, her voice more civil than her words. "Still, Mr. Keith, I am not accustomed to associating with criminals."

He smiled, holding his temper in check, more than ever determined to win.

"Then, possibly, you may rather welcome a new diversion. I can assure you our criminals out here are the most interesting portion of our population. I wish I might have your permission."

Standing there before her, bareheaded, his slightly tanned face strong and manly, his gray eyes filled with humor, Miss Maclaire recognized again that he was not of the common herd, and the innate coquetry of her nature obtained mastery. What harm could it do for her to chat with him for half an hour? It was better than eating a lonely meal, and, besides, she might learn something of value to report to Hawley. Her own eyes brightened, the slight frown disappearing.

"You are certainly an illustration of your theory," she said pleasantly. "I shall have to say yes, but, really, I did not suppose you would enjoy being ranked among that class."

He drew out a chair, and sat down facing her, leaning slightly forward upon the intervening table.

"Nor would I, only I recognize you do not comprehend. The source of your information is a bit polluted, Miss Maclaire. There are those whose good opinion I do not seek, and you should not form your decisions on the unsupported testimony of a personal enemy."

"Oh, indeed," rather resenting the words, and already regretful of her compliance. "Surely I have as much reason to trust my informant as I have you. He, at least, has proven himself a friend."

"I wish I could feel as fully assured of that as you do," he returned honestly. "I would then have every temptation to meddle further taken away from me. Do you realize that my interest is very largely upon your account?"

"Oh, no," laughing, "I couldn't believe that. I—I have heard it whispered it might be because of the other girl."

"The other girl!" in complete surprise at this swift return.

"Yes, sir," conscious of having attained the upper hand. "Miss Hope Waite."

"Some more of Mr. Hawley's fancies," he retorted, perplexed that so much should be suspected. "Have you seen her?"

"Why, of course. I am a woman, Mr. Keith, with all the natural curiosity of my sex. In this case I had special reason to be interested. One does not meet her counterpart every day."

"The resemblance between you is certainly most striking."

"Sufficiently so," she said slowly, her eyes on his face, "to abundantly confirm in my mind the truth of all that has been told me."

The waiter approached with the orders, and the two remained in silence until he had deposited his load upon the table, and departed. She was watching the face opposite through lowered lashes that veiled her eyes, but Keith was first to break the stillness.

"I wish I might be told what that was."

"To what do you refer?" apparently forgetful as to where their conversation had been broken.

"To Hawley's proposition."

"No doubt," her lips smiling, "but you have come to the wrong market, Mr. Jack Keith."

"Yet," he insisted earnestly, "if this is all straight, with no fraud concealed anywhere, if you have the proofs in your hands, why are you afraid to talk openly? The very manner in which Hawley works should convince you he is himself afraid to face the truth."

"No, you are wrong. There are perfectly satisfactory reasons why we should for the present keep our plans secret. There are details yet to be decided upon, and Mr. Hawley's present objection to publicity is only ordinary prudence."

She leaned toward him, her fingers playing nervously with a knife.

"Mr. Keith, I cannot help but like you, and I also feel most kindly disposed toward Mr. Hawley. I wish in this I was no longer compelled to consider you an enemy of us both. There is no reason why I should, except for your blind prejudice against this other man who is my friend. I know you have some cause, for he has told me the entire story, yet I am sure he did no more than his actual duty. He let me realize how very sorry he was that the marshal at Carson City had called upon him for assistance."

"Who? Hawley?" Keith questioned, hardly trusting his own ears.

"Yes; indeed he is a very different man from what you have been led to believe. I know he is a gambler, and all that, but really it is not altogether his fault. He told me about his life, and it was very sad. He was driven from home when only a boy, and naturally drifted into evil company. His one ambition is to break away, and redeem himself. I am so anxious to help him, and wish you could realize his purpose, as I do, and become his friend. Won't you, for my sake? Why, even in this affair he has not the slightest mercenary purpose—he has only thought of what was rightfully mine."

Keith listened, feeling to the full the woman's earnestness, the impossibility of changing her fixed conviction. Hawley had planted his seed deep and well in fruitful soil.

"You make a strong and charming advocate, Miss Maclaire," he returned, feeling the necessity of saying something. "I should like to have you equally earnest on my side. Yet it will be hard to convince me that 'Black Bart' is the paragon of virtue you describe. I wish I might believe for your sake. Did he also explain how he came into possession of these papers?"

"Oh, yes, indeed; there is no secret about that. They were entrusted to him by an old man whom he discovered sick in Independence, and who died in his rooms three years ago. Mr. Hawley has been searching ever since for the old man's granddaughter. It is remarkable how he was finally convinced that I was the one."

"A photograph, was it not?"

A gleam of sudden suspicion appeared in the brown eyes, a slight change in facial expression.

"That was a clue, yes, but far from being all. But why should I tell you this?—you believe nothing I say."

"I believe that you believe; that you are fully convinced of the justice of your claim. Perhaps it is just, but I am suspicious of anything which Bart Hawley has a hand in. Miss Christie, you really make me wish to retain your friendship, but I cannot do so if the cost includes faith in Hawley. Do you know that is not even his name—that he lives under an alias?"

"Is there anything strange in that out here?" she asked stoutly. "I told you how deeply he regretted his life; that alone would be sufficient cause for him to drop his family name. Did you ever learn his true name?"

He was not sure—only as Neb had reported what Waite had called the man, yet ventured a direct reply.

"Bartlett, I believe—he uses it now as a prefix."

"Bartlett!—Bartlett!" her hands clasping, and unclasping nervously. "Why, what a strange coincidence!"

"How? What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing—nothing," biting her lips in vexation. "The name merely recalled something. But really, I must go, Mr. Keith, or I shall be late at the theater. You have not attended since I came?"

"No," arising from the table with her. "However, I have heard you sing before, and hope I may again."

"How tendesly you dwell on that word 'hope.'" she said banteringly, "it almost makes me envious."

"Your resemblance almost makes me forget."

"But not quite?"

"No, not quite," he confessed, smiling back into her quizzing eyes.

They went out into the hall together, only to meet with Doctor Fairbain at the door. The latter stared at the two with some embarrassment, for a moment forgetful of his purpose. His gaze settled on the face of the lady.

"Always getting you two mixed," he blurted forth. "Never saw such resemblance—positively uncanny—same hotel too means trouble—this Miss Waite?"

"No, Doctor; I am Miss Maclaire."

"Ought to have known it—if I knew as much about faces as I do about anatomy never would make such mistake—very sorry—what fooled me was seeing you with Keith—thought he was after the other one—gay dog though—never satisfied—was hunting after you."

"After me?" evidently amused.

"Certainly—you—went to the room—then to the clerk—said you were in at supper—just occurred to me streets here bad at night—thought I'd ask you to let me escort you to theater and back—a bit of lunch later—" he glanced suspiciously at Keith—"probably got here too late."

"Well, really, you have, Doctor," she replied sweetly, veiling her eyes to hide their laughter. "But I can assure you it is not Mr. Keith," courteying slightly to the latter, "for he has not honored me; we merely met by chance at the table. I am sure I should enjoy your company exceedingly, but to-night I must plead a previous engagement."

"Ah—ah, some other night?"

"With pleasure, yes."

The doctor faded away into the office, not wholly satisfied because Keith still lingered. Miss Christie extended her hand.

"Isn't he a funny man? But I do like him—someway I like so many people whom perhaps I ought not, including you, Mr. Jack Keith. Please think over what I told you about Mr. Hawley, won't you?"

"Certainly; you have given me food for thought. I presume he is to be your escort?"

She bowed, evidently resenting the question.

"Yes, and it may interest you to know that he has something of the utmost importance to tell me to-night—he has actually seen my guardian. Don't you wish you could be there?"

She gave him a tantalizing smile, withdrawing her hand, and running up the stairs before he could answer. Over the railing of the landing she glanced down, and then disappeared.

"I believe that you believe; that you are fully convinced of the justice of your claim. Perhaps it is just, but I am suspicious of anything which Bart Hawley has a hand in. Miss Christie, you really make me wish to retain your friendship, but I cannot do so if the cost includes faith in Hawley. Do you know that is not even his name—that he lives under an alias?"

"Is there anything strange in that out here?" she asked stoutly. "I told you how deeply he regretted his life; that alone would be sufficient cause for him to drop his family name. Did you ever learn his true name?"

He was not sure—only as Neb had reported what Waite had called the man, yet ventured a direct reply.

"Bartlett, I believe—he uses it now as a prefix."

"Bartlett!—Bartlett!" her hands clasping, and unclasping nervously. "Why, what a strange coincidence!"

"How? What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing—nothing," biting her lips in vexation. "The name merely recalled something. But really, I must go, Mr. Keith, or I shall be late at the theater. You have not attended since I came?"

"No," arising from the table with her. "However, I have heard you sing before, and hope I may again."

"How tendesly you dwell on that word 'hope.'" she said banteringly, "it almost makes me envious."

"Your resemblance almost makes me forget."

"But not quite?"

"No, not quite," he confessed, smiling back into her quizzing eyes.

They went out into the hall together, only to meet with Doctor Fairbain at the door. The latter stared at the two with some embarrassment, for a moment forgetful of his purpose. His gaze settled on the face of the lady.

"Always getting you two mixed," he blurted forth. "Never saw such resemblance—positively uncanny—same hotel too means trouble—this Miss Waite?"

"No, Doctor; I am Miss Maclaire."

"Ought to have known it—if I knew as much about faces as I do about anatomy never would make such mistake—very sorry—what fooled me was seeing you with Keith—thought he was after the other one—gay dog though—never satisfied—was hunting after you."

"After me?" evidently amused.

"Certainly—you—went to the room—then to the clerk—said you were in at supper—just occurred to me streets here bad at night—thought I'd ask you to let me escort you to theater and back—a bit of lunch later—" he glanced suspiciously at Keith—"probably got here too late."

"Well, really, you have, Doctor," she replied sweetly, veiling her eyes to hide their laughter. "But I can assure you it is not Mr. Keith," courteying slightly to the latter, "for he has not honored me; we merely met by chance at the table. I am sure I should enjoy your company exceedingly, but to-night I must plead a previous engagement."

"Ah—ah, some other night?"

"With pleasure, yes."

The doctor faded away into the office, not wholly satisfied because Keith still lingered. Miss Christie extended her hand.

"Isn't he a funny man? But I do like him—someway I like so many people whom perhaps I ought not, including you, Mr. Jack Keith. Please think over what I told you about Mr. Hawley, won't you?"

"Certainly; you have given me food for thought. I presume he is to be your escort?"

She bowed, evidently resenting the question.

"Yes, and it may interest you to know that he has something of the utmost importance to tell me to-night—he has actually seen my guardian. Don't you wish you could be there?"

She gave him a tantalizing smile, withdrawing her hand, and running up the stairs before he could answer. Over the railing of the landing she glanced down, and then disappeared.

SHOE POINTERS.

Blucher ties, with a side quarter of corded cloth, a patent leather vamp and a short heel, in modish French type. The tip is perforated.

Satin and velvet pumps, principal in black but also in brown and blue.

Tan calf, dull black calf and black kid among the leathers.

Black kid is used in combination with brown satin tops.

High shoes are of tan calf, linen and white buck and black velvet combined with patent colt.

Whole white heel shoes will increase in favor as summer approaches

A Canon's Mistake.

Canor Ainger was passionately fond of children, and nothing pleased him better than to "make sport" for the benefit of his youthful friends. One evening he set out to call at a house whose young people were particular favorites. On the door being opened he whispered to the servant, "Don't announce me," and, noiselessly running upstairs, got upon all fours and with dishevelled hair entered the drawing room, growling in imitation of a wild beast. Two maiden ladies jumped to their feet with a scream—and, adds the Glasgow Herald, the genial canon realized that he had entered the wrong house.

STRATEGY OF CECIL RHODES

How He Got Ahead of His Brother in Matter of Boiled Shirt.

The late Sir William Butler, in his autobiography, which has just been published posthumously, tells the following story of Cecil Rhodes, which Cecil's brother, Frank Rhodes, told him:

"My brother," said Frank Rhodes, "is a strange man. We were young chaps together, and there wasn't too much money or too many things among us.

"One day Cecil came and asked me to let him have one of my shirts, as he wanted to go to an evening party in London. Well, I wanted the shirt myself that evening and I told him he couldn't have it. He said nothing, but I knew he didn't like losing a chance, so I watched him.

"I saw him off to the train. He had neither the shirt on him nor had he bag and baggage with him; but I thought that I'd go to the drawer and just make sure of my shirt. It was gone! Cecil came back that night.

"'Well, Cecil,' I said, 'you won over that shirt of mine; but just tell me how you did it, for it wasn't on you when you left here and you had no parcel with you. What did you do with it?'

"He chuckled a little and said, dryly, 'I put it on under the old one.' Now, that's Cecil."

GALLANT WORK OF FAMILY

Man, Wife and Son Participate in Rescue of Girl From Drowning in Icy Waters.

An extraordinary instance of a family's gallantry comes from Oxford. It appears that a domestic servant of Iffley, while cycling by the side of the river with a young man at ten o'clock the other evening, fell off her machine into the stream at a spot where the water was 12 feet deep and there was a swift current. The young man roused the Iffley lockkeeper (Mr. Mellon), who immediately jumped into the river in the darkness. His wife followed with her seventeen-year-old son carrying a lantern.

She directed operations by the lantern light and told her son to jump in to save his father, who seemed unable to effect the rescue single handed in the swiftly running stream. Young Mellon obeyed immediately, and father and son, swimming in the icy cold water, effected the girl's rescue by the light of the lantern carried by Mrs. Mellon.—Reynolds's Newspaper.

Deaf and Dumb Printers.

Manual training is an important part of the education imparted at the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Mount Airy. One notable feature is a well equipped printing office, where boys who show a preference for this trade become proficient in it. This office prints the stationery of the institution and also issues a biweekly magazine. An official of the institution says that printing is a desirable occupation for the deaf and dumb. It is an old adage of the craft that "A silent tongue maketh a full stick." Some employing printers show a preference for deaf and dumb compositors, and thus the great majority of the graduates of the Mount Airy printing office obtain lucrative positions. Even some of those who after leaving Mount Airy take a college course subsequently go back to printing.—Philadelphia Record.

Misapplied Diminutive.

The late Bishop William N. McVickar of Rhode Island, harbored a large soul in a body to match. He was a bachelor, whose sister kept house for him.

On one occasion he telephoned to his tailor that he wished to have a pair of trousers pressed, and the tailor sent a boy to his residence to get them.

The bishop's sister admitted the messenger and called upstairs, "Willie, the boy has come for your trousers!"

When the brother appeared the youth's astonished gaze traversed the prelate's impressive "corporosity"; then he murmured:

"Gee! Is that Willie?"—Youth's Companion.

Theophile Gautier as a Journalist.

M. Paul Bourget has been lecturing on Theophile Gautier and expressing pity for him as a struggling journalist. How hard he struggled may be judged from his account books, which have been published by Baron Spoelberch de Lovenjoul. He was both art critic and dramatic critic of La Presse; he was overworked, and his average earnings at "scale rates" amounted to about £260 a year.

His attitude toward literature consequently became cynical. "Masterpieces!" he once exclaimed, "I do not recognize masterpieces. I recognize nothing except copy at so much the line."

Little Old New York.

New York is a world city in the fullest sense of the word. Its attractions are already turning the attention of Europe in this direction. But while the marvelous growth of the metropolis, with its public institutions, its theaters, its matchless hotels, is as yet merely in its infancy, judging by western standards. Paris need not feel that a rivalry has sprung up which will do the French city harm. Americans will continue to go abroad.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE RIGHT BEER TO HAVE IN YOUR HOME

The Rich, Ripe Flavor of BARTHOLOMAY Rochester Beer Will Make You Smack Your Lips with Satisfaction

And oh! that hoppy taste; could anything add more zest to a wholesome meal?

There's the fullest measure of quality hops and selected barley malt in every glass of the famous Bartholomay Rochester Beer.

That tinge of bitter in the hops is an appetizer and an aid to digestion—the malt is a blood maker and nourisher.

And being fully aged, Bartholomay Beer will not upset your stomach—a good point for you to bear in mind.

Order a case of Bartholomay Beer for your home. It's as easy to get as ordinary beer, and it's a great deal better to use. Mail or phone your order. It will receive immediate attention.

ECONOMY JARS WILL KEEP YOUR FRUIT PERFECT

When your fruits are "Economy Preserved" you can be absolutely certain that they will keep perfectly until you want to use them. They cannot spoil as the sanitary composition in the cap seals them to stay sealed.

Come in and let us show you how simple and how easy it is to preserve in the "Economy Way."

Here's the recipe:

Cook your fruit YOUR OWN WAY. Then while hot pour into Economy Jars and place caps on, using spring which comes with them to hold cap in place.

When cool there is about fifteen pounds suction holding the cap on to stay.

Order a dozen Economy Jars at once.

Price per dozen—1-qt. size, $1.20; 2-qt. size, $1.40.

New Caps and Springs for your last year's Economy Jars at small price.

ORIGIN OF THE SEDAN CHAIR

Most Common Means of Travel in European Cities in Seventeenth Century.

The Sedan chair, so called from the French town in which it was first made, was the most common means of travel in European cities in the seventeenth and part of the eighteenth century. Soon after they came into use in Sedan they became extremely fashionable, and were in common use among the wealthy classes for nearly 200 years.

The first Sedan chair seen in England was in the reign of James I., the duke of Buckingham being the owner. It was in 1581 that the duke first appeared publicly in the vehicle, and there was no end of popular clamor about it. The people indignantly declared that the duke was employing fellow creatures to do the work that properly belonged to beasts, and demanded of the king that he banish the chair. The sovereign refused, however, to interfere with the duke's fancy vehicle and presently the popular indignation cooled off.

It was not until 1634 that Sedan chairs gained any considerable degree of popularity in London. In that year Sir Francis Duncombe obtained an exclusive franchise to use, let, and hire Sedan chairs in London for a period of 14 years. The titled friend of the king thus founded what may be called the first "cab stand" in London. By 1649 Sedan chairs had come into common use in England.

Meantime they had spread in popularity on the continent, Spain being one of the early countries to adopt them.

CALL FOR SQUEAKLESS CORKS

Mr. Lushmore Declares That They Are the Pressing Demand of the Age.

"It beats all," said Mr. Lushmore of the Brooklyn Park Slope, "how far you can hear the squeak of a cork.

"Now, my den is the rear chamber on the second floor. In the little cupboard I keep my cigars and a bottle of whisky, but I don't care much for the barroom society.

"My wife is pleased with my aversion for barrooms, but she would be better pleased if I never took a drink of my favorite beverage. Occasionally I come in on a stormy evening after she has gone to sleep. She hears nothing until just before I am ready to turn off the gas, when she wakes up with a start. She has heard the squeak, but she makes allowance for the weather and turns over and goes to sleep.

"When I come home in the afternoon she is usually in the dining room seeing about the dinner. Pretty soon there is a whistle from the speaking tube and her voice comes up:

"'Hey, there! You'd better not tackle that bottle on an empty stomach.'

"She has heard the peculiar sound.

"Again, she may be out in the back yard seeing if the crocuses are showing signs of life. I hardly reach my den before I hear from the yard:

"'Hoo-hoo! Can't you come out and speak to your wife first?'

"I maintain that one of the pressing demands of the age is for a squeakless cork."

Smart Detective.

"You're late!" exclaimed the bucolic inspector, in an awful voice. "Very late! Half an hour late! Too late!" He glared fiercely over his spectacles. "Why didn't you bring me your report at eleven o'clock, as I told you to?"

"I'm sorry, sir," said the defaulting detective; "but I—I didn't know the time."

"Didn't know the time?" shouted the inspector, very red in the face. "Nonsense, sir. You must have known the time! A detective should know everything! And, besides, you have your watch!"

"Pardon me, sir, but I haven't!" stammered the detective. "One of the thieves I was shadowing stole it."

Traffic Problem Easy.

The Paris subway system carries more persons in the course of the year than that of New York. In the length of the two systems there is not a great deal of difference, but the New York system covers a fourteen-mile stretch of territory laid out in a straight line, to all intents and purposes, whereas the Paris system comprises a network in the center of the city. The problem of transportation in Paris is not nearly so complex as in New York and the congestion experienced in New York is unknown in the French metropolis, where the morning or evening rush is in all directions, while in New York the people all desire to go in the same direction at the same time. The travel in Paris is quite conveniently distributed throughout the whole day.

How Words Pile Up.

There are now 400,000 words in the English dictionary, exclusive of foreign languages. Back three centuries Shakespeare carried about in his head five times as many words as the dictionary then contained; today it has a hundred words for every one which a good writer will use. The greatest gains in the number of words recorded within the last 50 years have, of course, come from a minute raking over of all accessible English documents and from special branches of human labor, particularly the sciences, in which changing conditions have made necessary hosts of new terms.
